One of the most popular novels of the hour depends for its action upon the interesting historical fact that a shipload of English maidens were sent from the mother country to the colony of Jamestown in 1621. A lady of high birth, ward to the King, smuggles herself on board the vessel bound for Virginia, and is chosen for wife by Master Ralph Percy, gentleman, the hero of the tale.

The history of King James' day is about to repeat itself. England is now engaged in active efforts to induce about three hundred thousand English girls to emigrate to her several colonies in Australia and New Zealand, where husbands are said to be anxiously awaiting them. The utmost diversity of station exists among the candidates for matrimony—farmers and tavern-keepers predominating. The barmaid and the governess, the city-bred maid and the dairymaid will be equally sure of homes. Several Australian papers teem with editorials calling upon young women in all parts of the world to hasten to the golden land of bliss. One journal contains a heading couched in the Macedonian cry—"Come out and marry us!"

The statistics furnished by the antipodean philanthropists, who are assuring English women that they had better go to Australia to become wifes and mothers than remain at home to die old maids, are adroit and almost convincing. They show, by figures, that twenty women in every hundred in England to-day cannot hope to secure husbands. The reverse of the picture demonstrates that twenty-five men in every hundred in Australia cannot by any possibility be married unless polyandry is sanctioned. Women are just that percentage shy! These figures show that in Australia proper there are exactly 247,653 more men than women! Of course, some members of this majority are ex-convicts, who emigrated at the expense of the government; but even they may be made happy, for somewhere in England are women with equally bad records who want to start over again in a new land and end their lives in peace and honor.

It may gratify the people of Great Britain to learn that this movement to send young women to the far East has the approval of the Right Hon. "Joe" Chamberlain, who is doubtless anxious to know how the idea can be introduced into South Africa when Kruger is conquered.

Another pathetic appeal from would-be husbands comes from South America. A large English communistic agricultural colony, located in Paraguay several years ago, has attained such a measure of success that the colonists now invite eligible young women to leave their English homes and join the enterprise. The grant from the Paraguayan Government exceeded twenty-five thousand acres of highly fertile land. The drudgery and toil of breaking the sod, building the houses and planting the orchards is finished. Nothing remains but the enjoyment of this flower-and-fruit-laden paradise. Idyllic pictures are drawn of opening life in this sub-tropical land, and financial assistance is promised to all respectable girls who wish to make the journey to South America.

DISAPPEARANCE OF A RAILWAY PERIL.

No feature of railway service has cost more lives and made human beings cripples for life than the system of coupling freight cars which necessitated the train hand going between two cars to do the coupling. The United States Government has now adopted the very commendable and humane course of enforcing by law all railway companies to use the new coupling device which is self acting and does not require a brakesman to jeopardize his life each time cars have to be added or detached from freight trains. This has now practically become a danger of the past, the automatic couplers having been substituted upon nearly all of the 1,300,000 freight cars of the United States. The limit on which the change must be made will expire on Wednesday.

The process of making the change has been necessarily a gradual one extending over a period of seven years, the act of Congress requiring the employment of automatic couplers having been passed in 1893— The original act required the changes to be made within a period of five years. This was found to be physically impossible, however, and the time was extended by the Inter-State Commerce Commission first to January 1, 1900, and then to August 1 in order that the few cars still unequipped might be made to conform to the requirements of the law.

The great army of railway employees are to be congratulated upon the removal of this particular danger to life and limb in connection with their calling. The handling of railway cars in motion is a hazardous calling when every preventable peril has been eliminated. The coupling of freight cars by the old method has been demonstrated to be one of the unnecessary perils of railway service, and with the substitution of the automatic coupler the number of casualties to railway employees will doubtless be very materially decreased.

The railway corporations will be quite as much the gainers by the change as their employees, for with the new device the coupling of cars will be greatly facilitated as well as made less dangerous. The saving in time will doubtless soon pay the cost of the change. With the disappearance of the old car coupler everybody will be the gainer, and the law passed by Congress seven years ago will have completely demonstrated the wisdom of its framers.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

In a miserable shanty near Reading, N.S., sixty-five Italians lived. All their cooking was done there, and rows of crude wooden bunks lined the four walls; these bunks accommodated forty sons of Italy, the remainder sleeping on the floor. The shanty was destroyed by fire recently, and the savings of several of its inmates, amounting to over $1,000 were consumed. Three of the Italians were arrested and sent to jail, in default of bail, charged with setting fire to the building.

Scotland Yard, London, Eng., in averring that Bresci, the assassin of King Humbert of Italy, was never in Italy, is understood to allege that the instigator of the crime is probably a man who made no secret of his intentions concerning "high Italian personages," while in London several months ago. He was so closely watched while there that he departed for the United States, and he was last heard of in Paterson, N.J.

* * *

King Humbert while visiting one anarchist resort in London, Eng., noticed a flaming picture, designed by the proprietor of the place, representing an anarchist hurling lawyers, churchmen statesmen and capitalists into Hades. The proprietor gave the King a copy of this picture, not knowing who his visitor was. The London editor of an Italian republican journal, who was standing by suggested to the King's guide what a strong resemblance his friend bore to the King of Italy. His Majesty also visited at night several of the most wicked resorts in London, incognito, and accompanied by one companion.

"Hunger is the Best Sauce."

Yet some people are never hungry. Whatever they eat has to be "forced down." There is, of course, something wrong with these people. By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla a short time they are given an appetite and then they enjoy eating and food nourishes them. If you find your appetite failing, just try a bottle of Hood's It is a true stomach tonic and every dose does good.

Those who have had only glimpses into Bohemia can scarcely imagine the real heartsickness of a fuller knowledge of it, for the first glimpses are apt to seem most fascinating; but any man who knows Bohemia thoroughly is apt to have a very grave face as he hears a woman say so. No one can live her best in Bohemia; it is far easier to live your worst there.—Ladies Home Journal.

DR. PIERCE'S Favorite Prescription

"I am so grateful to you for your advice," says Mrs. Sidney B. Oakes, of Whitmell, Pittsylvania Co., Va. "When I commenced your medicines I had been treated by different doctors for three months or more, but would only receive partial relief for a short while and then would be worse than before. Was confined to my bed most of the time. At the time I commenced your treatment my left side was completely paralyzed. Had no desire to eat anything; bowels costive all the time. Nerves were all unstrung, so I could not bear the least noise. I also suffered from diseased ovaries and female weakness. But thanks to my Maker and you, after following your advice, I am able to do all my washing, sewing and house work in general. I haven't had a spasm in two months. Left off medicines about one month ago. Didn't think it necessary to continue them longer. I have taken about seven bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, seven of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets.' I heartily recommend those medicines to all suffering as I was."

He Felt Funny.

One of the men on board the Olympia, at Manila, tells of the preparations to enter the bay and brave the dangers of the mines and shore batteries:

"About 7 o'clock I took a pillow," he writes, "and lay down on the soft side of a plank to take a nap. All the men slept at their guns. At 9:30 we were quietly called. No bugle sounded. Everything was done quietly. I jumped up and went on the bridge. I felt nervous for awhile; I did not know where we were, and it was as dark as hades. All one could hear was the orders given by the officers and the click of the breech blocks as they were closed. We could see the shape of a big island ahead of us, and we were told that it was the fort. It is about 600 feet above the level of the sea. We could not elevate our guns enough to bear on it, so they fired at us without receiving an answer in return. Our nerves were highly strung now from waiting in suspense. About 12 o'clock we were directly under the guns of the first fort, and when they started to signal and fired a rocket every man braced himself. On we went, not knowing what minute a torpedo or submarine mine would send us all to eternity."

"Speaking of the battle he says: "For a while I thought I was a gone goose. The shells were falling around us thick as hail. We could see the big ones pass over our heads, and the smoke and saltpeter were suffocating. One shell passed about two feet over my head, cutting the signal halyard I was holding. 'Jump up there and get that end,' said the officer. While I was up on the back stay I felt funny, I can tell you."

Hard on the Gentler Sex.

There is much of the slave and the tyrant hidden in the nature of woman. Thus woman is not yet capable of friendship, but only of love.

In the love of woman is injustice and blindness to all that she does not love.

There are two things a true man likes—danger and play. He likes woman because she is the most dangerous of playthings.

A man should be reared for the vocation of a warrior; a woman for the recreation of the warrior. All else is rubbish.

A woman's principle of honor is to love more than she is loved, so as not to be second.

In any game where love or hate is not at stake women play a mediocre part.

All women behind their personal vanity cherish an impersonal contempt for woman.

As a rule, a mother loves herself in her son more than the son loves himself.

The chief danger that besets artists of genius lies in woman. The worshiping woman is their ruin. Hardly one has character enough to resist his ruin when he finds himself treated like a god. Man is a coward in face of the ewig weibliche, and no one knows it better than the small woman.

Women indulge in literature as they commit a little sin, glancing round to see if any one is looking—i. e. to attract attention.—Henry Nietjsche, in Academy.

Hutch in Hamilton.

The Royal Drug Hall in Hamilton has, under the proprietorship of Mr. Lauchland, become one of the leading drug establishments in that city. Mr. Lauchland can boast of a trade patronized by the best and most prominent Hamiltonians.

Mr. Lauchland's policy is to handle only standard treatments. No quack can expect to impose on the public with Mr. Lauchland as a medium. He is a firm believer in Hutch and loses no opportunity in extoling the merits of that dyspepsia cure. "It is hardly necessary for me to say a good word for Hutch," said Mr. Lauchland, "there are such a great number of people using it, but whenever a purchaser asks me as to the respective merits of the different treatments I tell him plainly that Hutch is by far the most efficacious cure on the market. I base my judgment on the wonderful recoveries from stomach disorders Hutch is effecting. To me its power is almost miraculous. A ten-cent package means a customer."

Ten Hutch ten cents or two hundred for one dollar. At all druggists or by mail from the Woodward Medicine Company, Limited, 11 Colborne St., Toronto. 19 to 27 Gull St., Buffalo, N.Y.

One Woman's Ruling Passion.

"There goes a woman,' said the girl, "who hasn't a thought on earth except dress. I know that superior man attributes this particular weakness to all women—but it's a canard, as of course, are nine out of ten of male estimates of women."

She conquered a refractory button on her glove before she continued: "But that woman who passed us is, without doubt, the most dress-crazy woman I have ever met. She knows no topic save dress—can speak of no other subject. She spends one-half of her time at her dressmaker's, and the other half is used in exploiting the handicraft of the modiste. Goodness only knows when she manages to get anything to eat. She's dead to every feeling, I believe, except that which has to do with dress. And what do you think she said Saturday? I met her as we were going out of a house of mourning. A young woman whom we both knew had died—and we had been at the funeral. Coming down the steps I noticed my friend, but the feeling of sorrow was too fresh upon me to permit anything more than a nod of recognition. For half a square we walked side by side. Then I said: 'Poor, dear Clara—alive and well one week ago, and now—now she's gone!'"

"'Yes,' answered my friend, blandly; 'but wasn't she dressed beautifully? Really, it was a treat to see her!'"

"Caliber 54" Story of a Little Hero

When General W. T. Sherman was alive, he was often greeted with the shout, "Caliber 54." Old soldiers would shout it sometimes without understanding its significance, says the Pittsburg News. Its origin is well deserving of a place in history, especially as it proves that even the little drummer boys who were in the field in the Civil war, like the late T. C. E. Ecclesine, often did as efficient service as the older boys.

"Caliber 54" had its origin at the battle of Shiloh. General Sherman was riding along over the field hurrying to get to his troops when he heard a delicate voice calling: "General Sherman! General Sherman!" The old war hero stopped, and the boy piped out:

"The —— Illinois regiment is over there on the hill holding the rebels back as much as they can and they're all out of ammunition and they want some." And then, with as much volume of voice as he could muster, he added. "Caliber 54." That was the most important part of the message, for the wagon trains might have gone with loads of ammunition and if it hadn't been caliber 54 it would not have been of the least use.

General Sherman got down from his horse to pat the urchin's head, and to call him a "noble little fellow," when he saw three or four tears on the boy's cheek and he said: "There, don't cry, my little fellow; get right along back, for we're going to whip them."

"I know that," said the boy, "but when I was coming here to give you the colonel's message, a rebel's bullet struck me here," pointing to the calf of his leg. "I was crawling along the ground the best I could, and I knew I could catch you."

Then the general assisted the lad to the hospital, and a few days later he went home to his mother in Vermont. But "Caliber 54" lives in history.

CHAT WITH A PAWNBROKER

The Oddest Thing Ever Offered to Him—The Business Not All Profit.

"The oddest thing I ever had offered to me," said a pawnbroker, "was a skeleton; and I didn't take it. I hadn't any doubt that it was all right, that the man that offered it owned it and had a right to sell it. I suppose he was a medical student who wanted money just then more than he wanted the skeleton. But I didn't know anything about the value of skeletons, and how much to advance on it, and so I didn't take it. But that will give you some sort of an idea of the variety of things that the pawnbroker has offered to him.

"Of course, you understand that not all pawnbrokers take everything; there are men who advance money on nothing but watches and jewelry and diamonds and pictures and that sort of thing and who wouldn't give anything on the handsomest satin-lined overcoat that ever was, because it isn't in their line. They have no place to put such things; no conveniences for taking care of them. And then there are pawnbrokers doing a general business who take all sorts of things, watches and banjos, boxing gloves and silver spoons, practically anything and every thing that offers. They might occasionally run across something that they wouldn't take, as I did with the skeleton, but not often; there's practically nothing but what they will take, and practically nothing but what is offered at one time and another.

"On some things the amount advanced is very small; but still I've got things in safe that I never should get my money back on if I had to sell them. You'd suppose it would be easy for the pawnbroker to give on a thing no more than he could get for it if he had to sell it, and so it would be; but as a matter of fact he may give more than he could get back. He would be governed by circumstances, and by his judgment of the person offering the goods.

"I might have a customer bring in a diamond ring that I would lend so much on, whatever it was, and that would be a safe loan; the ring would be good for it if it was never reclaimed. But may be the next week the same customer, hard up and needing money, would bring in a pair of trousers, spotted and worn; not worth much if you had to sell them. And very likely I would lend more on those trousers than I could ever get for them; lending that because he's a customer and I want to accommodate him, and want to keep him as a customer, and because the chances are that he'll take the trousers out again; but if he doesn't why then I'm out.

"The question of whether a man who wants a loan is likely to redeem what he offers is often taken into account. It is a common thing for the pawnbroker to look at the man, maybe a stranger, and lend on his judgment of the man as well as on his knowledge of the value of the thing the man puts down on the counter. Of course, he makes mistakes in this, but he takes the chances, and I suppose he oftener gets it right than not. There might come in here you, or anybody, needing money, with an old-fashioned key-winding watch that I could not get $1 for, and want to borrow $15, and very likely I'd lend it though I know I never could get my money back if the watch wasn't redeemed. But I know, or I think I know, at a glance, whether he will redeem the watch or not, what sort of a man he is, and how much he values the watch for its associations; and I go according to my judgment.

"No doubt as a general proposition, the pawnbroker sets out to lend on things no more than he could sell them for; there are times when instead of making money he loses it; what he tries to do is to get a profit as the net result."

No girl can afford, either for her own surest happiness or for the comfort of mind of him whom she marries, to wed a young man during the formative period of his life, which is between twenty and twenty-five. And she who withholds from a young man her consent to marriage until he has reached the first year of the beginning of wisdom is a mighty sensible little body, and acts in a manner which she will never have cause to regret as long as God gives her and her husband life.—Edward Bok, in the Ladies' Home Journal.

This claim occupies an imposing position on a mountain just south of the city; and last, but by no means least, the Sunshine, located two miles east of Salida, at Cleora Station, on the main trunk line of the great Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, and also on the Arkansas river, which in length is one of America's greatest streams.

The Heat in England.

London, Eng., has had a July with the highest temperature on record. On six days the temperature was over 90. The heat has had a singular effect upon the street costumes worn. The plug hat, so sacred to an Englishman as a sign and bulwark of respectability, has given place to straw hats, and members of Parliament, awful to say, have been seen in their shirt sleeves in the buildings and on the terrace.

Worthy of Patronage.

Among the many hotels in Montreal patronized by the recent excursionists from here, special mention is made of the Turkish Bath Hotel. It is convenient, commodious and moderate in its charges; its distinct feature being the baths run in conjunction with the hotel, consisting of swimming, shower, Turkish, Russian and electric baths, under the skillful supervision of Dr. Manners, some of which are free to guests, while others are to be had at a reduced rate. While the bar is stocked with all sorts of temperance drinks, no spirituous liquors are allowed to be sold on the premises, thus making it free from many objectionable features, and an ideal spot for sojourners. It is situated on the corner of Saint Monique and Cathcart streets, at one end of McGill College Avenue, facing McGill College, which encircles the other end of that beautiful avenue and in sight of the mountain to the rear, thereof, a magnificent view of which and the city generally can be had from the spacious roof of the hotel, whither guests are carried by the elevator when they so desire. It is but a short distance from the Windsor station, and one block from Ste. Catherine street, the fashionable retail street, and also contiguous to Dominion Square, Sir John Macdonald's monument, the Y.M.C.A. edifice, Windsor Hotel and Music Hall, St. James's Cathedral and other large churches and structures of various kinds and points of interest.

REPORTERS' ROUNDS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

—The Board of Education did not meet last night.

—Lindsay is pushing forward extension of Water works and fire alarm.

—The four-leaved clover loses its charm unless you gather it yourself.

A channel cat weighing 13 1-2 pounds was caught in Belleville harbor Monday morning.

—The funeral of Mr. Frances McKay, late city assessor of Belleville took place yesterday afternoon.

A special meeting of the quarterly board of the George street Methodist church will be held this evening.

—It is not a bad sign when your conscience ceases to trouble you.

—The funeral of the late Mrs. Jas. Patten will leave the C. P. R. station to-day at 11.30 a.m., and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery. Funeral private.

Some people work harder taking a vacation than they do at their regular employment.

—A gang of men are engaged at the corner of Bethune and Charlotte-sts. repairing the switch on the Grand Trunk railway.

—Counterfeit $5 bills are in circulation, says the Belleville Intelligencer. Anybody who ever gets that much money should look out for Bank of New Brunswick bills.

—The assessment of Sturgeon Point village has just been completed. It shows amongst other things that there are 67 cottages all occupied, 381 population, of which 147 are children. This does not include visitors.

—Why do we always think of such clever things to say just after it is too late?

—A good story has reached a Cape paper showing how a Dutch Reformed Church minister committed his prayers between the Queen and the Presidents, "O Lord," he cried, "Do Thou bless the heads of the republics in this country; and as for this Gracious Lady who wants more territory, but has ruled over us so well, please take her to Thyself, where she may live and reign for ever and ever."

—The woman who thinks of nothing but herself must have an awfully stupid time.

—Orillia was visited the other day by General Manager Hays, General Superintendent McGuigan and other leading G.T.R. One result of their visit will be the construction of coal chutes at that point for the accommodation of engines running between Orillia and Belleville. The chutes at Waubaushene will probably be done away with.

—The Bowmanville News in speaking of Lindsay's ball team says—"The visitors were gentlemen all the way through the game and carried themselves as such after. There was also a difference in the boys who followed the team from the gang we had up from Port Hope." Bowmanville appears to have pitched a timely ball for Lindsay, who loses no time in catching on and striking Port Hope out of the compliment.

—Miss Emma Sherlock left for Toronto yesterday.

—Mrs. Beard and Miss Drummond left town yesterday for Elmdale.

—Rev. W. L. Armitage has gone to Lucknow and other points on his vacation.

Mr. Hooper Out of Danger.

Mr. Thomas Hooper of North Monaghan father of Mr. Hooper the confectioner, who was seriously injured on Friday last through falling beneath the self-binder he was driving, we are pleased to say he is progressing very favorably under the careful treatment of Dr. Bradd, and no serious results are now anticipated.

Thieves Stole the Pumps.

On Mr. John J. Lundy's pasture field opposite Mr. Harry Easts property, are pastured several horses who are watered from a driven well. On Monday morning last Mr. P. Clusair, who has a calf at pasture there, found the pump missing, but thinking Mr. Lundy was perhaps having the same repaired, paid no attention to the matter, expecting the pump would be replaced and the animals watered in the course of the day. However, this afternoon the unpleasant affair became known that some thief or thieves had walked off with the pump with all its fittings during Sunday night, in consequence of which the poor horses have been without water till to-day.

SOUTHERN GIRL.

Visiting Friends in Knoxville.

"I had been greatly troubled by being kept awake at night whenever I drank coffee. It also disagreed with my digestion. Last summer I was visiting a friend in Knoxville who had been suffering from rheumatism, caused by coffee drinking. She had quit using coffee and was using Postum and had recovered; also her delicate daughter who had been an invalid for a long time, was greatly benefitted by the use of Postum Food Coffee.

"I found while I was there and using Postum regularly that I slept much better and grew so strong in my nerves that the change was wonderful. I trust my testimonial will be the means of inducing others to try your magnificent beverage. These are true and honest facts." , Miss Frances Smith, 602 Douglas St., Chattanooga, Tenn.

The reason Miss Smith and her friends improved in health, is that coffee acts as a poison on many delicate organisms. When it is left off, the cause of the trouble is removed, then if Postum Food Coffee is taken there is a direct and quick rebuilding of the nerve centers all through the body, for Postum Food Coffee contains the elements needed by the system to rebuild the nerve centers.

Made at the pure food factories of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., and sold by all first-class grocers.

If you don't feel quite well, try a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is a wonderful tonic and invigorator. It will help you.

The 57th Regimental Band went out to Chemong Park last night, where they gave an excellent concert, to the appreciation of a large number of pleasure seekers.

Not a Peterboro Girl—Try Port Hope.

The Lindsay Post, under the caption, "Not a Lindsay girl—Try Peterborough," publishes the following—

There was a girl in our town
 Who was so wondrous fair
She could have given many
 Of her girl friends a share
Of beauty, but she wouldn't,
 And kept it behind locks,
"Because," she said, "it costs me
 Just ninety cents a box."

We would respectfully inform our esteemed contemporary that nature has so bountifully endowed our gentle sex with femine attractiveness, that they have no need of "Just ninety cents a box." Pass the poem along.

"The Zack-Bunt Party."

The "Zack-Bunt Camp" is the name of one of the jolliest camping parties on Stony Lake. It is made up of Messrs. Hal. Burnham, George Burnham and Norman Bell, to be joined later by Llewellyn Hall. The boys have their tents pitched on Juniper Island and are intent on putting in a "whale of a time." On Sunday they entertained as guests Messrs. Campbell and Clarry from town and dished up for dinner some deliciously cooked eel which Mr. George Burnham caught late on Saturday night. They purpose staying for two weeks and it is rumoured that they intend giving a five o'clock tea which will undoubtedly be one of the biggest society functions of the season on the Lake.

The Original Summer Girl.

After much biologic research,
 From evidence strong, I believe
 That I have found out,
 Beyond shadow of doubt,
 That the first summer girl was Eve.

She had unconventional ways,
 She lived out of doors, and all that;
 She was tanned by the sun
 Until brown as a bun,
 For she roamed round without any hat.

To a small garden part she went,
 Where the men were exceedingly few;
 But she captured a mate
 And settled her fate,
 As often these summer girls do.

Now, my statement, of course have proved,
 But as evidence that isn't all;
 A summer girl she
 Is concluded to be
 Because she stayed there till the fall.
 —Carolyn Wells in July Smart Set.

To Dispense Pure Milk.

A movement is on foot in town to organizing a dairy company with the object of dispensing the purest and freshest of milk. It is assumed that the demand for milk is one of a fairly permanent character, and that the business will be a safe investment, as users of milk will prefer to have an article the antecedents of which they can vouch for as good in preference to using milk of the virtues of which they can learn little. The proposition includes an arrangement by the company with a farmer having a large acreage to devote the farm exclusively to the production of milk. To that end a herd of cows will be procured and fed. The milk will be cared for by means of the latest and most approved appliances, and bottled and served to customers free from dirt, bad flavors and impurities. As soon as the scheme reaches a practical basis announcements will be made of the operations of the company, and the service it is proposed to afford. Milk is an indispensable article of diet. It is used extensively as a drink, and even more largely as a food, in various preparations, cooked and other wise. For these reasons, but chiefly because it is the almost exclusive nourishment of infants, and largely of invalids, it should be supplied free from disease germs, which, while the healthy constitution may reject them, are liable to lodge in the enfeebled system and produce their fatal results. Any effort to guarantee the purity of the milk supply of this town, will receive as it should, the practical sympathy of the citizens.—Review.

SPORTING EVENTS.

Mr. Jack McCabe came down from Brantford Monday and states that the game in Galt was the worst he ever saw in the way of roughness. Galley, it seems, was tripped by the spectators as he was running, and when he fell was kicked in the face and head.

AQUATIC

A correspondent writes from Muskoka to the city papers says.

"The canoeists at the meet of the American Canoe Association on Big Island, Lake Rosseau, spent Sunday in preparations to receive the crowd expected on Monday. The remainder of the Toronto division, forty strong, arrived at seven o'clock, and received a hearty welcome. The lake steamer Medora was decorated with their flags and banners, and attracted a great deal of attention. The New York delegation failed to connect with the Muskoka express, and had to take a later train, which had no regular boat connection. The Navigation Company sent a special boat to meet the train, and the party arrived at the camp at midnight. The New York party includes men from the Knickerbocker, Brooklyn, New York, and Trenton clubs, and is headed by Vice-commodore, Allen, of the Atlantic division. Yesterday's arrivals at the camp included. Louis A. Hall, of Newton, Mass. rear-commodore of the Eastern division; C. F. Walters, of Rochester, N. Y., purser of the Central division; D. S. Pratt, jr., Wellesley Hills, Mass; Geo. S. Brazer, of Newton, Mass.; W. A. Rooke, of Rochester, N. Y.; F. S. Thorne, of Buffalo, and E. S. Piper, of Walden Mass.

LAWN TENNIS.

To-day promises to be a gala day in tennis circles at Lindsay the occasion being the return friendly game with Port Perry Club. In all probability there will be six ladies and six gentlemen representing the visitors, and the following players will represent the Lindsay club; Mrs. Liggett, Miss Dunsford, Miss Southeran, Miss Deacon, Miss Gross and Miss Flavelle, and Messrs. W. G. McClellan, H. Knowlson, P. Kennedy, Wm Steers, L.V. O'Connor and A. F. Barr or A. T. Bayly. Play will commence at 1.30 o'clock and the public are invited to attend.

The regular Fall Tournament of the Park Tennis Club, which begins this week, is a novel departure from the general run of tournaments. Its object is to group the members of the club in order of their respective abilities to wield the racquet. For a first trial round the players have been paired off as stated below. This round must be played off during this or next week. In the second round the loser of match A will play the winner of match B; the loser of B will play the winner of C. and so on through the list.

If the loser of A takes his match with the winner of B, these two players then exchange places in the list and the winner of this match then plays the winner of A, and the loser of the same match plays the winner of C. and so on, the play continuing in successive matches until each player in the list, as finally arranged, has been defeated by the one next above him.

In order to make the contest as fair as possible all matches will be decided by the best three out of five sets, and any match unfinished at dark on any day, can be completed on the subsequent day. The result of each match must be reported promptly to the secretary Mr. Lord, who will keep the players arranged in accordance with the result of each contest.

ENCOURAGING NEWS SENT FROM CHINA

Chinese Government Has Consented to Interchange cipher Messages Between Ministers And Their Governments.

THE BRITISH MINISTER CABLES IN CIPHER

Chinese Troops and Boxers Still Peppering Away at Legations With Their Rifles, but Doing Little Damage now.

Washington, Aug. 8.

The war department has received the following cablegram from Gen. Chaffee Chefoo, adjudant Gen. — Washington Aug. 8th. Peitsang handsomely taken early this morning by Japanese troops, supported by English and Americans, Japanese loss considerable English slight, Americans none. Ground very limited. In morning American troops occupied their position which was to form turning movement but were unable to form in line we will cross Peiho to left bank to-morrow morning and move on Yang Tsung. Consul at Chee oo furnished copy despatch Tsung Li Yamen on July 30 which he has cabled. Chafee.

London, Aug. 9.

Beyond the official news given out yesterday the morning papers contain no direct information of importance from China. Thanks to the despatches of Sir Claude Macdonald and rear Admiral Bruce there is a general disposition to take a more hopeful view of the situation. The report of the appointment of field marshal Count Von Walder as commander in chief of the international forces meets with general approval.

London, Aug. 8.—In the House of Commons to-day Parliamentary Secretary Brodrick read a telegram from Sir Claude MacDonald, British Minister to China, received in cipher at the Foreign Office this morning. The despatch was in reply to a Government message and bore date of Pekin, Aug. 4. It was as follows:

"I have to-day received your cipher telegram, forwarded to me by the Chinese Minister. The shell and cannon fire ceased on July 16, but the rifle fire has continued from the Chinese positions held by Government troops and Boxers, intermittently ever since. The casualties since then have been slight. Except one private o. marines, all the wounded are doing well. The rest of the British in the Legation are well, including the whole garrison.

"The total of killed is sixty, and of wounded 118. We have strengthened our fortification. We have over two hundred women and children refugees in the Legation. The Chinese Government has refused transmission of telegrams in cipher until now."

Mr. Brodrick also read the following despatch from Admiral Seymour, filed at Chefoo, August 6;

"The Allies about 12,000 strong, attacked the Chinese entrenched position at Haiku, about two miles outside Tien Tsin, early this morning. The Chinese were driven out and retired north ward, pursued by the allies, who occupied Pietsang. Transports followed up the troops. By road and river the advance upon Pekin has been begun."

This despatch does not give the date of leaving Tien Tsin.

Mr. Brodrick said he thought the messages were on the whole, satisfactory. The country understood the policy of Her Majesty's Government in regard to Chinas which was to carry on with absolute firmness and determination the measures taken to preserve the country's interests.

THE OUTLOOK MORE CHEERFUL.

London, Aug. 8.—The cipher despatch from the British Minister at Pekin Sir Claude Macdonald received at the British Foreign Office this morning and read in the house of Commons today by Parliamentary Secretary Brodrick, announcing that the members of the Legation were holding out five days ago, is taken, together with the Admiralty's announcement that the Chinese have been defeated and are retreating before the allies, as making the outlook rather more cheerful to-day than since Admiral Seymour's unsuccessful expedition.

The Russians are fighting on the Siberian frontier, the difficulties of their position on the Liao Ting Peninsula, and the prospect of a revolt against France in Indo-China, will probably prevent either powers from sending reinforcements to the allies operating against Pekin. Hence the United States, Great Britain, Germany and Japan will have to carry out the military program without any more troops from Russia, or France.

CHILD KILLED BY HOT POTATO

Burned Throat Swelled Up and Choked Him to Death.

Philadelphia, Aug. 7.—After suffering for ten hours, during which time his throat was gradually swelling and cutting of his breath, two-year-old William Nagel, of No. 416 North Thirty-first street, died yesterday at the Presbyterian Hospital, as a result of swallowing a mouthful of hot potato.

The child seized a hot potato during the temporary absence of his mother, on Saturday, and a portion lodged in his throat and several burned the membrane. When he was taken to the hospital the patient was breathing with difficulty. Everything was done to relieve his sufferings, but the burns were of such a peculiar nature that they caused the throat to swell and he choked to death.

"CHILL" TURNER'S LETTER.

Giving his Experience in the Transvaal—He's Having a Good Time Evidently.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Turner have received the following letter from their son "Chill".

Johannesburg, July 4. 1900.

Dear Parents,—I have just returned from Pretoria and I am very glad to say that I brought plenty of mail with me. I left here yesterday along with Capt. Greenwood, by special car, as the Captain is District Engineer. At Pretoria I was furnished with a pony, and I rode out to the regiment, a distance of eight miles, and after getting the mail I returned to Pretoria. There are very few boys with the regiment, as a large number are working at different jobs on the railroad, and some are in the Pretoria police force. Like the majority of South Africa towns which I have seen, Pretoria is surrounded by high mountains and is a very beautiful town, and is very strongly fortified. The Boers are very cowardly and have no sand in them at all. I am getting along fine as is also the Captain We were very much pleased to receive plenty of mail, as we have not heard from home since we left Bloemfontein, about May 1st. This is the Yankees' big day and I suppose, as usual, there are crowds taking in the excursion to Rochester, We were all very much amused when we saw the account of the Militia being called out to guard the Welland Canal, with ten rounds of ammunition. That's a large quantity. If they were out here stuck up on a large kopje all night, doing outpost duty, on a cold night, with one hundred pounds in their bandlier, and ordered out to light a match or fire for fear of the enemy getting the alarm, it would be different. The soldiers of this war have had very hard times, but everything seems to come my way. I am all O. K. That must have been a tremendous fire at Ottawa and Hull. I have something nice for you all when I return home. Mother's present is a broach made of one Kruger severign and two half-soverigns, and a soverign for each of your chains. They are very valuable and will be great novelties. I received the two money orders you sent me. I have only drawn a soverign of my pay as yet, Things are very dear here, for instance, eggs are four shillings, and six pence per dozen, butter three shillings per pound, Capt. Greenwood has got Mr. Thompson of Lakefield, a fine situation at the Crown Department Mines as walking boss over about 100 Kaffir boys. All the Canadians think Capt. Greenwood is allright and they are not very far out either. I am writing aunt Martha and grandmother to-night. I have seen Dr. Brennan's drug store but it is closed as the Doctor being a British subject, had to go over the border and has not yet returned. All the hotels and jewellery stores are closed by order of Lord Roberts. You have done excellent by sending me all the newspapers, as they are great company. I was very sorry to hear of Dr. King's death. The Kaffir boys do my washing and work. I think we will leave for home about the end of next month. You ought to see the state of the bridges blown up by the Boers. They are in a terrible shape. I saw a comical sight in Pretoria today, it was a jackass in a cart with a rag around its neck attached to the shafts and driving it was a little Kaffir boy with a rope in one hand and a whip in the other. The papers have our fight at Leauw Kop slightly twisted as the Strathconas were not with us at all or have we heard anything of them. Well dear parents I think I have told you all for the present. I hope Mr. Babb and all of you are well.

Good-by and may God bless you and guide you as he has me in South Africa, I remain,

Your loving son.

CHILL.

P. S.—I have a beautiful Mauser Carbine taken from the Boers. Give my kind regards to the girls and all enquiring friends.

WEATHER NOTES

To-day.— Moderate to frech westerly and southerly winds; fair and very warm; a few local thunderstorms.

ANNEXATION OF THE REPUBLICS.

Their Independence a Constant Danger to South Africa. The Prorogation Speech.

London, Aug. 8.—The Queen's speech at the proroguing of Parliament, after stating that the relations with the powers of Europe and America continued friendly, and a reference to the establishment of the Commonwealth of Australia, refers to the war in South Africa, "which has placed in the strongest light the heroism and high military qualties of the troops brought together under my banner from this country from Canada, Australasia, and my South African possessions."

SOUTH AFRICA

The speech then says. "Believing the continued independence of the Republics to be a constant danger to the peace of South Africa I authorized the annexation of the Free State as a first step to the union of the races under an institution which may be developed so as t osecure equal rights and privileges in South Africa."

CHINESE SITUATION

Referring to China, the speech from the Throne says. —"The British and other legations at Pekin have been unexpectedly attacked by an insurgent mob, and it is feared many of their inmates have been murdered. How far the Chinese authorities are accomplices in this atrocious crime, and whether the British Minister and his family are among the victims are matters still in some uncertainly. The utmost efforts will be made by myself and my allies to visit with punishment the authors of this unexampled crime."

The speech closes with the usual references to the session's legislation.

UNITED IN MARRIAGE.

Mr. Jos. A. Dawson and Miss Elede Edgcumbe are the Happy Couple.

The eldest daughter of Mr. Edgcumbe, Miss Eleda, was united in marriage yesterday afternoon, at one o'clock, to Mr. James Dawson of town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. J. Wilson, of George street church, at the residence of the bride's father, in the presence of a few intimate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. Mr. Gilbert Scott officiated as best man, while the bride was attended by her cousin Miss Edna Mitchell, of Cobourg. The bride wore a handsome gown of white silk with train and trimmed with chiffon and white lace and carried a boquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was attired in white organdy trimmed with lace and chiffon, and carried a boquet of pink roses.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, a sumptuous wedding repast was partaken of, after which the happy couple left by the 4.15 C.P.R. train, on a three weeks' wedding trip to Detroit and other points in Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson were the happy recipients of many useful and handsome present. The groom's present to the bride was an elegant brooch, set with pearls and the the bridesmaid, a beautiful opal ring. The bride was also presented a purse of money from her father, and a bedroom suite from her mother.

The newly married pair will have the wishes and most cordial congratulations of a very extensive circle of friends and acquaintances.

HOT SPELL HARD ON THE CHILDREN.

Toronto Babes Wither end Die Uunder its Blighting Influence, Ten Deaths in Half a Day.

Toronto, Aug. 8.—The excessive heat continues to swell the mortality list. Up to 12 o'clock to-day ten deaths had been registered in the City Clerk's office. This is preserving the abnormal record, as 19 deaths were recorded on Monday. The average mortality for the city is four or five deaths in twenty-four hours.

The deaths recorded this morning were three cases of cholera infantum in children ranging from one to ten months' old; one death of convulsions and one from marasums in children under three months of age. There is also one case of heat apoplexy and one death from typhoid fever.

The latter portion of July and the month of August is a trying time upon infants and aged persons. The past month has been especially severe. For the entire month the record stands. Smallpox, 8; scarlatina, 1; diphtheria, 12; measles, 1; whooping cough, 1; typhoid, 1. Thuberculosis however, brings up the score by 28, making the contagious record 49, as against a total death list of 296.

BIG BOOM IN MATRIMONY.

Sunday Hymeneal Record Broken a, Chicago's Gretna Green.

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 8.—The arrival of seventy-one bridal couples from Chicago today has established a Sunday record which, it is thought, never will be equalled again in the history of this city as a marrying station for invading Chicagoans. John W. Needham, the popular county clerk, when asked this evening what reason he assigned for the remarkable patronage he enjoyed at the marrying bureau, said—"The only reason I can assign for the large number of licenses issued and ceremonies performed to-day was that warm Sundays always had in the past had the tendency to assure a great rush of arrivals on Chicago steamers. But to-day's record has proven to be the banner Sunday in the history of the matrimonial industry. I must confess that from 2 o'clock until 5 I was rushed and was of the opinion that the entire 3,000 Chicageans conveyed here on the steamer came with matrimonial intentions. The most noted Chicago bridal couple to visit the bureau today was Edward J. Corcoran and Miss Mollie Nelson. Mr. Corcoran is the deputy county clerk and clerk of the Circuit court for Cook county. Although Mr. Corcoran has gained national reputation for having issued more licenses than any other person in the entire country, except the clerk of Kings county, New York, for some unknown reason he went before the altar since to-day.

BOERS ARE FAST GOING TO PIECES

London, Aug. 8. 11 30 p.m

Lord Roberts fears that the Elands River Garrison has been captured after ten days resistance. The war office has received the following despatch, Pretoria ,Aug. 7. Delerey, hearing of Ian Hamilton's approach toward Rustimburg, and seeing that he had no chance of capturing Baden Powell, hurried off to Elands River. Hamilton reported that firing in the Elands direction ceased yesterday, and that Lieut. Col. Houses Garrison had evidently been captured. Hamilton left Rustinburg this morning bringing Baden Powells force with him, Dewet commenced crossing the Vaal River yesterday. Kitchener is now moving in pursuit. Methuen on the right bank of the Vaal, evidently come into contact with Dewets advance guard as his guns were heard by Kitchener this morning.

Hong Kong Aug. 8.

Two detachments of Indian troops here have been ordered to proceed to Shanghai; About 3,000 Black flags left Canton to-day ostensibly bound for Pekin.

London, Aug. 8.— Special to be London Daily Telegraph from Lorenzo Marquez says that General Botha's commando, originally seven hundred and fifty, now consists of only sixty-three, and other commandoes have been reduced in like proportion owing to desertions. The remainding burghers have divided into two parties, one for peace and the other for war. The peace party is the stronger.

The Boer Government will soon be removed to Lydenburg.

In the House of Commons yesterday Under Secretary of War Wyndham said the Transvaal war would be over in three weeks.

A REAR-GUARD ACTION

Kroonstad, Aug. 8.— Commandant Theron, who commanded the Boer flying patrol that derailed and burned last week, near Honigspruit, the train carrying United States Consul Stowe and flying the Stars and Stripes, has suffered a loss of three killed and ten severely wounded, in a rear guard action near Kroonstad with the mounted infantry. The British sustained no losses.

"BOBS" AS AN ORATOR

Pretoria, Aug. 8.—Many Boers are coming in from the bush veldt and surrendering their arms at various stations along the railway between here and Middleberg.

Lord Roberts opened the Soldiers' Institute here yesterday. In his address he said the first function of this kind he presided over was in India some years ago. The commander-in-Chief said his greatest pleasure was in the welfare of the soldiers He thanked Miss Brook, Miss Hunt, and the other organizers of the institute.

THEY ALL LIKE IT

Cape Town, Aug. 8.— The speech of ex-Attorney-General Solomon in the Cape Parliament explaining his course during the war, and his support of the measures proposed by the Sprigg Ministry, is universally praised. Even the Ons Land, the Dutch newspapers, admits that he justified his attitude by being consistent throughout.

The Ons Land to-day has another attack on ex-Prime Minister Schreiner, who, it says, has betrayed himself and his party.

THE CANADIANS MOVE

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—A cable has been received from Col. Otter stating that the Royal Canadian Regiment of Infantry has been ordered to move from Springs to Wolverhoek.

CHEAPER SIDEWALKS MAY ANSWER THE PURPOSE

Considerable controversy has arisen in council lately as to whether we have been, and are, paying too high a figure for granolithic sidewalks' than is absolutely necessary. Mayor Kendry takes the stand that those already laid down, would have come much cheaper had a more business like view been taken of the matter when drawing up the plans and specifications. He does not say the walks are defective in any way, but claims that the whole system upon which contracts have been awarded, together with a deplorable want of consideration and foresight in acquiescing to our citizens petitions for granolithic pavement has run up unnecessary expense. Ratepayers and aldermen alike appear to have lost sight of the fact that sidewalks constructed outside the trees require an expensive curb to be laid. Were such walks built with a boulevard each side or at the outer edge, no curb would be necessary, which would mean a saving of about one-third the cost of construction. Had this principle been adopted in laying the Water street pavement, the mayor contends that as good a walk as we now have, minus the curb, could have been furnished the town at a cost only of eleven cents per foot. Then again an inch surface finish would, he argues to all intents and purposes answer as well as of an inch and a half. And he can see no reason why sidewalks on outlying streets where there is very little traffic, should be of as costly a nature as those on the main thorofares.

In support of Mayor Kendry's argument, the Times notices that at a meeting in London of the Board of Works a contract for a cement walk and curb was awarded at 11 1-2 cents a foot, the walk, and 27 1-2 cents a lineal foot for the curb. This surely speaks for itself without further comment, and ratepayers when petitioning for such work, should bear in mind that sidewalks outside the trees always means a big additional bill of expense. While on the sidewalk question, it might be as well to draw attention to the fact that, according to the claims of men who should know something of concrete work, the pavement on Water street constructed by contractor Sheehy is exceedingly defective and does not compare favorably with the George street walk, constructed by Evans & Langford, in the point of durability, that in many places the sounding of it is extremely hollow, and here and there the top finish has already loosened from the base. These alleged defects certainly do not give promise of durability and will shortly necessitate costly repairs. We do not profess to be an authority on pavements and must in a measure necessarily rely on the opinions of those better informed, but one would naturally expect two walks constructed from the same specifications to produce like results if the specifications were carried out to the letter in both cases. It would have been better if the council had had the walks thoroughly examined before voting to the contractors their last payments on work which has previously been so severely criticised.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 9 1900.

HOW GREAT IS THIS "YELLOW PERIL"?

Is it Polyphemus or a pigmy that confronts the Christian powers at Peking? Have we aroused a veritable monstrum horrendum, or is it only the familiar and not formidable little Chinese devil with whom the allies are to try conclusions? Has that decrepit old Flowery Kingdom vital force enough to prepare for us an Armageddon, or will it meet the allied troops with absurd armies and only a show of resistance?

The despatches which now daily come to hand throw a revealing light upon the scene behind that dark curtain behind which the capital of the Empire has been so long hid from the view of civilization and give us a measure of the probable difficulty of the task that awaits us. Is it, after all, such a dreadful Yellow Peril that in forty days of continual siege and investment has been unable to "reduce" the fenced-in inclosure of eight acres belonging to the British Legation and compel the surrender of its little garrison of about seven hundred men? The Legation Guards are the only combatants, properly speaking, but in the stress of the siege probably every man capable of handling a rifle took a hand. But rifles and machine guns were the only arms. The besieging army, whatever it was, whether Boxers, imperial troops, or a Chinese mob, had and used Krupp guns. The despatches tell of the shelling of the legation inclosure. Yet it is reported that upon one occasion the brave garrison made a sortie, inflicting a severe loss upon the besiegers, and on July 16, after twenty-six days of assault and rifle-fire and shelling, an "armed truce" was declared and the firing ceased by mutual agreement. It was on June 25 that Sir Robert Hart reported the situation as "desperate." On July 4 Sir Claude MacDonald appealed for assistance, saying that there was food for a fortnight, but the garrison could not hold out for many days against a determined attack. But it did hold out and twelve days later it compelled or prevailed upon the attacking force to suspend hostilities.

This giant, aroused and terrible, has been successfully "stood off" by a few hundred soldiers and marines, taking refuge in an unfortified inclosure and not armed and equipped to resist siege operations.

The Christian powers will take breath and courage when the true significance of the despatches is understood. It is quite immaterial from this point of view whether the Boxers in rebellion against the imperial authority are the attacking force, or whether imperial troops have co-operated with them against the legations. In either event the fact that stands out most prominently is the failure of the attack. As a rebellion it cannot be very formidable nor hard to quell if it could not destroy the foreigners in their den. If it shall appear that it is not only the Boxers, but the imperial troops also that have been so long held in check by the legationers, then there is all the better reason to take a more moderate measure of the task about to be undertaken by the allies.

It must be apparent that the fact of the successful defense of the legation inclosure is quite incompatible with the dreadful theory that the invasion of China by the allied forces would bring on a war of unexampled magnitude, with all of China on the one side and the Christian world on the other.

It is now reasonably plain that the chief embarrassment is not military, but moral. It is a question of humanity, growing out of the story industriously circulated by Li Hung Chang that the Ministers are held as hostages, and that their lives would be sacrificed by an onward march to Peking. That, of course, is the act of a barbarian foe. The counter-proposition of civilization has already been made by President McKinley. Let us know that our Ministers are alive, said he to the Chinese Emperor; let us communicate with them and use the imperial forces and authority in co-operation with the allies to protect life and restore order, and we will in good faith see what can be done in furtherance of your request for good offices. This is so much better a way out than the plan of holding hostages than a wise Emperor would jump at it. The arrival of recent despatches from the legations strongly indicates that in a roundabout Chinese way this course is being followed. If the Emperor has chosen that way out, even better news may be expected within a few days. If he has not chosen it, it must be plain to him, and those about him that unless he can defend his capital the cost of his mistaken judgement is going to be immense. China might get off easily if the Ministers were surrendered now. The cost to her will be much greater if we have to rescue them by force. And if she commits the incredible folly of carrying out the implied threat to take their lives, the destruction of the empire will be the inevitable penalty.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Lindsay Post and the Watchman-Warden seem to be indulging in a few editorial personalities. The former journal remarks—"We occasionally find it about as difficult to distinguish between personal and impersonal letters, after a hurried reading, as it must be for the readers of the Watchman-Warder to discover that journal's politics, or to decide whether it is pro-British or pro-Boer in its patriotic leanings." How will Lindsay's gallant and intrepid representative in South Africa, Sam Hughes, appreciate the above insinuated change in patriotic sentiment, or the journal with which he was so many years associated?

∴ ∴

The Hamilton Times says—"Ladies who use the street cars become, as do the other sex, somewhat careless and venturesome. Many accidents would be avoided were a few simple rules regarded—Do not try to get on or off a moving car; when getting off, face forward; do not cross the street behind a car without being sure that a car or vehicle is not coming in the opposite direction; do not lean out of a moving car." Fortunately the ladies do not patronize Peterborough's street cars, and they seem to have a particular aversion to our "underground railway."

We have just received the August issue of the "Ev'ry Month" magazine. This publication seems to be the ideal home magazine as it is not only full of the best reading matter obtainable but with each issue the publishers give four pieces of new music which is always catchy and pleasant. The present issue is full of many good things and is well worth the 10 cents. The Ev'ry Month Publishing Co., 1260-66 Broadway, will give free of charge to anyone sending them $1 for a yearly subscription a beautiful, suede leather, finger purse with initail, which could not be purchased in any store at less than $1. This is without a doubt the best offer ever made by any publication to secure subscribers.

An Ohio man set a burglar trap in his jewelry store, and forgetting the contrivance sent his son to open the place. The boy is dying of a bullet wound, and the father has gained some valuable experience at a fearful cost. The man who sets such traps is a fool as well as a criminal.

The roads of some of our suburban streets are sadly in need of repair, and are particularly a menace to wheelmen. At Monday night's Council meeting our energetic chairman of the Legal Committee, Ald. Robertson, complained that he was thrown from his wheel on Sunday last owing to the wretched condition of a certain road. Someone sarcastically remarked that the worthy Alderman should not go wheeling on Sunday. That was (and unkind cut and had nothing to do with the case.

A Record in Blood.

The record of Hood's Sarsaparilla is literally written in the blood of millions of people to whom it has given good health. It is all the time curing diseases of the stomach, nerves, kidneys and blood, and it is doing good every day to thousands who are taking it for poor appetite, tired feeling and general debility. It is the best medicine money can buy.

Hood's Pills are non-irritating. Price 25 cents.

Advising the Bachelors.

"Why do you not tell the bachelors how to choose wives?" asked one of them, after reading the professor's advice to the girls on the question of choosing husbands. This query is easily answered. In the first place, to label the girls who would make the best wives would be to give away state secrets. One may laugh at the follies and foibles of the sex, whom, by pointing out the same, good may be done; but it would be unpardonable to give the men inside information about the sisterhood of such a grave character as that requested. A man contemplating marriage should be able to settle the question for himself. One who cannot distinguish the difference between the false and the true should remain a bachelor. Boys should not marry.

WHY HE QUIT JOURNALISM.

Only a Toner, But He Saw It Late and Resigned Immediately.

When I was editing the Bogtown Bugle," remarked the Colonel, "I had just finished a leader one day on 'Prosperity with Us Once More,' and sent it to the compositor, when in came a brisk stranger.

"'Editor in?' said he.

"'That's what he is,' I replied. 'What can he do for you?'

"'Well,' said the stranger, I am introducing a new cash register. The Lightning Cash Register we call it. And I thought I might sell your——'

"'Oh, you thought so, did you?' I interrupted, laughing ironically. 'Cash registers, eh? Why, certainly! There's nothing this establishment is short of just now but cash registers! You've come to the right shop to sell cash registers! Especially lightning ones!"

"I thought I was making my meaning plain enough, but that stranger merely smiled and said:

"'Yes, I see. But I thought I might sell your——'

"'Say!' I exclaimed, interrupting him again and talking pretty loud, 'what's the matter with you anyhow? If you've got a cash register that'll measure buckwheat, cord wood and potatoes, and weigh butter, skin coons and count eggs, fetch it in and we'll strike up a dicker! That's the sort o' cash this shop handles!'

"The stranger looked at me as if he was getting tired, and he put a little more vim in his talk.

"'But seriously, now,' said he. 'What I came in to say is that I am introducing a new lightning cash register, and that I thought I might sell your——'

"'Now, you git!' I shouted, pointing to the door. 'A man that doesn't know more than to try to sell cash registers to a country printing office ought to be——'

"'Say, you ding blasted idiot, you!' the stranger yelled back. 'I tell you I'm introducing a new lightning cash register, and I've been trying to tell you that I thought I might sell your fellow citizens the machine more rapidly if I put a ten dollar ad. in your paper telling them all about it, but I see that a man is only wasting his time talking to a pig headed chump like you! Good day.'

"The cash register man went out, banging the door. I sat down and pondered a while and yanked my hair. Then I called to the foreman:

"'Tom,' said I, 'is that leader of mine on "Prosperity with Us Once More" in type?'

"'Yes,' replied the foreman.

"'Kill it!' said I.

"I replaced it with one on 'An Unprecedentedly Gloomy Outlook,' and quit journalism that week."—Ed. Mott.

AMERICA

Did Not Derive its Name From Americ Vespucci.

That America derives its name from Amerigo Vespucci has long been regarded as a certainty. Now, however a historian comes forward and assures us that this is not the case. This historian is Ricardo Palma, Director of the National Library of Lima, Peru. In a book which has just been published he insists that America was not named after Amerigo Vespucci, but that, on the contrary, Amerigo Vespucci was named after America.

Senor Palma, who has studied this subject for years, maintains that Vespucci's first name was Alberico. "The name 'America,'" he says, "is derived from a place in Nicaragua, being the name of a hill in the province of Chanvoles. Furthermore, the penultimate syllable 'ic' is very often found in the words used by the Indians of South America and by the natives of the Antilles. The syllable itself signifies something large and lofty, and is found in the names of non-volcanic mountains."

He further points out that Columbus did not use the word "America" in his letters when he referred to the events of his first voyage. "It is more than probable," he continues, "that he learned through one of his attendants of the discovery of gold by some natives in a place called America. In this way it is likely that the name gradually became known throughout Europe. At that time the only geographical account of the western hemisphere was the one by Alberico Vespucci, which was published in Latin in 1505, and in German in 1508. Geographers presumably came to the conclusion that Alberico had given the name America not merely to a single hill or mountain, but to the entire country.

"When the first map of the continent bearing the title 'Provinre of America,' was published in Barcelona, in 1522, Columbus and his companions were long dead, and there was no one to protest against the misuse of the name. Furthermore, there was no one in all Europe who bore the name Amerigo, and as Vespucci's name was Alberico, geographers and historians would surely have given the new continent this name if they had desired to honor him in this fashion.

"Newly discovered countries were only named after soverigns, as we see in the case of Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland and the Philippines, and when explorers did give names to countries they selected those of their own families, as we see in the cast of Vancouver and Magellan. The origin of such places as Columbia, Columbus and Colon can also be clearly traced."

A Machine to Water the Desert.

Several machines have been invented for making the heat of the sun produce steam or electric power, but a Washington man is the first to turn such a device to practical use.

William Calver is now about to set up one of his sun-power machines in Arizona, near Phoenix, and dig wells in the desert. His plan is to make the intense heat of that hottest part of the United States develop the power to pump up water enough to irrigate all the barren land.

Everybody knows what a transformation a little water makes on a desert, producing an oasis of tropical verdure, while all beyond this watered space is desolation and death. It is usually so expensive to drill wells and pump the water on a desert that it does not pay to reclaim the waste land. But, if the overabundance of sunshine on the desert can be utilized, the problem is solved.

Mr. Calver's machine consists of a set of big mirrors and lenses, by which he focuses the sun's rays as a boy does with a burning glass. The heat which can be generated by Mr. Calver's machine is said to be equal to a furnace for a 500 horse power boiler.

With such a power as this available wherever one sees fit to set up his plant, it is easy to see how well drilling and water pumping can be done on a large scale. Geologists have found in recent years that our southwestern deserts have almost numberless subterranean streams flowing at depth varying from 25 to 250 feet below the dry, parched surface of the earth. So there need be no lack of water if the borings are intelligently directed.

The amount of arid lands which lie in Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Colorado is estimated to be at least five hundred millions of acres. this is rendered useless by the need of water, and the reclamation of this land would add billions of dollars to the wealth of the country.

In many sections of Colorado and other States in which irrigation is used, the best farming lands in the country are those which were formally worthless and are now artificially watered, and the very finest crops in the land are grown there.

Did His "Young Marster" a Favor.

A little incident at the police station recently attracted comment from various sources on account of the realistic romance it embodied. An old negro walked into the office and asked in a mild and respectful manner if his "young master," M. C. Goin, was there. He was told that Goin had been fined $2 for being drunk and was on the rock pile. He applied to Mr. Dye, keeper of the rock pile, and had a talk with Goin. The latter was very drunk when arrested and the Recorder fined him $2. He hails from Corinth.

"How much?" asked the old negro, "will you let him out for?"

Mr. Dye replied that $1.75 would purchase his liberty. The old man pulled out a tobacco sack and unloosening the strings got out $2. The young man was released. Being asked why he was interested in the young man the old man said:

"I belonged to his father endurin' the war, and no better man ever lived. When I hear 'em say young marster was in de rock pile I jes' cum up heah ter see him. I'd give my last cent 'foh he shud stay in de prison."

The young man and the old ex-slave walked away together.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

So useful are toads in gardens that they are sold in France by the dozen for stocking gardens to free them from many injurious insects.

Sahara is Not a Barren Waste.

The Sahara is not a barren waste, as is popularly supposed. Not long ago 2,000,000 goats and 200,000 camels in the Algerian Sahara alone, and the oases furnished 1,500,000 date palms.

ONE CENT A YEAR

Is the Salary That Frank Lynch Will Receive From the Government.

Iowa County, Wisconsin, lays claim to having the lowest-salaried official in the employ of the United States Government. The Government hires Frank Lynch for 1 cent a year to carry the mail between Dodgeville, the county seat of Iowa County, and Mineral Point, nine miles distant.

It is the law that such employes shall be paid quarterly, but Lynch, although he has been carrying the mails regularly since last July, has as yet received no quarters of a cent or check for those amounts. The young man is not looking for any remitances on his salary until next July, when he expects a check for a whole cent. It is supposed this will be the smallest check ever issued by the Government and efforts have already been made to secure possession of it. The mail carrier has received several offers of $15 or $20 for the check, but he has so far warily avoided any definite entanglements.

Both Dodgeville and Mineral Point have railroads, but there is none between the two towns. The trip from one place to the other by rail is so roundabout that it is out of the question, so passengers and mail are driven across country. Whoever has the contract for carrying the mail feels that he is certain of all the passenger trade, for no one has yet had the courage to compete for passenger business with the United States mail carrier. For this reason the transfer of the mail is deemed a valuable privilege.

Every four years the post office department advertises for bids and the contracts to lowest bidders for transfer of mail sack. Last year there was the liveliest competition ever known for the Dodgeville-Mineral Point contract. Several different men signified their intention of going into the contest, and the "talk" was kept up until each bidder knew he would have to go pretty low to get the prize, the man who then held the contract had been receiving about $40 per year for carrying the mail. It is said that when the bids for the new contract were opened in Washington it was found that the three lowest offers for carrying the mail per year were 1 cent, 39 cents and $1.50. Frank Lynch, being the 1 cent bidder, was awarded the contract for four years.

Drink Plenty of Water and Be Healthy.

There is no doubt that we do not drink enough. Our bodies consist largely of water, and the average man needs to drink from four to six pints of water daily in order to maintain health. This is the amount of water eliminated from the body by means of the kidneys, the skin and lungs. It is evident that a fresh supply is constantly needed to replenish this lost aid in the process of digestion and carry away matter.

If the amount of water imbibed is not sufficient for all this the health must suffer. Air, water and food are the essentials of life in the order given.

As a usual thing, women are the ones who suffer the most from an insufficiency of water. Mothers should see to it that their children have plenty of water to drink.

There is no doubt that hot water quenches thirst in most instances better than cold. Taken regularly at the rate of one glassful half an hour before meals it promotes digestion, and in catarrhal conditions of the stomach is recommended by physicians. It has also been tried as a remedy for insomnia.

Many nervous troubles would be greatly benefited by increasing the amount of water consumed, and constipation is largely the result of an inadequate supply of water.

One of the reasons people thrive at mineral springs is that outside of any medicinal properties the springs possess they drink much more water than at home.

Generally speaking, the theory advocated by the best phsicians now-a-days is to drink often and much. It cleans the system, increases circulation and helps to make a clear complexion. Therefore, ye men and women, especially the latter, drink. Take clear, pure, sterilized water, and be thankful so simple a remedy of nature is near at hand.—Katherine Louise Smith, in Table Talk.

The Famous Monitor.

Two dismantled hulks, the remnant of two of the old monitors which did such effective service during the civil war, lie on the shore of the Delaware river at Pennsgrove, on the New Jersey side. They are all that is left of the Passaic and the Ajax, both of which had proud records during the days of '61.

The Ajax cost $750,000 to build in 1862, the Passaic $600,000. Both were sold for $50,000 to Henry A. Hitner's Sons, contractors, who bought them for the old iron in them. It is proposed to sell this old iron for the purpose of making steel, and the metal may be a part, in the future, of some new terror of the sea.

Both the vessels were at one time convoys of the Monitor, and it was a curious coincidence that the Passaic, which was bought at the Pensacola navy yard in Florida, came within an ace of sinking when off Cape Hatteras, where the old Monitor was lost in a gale.

So far only the crowbar and the sledge hammer have been used in dismantling the famous old-timers, but now the contractors expect to be compelled to use dynamite on the vessels.

During the war the Passaic took part in many engagements and was put out of commission at Philadelphia June 16, 1865. Her most noted contest was in Charleston Harbor, off Fort Sumter, in 1863, when she was struck thirty-six times, had her turret turned and had to go out of action.

We Must Think Young.

The secret of keeping young is to think young, to keep one's mentality fresh and energetic and interested in those things that interest the youthful folks, and to keep pace with the great changes that are going on around us. Take a woman and put her in a farm-house, where even the echo of the great tide of human affairs never penetrates, whose life is spent in continual effort to keep the home in order and to clothe the growing family. At thirty she will have developed all the marks of middle life. Probably this same woman, working quite as hard, if placed in a large city would have managed to keep herself in appearance ten years younger. Why? She would have lived more outside herself. There would have been books and newspapers, art galleries and theatres, talks on politics and of the great men and women of the world to distract her thoughts from the drudgery of housework. The cobwebs would not have gathered in her brain and her physical loveliness would have been preserved.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 10, 1900

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

The Times' Megaphone.

The very thing for Stony Lake cottagers and campers. It will carry the voice half a mile to a mile and a half. Made in two sizes. Price $1.25 and $1.00. Every cottager should have one.

A Hint for the Board of Trade.

An exchange makes the following very commendable suggestion;

"How would it do for the town council of the Board of Trade to offer two or three prizes for improvements to private property, to be given to those whose property showed the greatest improvement within a year. That would enable everyone to compete and if the prizes could not be held by the same people in successive years, the whole town would gradually assume a better appearance. Anyone who took pains to beautify his house and grounds would keep it up year after year, prize or no prize.

The Times at Summer Resorts.

The Morning Times is sent to summer resorts and residences, addressed to individuals at thirty cents a month. Persons visiting the lakes and other places may have the Times addressed to them for as short a period as one week.

SPORTING EVENTS.

CANOEING.

The A. C. A. camp opened at Lake Rosseau on Aug. 3rd, and the racing starts on the 13th when paddling, open, and sailing canoe events will be pulled off. Commodore McKendrick, and Secretary H. Begg, of Toronto, and several divisional officers are here, besides one hundred members and twenty-five non members. About one hundred more are expected by next week. The camp is very comfortable; all tents having board floors. The members were invited by the committee of the Muskoka Lakes Association to the regatta at Beaumaris yesterday, and two canoes from the Toronto Canoe Club were on hand. The sailing championship cup is valued at $400 and there are several other costly trophies, besides a cup given by the citizens of Port Carling, worth $40. An oak shield, with the Association burgee encircled by golden or silver wreaths, will be the prize for most of the events. Representatives from the following towns are present:—Toronto, New York, Newton, Rochester, Wesley Falls, Buffalo, Malden, Rome, N.Y., Galt, Trenton, N.Y., Woburn, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Passaic, Sing Sing, Powel, Waltham, Bensonhurst, Montreal, Port Hope.

Mr. Paul Butler, son of General Butler, is occupying a private houseboat with his family.

KNOWLEDGE OF FOOD.

The Proper Selection of Great Importance in Summer.

The feeding of infants in hot weather is a very serious proposition, as all mothers know. Food must be used that will easily digest, or the undigested parts will be thrown into the intestines and cause sickness.

It is important to know that a food can be obtained that is always safe; that is Grape-Nuts.

A mother writes—"My baby took the first premium at a baby show on the 5th inst., and is in every way a prize baby. I have fed him on Grape-Nuts since he was five months old. I also use your Postum Food Coffee for myself." Mrs. L. F. Fishback, Alvin, Tex.

Grape-Nuts food is not made solely for a baby food by any means, but is manufactured for all human beings who have trifling or serious difficulties in stomach and bowels.

One especial point of value is that the food is predigested in the process of manufacture, not by any drugs or chemicals whatsoever, but simply by the action of heat, moisture, and time, which permits the diastase to grow, and change the starch into grape sugar. This presents food to the system ready for immediate assimilation.

Its especial value as a food, beyond the fact that it is easily digested, is that it supplies the needed elements to quickly rebuild the cells in the brain and nerve centers throughout the body.

TOBACCO AND THE BOYS.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—A report placed before the Michigan Legislature by a body of educators shows what the doctors say as to the physical effects of the tobacco habit on young persons. Two hundred physicians gave testimony as to boys being dwarfed, made insane, killed, or rendered incapable of speech. Bright students were made dull, and the power of hearing was seriously affected. An eminent physician says—"Young persons from the use of tobacco become thin and bronzed in color. It checks growth of mind and body, and leads to other vices. Its poisonous and benumbing influences are seen in indolence, sluggishness and indifference of mind and body. It lulls the brain and impairs the memory." For some time past the public school teachers of Baltimore have been closely watching the effect of cigarette smoking on boys of sixteen years and under, and have noticed that in every case the faculties were dulled by the habit. They say—"Smoking cigarettes causes boys to become nervous, dwarfs their intellect, poisons their lungs and blood, and unfits them for their daily duties in the schoolroom;" and they consider the practice the greatest evil of the rising generation. An English physician found injurious traces of the tobacco habit in twenty-seven out of thirty-eight boys examined. In twenty-two there were various disorders of the circulation and digestion, palpitation of the heart, and more or less taste for strong drink. In twelve there were frequent bleedings of the nose, ten had disturbed sleep, and twelve had ulceration of the mucous membrane of the mouth. The doctor's treatment had little effect until the smoking was discontinued, when health and strength was soon restored. In a memorial presented to Congress some time ago, with reference to the use of cigarettes in the United States, it is stated that "clippings taken from newspapers show that during the last year there have been about one hundred deaths of young men, mostly under sixteen years of age, from the effects of smoking paper-wrapped cigarettes." The London Lancet says—"It is time that the attention of all responsible persons be directed to the prevalence and increase of tobacco-smoking among boys. Stunted growth, impaired digestion, palpitation and other evidences of nerve exhaustion and irritability have again and again impressed the lesson of abstinence, which has hitherto been far too little regarded." After citing a case in Liverpool of death from a fatty change in the heart, due mainly to smoking cigarettes and cigar ends, it adds—"This is only a strongly-colored illustration of effects on health which are daily realized in thousands of instances. Not even in manhood is the pipe or cigar invariably safe. Much less can it be so regarded when it ministers to the unbounded whims and cravings of heedless urchins."

A young American pastor, who was fatally addicted to the poisonous "white pipe," ended a promising career at the age of twenty-nine. He died from "smoker's heart." Of sixteen hundred boys and young men, prisoners in the New York State Reformatory, at Elmira, ninety-five per cent. used tobacco, and ninety per cent. drank intoxicating liquor before they were admitted "The boy," says The Journal of Hygiene, "who starts out in life as a user of tobacco, embarks on an unknown sea, from which he can never return with the same vigor and strength of body and mind, the same sweet breath and clear eye." The teachers in the public schools of New York say—"A boy who is addicted to tobacco can immediately be recognized by his looks. He becomes listless and unambitious, and his deterioraton becomes rapid. He becomes a liar, a thief and a truant. Occasionally the habit breaks down a good scholar, but it is generally the weaker-minded boys that contract the habit."

With reference to the effects of the tobacco habit upon school work, H. H. Sheerley, Principal of Iowa State Normal School, says — "Tobacco, used in any form, destroys the ability to apply one's self to study, and prevents his comprehending or remembering his lessons. The mental faculties of a boy under the influence of the narcotic seems to be a stupor. I have not met a pupil that is addicted to the habit who will go through a single day's work and have good lessons. I have never had one whose scholarship record was good. At the regular examinations for promotion, nearly every one of the tobacco-using pupils fail in doing the most reasonable test work, even if this is not the first time the work has been passed over in class. I have had numbers of cases in which they have remained in the same grade for four successive years, and then they were not ready to be advanced into the next higher class."

A young man who made $3,000 a year clear of expenses by singing, and who was to have received $6,000, killed himself by smoking cigarettes. He was told by the doctor that he would die if he did not stop smoking cigarettes. He refused to stop smoking, and the result was death. Another young man, who was suffering from many diseases, said—"I am killing myself with tobacco. I must die a miserable slave. I cannot give it up."

In the public schools of Santa Ana, Cal., ninety per cent. of the boys between the ages of twelve and fifteen years smoke cigarettes. The result is that the boys are not nearly as proficient in their studies as the girls. In the senior class of Yale College the non-smokers are twenty per cent. taller than the smokers, twenty-five per cent. heavier, and have sixty-two per cent. more lung capacity. In Amherst College those who do not use tobacco are heavier by twenty-four per cent., and taller by thirty-seven per cent. There is a university in California that will not admit students who use tobacco. Such a rule is a step in the right direction, and cannot fail to be a benefit to the students themselves. New York City has an Anti-Cigarette League, composed of 25,000 public school boys. The president is a youth of fifteen, and the convention which elected him consisted of boys whose ages were between ten and fifteen. I wish the boys everywhere would organize, not only against the deadly cigarette, but against tobacco in all its forms. The injurious effect of tobacco on boys is becoming so manifest, and the practice of chewing and smoking is increasing among them to such an extent, that it is time for us to wake up and declare war against the pernicious habit whether practised by old or young. Let all good men and women unite condemning the use of tobacco, for the baneful effects of the poisonous stuff are seen in the mental and physical inferiority of an increasing number of stunted and nervous young men and boys.

A cigarette burned Delmar. A half dozen men were in the post office smoking, and among them was a boy who had lighted a cigarette and was sitting on a desk littered with papers. As he left the office with the men the boy threw his cigarette carelessly away. It fell on a scrap of paper in a corner, and the result was the burning of Delmar. "If you must smoke," says one, giving advice to young men, "smoke moderately." It is far better to advise boys and young men to let tobacco alone. "Touch not, taste not, handle not," is the best advice, for boys who smoke soon become the victims of an uncontrollable habit, the tendency of the habit being to grow until it becomes almost impossible to break it off. "I'll risk it," said a youth who was warned against the effects of smoking. At twenty, four years after, he was a "short pale, spindling youth, with digestion out of order, frequent headaches, nervous and irritable." Boys, beware of the tobacco habit, for "whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise."

THE CHINESE MUST CEASE ATTACKS

If Authorities Cannot Guard them in Pekin They could Not on the Way to Tien Tsin.

THE CONSULS AT SHANGHAI ARE SUSPICIOUS

On Account of Determination of British to Land the Indian Troops There Instead of Sending Them Straight to Pekin.

London, Aug. 10.

Various complaints are published in the morning papers from the Canadians invalided to England from South Africa regarding the lack of arrangements for their comfort and the delay in sending them home the movery leader says the Canadians invalided who sailed from Liverpool for Montreal yesterday, by the Allan Liner Parisian expressed their disappointment at the neglect, of the military authorities in Liverpool, they said that having experienced the life of the British soldier under British officers, they had resolved to stay at home and to mind their own business in the future. Moreover they promised to lay the facts before the Canadian ministers on board the parisian.

London, Aug. 10 4. a.m.

In the capture of Yang Tsung the losses of the allies according to a despatch to the Daily Express from Chefoo dated Aug. 8. purporting to give an account of that engagement were 200, the majority of these being killed. The allies marched on Yang Tsung, says the report, at Dawn Monday, the position held by the 1500 Chinese was well entrenched to the east of the River. After four hours fighting the Chinese were driven from their defence work. Another despatch to the same paper dated Tien Tsin, Aug. 8. recounts a reconnaissance that morning by the Japanese beyond Hsuik the result being that the enemy was developed in strong force well fortified. At Wei Ho the Chinese were superior in numbers and after facing the fire of seven guns, the Japanese retired on Hsuik with three killed and 27 wounded, but having captured 200 horses. The commissioner of Customs at Shanghai has received a routine message from Sir Robert Hart, directs Gen, of Imperial Customs, showing that the latter is still conducting the business of Imperial Customs a rather curious condition of affairs when taken in conjunction with the words happily still alive, which he included in the despatch which was dated Pekin July 27.

FIVE PRIESTS KILLED.

More Massacres in the Southwest of the Province of Pe Chili.

Lyons, Aug, 9.—The Catholic Journal announces new massacres, and a disaster to the mission in the southeast of the Province of Pe Chili. It says that five priests have been killed.

London, Aug. 9.—The flooded country beyond Pei Tsang adds immeasurably to the difficulty of the progress of the allies toward Pekin. This news reaches the Shanghai correspondents from Tien Tsin, with statements to the effect that the situation at Tien Tsin is again perilous, owing to the assembling of Chinese troops within striking distance.

The losses of the allies during recent operations are now said to have been 1,130 men, of which number the Russians lost 600, the Japanese 410 and the British 120.

International suspicion has broken out among the consuls at Shanghai on account of the determination of the British to land there a brigade of Indian troops. It is reported that the French will also land troops at Shanghai to the number of 1,200. While the Ministers at Pekin remain unrelieved, it is not understood why Great Britain should divert forces destined for the relief expedition to garrison a place where peace thus far has been undisturbed.

A news agency despatch from Chefoo, dated Sunday, August 5, says a messenger from Pekin reported that the Dowager Empress had sent four cart loads of food to the legation on July 28.

The British Foreign Office is understood to have suppressed portions of the last despatch of the British Minister at Pekin on the ground that his explicit statements regarding the quantity of food and ammunition available might be useful to the enemy.

Berlin, Aug. 9.—The German Foreign Office says Count Von Waldersee's appointment is to the command of the German forces in China, and that the question as to whether he will command all the international forces has been settled.

London, Aug. 9.—Although the Queen's speech delivered yesterday, expressed a doubt as to the safety of the British Minister at Pekin, the public accept Sir Claude Macdonald's communication at its face value — indeed, at a little better than that. It is believed here that all the sensational stories of starvation and peril have been overdrawn. At the same time there is a growing feeling of anxiety as to the early relief of the besieged legations. The unexpected vigor of the Chinese opposition at Peitsang has excited grave fears that the allies will have a much more difficult task than was at first anticipated. Only now the powers have discovered that the Chinese army of 1900 is not to be estimated by the standard of 1860. While it is yet far below the standing of European armies in discipline courage and equipment the battle fought last Sunday demonstrated the fact that substantial improvements have taken place since any western power had opportunity to test the quality of the Chinese soldier. Admiral Seymour would not have started to the relief of the legations with a handful of men if he had been aware of the increased power of resistance of the Chinese soldiers. It came as a surprise to him as the conduct of the opposing force at Peitsang did to the allies on Sunday last. With this knowledge it is apparent that a large force must be employed in the advance on the capital, and that stubborn resistance at every strong position must be expected, thus delaying the much needed relief of the Ministers.

The feeling here, as in Washington, is that it would not be safe for those who are now shut up in the legation to trust to a Chinese force to escort them to Tien Tsin. Their only safety lies in defending themselves until the allied army reaches them. The vigor of the American Secretary of State is much commented upon and universally approved. His positive, direct demands and the uncompromising front he presents to all the advances of the Chinese diplomats is regarded as being a strong guarantee for the safety of the foreigners, and also for harmonious action on the part of the relieving force. The necessity for pressing the advance is apprehended more clearly to-day than for several days past, as the difficulties in the way are better understood.

Attitude of the United States.

Washington, Aug. 9.—The State Department this morning made public the following memorandum sent yesterday to the Chinese Government through Minister Wu.

"We are availing ourselves of the opportunity offered by the Imperial edict of the 5th of August, allowing to the foreign Ministers free communication with their respective Governments in cipher, and have sent a communication to Minister Conger to which we await an answer.

"We are also advised by him in a brief from Minister Conger that in his opinion for the foreign Ministers to leave Pekin as proposed in the edict of August 2nd, would be certain death, in view of the fact that the Imperial troops are now firing upon the legations and in view of the doubt expressed by the Imperial Government in its edict of August 2nd as to its power to restore order and secure absolute safety in Pekin it is evident that this apprehension is well founded, for if your Government cannot protect our Minister in Pekin it will presumably be unable to protect him upon a journey from Pekin to the coast.

"We therefore urge upon the Imperial Government that it shall adopt the course suggested in the third clause of the letter of the President to His Majesty the Emperor of China, of July 23, 1900 and enter into communication with the relief expedition, so that cooperation may be secured between them for the liberation of the legations, the protection of foreigners and the restoration of order. Such action on the part of the Imperial government would be a satisfactory demonstration of its friendliness and desire to attain these ends.

Signed.

"ALVEY A. ADEE, Acting Sec.
Department of State, Washington
August 8, 1900."

HON. MR. TARTE, FOR WEST PETERBOROUGH.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS TO RUN HERE.

So Rumor Has it—Local Dissention Amongst the Liberals Said to be a Reason for Inviting Mr. Tarte.

A rumor is current to the effect that the Minister of Public Works will be tendered the nomination for West Peterborough at the forthcoming Dominion elections. We do not know whether or not there is anything more than rumor in it, but it is talked of on the street corners and hotel corridors, and when it is known that there is friction as to who should get the nomination amongst the local Liberal leaders, we would not be surprised if there was some truth in the rumor.

The Liberal party are determined to redeem West Peterborough and many of them think that with a Cabinet Minister as a candidate, the task would be an easy one.

The Times interviewed a couple of prominent members of the party, but could get no satisfaction. One of the gentlemen in reply to our question, "Is it true that Mr. Tarte will be offered the nomination?" answered that he did not know, but that "stranger things have happened."

There is no disguising the fact that with a cabinet minister as a candidate, there would be infinitely greater chances of success.

UPSET OIL LAMP AND WAS SEVERELY BURNED

Ottawa Woman Cannot Recover From the Injuries Received.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Mrs. William Stevens, the wife of an insurance agent, living at 345 Waverley street, arose at 7 o'clock this morning and proceeded to heat her curling tongs over a coal oil lamp. The lamp fell off the shelf, the oil was ignited and the woman's clothing took fire. She ran down stairs and out into the yard, where her screams called her husband and daughter and several neighbors. She was burned so severely, that except for the soles of her feet, every inch of her body was scorched. Her nails were burned off and her features rendered unrecognizable. The attending physicians declare it the worst case of burning ever known in Ottawa. Mrs. Stevens cannot recover.

DOG GAVE THE ALARM.

Toronto Aug. 9.—William Ware, the twenty year old son of his widowed mother, living at 17 Olive street, was drowned while taking a swim near the waterworks wharf yesterday evening. The attention of Constable Williams was called to the young fellow's danger by a dog which had been left to guard the clothes. Three little boys at the same time saw the swimmer sink, but he had disappeared before anyone could reach him. He evidently was seized with cramps.

The body was recovered not long afterwards. Coroner Greig has ordered an inquest.

BLOCKS WAY OF RUSSIAN FLEET

England Said to Have Objected to Passage of the Bosphorus by Black Sea Ships.

Berlin, Aug. 10.—The Russian army transports have not yet passed the Bosphorous, not apparently because the permission to do so was refused by the Porte, but because England has officially expressed herself as opposed to this move in the strictest of terms, and added that at this particular moment grave consequences would follow.

Russia intended to send a greater part of the Black Sea fleet to China, but no negotiations with the powers signing the treaty concerning the passage of the Bosphorous has yet been completed.

Whether the affair will result in further complications cannot be told, as the question is now in discussion with the English Ambassador. The Sultan has declined to take any part in the dispute.

Fleet Awaits Permission.

Four Russian armored vessels with a small torpedo flotilla are anchored four six miles from the entrance of the Bosphorous.

Sultan Afraid of Strangers.

It is said the Sultan had asked the British Ambassador at the last audience to request that his colleagues observe the circular concerning the strictest regulations regarding the reception of strangers, and during the recent religious celebrations all the Italian workmen in the Yildiz Kiosk were dismissed.

SAW MILLS LEAVING THE U. S.

Eddy Bros. Compelled to Close Down in Bay City.

Bay City, Mich, Aug. 9.—The days of the Eddy Bros.' sawmill in Bay City are numbered. It has been one of the leading lumber manufactories of Michigan, dating almost from the inception of the lumber industry in the State. Within ten days a dismantling crew will begin work tearing down the structure.

Eddy Bros. & Co. have owned large tracts of pine timber in Canada for many years, and have kept their mill in Bay City partially supplied with logs towed across the lakes. The embargo placed on logs by the Canadaian Government, prohibiting them being towed to the United States, has effectually closed the mills, and its owners have been forced to engage in the manufacture of lumber in Canadian territory in order to utilize their lumber holdings. Eddy Bros. & Co. have a tract of from two hundred to three hundred million feet within reach of Blind River, Georgian Bay, and it is here that they already have a site for a sawmill cleared. They own the booms at Blind River, and these booms are adjacent to the mill site. Work on the mill at Bling River will started at once.

TRIED TO SUICIDE ON YORK STREET

Young Women Drinks From a Bottle of Carbolic Acid—She May Not Recover.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—A healthy looking young woman named Florence Roe created a sensation in York street, near Queen, this afternoon, by deliberately placing a small bottle to her lips and taking a mouthful of strong carbolic acid. Late in the day she was lying at the Emergency Hospital with her life despaired of.

At the time of the extraordinary act she was accompained by William Roe, who calls himself the woman's husband, and who says he works at Fitzgerald's Hotel, at the corner of Adelaide and York streets. He says she did not get much of the stuff, for he pulled the bottle from her lips. She was carried to the Osgoode Hall Pharmacy, at the corner of Queen and York streets, where an antidote was at once administered. From there she was taken in the ambulance to the Emergency, where every means are being taken to preserve life.

The woman is about 20 years old.

HUNTER'S PRISONERS NOW NUMBER 4,140

Kitchener Crossing the Vaal After De Wet With Cavalry and Mounted Infantry, Including The Canadians.

METHUEN ENGACED PART OF DE WET'S FORCE

Three Guns and 4000 Horses were Captured and 195,000 Rounds of Ammunition Were Destroyed.

London, Aug. 10.—4.45 a.m

The Daily News has the following despatch from Pretoria, dated Aug. 9—A plot to shoot all the British officers and to make Lord Roberts a prisoner has been discovered. Ten of the Ring Leaders were arrested and are now in jail, probably the plot was part of a conspiracy of which the attempted raising at Johannesburg was the first indication.

IN EVERY FIGHT.

Kingston, Aug. 9.—Corporal Swan, of the first Canadian contingent, writing to his father, says that four members of the regiment, all ex-members of the Fourteenth Battalion, have been through every engagement in which the regiment has participated since landing in South Africa. They are Privates Eby, Ault and McCormack, and Corporal Swan.

London, Aug. 9.—The following report, dated Pretoria, August 8, has been received from Lord Roberts.

"Kitchener was informed yesterday by an escaped British prisoner that De Wet's wagons had crossed the Vaal. Afterwards I heard the sound of guns, which I think must have been Methuen's, as I directed him to take up a position between Potchefstroom and Lindique, where he could intercept the enemy who crossed the river at Lewetsdrift. Kitchener is crossing the Vaal with cavalry and mounted infantry.

"Hunter reports that he made 4,140 prisoners in the Bethlehem-Harrismith district, a majority of whom are now en route for Cape Town. Three guns and 4,000 horses were captured and ten wagon loads of ammunition, and 195,000 rounds of ammunition were destroyed.

"The garrison of Elands River, which I fear has been captured, consisted of about 300 Bushmen and Rhodesians. I had hoped that Carrington had been in time to withdraw the garrison, but it seems that Delarey, learning of Ian Hamilton's approach to Rustenburg, hurried westward and surrounded the garrison before Carrington arrived.

"Methuen telegraphs that he engaged a part of De Wet's force yesterday near Renterskroon. He drove the enemy off of a succession of hills, which they held obstinately. Our casualties were seven men killed or wounded, including four officers."

SIFTON TRIAL RESUMED.

Dr. McNeil Denies Story—Did not Consent to Hold an Inquest for $1,000.

London, Ont. Aug. 9.—Special—The enquiry into the cause of the death of Joseph Sifton, for which his son Gerald and the latter's hired man, Walter Herbert, stand charged with murder, was resumed here this morning.

Dr. McNeil of Arva, was the first witness called. He gave a complete denial to the prisoners' story, sold for $1,000 he had consented not to hold an inquest upon the remains of deceased. The doctor was corroborated by his wife, who said the interview between her husband and the prisoner on the day following the tragedy was very brief, instead of lasting two hours. She overheard her husband tell the prisoner that if any circumstances arose to warrant it, an inquest would be held, and Gerald said "certainly, certainly!"

In the cross-examination Dr McNeil said he had told Joseph Winters to go to Arva and find out any suspicious circumstances he could, for the purpose of holding an inquest.

Dr. McNeil also denied telling Rev. Mr. Cooper that two brothers of the deceased were suspicious and wanted an inquest.

Two farmers named Richard Lambourin and James Armstrong were also witnesses this morning. They were at the elder Sifton's the morning of the tragedy between eight and nine o'clock. Lambourin said Walter Herbert pointed out the opening in the end of the barn through which he said the old man fell. Herbert tried to explain how the deceased fell on the axe, but he was so excited and cried so much witness could not understand him

Armstrong corroborated Lambourin's testimony but added the most important testimony of the morning. He said Herbert placed the axe edge upwards and explained that deceased had fallen on it in this way. Witness saw two pools of blood where the deceased was alleged to have fallen. One of the pools was six inches in diameter, and another somewhat smaller was a foot or more further away from the barn There was some blood on the head of the axe near the eye.

LI HUNG CHANG'S AMBITION

Credited With Seeking to Have Himself Proclaimed Emperor.

London, Aug. 8.—Evidence is accumulating which shows plainly that the Chinese leaders intend to turn the Chinese people against the Manchu dynasty. Earl Li's denunciation of Li Ping Heng for the murder of Christians in the Celestial Empire is regarded as a proof that the Oriential means to defy the Manchu Government, and possibly even to seize the throne. whatever his plans, Li Hung Chang has the sympathy and the active support of the Chinese Minister in England, and it is believed of those on the continent as well. The Chinese officials in England and China's European diplomats in general think that they have done enough already to insure their being out in half if they should return to Pekin while the present dynasty holds the reins of power there.

Li Hung Chang's refusal to go to Pekin and thus put his head in the trap prepared for him made it impossible to continue the semblance of negotiations between himself and the Imperial authorities. Li expects the Emperor and Empress to flee when the allied troops reach the sacred city, and believes the opportunity will then be at hand for him to proclaim himself the ruler of China and appeal to the Chinese people to drive the Manchus from the country. He has behind him the all-powerful influence of the high-class Confucian Chinamen who inherit from their ancestors the ambition to wrest China from the hands of her Manchurian conquerors.

The southern Viceroys are also favorable to the contemplated coup d'etat, since they hold the purse strings of the Empire. The invaluable support of the Chinese Ministers at St. Petersburg, Berlin, Paris, London, and Washington is also assisting in the movement. The Chinese Ministers in London and Washington are proteges of Li Hung Chang, and have sounded England and America to ascertain whether support could be expected from them. Both have advised the Ministers that in the event of the proposed coup d'etat they would not interfere to protect the ruling dynasty. If there should be the continental interposition which is expected in such a contingency, that would mean a warning to keep hands off.

KNOCKED DOWN BY A WOMEN

Montclair, N. J., Aug. 8.—Miss Alice Jacobus went out for a walk with her dog this afternoon. Coming toward her was Franck Pescherer, who has also accompanied by a dog. The dogs got into a fight and Miss Jacobus' won The victory seemed to roil Mr. Pescherer and he kooted Miss Jacobus' dog across the road. Miss Jacobus advanced on Pescherer and there was a dangerous gleam in her eye.

"You will kick my dog, will you?" she cried, and struck out with her right. The blow caught Pescherer on the jaw and he staggered and fell to the ground. He talks of having the young women arrested for assault.

ROBERTS FOR CHINA.

The Buffalo Courier, which curiously enough is a hidebound party organ of the so-called pro-Boer democracy, devotes a leading article to the proposition, "Let Lord Roberts Command." It anticipates that concert or no concert, there will in any case be active unity in China between two or three powers, including the U.S. and England. "An American general," says the Courier, "would not stand a show, but it is important to America that a leader be picked who shall be competent, according to American standards. If the supreme commander of the allies cannot be an American, it is only natural that an Englishman be next preferred. England is considering sending Lord Roberts to China. At the present time there is no general living who has commanded an army of 100,000 men in time of war. Before the difficulty in China is over there will be nearly that number of soldiers in the Orient—perhaps a larger total." The Courier adds that Roberts is the only field-marshal in Europe available for active service, all the other representatives of that rank being either invalids or men of advanced age.

This fact of Lord Roberts' unquestioned supremacy of rank, would be of the utmost importance in the command of a man of many nationalities, but all imbued with the spirit of militarism and its respect for nice distinctions of authority. It would minimize jealousy and disarm suspicion, while his recent successes in the field would prevent any carping criticism of the methods he might adopt. In the meanwhile the matter rests with the commander himself. Nothing but imminent national peril would entitle his country to call on Lord Roberts for services directly after the great campaign he has fought in Africa. And if there be anything in Pretoria rumors his health is hardly equal to a sudden transition from Transvaal winter to Chinese summer.

The most curious thing is that less than a year ago we were wondering if "Bobs" was not a little too old and out-of-date for the South African campaign. He has shown himself a marvel of vitality; but all things have their limits.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Nobody with even the most elementary knowledge of mush-rooms could have read without impatience more or less angry the proceedings in the inquest held out in Illinois last week on certain victims of rash mycological experiments. The Coroner, his jury, and all the witnesses devoted themselves, not to discovering what particular species of mushroom it was that killed the unfortunate people, but to displaying their own belief in a wide and essential difference between mushrooms and something they called "toadstools." Now, as a matter of fact, a "toadstool," so far as there is any such a thing, is a mushroom, and a mushroom is a "toadstool," if anybody chooses to give that picturesque name to it. Of course there would be no harm in applying the name "toadstool" to all poisonous mushrooms. Indeed, in a vague, rough way, that is probably the popular understanding, but the scientists have refused to make any such distinction, for the very good reason that the poisonous mushrooms are just as much mushrooms as those that are good to eat, and it would be simply homicidal to encourage the delusion that the "toadstool" is a thing apart, easily recognized by some peculiarity of structure or color. To the existence of this utterly false theory is due, directly or indirectly, almost every case of mushroom poisoning that occurs, and the sooner people learn that of two mushrooms, not only of the same genus, but of the same species, one may be excellent food and the other a poison without an antidote, the sooner they will cease trusting to the popular rules, every one of them false, for drawing a line between mushrooms and "toadstools."

The Dawn.

The struggling politician, who looked like Hanna, burst in upon his wife toward the close of an Autumn day.

"At last, my darling; at last!" he cried.

And his wife laid to one side the sock she was darning, and rose, that he might press her madly to his breast.

"What is it, dear?" she asked, with lightning eyes after he had done it.

He brushed her tumbled hair back from her brow—gently—with his open hand. The horn handle of a tooth brush protruded from the upper pocket of his waistcoat.

"At last, my own!" he said, looking down into her eyes, "the flame that I have sought so long is beginning to dawn."

She clasped her arms tightly about his neck. A vision of an Aldermanship with paving contracts and other good things flashed across her mind.

"John, oh, John!" she exclaimed, with deep emotion, "have you been nominated for something——"

And he answered, choking with emotion: "No, dearest; but little Earnest shall go to college yet—Dinkelheimer has named a new brand of cigars after me."

And for supper they had pickles with their sausage.

A Threat.

"I believe we mothers cannot be too careful. Whenever there is any difficulty between my husband and me, I send the children outdoors immediately."

"Very prudent; but, on the other hand, is it good for the children to be obliged to be on the streets from morning to night?"

Headache may be called a woman's ailment. Some men suffer from it. But almost all women have to endure its pain with each recurring month. This fact points at once to the intimate relation between the health of the delicate womanly organs, and the general health of the whole body. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription banishes headache by banishing its cause. It cures the diseases which irritate the delicate womanly organs, fret the nerves and waste the strength. It increases the vitality and builds up the nervous system. "Favorite Prescription" contains no opium, cocaine or other narcotic.

"I want to praise your medicine," writes Mrs. Sarah J. Burley, of Crescent City, Putnam Co., Fla. "I have been sick for twenty years, and have been almost in bed five years, and now I am able to work all day. I have taken eight bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and four of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one vial of 'Pellets.' I praise your medicine to all. I had the headache but it is gone. My throat is well and cough gone, and all my old troubles are better. I tried many other kinds of medicine and four doctors."

BISMARCK COULD DRINK.

And Yet He Lived to a Ripe Old Age and Always Enjoyed His Pipe.

Count Andrassy's story of an interview he had with Bismarck is as follows:

"Bismarck had two immense mugs of beer brought to us. He took one of them and shoved the other over to me. I remarked that I drank only water. He looked at me in silence, curiously and almost suspiciously for a minute and then proceeded with the subject under discussion. The more interested he became in our conversation the more frequently and copiously he drank. After finishing his own mug he appropriated mine without a word and put down its contents in three or four tremendous drafts. Then he had a servant fetch and fill two enormous pipes. When he offered me one of them, I explained that I never smoked.

"'What!' he cried, 'neither drink nor smoke? What kind of a supernatural man are you anyway?'

"It was a mercy to both of us, however, that I did not accept the pipe, for Bismarck smoked so incessantly that within fifteen minutes the air in the room was dense. When I rose at the end of the evening from the table at which we were sitting, the smoke was so thick that I could hardly see the chancellor's face."

Something of a Hint.

"Stolen kisses are the sweetest," he said.

"How I dislike a man who doesn't practise what he preaches," she returned.

Occasionally a man has to be jarred before he realizes what is going on.

A Bantam Rooster Living on a Grave.

It is by no means an uncommon occurrence to see glass cases on the graves of children in the cemeteries of the country containing toys and other articles that were the especial favorite of the dead child, but James Austin, a fruit tree man, tells of an instance of this nature that is out of the ordinary. He was making a delivery in the southern part of Tipton county this week when he noticed a coop sitting on a grave in a little churchyard. The sight was so unusual that he got out of his buggy and went for a closer view. In the cage was a red bantam rooster, which was quite tame and allowed itself to be petted. There was no stone to indicate whose grave it was on, but inquiry at a house disclosed the fact that the fowl had been a pet of the little girl of John Stover, and when she died the parents placed it in a wire cage on the grave, and they make daily trips, three-quarters of a mile to take it food and water.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SCYTHE IN THE PINE TREE.

A Curious Reminder of the Son's Going to the War, Never to Return.

Thirty-eight years ago young Augustus Bliss, of Warwick, quit cutting brush on his father's farm, hung his scythe on a pine tree and went off to war. The soldier boy never came back, and the scythe has never been taken down from the tree where he hung it, but has become imbedded in the growing pine until it is a fixture. This pathetic reminder of the great civil struggle is a familiar sight to members of the Shoomet Club of this city, as the tree stands near the club's comfortable quarters in Blissville, a hamlet just across the North Orange line into Warwick.

When young Augustus Bliss left home and parents, to fight his country's battles, Blissville was a busy centre of small industries, traces of which remain to tell the story of the shifting of the scene of manufacturing from the small country hamlet to large centres. The tree has witnessed all these changes, has seen the mill standing near slowly falling into decay, the population changing, but still the scythe hangs there, summer and winter, a mute testimonial to the devotion to duty that animated young Bliss. His father, Milton Bliss, was engaged in building the dam standing by, and sent his son to cut some briers that were in the way of stone that were needed. After the briers were cut the scythe was hung on a small pine tree near, probably without a thought of how long it would remain there.

In a day or two Augustus Bliss went to the front, having enlisted for a three years' term of service in the army some time previous. The young soldier never came back. He was but eighteen years old when he enlisted, August 4, 1862, in Company H, Thirty-sixth Massachusetts Regiment. While with his regiment in the South, he was overtaken by a fatal disease and died in an army hospital at Mildale, Miss. The circumstances of his contracting disease were very sad. He had gone to get water for his comrades, and his company had orders to march while he was gone. He tried to overtake them, and the over-exertion was more than he could stand, and he was taken ill with fever before he had been in battle. He was not brought home for burial, but his name is on the roll of honor on the soldiers' monument at Orange.

In all these years no one has meddled with the scythe. It has hung there a symbol and visible reminder to his father of his son's devotion to duty. As the tree grew, the scythe has become embedded in the wood, until it is a part of the tree. The snath, which has been forced off the scythe by the growing tree, is supported in its original position by a small framework. The woodwork of the tholes has yielded to the action of the elements and fallen away. Around the tree, which is probably a little over a foot in diameter at its base, has been erected a railing.—Springfield Republican.

The Man Who Does Not Hurry.

Many evils in this life come from undue haste in the morning. A Roman gentleman of excellent family, and large income killed himself because, as he left word, he was "tired of doing the same things." Think of the hideous monotony of morning life. You stretch yourself in bed and yawn; a sense of duty drags you out, just as in earlier years a chapel bell summoned you at school to early and shivering prayers. You poke your feet into slippers. Bath, the operation of shaving, a quick decision as to the necessity of a change in underclothes or linen, then a rush into clothes, as though you were a fireman in active service. You gobble breakfast and a newspaper, there is a wild scramble for a street car, there is suspension from a strap, and you are at the office with a dash of shaving soap close to an ear and biscuit crumbs on your mustache. And for what?

The body is too fine a thing to be treated in haste. We know a man, and we think of him now with reverence, who snaps fingers at conventional duty. He snoozes after he has had eight or nine hours of sleep. After he has made ready his bath he lies down again to recover from the exertion. He then puts a Scotch cap on his head—association of ideas, for he drank Scotch the night before—gets into the tub, where he soaks for fifteen or twenty minutes, and reads a novel. Then in bath-robe he drinks two or three glasses of water and eats a sliced orange. He shaves himself as carefully and slowly as though he were about to be hanged. He then examines his stock of shirts, which leads him to a study of the methods pursued in a modern "American hand laundry." He chooses a cravat to suit the sky and the temperature of the day. About an hour and a half after he parted from sleep he consumes a cup of coffee and a roll. Finally he saunters toward the street corner, and there he waits until he sees a car with empty seats. Do you call him lazy? He has all eternity before him. And we claim that this man is better prepared to meet the problems of the day than you, who are complimented when some one describes you as a hustler. It is true that if the deliberate one is working for others they may not appreciate his deliberation; they may discharge him. But this is a mere detail. Others will gladly hire him at a princely salary.

Unpreparedness.

A courier presses toward the commanding general, his steed foaming conventionally.

"The enemy is in motion," he cries, "but it is impossible to decide whether he advances or retreats!"

Again the sickening unpreparedness of the war office, which should have provided charts of the Boer trouser, enabling the strategists at the front to determine at a glance in which direction any person wearing this garment was proceeding.

What the Gentleman Said

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—Did you say that Miss Decolleta was the best dressed woman at the opera?"

Mr. Crimsonbeak—No. I didn't say exactly that. What I did say was that she outstripped all the others.

Sahara is Not a Barren Waste.

The Sahara is not a barren waste, as is popularly supposed. Not long ago 2,000,000 goats and 200,000 camels in the Algerian Sahara alone, and the oases furnished 1,500,000 date palms.

A Real Good Time.

First Matinee Girl—Did you enjoy the play this afternoon?

Second Matinee Girl—I never enjoyed anything half so much. Why, there wasn't a minute I wasn't crying my eyes out.

CLERICAL HUMOR

Of the Old Scotch Presbyterians—George Buchanan as a Wit.

It was the wise Bulwer who said: "When an error once gets into the world it is astonishing how hard it is to get it out. You may beat it about the head until it seems to have given up the ghost, and then the next day meet it on the street as healthy as ever." Nevertheless, errors of all sorts should be clubbed at every opportunity—else how shall truth prevail?

Now, the generally received idea of the old Scotch Presbyterian clergy is that they were a gloomy and morose set, wedded to a stern routine of life, inflexibly opposed to social enjoyments, innocent of a witticism and totally incapable of practicing a practical joke. One would almost as soon suspect John Knox of swearing as of smiling, or bold David Ferguson of picking pockets as of poking fun.

As a matter of fact, the old Scotch Reformers were as generous in sentiment as they were firm in doctrines, as Demonstrative in love as they were strict in devotion, and therewithal as fond of good puns as of sound preaching. Why, John Knox himself was in private life abundantly genial, and was a favorite not only with Queen Mary Stuart, in spite of the strict manner in which he kept her conscience, but with all her gay and lively maids of honor.

George Buchanan, though connected with a work and era of violent measures and harsh means, was a hearty humorist. When he was discharging the duties of preceptor to the young prince who afterward became James I. of England, he discovered his royal pupil's weakness in complying with every request presented to him. One day he handed two papers to the juvenile monarch which he requested him to sign. James readily signed his name to the documents without reading either, or asking particularly about their contents.

In one of the papers James formally transferred the royal authority to his tutor for the term of fifteen days. Buchanan now began to assume the state and importance of a sovereign. Being addressed with the usual salutation by one of the courtiers, he announced that he would expect to be addressed with more ceremony since he had obtained the dignity of the crown. The young King, who was present, began to suspect that the stern preceptor had suddenly lost his reason, and asked for an explanation.

"There is the instrument," explained Buchanan, placing the document before his pupil, "by which I have received from you my sovereignty for fifteen days." Buchanan improved the occasion by administering to the inexperienced monarch a suitable lecture on his habitual rashness.

In 1608 King James published his famous "Book of Sports," and thinking to render the Presbyterian form of worship less rigid ordered that certain of the sports therein commended should be played in the several churchyards every Sunday at the close of divine service. John Ross, a minister of Blairgowrie, adopted a novel method of withstanding the royal ordinance. He was a strong, athletic man, and seemed much interested in the recreations enjoined by the monarch. Football was selected by the parishioners of Blairgowrie from the list of "Sunday games."

When the services of the church were completed Mr. Ross appeared among his people in the churchyard, and joined them in their sport. None of the assemblage kicked more eagerly at the football than did the reverend incumbent. But constant misfortune seemed to attend him; every kick missed the ball and fell heavily on the ankles of those who stood near. Apologies were promptly tendered, and, of course, received, though every Sunday many of the parishioners returned home halting. Finally it was agreed that on account of the minister's awkwardness the games should be abandoned. Thus the ingenious divine gained his end and prevented compliance with the obnoxious order.

It was the inflexible Dr. McCubbin, who, when suffering dreadfully from toothache, advanced the witty argument that no more convincing proof could exist of the truth that man sinned and fell by eating the forbidden fruit than that the teeth, from infancy to old age, were, above all the rest of the body, the seat of the most painful disease. Nevertheless the good doctor loved good eating, and, for that matter, good wine and wit as well.

On one occasion Lord Douglas invited him to dinner at Douglas Castle to meet Lord Braxfield, the noted Judge. Braxfield was disappointed to find there was no claret, and asked His Lordship if there was any in his cellar. The peer answered that there was, but that his butler had pronounced it unsound. "Let's pree't," said Braxfield. It was produced and pronounced excellent. Braxfield proposed to the distinguished doctor that, since an anathema had gone forth against this particular wine, he absolve it. "Your Lordship is a good judge in civil law," replied Dr. McCubbin, "but you are not so familiar, I perceive, with the laws of the church. We never absolve till after three several appearances." The claret of the host suffered accordingly.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 10, 1900

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

A New Serial.

The Times will be enlarged in a few days and will commence the publication of a new serial story, of an interesting character. Watch for it.

The Times' Megaphone.

The very thing for Stony Lake cottagers and campers. It will carry the voice half a mile to a mile and a half. Made in two sizes. Price $1.25 and $1.60. Every cottager should have one.

A Mill at Bancroft.

The Rathbun Co. are at present erecting a large saw mill at Bancroft, in the County of Hastings, the material for which is being shipped from the Campbellford agency. The cars carrying the lumber will be the first to run over the new railroad to Bancroft, the work of laying the rails having been finished only a few days ago. This new branch is an extension of the Central Ontario road from Ormsby to Bancroft, a distance of 16 miles.

The Times at Summer Resorts.

The Morning Times is sent to summer resorts and residences, addressed to individuals at thirty cents a month. Persons visiting the lakes and other places may have the Times addressed to them for as short a period as one week.

Moving Pictures.

The G.T.R. were successful on Saturday in taking a biograph view, or what is known as a moving picture, of Muskoka Wharf, showing the arrival of Muskoka express, the detraining of the passengers, unloading of baggage and transferring to the steamers. Also a view of steamers on their departure up the lakes. Another picture, of a regatta scene at Beaumauris, was taken on Monday. These pictures will be shown throughout Canada and the United States and at the Paris exposition. The G.T.R. have now seven of these biograph views.

A Snap.

Photogravures, mounted on a heart shaped velvet pad, with easel, of all the Generals serving in the South African war—the nicest novelty out for 30 cents each. Also a large colored picture 18 x 24 for ten cents. Times Bookstore.

The Granolithic Walks.

The article which appeared in The Times of yesterday in regard to the work done on Water street appears to have hit the contractor rather hard. Mr. Sheehy states that his work was always equal to that done by Evans and Langford, and in no case was it inferior. So far as The Times is concerned, we simply did what we believed to be our duty in calling attention to it. The public can look at the work for themselves, and form their own conclusions.

The C. P. R.'s Style.

The C. P. R. is always thoughtful of its patrons, and when a traveller takes their fare, he is looked after properly. The other day a young lady, coming to Peterborough on a visit, when leaving the train here forgot her purse containing a large sum of money, in her berth in the C. P. R. Pullman. Discovering her loss shortly after her arrival she noticed the local telegraph operator and was much gratified to receive her purse by the noon train yesterday.

Pimples on the face are not only annoying, but they indicate bad blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures them by purifying the blood.

REPORTERS' ROUNDS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

—Are you hot?

—This is the great August thaw.

—The Board of Works held a meeting last night.

—A council meeting is called for tonight.

—There is harpist and violinist doing the hotels of the town.

—$45,000 was paid in taxes to and including Aug. 1st.

—There was a special meeting of the Daughters of England last night.

—Mr. James Bogue has completed his Lindsay contracts, and returned to town.

—Mr. J. E. Hayes who has the contract for Park and Weller street sewers, is making good progress.

—The Times has added over 700 to its list of subscribers. Not bad during the dull dog days, eh?

—An excursion came to town yesterday morning from Lindsay. It received a warm welcome.

—Some people put on so many airs that just to come near them gives you a chill.

—At last the English sparrow is to be exterminated; he is to be used next fall for trimming hats.

—William Murphy was sentenced to a month in gaol at the Police Court this morning. He pleaded guilty to assaulting Jeremiah Carew.

—Mr. James Stevenson, who takes great interest in beautifying Central Park, thinks that the park should be watered every day from the hydrant.

—The watering cart is responsible for a number of runaways. But a Peterborough team never runs away from the brewer's wagon.

—The band will play at the park tonight. We would suggest, as an appropriate selection, the one entitled, "How would you like to be the Iceman?"

—A Toronto prophet says the world will come to an end on the 1st of February. Under the circumstances it might be as well to get your coal in a ton at a time.

—Early to bed and early to rise does very well with preachers and guys, but makes a man miss all the fun till he dies, and joins the stiffs that are up in the skies. Go to bed when you please, and lie at your ease, and you'll die just the same from a Latin disease.

Orillia News-Letter.—Alderman J. B. Oke, Peterborough, well known fruit exporter, has been appointed by the Dominion Government to a responsible position in England in connection with the Dominion export fruit trade. Mr. Oke is a capable man and has had twenty-five years' extensive experience in the fruit business.

Assistant Conductors.

The railways are considering the advisability of abandoning the time-honored title brakeman on passenger trains and calling that official "assistant conductor." The name brakeman has been a misnomer ever since brakemen ceased to be brakemen—that is, when air brakes came into use. A brakeman nowadays has nothing whatever to do with the brakes. He simply attends to signals, calls names of stations, and otherwise assists in conducting the train. The change to assistant conductor, says an exchange, is logical, because these men are frequently promoted to be conductors. Besides, it would tend to raise the standard of the calling.

ONE OF THOUSANDS

"I was a martyr to Sick and Nervous Headaches caused by Constipation, unfit for business on an average 2 days a week.

Some pills helped me, but Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills at 10 cts. a vial cured me.

"This is my own testimony and it is a fact. Now I never lose an hour or miss a Meal.

This is the written testimony of a well known Toronto journalist—you can have his name if you want it. Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills, at all druggists, 40 in a vial, 10 cents.

IS YOUR AILMENT CATARRH? — "I had Catarrh for 1 year." "I had Catarrh for 2 years." "I had Catarrh for 5 years." "I had Catarrh for 50 years" and Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder cured me. These are sentences from the volumes and volumes of testimony for this great catarrh cure, not mythical patients, but words from men and women all over the continent who have been cured. It relieves in 10 minutes. 50 cents.—6. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Death of W. J. Hall.

Yesterday afternoon at about 1.30 o'clock, W. J. Hall passed away after a lingering illness. Deceased was well known both in town and the surrounding country, and was identified with so many interests that he formed a wide circle of friends who will regret to hear of his death.

The late William J. Hall was born in South Monaghan about 53 years ago, and was the son of the late John Hall, who died about three years ago and who was one of the early Monaghan pioneers. The deceased moved from Monaghan to Keene about twenty years ago and transacted a general mercantile business there. Later he removed to Peterborough and entered the implement business, acting also as valuator and agent and dealing considerably in bankrupt stocks. He farmed extensively through foremen, and owned probably the best farm buildings in the country. His farms were models of thrift and enterprise.

Mr. Hall about 20 years ago married Martha, eldest daughter of the late John Fair. His widow, one daughter, Miss Linda, and one sister, Miss Annie Hall, survive him.

In politics the deceased was a Conservative. He was also a member of Peterborough Lodge, A.F. & A.M.

What Not to Say.

Do not say, "I can't eat." Take Hood's Sarsaparilla and say, "I'm hungry all the time, and food never hurts me."

Never say to your friends that you are as tired in the morning as at night. If they happen to be sharp they will tell you Hood's Sarsaparilla cures that tired feeling.

Do not say, "My face is full of pimples." You are quite likely to be told by some one, "There's no need of that, for Hood's Sarsaparilla cures pimples."

It is improper and unnecessary to say, "My health is poor and my blood is bad." Hood's Sarsaparilla will give you good blood, and good health will follow as a natural consequence.

THE CONTINUED STORY.

Don't Fail to Get Our Next Issue—Price Only Two Cents."

And then the heart-broken, despairing girl fled from the house—fled down the street—on to the suburbs—out into the country lying bathed in the moonlight. She made straight for the precipice, and with a sob in her throat and a prayer on her lip she took the awful plunge.

(Continued in our next for two cents. If you don't get the next number you'll never know how many bones she had broken.)

•• • ••

"What! Marry you!" almost screamed the haughty Alfrida, as she drew herself up with queenly dignity. "Sir, I would die first!"

"Then die!" shouted the Count, as he stepped back and began whirling the crowbar around his head to give momentum to his blow. At the moment he was about to bring the terrible weapon down upon her thin and aristocratic skull the door opened and——

(Don't fail to see our next week's issue. It will contain a war map and full details of how and why the door opened and what resulted.)

•• • ••

"Father, if you insist that I marry this man, for whom I have not a spark of love—if you are determined——"

"I am determined," interrupted the father.

"And my happiness—my tears—my prayers—will not move you?"

"Not a move."

"Then, cold, cruel, heartless, selfish, unfeeling, unnatural father—then, sir, it only remains for me to—to——"

(What remains for her will be told in our next issue, and if you miss it you will miss a good thing. Two cents pays the bill.)

•• • ••

As they turned the rock the two men met face to face, and each leaped back with a menacing "Ha!"

"Scoundrel!"

"Varlet!"

"You shall never wed the pure and innocent Augusta!"

"Nor you! I have sworn it!"

For a moment the rivals foamed at the mouth and glared at each other. Then they sprang at each other's throats with tigerish growls, and the fight to the death was on.

(Reader, would you know which one of the lovers was left there in the woods a mangled corpse? Then ask the newsboy for the next issue of the Times.)

AN INDIAN RESERVE.

The Indian reserve situated in the township of Alnwick is occupied by a band of the Mississaguas Indians. The reserve contains three thousand three hundred and seventy three acres, of which nearly two thousand five hundred acres are cleared, and about one thousand acres are under lease to white men. The band numbers two hundred and thirty one persons an increase of four over last year. There were eight births, two migrations by marriage and six deaths. Of these 220 are Methodists, 9 Anglicans and 2 Roman Catholics. The Indians of this reserve are nearly all industrious and are making fair progress in agricultural pursuits and along educational lines. Many of the Indians live by farming, while others by fishing, hunting, basket making and ginseng root. All the buildings with few exceptions are frame, and are kept in a good state of repair.

PLOT TO CAPTURE LORD ROBERTS WAS DISCOVERED IN GOOD TIME

England Is Angry at the Attempt of the Pretoria Boers to Assassinate British Officers.

SEVERER MEASURES WILL PRORABLY BE TAKEN

General Botha and the Boers have Become Tired of their Foreign Officers, and the Foreigners are Tired of the Boers.

Pretoria Aug 11.

It is said that Lord Roberts has arrested Gen. De Wet. All the Boers in the field credit a rumor circulated by their leaders that Lord Roberts is dying. Roberts however is now in excellent health, is desplaying wonderful energy and rides long distances daily.

London, Aug 11.—According to the Lorenso marques of the Daily Express, President Kruger in the course of an intervied last Wednesday said that the report that he iintended to surrender was without foundation. He declared that the war would last a long time yet. A Boer Bullitin, continues the correspondent, announces a big battle between Lydenaburg and Middleburg in which the British had 500 killed and wounded. It also annouanced the recapture by the burghers of Heilbron Devilliers and Frankfort. Boer reports Via Lourenzo Marques lately have proved worthy of little credit. The Pretoria plot is the theme of many editorials this morning.

London, Aug. 10.—This plot to capture Lord Roberts, kill the British officers at Pretoria and resume the erbellion has angered the people of Britain as notify that has happened in South Africa sinc ethe war began. The leniency that the Field Marshal has shown toward the Boers has been ill-requited, and the enitre absence of any sense of gratitude on their part has developed a spirit of bitterness against the burghers. This plot, it is pointed out, is merely the culmination of a series of outrages that the Boers have been guilty of ever since Lord Roberts published his first proclamation of anesty to those who would lay down arms, and swear allegance to the Queen. Thousands of Boers accepted Lord Roberts' terms handed in old muskets, and stayed at home—until they had a good chance to join a marauding commando. Then they brought out their modern arms, and mounted their horses joined in fresh attacks upon the British. They appear to be appreciate the leniency accorded them. There are not wanting men here who declare that the hanging of a score or two of those who have been guilty of rejoining the Boer army after submitting would have a better effect than kindly measures dictated by the expectation that kindness would breed gratitude. The implacable spirit displayed in this latest plot will without doubt lead to repressive measures on the part of the Field Marshal for the protection of his brother officers and the safety of his entire force. Treachery is one of the chief traits of the Boer character, and that cannot be held in check by leniency.

PLOT TO CAPTURE ROBERTS.

London, Aug. 10. 4.45 a.m.—The Daily News has the following despatch from Pretoria, dated August 9.

"A plot to shoot all the British officers and to make Lord Roberts a prisoner has been opportunely discovered. Ten of the ringleaders were arrested and are now in jail.

"Probably the plot was part of a conspiracy, of which the attempted rising at Johannesburg was the first indication."

Pretoria, Aug. 10.—The plot to make a prisoner of Lord Roberts and shoot all the British officers, discovered yesterday, included a number of towns-people who were in communication with the enemy. It was arrang- that the capture or killing should take place on the evening of Tuesday last. Intense indignation prevails throughout the British army, and the general opinion is that the leniency of the British invited such a conspiracy. It is considered that no measure for repression of such plots can be two strong.

BOB. FITZSIMONS KNOCKS OUT RUHLIN.

In the 6th Round at the Big Fight at New York Last Night Over 10,000 People Present.

Fitzsimons after the most wonderful ring career in history has again proven that there is lots of fight in him, and he is as good as the best. He defeated Gus Ruhlin a younger and heavier man last night in 6 rounds, thus clearly demonstrating that he is entitled to again have a try for his old title of "Champion of the World" and Jim Jefferies will now be expected to make good his promise to meet the winner. The fight by rounds;—

Round 1,—Both men feint, then Fitz swings right on Gus eye they clinch and Gus sends right under Bob's heart. Fitz hooks ear, and Gus sends hot left on Bobs nose and Fitz is worried but is back with a staggering right on jaw, Gus gashes Fitz' right eye with a terrible swing. Fitz is groggy, he clinches and falls as the bell rings.

Round 4.—Fitz. lands hard left on eye, Gus lands on face with left, and Bob swings right on ear and follows his man across ring sends left to stomach and clinching both hang on, both are very weak, they break and Fitz. sends his man to his knees with a right swing on the yaw.

Round 6—Bob lands left on stomach and swings right around head, Gus upper cuts on chin and they clinch, after clinch Gus drives two lefts to face, Fitz. jolts jaw, and chases Gus to corner but misses swing for head, and Ruhlin jabs face, Bob sends right to ribs and ear, another right and left on jaw drops Ruhlin to the boards he rises after taking full count, very groggy. Fitz although weak starts to rush his man, he counts with right and when Gus ducks Bob lets fly a right that catches Gus full on jaw and Ruhlin drops on his face, there is no necessity for a count, Fitzsimmons is the victor and is cheered to the roof.

YANG TSUN CAPTURED BY THE ALLIED FORCES

French Minister Sends an Important Cipher Telegram to His Government.

COUNT WALDERSEE'S APPOINTMENT ACCEPTABLE

Russians Have Taken the City of New Chwang, on the Port Arthur Railway, and Disarmed the Natives—Chinese Party in Pekin Helping the Foreigners.

London, Aug. 11.

The morning papers express satisfaction at the latest developments in China, the average comment is that China is now generally suing for peace through Li Hung Chang. Despatches printed this morning give further details of the taking of Yang Stawy according to the Daily Mails correspondent the attack was led by the Americans and British. The Chinese fell back from one to another until driven from the last line they fled toward Pekin completely demoralized, the Chinese say they retreated because the British poured poison into their troops this refers to lyddite shells which the Chinese experienced for the first time. The correspondent adds that that the British casualties were two hundred and Americans two hundred and fifty, but this later estimate will be noticed four times greater than that of Gen Chaffee reports. A St. Petersburg, special says the Chinese minister here Yang Yu has received a telegram announcing that Li Hung Chang is dangerously ill and confined to his bed and that he has been granted a months leave. Another St. Petersburg despatch asserts that the Russian General staff have been notified that the Chinese 12,000 strong are moving from Huan and Pupei toward Pekin and Tien Tsin, the Shanghai correspondent of the Daily News wiring Thursday announces that the Chinese merchants are petitioning the authorities not to land troops.

St Petersburg 11.—Official reports says that three separate Russian Columns succeded in surrounding a large Chinese force at Tsohun and the Saing the Russians advancing from all sides, the Chinese fled in an easterly direction leaving a dozen guns behind them the Russians pursued the Chinese until they were exhausted.

London, Aug. 10.—The capture of Yang Tsung, reported yesterday, and apparently correctly, marks an important stage in the advance of the allied army upon Pekin. That place will serve as an excellent base for operations further inland. The river is navigable to that point, and the lines of communication to Tien Tsin can be protected more rapidly than if an all-land line had to be maintained. Besides Yang Tsun is more than one-third of the total distance to be covered. It appears, however, that the Chinese are in great force and fighting harder than they have been accustomed to, which will make the forward movement slow, and may make it necessary to wait for reinforcement. It is also reported that Li Ping Heng, who has been represented by Li Hung Chang as the head of the anti-foreign party, was present at the battle of Yang Tsun. This is difficult to credit, for his presence at the capital is absolutely necessary for the maintenance of his influence, and he would not be likely to leave his opponents such an opportunity to undermine him with the Empress. Further despatches as to the course to be followed by the allies will be awaited with impatience, the chief anxiety being whether the force is large enough and properly equipped for the remainder of the expedition. At all events there is little likelihood of the relieving force accomplishing the distance in twelve days allotted by optimistic correspondents. They have been on the road now for a week and have nearly two-thirds of the distance still before them.

Encouraging news comes from Pekin to the effect that there is a pro-foreign element there who are keeping the legations supplied with food and information. The fact that this party is bold enough to take such action indicates considerable numerical strength and augurs well for the besieged foreigners. Lack of cohesion has always been one of the factors in the failure of the Chinese to repel unwelcome foreigners, and this is now operating in the interest of the Ministers who are shut up in the British legation.

To Advertise for two Town Teamsters

So Decided the Town Council at Last Night's Meeting.

Sidewalks to be Constructed From Same Specifications as last Year—By-Laws Providing for the Appointment of Arbitrators passed their Several Readings.

Town council met in special session last night, when there were present, Mayor Kendry and Ald Oke Weir, Rogers, Davidson, Denne, Robertson, Corkery and Clinkscale.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Evans & Langford, as follows;—We beg to ask if it has been clearly understood that we are to be allowed to put down pavements on same lines as our contract of 1899, we have understood that above conditions were entirely satisfactory and tendered accordingly; and if we are not to be permitted to do as above, we regret to have to be relievd of this contract.—Received.

From Town Solicitor Edwards, enclosing by-laws, authorizing the appointment of arbitrators re the claims of Thos. Bradburn and R. A. Morrow, for compensation for damages to their property through the construction of granolithic sidewalks.—Received.

From Robert Moore, Alexander McIntosh, Patrick O'Donnell, Jas H. Morrison, and Alfred Dund, as applying for position as town teamster.—Fire Water and Light committee.

From J. Chamberlain, for executors of Chamberlain estate, complaining of being assessed twice for lots 33 & 34 plain 17—Court of Revision.

From H. J. Hall asking for remission of dog taxes.—Court of Revision.

One account of $15 from Cox & Davis was referred to the Finance committee.

A by-law authorizing the appointment of an arbitrator with respect to a claim for compensation for damages by Thos. Bradburn passed its several readings, the mayor being authorized to appoint an arbitrator.

A by-law authorizing the appointment of an arbitrator with respect to a claim for compensation for damages made by R. A. Morrow, passed its several readings. The mayor was authorized to appoint an arbitrator.

On motion of Ald. Clinkscale, a bill of $23.25 presented by S. H. Duncan for repaving the fire hall, was authorized to be paid.

On motion of Ald Rogers, seconded by Ald Robertson the engineer was authorized to advertise for tenders for the excavation and construction of piers for proposed new bridges over the Reid and Smith street creeks, also for the superstructors in both wood and steel tenders to be separate for each portion of the work.

A QUESTION OF HYDRANTS.

Petitions for hydrants on Charlotte and St. Thomas and Wolcott streets, was shouldered on to the Board of works.

Ald. Dawson moved, seconded by Ald Oke that John Montgomery be notified that his services will not be required after August 31st next, and that John McFarlane who has acted on the resolution of August 6th last, and left the hall, be paid on August 15th, up to that date, and that the Fire and Light committee receive applications for the positions of drivers in the hall; also that John Elliott and any other temporarily employed driver be paid on the certificate of the chairman of the committee—Carried.

In presenting the above resolution Ald Dawson remarked that he was not acted by anomosity towards either one or, both of the old drivers, but things in the fire hall have been in such a shameful condition for the last twelve months or so, that he felt it his duty in the interest of our ratepayers to adopt the only course opened to him,—that covered by above resolution. He acted thoroughly independently in this as well as any other course advocated by him and should always continue to do so without fear or favor.

A MATTER OF ONE FIGURE.

The communication of Evans & Langford, asking that they be allowed to follow last years specifications in their contract for granolithic sidewalks, here came up for discussion.

It appears that last years' specifications called for a proportion of seven of gravel to one of cement in constructing the base, and it was generally understood that this years' specifications should read the same. But by mistake one units has been dropped and Evans & Langford, after tendering as last year ,now find their specifications calling for sixteen of gravel to one of cement, this they naturally object to.

After the matter had thoroughly gone into, it was decided on motion of Ald. Robertson seconded by Ald Clinkscale, that the engineer be authorized to change the specifications to the same as last year.

Council then adjourned.

MOUNT STEPHEN'S SUMMIT.

The Giant of the Canadian Rockies Ascended by an American Lady.

The ascent of Mount Stephen, the giant of the Rockies, was recently made by a Winnipeg gentleman who was accompanied by a couple of Swiss guides which the Canadian Pacific Railway company has stationed at several points along the line through the mountains. The height of Mount Stephen is 8,000 feet above the railway track.

They started at 5.45 in the morning and reached the summit at 12.30. The journey is hazardous enough to be interesting to the most daring, and toilsome enough to prevent the great majority of tourists from accomplishing it. In places the perpendicular ascent is only possible by means of ropes. On the summit the Winnipeg climber attached his handkerchief to a pole which was already there, having been put in position some four or five years ago by an Englishman who, so far as known, was the first man to ascend Mount Stephen. It took him three days to go and return, of course, without a guide. While at the summit he attached a Union Jack to the pole. Last year, Mr. Ferrier, from the Mount Stephen house ascended to the summit and brought back with him a shred all that was left of the Union Jack. So far as is known, these are the only people who had previously reached the summit. He and his party left the summit at 2 p.m., and reached the Mount Stephen House about 7. The day after he left the house an American gentleman and his sister, with two guides, were going to endeavor to reach the summit. It was a great feat for a lady to undertake, but she accomplished it successfully. They had a beautiful day and took several views. The lady stood the trip exceedingly well, and certainly performed a great feat.

LOST AND FOUND.

The Lucky Recovery of a Valuable Ring Dropped in a Carriage.

Hon. J. R. and Mrs. Stratton, and Messrs. T. P. Coffee and J. J. Banfield, took a drive round Vancouver, B.C., After the carriage started Mrs. Stratton took from her finger a valuable ring, worth $800, a large oval pearl in a setting of diamonds and gave it to her husband with the request to place it in safe keeping in one of his pockets. Shortly after returning to the Hotel Vancouver, Mrs. Stratton asked her husband for the ring, but nowhere could it be found. Next morning a further and most diligent search was made of the carriage in which they had driven, with the result that the precious jewel was discovered and by the driver delivered to Mr. Stratton, whose delight at recovering Mrs Stratton's ring can well be imagined. The finder, as a matter of course, was handsomely rewarded

"white pipe," ended a promising car-

Good Fishing.

Messrs Gus Hay and J. Complin have been at it again. They paddled down the raging Otonabee yesterday afternoon and enjoyed some rare sport. The bass were as playful as young kittens. All the nimrods had to do was to drag their lines through the water, and the way the fish took after the bait was a holy terror. Gus landed a five pounder, which nearly up set the boat, and set the dogs on the shore a-barking. Mr. Complin says the back lakes cannot hold a candle to the fishing below the locks. There is no reason why Peterborough should not be boomed as a summer resort, having the best fishing grounds in Canada.

THE LAKEFIELD BRIDGE.

The High Level Bridge a Great Draw Back.

There was a big mistake made when the government decided to place a high level bridge over the Canal at Lakefield, instead of a swing, as exists at all the other crossings. Steamboat men everywhere are disgusted, and there is no doubt that sooner or later a swing will be put in.

The following from the News speaks of itself.— "The steam dredge had considerable difficulty in getting down below the locks, owing to the high level bridge over the canal being too low. The entrance gate on the canal had to be raised and the water lowered over two feet to allow the dredge to go under the bridge. When the bridge was built it was the opinion of many that none of the steamboats would be able to go under it and it has turned out that way. None of the steamboats can pass down the canal without taking a considerable slice of their smoke stacks off or else the bridge will have to be raised."

Purse Containing $21.65 Lost.

Mr. Dan'l Hartley, of Toronto, engineer of the spile driving machine on new building of Gen. Electric Co. who is at present staying on Rubidge st. took out his purse to give a little girl some money to make a purchase for him, and later when she returned upon looking in his pocket for it to replace the change, he found it was missing. A thorough search was at once made as it contained $21.65 but as yet it has not been found, any person finding the above and leaving it at the Times office will be liberally rewarded.

Three Colonels.

Very few families in Canada or any other country can boast of having three full-fledged lieutenant colonels among their members. Lieut Col. Sam Hughes of the 45th Regiment, Lieut Col. John Hughes of the 46th Regiment, and Lieut Col. James L. Hughes who has been appointed by the Board of Education commanding officer of the Toronto Collegiate Institutes Battalion, are brothers. We have three Lieut-Colonels of the Rogers' family, in Peterborough who are cousins.

No Place Like Home.

The intense heat of the past week or so has driven many a man away from his home, in the delusion that he was escaping the horrors of the heat. Amongst those who were inveigled into going away was the editor of the G.J., who fondly pictured himself resting in a sequestered and shady nook, beside some truculent stream, with the breezes of heaven fanning his massive and intellectual cranium, and selecting only the largest of the bass to send home to his friends He soon found his mistake, however, instead of all this, the thermometer was in the nineties, the fish refused to bite, and the prespiration trickled down his back in rivulets. After a couple of days of untold agony he struck for home, where he will remain until the dog days come to an end. All of which goes to prove that there is no place like home in hot weather [illegible]

MARY McFARLANE HAD A NUMBERE OF LOVERS

She was Engaged to Two Men at the Same Time--was Jilted When She Was 17.

London, Aug. 10.—Mr. Edmund Meredith occupied the entire time of this morning's session of the Sifton investigation in cross-examining Miss Mary McFarlane, whose testimony was taken yesterday. Mr. Meredith's evident drift was to endeavor to elucidate from Miss McFarlane facts which might tend to discredit her evidence, but about the only thing to which she confessed was to having been engaged to marry Martin Morden at the time she engaged herself to Joseph Sifton. She became engaged to Morden about a year ago, and to Joseph Sifton some ten weeks before the latter's death. Her reason for changing her heart's allegiance she did not specify end she frankly acknowledged to Mr. Meredith that in thus carrying two strings to her bow she had "played a double game."

She also admitted having promised to take a trip to Toronto with Morden just a few days before Sifton's death. Miss McFarlane acknowledged that she had been engaged once before when she was only seventeen years of age.

"Who was responsible for the breaking off that engagement?" queried the lawyer.

"The young man jilted me," was the blunt reply.

Leading up to the events surrounding the tragedy, Mr. Meredith also asked. "When Gerald called at Joseph Sifton's house on that fatal morning and called his father to the barn why did you not go with him if you feared he was in danger?"

"Mr. Sifton told me that there was no danger, and prom[illegible]t he would not climp up where [illegible] and Walter were." was the answer.

Miss McFarlane was still undergoing cross-examination when the noon adjournment came.

WEATHER NOTES

To-day—Moderate to fresh westerly to southwesterly winds; fair and very warm; local thunder-storms.

The great heat wave continues, with no immediate prospect of a change. A heavy thunderstorm has occurred at Toronto, and local thunderstorms have also been experienced in the Lake Superior region, the Georgian Bay, the Ottawa and St Lawrence valleys. Heavy rains have fallen in many portions of the Territories and in Manitoba.

Education in "ADS."

In order to insure the reading of his advertisements regularly by the public the experienced business man does not merely announce his line of trade and the location of his store, but tells day by day what he has to offer that is new. The reader gains a practical education in social customs, fashions, inventions, trade, etc., from a study of the advertising columns of the newspaper. As the "ads" become more specific the number of regular readers increases.

CHINA WANTS PEACE NOW

An Imperial Edict Authorizes Li Hung Chang to Negotiate With the Powers.

London, Aug. 10.—An edict emanating fromo Pekin and authorising Li Hung Chang to negotiate with the Powers for peace, has, it is reported, from Shanghai, under yesterday's date, been received there.

The correspondent at Yokohama again send the statement that a Russo-Japanese force is moving on Pekiin from the north. The movements and number of that force are, it is further asserted, kept secret in order to prevent accurate intelligence from reachiing Pekin.

The French consul at Shanghai says 3,000 Annamite troops will arrive there next week for the protection of the French settlements.

The Chinese merchants of Shanghai have petitioned the foreign consuls there to prevent the landing of troops, declaring that it will create a panic among the Chinese.

Li Ping Heng, the former Governor of Shan Tung, personally commanded 15,000 Chinese at Yang Tsung.

A Chinese official at Shanghai says seventeen pirates and brigands were beheaded at Canton on August 8

Despatches received here from Berlin say the Emperor Francis Joseph and King Victor Emmanuel III. have telegraphed to Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee, congratulating him of his appointment to the chief command of the allied troops in China.

Field Marshal Von Waldersee, it is announced here, will sail August 21 or August 22 from an Italian port, and that he will go to Shanghai first.

REAL VALUE OF VACATION.

A wholesome sign of the times is the popular disposition to take rest from labor when the opportunity comes. Not so very long ago everybody delved all through summer time. Nowadays, those who can manage, by hook or crook, to do so, dawdle in some sort of summer vacation. The struggle for existence has become more intense. Men and women work more "on the jump" than they did a generation since. And for this reason, if no other, the need of recreation is more imperative. To speed the arrow of business the bow must be strung; but a bow always strung loses its elasticity of fibre. No man, unless a veritable "steam engine in trousers," can pull successfully in harness year in and year out without relaxation. If he does, barring miracles of human endurance, at fifty, or before, his nerves will fidget, at fifty-five, they will draw his face into seams, and at sixty some one will write on his tombstone, as was written on the monument of a terrible worker of old, "He who never rested, rests." It is far more sensible to take a portion of the rest that is unevitable to all, above ground, and he who goes off on a vacation, however limited as to time, and falls in love with the green earth, the leafy woods and their cheerful denizens, or the blue lake that is a treat to the inland dweller, does something to defer his mortuary record. One requisite is to bury every care ten feet deep when the gangplank of the summer cottage or hotel is reached. The man or woman who has never learnt to play is indeed unfortunate, in the sense o' casting off care. With many the impulse to play is dead, killed by the stress and strain to get gold. They have forgotten how to "chirp" with honest, unaffected glee, and only unbend under the commonplace necessity of chasing their hat in a gale of wind. There is little use in recreation unless a genuine abandon goes with it, such as that with which the stately citizen who seldom relaxes an inch at home, gets on all-fours at a picnic party offering his back in a game o' leap-frog. It is dolce far niente, while it lasts, or nothing. If you tag your vacation outfit all over with "things to be done," in the way of business, it is all up with the benefit you ought to derive from it. You will not be able to steal a march on a single crow's foot, and there will be no spring in the legs that have "done time" ten or eleven long months on city pavements and in city offices. The average man of affairs assumes, as a matter o' course, that no one can carry on quite so well as himself; but lay him on a sick bed for a fortnight, and he finds on recovery that the shop is still running. Its own momentum does not exhaust itself in so short a time. When one at last and at length, after duly weighing the consequences of his course, packs up for a summer holiday, he will do well to get on to the theory that nothing for the next week, fortnight, month, or two months, is worth while but rest and play. In the long run he will not be one cent richer in money because of his caretaking habit, and he will find both mind and body responding to the thrill of nature only when self-surrendered to her charms. A mistake is made when a man with a tired brain and an exhausted body begins his time of rest in an environment entirely alien to all the usual habits of his life; takes violent exercises to which he is unaccustomed, exposes himself unduly to the sun, passes hours in or on the water, eats ill-chosen and ill-prepared food, and stays just long enough in trying these experiments to have nature rebel vehemently, and rarely reaches the time when he is again in harmony with his surroundings before he returns to home and work quite decided that he has not been benefitted, and that "next year," if it ever comes, he will try a different course. It would be all right if we might theorize and work out a systematized plan of life by which in the first place we did not work so hard, and in the next that we fitted ourselves for what we mean to do in days of relief. But, as this is next thing to impossible, for lack of unanimity, we might try the next by doing only that for which we are physically and mentally fit. A very tired man or woman ought to do as little as may be, if the call to the hills is the most moving, let us go among them and be lazy, not climb them and weary every nerve and muscle to a hitherto unknown degree. Let us not look for calming and stimulating mental conditions in summer crowds, or fancy that we shall gain brain stimulus in the weary contact with people who are neither congenial, nor able to impart any charm to our days. Just rest, and play, and get recreation.

TEACH CHINA A LESSON.

It is instructive to note that the demand for the exaction of a heavy penalty from China for her present outrageous behavior comes as strongly from the foreign residents of China who understand conditions there as from those who are far from the scene of the present troubles, and consequently have not that knowledge that comes from contact with the Chinese. So dense is the ignorance of the people, which is carefully nursed by China's rulers, that the foreign ministers at Pekin are regarded by the people not as representatives of superior but of vassal powers, who are in Pekin, not to safeguard the interests of foreign residents, but primarily to render homage to China. The moderation of the powers in 1860 in failing to make a thorough demonstration of China's defeat, was taken as a demonstration of the powers' weakness, and not of moderation, and hence there is force and reason in the contention of those who demand that Pekin shall be razed to the ground as a striking and permanent demonstration to the Chinese of the power of Europe. If the Chinese once get it pounded into their thick and pig-tailed heads that they are not the only and chief pebble on the national beach, they will not be so likely another time to violate the laws of civilization and humanity in the fiendishly ingenious ways which they have adopted in the present unpleasantness.

China, we suppose, has as good a right to go to war as any other nation, or alleged nation, but China must learn to fight fair. Massacring non-combatants and besieging ambassadors are both hitting below the belt line.

Eating and Sleeping.

Food supplies the substance for repairing the wastes of the body, and gives strength. Sleep affords the opportunity for these repairs to be made. Both are necessary to health. If you can't eat and sleep, take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It creates a good appetite and tones the digestive organs, and it gives the sweet, restful sleep of childhood. Be sure to get Hood's.

Billiousness is cured by Hood's Pills. 25 cents.

Onions Good for Sleeplessness.

One of the best and simplest cures for insomnia is said to be the odor of raw onions. They should be mashed to a pulp in order to free all the juice. Smell this substance for ten minutes after retiring. It is said to quiet the most nervous person and relax the most overwrought nerves.

Onions contain a form of opium. This gives them soporific qualities. The smell after a little while ceases to be obnoxious. People who are exceedingly sensitive to onions will feel no unpleasant effects. It will not induce headaches or nausea as might be supposed. A healthy lethargy steals over the person heroic enough to try this means of wooing slumber. The senses become dull, the nerves weakened and restful sleep follows.

The medical properties of onions are well known. One onion raw every night just before retiring for a month in the spring is recommended to produce a clear, fresh complexion.

An onion plaster will relieve hoarseness and inflamation. Raw onions mashed and applied as a poultice to the throat will relieve sore throat. The same poultice on the chest is effective in cases of bronchitis and where there is soreness in the lungs. At least onions enthusiasts claim that all these things are true.

Salutes.

Originally, a town or a warship fired off its guns on the approach of friendly strangers, to show that they had such faith in the visitors' peaceful intentions they didn't think it necessary to keep their guns loaded.

A Spotless Skin

And a clear complexion are desired by every woman and admired by every man.

Eruptions, pimples and similar blemishes are caused by an impure condition of the blood. These skin blemishes are permanently removed by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which thoroughly purifies the blood and cures the cause of the disease.

"For about one year and a half my face was badly broken out," writes Miss Carrie Adams, of 116 West Main St., Battlecreek, Mich. "I spent a great deal of money with doctors and for different kinds of medicine, but received no benefit. At last I read one of your advertisements in a paper, and obtained a bottle of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Before I had taken one bottle of this medicine I noticed a change, and after taking three bottles I was entirely cured."

Free. The Common Sense Medical Adviser 1008 pages, is sent free on receipt of stamps to cover expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for paper-covered book, or 50 stamps for cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

LO AND HIS BUFFALO HORNS.

How the Red Man Utilizes a Product of the Slaughter House.

The Montana Indian is something of a schemer himself. He comes to town and sometimes walks all over the place without saying a word to any one. Sometimes he brings in a few sets of polished mounted cow's horns, which he sells for a dollar or two a set. He never frequents saloons. He looks into clothing store windows, but never bucks the slot machines in cigar stores. He frowns as he passes a restaurant, but smiles while walking through the sweetscented alleys back of cheap boarding houses.

In a horse trade he takes the prize, if there's one to be taken, for he was never known to get the worst of such a bargain. The reason of this, however, may lie in the fact that he begins the negotiations with nothing to lose and everything to win. However, he has the reputation of a schemer.

Where his schemes shine brightest is in the scale of polished "buffalo" horns. He lives out near one of the slaughter houses on the south side, and there he secures his "buffalo" horns, all sizes, curves and consistencies. He picks out a set of ox horns of symmetrical proportions, scrapes the scales off and boils the horns in a solution of glycerine, wood ashes and water. This treatment softens the horns, so that a case-knife will easily remove all the exterior accumulation. Then fine sandpaper is used to give the first polish, followed by a thorough rubbing with a flannel cloth slightly saturated with oil. A varnish or shellac is then applied, and the horns are in condition for mounting. Then the work is turned over to the squaw, who does the really artistic work. Red flannel and braid, beads sometimes, and a strip here and there of buckskin; a few brass-headed tacks and the mounted "buffalo" horns are ready for the market.

Mr. Buck comes to town and the tenderfoot asks him where he "ketchem buffalo horns."

"In Yallowstone Park," grunts the big buck.

"How much?" asks the intending purchaser.

"Two dolls."

"Too muchee."

"No, no; cheap; thue dolls, ugh."

The tenderfoot inspects the work and satisfies himself that they are really the horns of an almost extinct species of the majestic Western animal, and he hands over the coin and walks away proudly with his prize.

The Indian moves off down the street, turns the first corner and disappears up an alley.

Lost His Scalp Fourty-four Years Ago.

"There is an old fellow living near Grenada, in my State," said a Memphis man at one of the hotels, "who was scalped by the Indians back in '56. I saw him recently when I was down in his neighborhood looking after the title of some farm property, and was greatly interested in his story. He is now about 70, tough and gnarled as a tree, and the mark of his horrifying adventure consists of a curiously ridged and indented scar, about four inches across on the top of his head.

"He says he was one of a party of emigrants who had taken what was then known as the 'Fremont overland trail,' for California, and while passing through southern Kansas he and two other young men left the main party to ride after some antelopes. They were intercepted by Indians and his two companions killed. He himself was shot in the back and fell off his horse senseless. The firing was heard by the other emigrants, and a rescue party drove the savages away. But meanwhile, they had scalped this young man, and when picked up he was at first supposed to be dead. He was carried back and the next day turned over to some eastbound travelers, who took him to St. Louis. He told me it was over a year before the wound began to heal, but, of course his memory may be at fault as to particulars. The wonderful part of it is that he recovered at all in those days when skin grafting was practically unknown. He used to hide the scar with a toupee, or patch wig, but at present he is entirely bald and wears a tight-fitting cap.

"I dare say he is the only man in the world who ever survived such an ordeal. His forehead, by the way, is curiously wrinkled in vertical lines, and his eyebrows are raised out of the natural position. That was what first attracted my attention to him. He says it was caused by the healing of the wound."

The Dawn.

The struggling politician, who looked like Hanna, burst in upon his wife, toward the close of an Autumn day.

"At last, my darling; at last!" he cried.

And his wife laid to one side the sock she was darning, and rose, that he might press her madly to his breast.

"What is it, dear?" she asked, with lightning eyes after he had done it.

He brushed her tumbled hair back from her brow—gently—with his open hand. The horn handle of a tooth brush protruded from the upper pocket of his waistcoat.

"At last, my own!" he said, looking down into her eyes, "the flame that I have sought so long is beginning to dawn."

She clasped her arms tightly about his neck. A vision of an Aldermanship with paving contracts and other good things flashed across her mind.

"John, oh, John!" she exclaimed, with deep emotion, "have you been nominated for something——"

And he answered, choking with emotion: "No, dearest; but little Earnest shall go to college yet—Dinkelheimer has named a new brand of cigars after me."

And for supper they had pickles with their sausage.

HUTCH AT NEIL C. LOVE & CO.,

This, the Pioneer Drug Store of Toronto, was established in 1840 and has been managed most successfully and shrewdly for the past seven years by W. Latimer, Esq. Mr. Latimer was one of the first drug men to see that Hutch was a sterling treatment for dyspepsia—the best in fact—and with his usual business perspicacity immediately laid in a large order. Mr. Latimer says that Hutch has the most extensive use of any preparation he had ever before handled. "I recommend Hutch for dyspepsia and stomach trouble every time," were Mr. Latimer's words, "and I firmly believe it to be efficacious. That it is doing good can best be judged by the testimonials received."

Horses Wanted.

Mr. W. J. Pearson, the well known horse buyer, of Montreal, is seeking a car load of good sound horses of every description, for which he will pay the highest cash prices. The places and dates of his next visit are as follows—Coulter's Hotel, Pontypool, Tuesday morning, August 14th; Crozier's Hotel, Millbrook, Tuesday afternoon, August 14th; White's Hotel, Peterborough, Wednesday, August 15th.

Occasion for Sympathy.

Not many days ago a young lady was walking along one of the side streets in Peterborough when a door opened suddenly and a woman hurried down the steps. She exclaimed—

"What do you think, I have done?"

"I am sure I don't know."

"I have just cut two sleeves for the same arm and it was expensive velvet, too."

Poor soul, she knew that any woman, even a passerby, would understand and sympathize with her.

What Not to Say.

Do not say, "I can't eat." Take Hood's Sarsaparilla and say, "I'm hungry all the time, and food never hurts me."

Never say to your friends that you are as tired in the morning as at night. If they happen to be sharp they will tell you Hood's Sarsaparilla cures that tired feeling.

Do not say, "My face is full of pimples." You are quite likely to be told by some one, "There's no need of that, for Hood's Sarsaparilla cures pimples."

It is improper and unnecessary to say, "My health is poor and my blood is bad." Hood's Sarsaparilla will give you good blood, and good health will follow as a natural consequence.

A New Road.

We understand that Lawyer Langley and Mr. Kilbourn of the Lakefield Cement works, have been discussing the 5th Con. of Douro to the 3rd. Con. in the vicinity of Buckley's Lake. By putting into operation the provisions of the Drainage Act this could easily be made feasible, and if the necessary number of persons could be got to sign the petition and the work be proceeded with, Lakefield would derive the advantage of having the trade of an area of several miles of country just east of the lake which is now going elsewhere. This is a matter which should be taken up by our business men at once and a strong effort be made to have the work undertaken.

IS YOUR AILMENT CATARRH? — "I had Catarrh for 1 year." "I had Catarrh for 3 years." "I had Catarrh for 5 years." "I had Catarrh for 50 years" and Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder cured me. These are sentences from the volumes and volumes of testimony for this great catarrh cure, not mythical patients, but words from men and women all over the continent who have been cured. It relieves in 10 minutes. 50 cents.—6. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

—A Toronto dispatch states that the Ontario Bank has sent out notices to stockholders of the issue of $250,000 new stock. At the recent meeting increase of $500,000 capital was authorized. New stock will be allotted August 15, at 1 in 4, ten cent. payable at time of subscribig or within thiryt days after. The editor of this G. F. J. always whacks up the cash for any bank stock that he buys, which is infinetly the best way.

Amendment to School Act.

The service required of teachers and inspectors has been shortened from thirit-six to thirty years.

PASTY FOOD

Too Commonly Used.

The use of pasty cereals is not advisable. A physician says—"Pasty cereals are very indigestible and a bad thing for the stomach, causing a depressed feeling and quite a train of disorders, particularly of the intestines and nerves.

"Cereals, such as wheat and oats, can be cooked long enough and well enough to fit them for human use, but the ordinary way of cooking leaves them in a pasty condition."

A gentleman from Evansville, Ind., whose name can be secured upon application to the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., says—"My physician prohibited the use of oats and wheat for I was in a bad condition physically, with pronounced dyspepsia. He said the heavy paste was indigestible but that Grape-Nuts, being a thoroughly cooked food and cooked in such a manner as to change the starch into grape sugar, could be easily digested. I have become very fond indeed of Grape-Nuts and all the uncomfortable feelings have disappeared. I have gained nearly twelve pounds in weight and have nothing of the distressed full feeling after my meals that I had formerly. Grape-Nuts Food has done the work."

"Every Well Man Hath His Ill Day."

A doctor's examination might show that kidneys, liver and stomach are normal, but the doctor cannot analyse the blood upon which these organs depend.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood. It cures you when "a bit off" or when seriously afflicted. It never disappoints.

Rheumatism—"I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla has no equal for rheumatism. It has done me more good than any other medicine I have taken." MRS. PATRICK KENNEY, Brampton, Ont.

Bad Cough—"After my long illness, I was very weak and had a bad cough. I could not eat or sleep. Different remedies did not help me but Hood's Sarsaparilla built me up and I am now able to attend to my work." MINNIE JAQUES, Oshawa, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

McGill Students.

Sir,—As a number of young men from your neighborhood intend entering McGill university this autumn, permit me to state that the officers of the Young Men's Christian Association of McGill university extend to all such a hearty invitation to avail themselves of the privileges of the association building. We will arrange to meet any new students at the station and aid him to secure lodgings, etc., if sufficient notice of time of arrival and station is sent to the general secretary. COX, M.D., General Secretary.

Montreal, August 3rd, 1900.

The Anarchist Propaganda.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It seems to be the general opinion that the Anarchists are only engaged in killing off a few kings, and that therefore they should be left to themselves by police and other beneficiaries of voters. Just before the murder of President Carnot I happened to have a little business with an Italian in Montreal who openly declared himself an Anarchist and follower of Kropotkin. He gave me a small pamphlet entited as follows—Propaganda Socialiste-Anarchiste-Revolutionnaire. Necessite et Bases d'une entente. Par S. Merlino, Bruxelles. Now in this book occurrs the following, which I give in translation for the benefit of the Canadian "bourgeoisie," who import these men to work their factories, and the politicians who grant them immunity in their hellish propaganda for sake of their votes. On page 15 it says—

"Let us establish well the point of departure; we revolt against the existing society, not alone in the name of an abstract principle of justice, (very difficult to establish,) but for the effective amelioration of the condition of humanity. Thus we have a fixed base of operation. We have, on the other hand, the working masses more or less miserable and enslaved; on the other side the privileged minority. These must disappear not entirely physically, (it is neither possible nor desirable to kill all the middle class—bourgeoisie—and all those who show a disposition to replace them,) but socially; that is to say, that the men risen from the ranks must return there, become workers, members of society the same as the rest. The workmen on their part must advance, take possession of the workshops, of the means of labor and of living, without paying tribute, and without giving service to any one. The expropriation of the men of wealth can only be done (we have already said it) only by violence.

"The revolting workmen need not ask of any one permission to seize the factories, the workshops, the stores, and the dwelling houses, and install themselves therein."

This is the doctrine that is being taught in the anarchistic groups. The conspiracy is not against Kings and potentates, but against every man whose labor and prudence have enabled him to amass the means of comfort in his old age. It depends upon the people of this country whether they will sustain their own independence or surrender their liberty and lives to the criminal offscouring of Europe.

DE WET FLEEING FROM KITCHENER AND METHUNE

Smith-Dorien has Captured Six Wagons and Two Ambulances.

RYERSON TELLS HOW ROERS SHOT A DOCTOR

Cape Colony Rebels will Suffer in the Final Settlement Because of the Treacherous Plot of the Pretoria Boers to Assassinate the British Field Marshal.

London, Aug. 12.—The war office received the following message from Lord Roberts. Pretoria, Aug. 11.—The enemy is fleeing in front of Kitchener's and Methunes forces. Early this morning he was trying to cross thr railway at Wolverdeen station where he was engaged by Smith, Dorien and Methuen, on aug 9. fought a rear guard action near Buffelshock. He captured six wagons aud two ambulances. In spite of the fact that general De Wet is in full flight. South African telegram, announce a hurried Exodus of civilians from Mafeking and that Lord Edward cecil preparing to stand another seige. Mr James G. Stowe United States Consul General at Cape Town has left Johannesburg for that city, he received an enthusiastic cend off.

London, August 11.—The discovery of the plot to capure and shoot Lord Roberts and his officers at Pretoria will strengthen the hands of those who are urging the adoption of rigorous measures against the rebels in Cape Colony and the enforcement of severe penalties upon the burghers of the late Free State and the Transvaal. It will be difficult if not impossible for the advocates of leniency to get a hearing from the authorities or the public in the face of the treacherous attempt upon the life or liberty of the idolized Field Marshal. Many who have doubted the wisdom of his course in attempting to paify the country by peaceful proclamations have refrained from manifesting their opposition because of their unbounded confidence in his judgment. It is apparent to all now, however, that the Boer is incapable of understanding the generous impulses of the victorious general. Those who have been the subjects of his clemency plot to take his life in return for his kindness. This fact has entered into the British conscience, and it will be an argument that will not be ignored in the final settlement of the difficulty. Thus the implacables of the Transvaal have destroyed any hope of leniency that remained to the Afrikanders of Cape Colony. The strongest measures to keep down the rebellious sentiment of the Dutch are not only justified but are thus shown to be absolutely necessary for the protection of British interests. One probable result of the plot will be an early announcement of the annexation of the Transvaal and the immediate adoption of a form of military government more rigorous than has thus far been experienced.

DE WET AT BAY

Pretoria, Aug. 11.—It is said that Lord Methuen has arrested Gen. De Wet's march. All the Boers in the field credit a rumor circulated by their leaders that Lord Roberts is dying. Roberts, however, is now in excellent health, is displaying wonderful energy and rides long distances daily.

BOERS SHOT A DOCTOR

In a letter to Dr. Chas. Hodgetts, Hon. Secretary Red Cross Society, Dr. Ryerson, the Canadian commissioner, who is now on his way back to Canada, mentions some startling instances of Boer inhumanity and disregard of the Red Cross flag. Writing from Kroonstad on June 14 he says.—"We have about 600 sick and 300 wounded here and in the neighborhood. The wounded are the product of the fighting at Lindley, Holburn and Rendival, also of some outpost affairs and sniping. One Red Cross man was killed yesterday. The Boers express contrition and say that it was an accident. In the meantime the poorfellow is dead. They have not distinguished themselves for their strict observance of the Red Cross. They have been known to carry a machine gun in an ambulance and at Koorn Spruit deliberately shot Lieutenant Palmer, Royal Army Medical Corps, whilebinding up a man's arm.

DANGEROUSLY BURNED

Mr. Pat Quinlan's Daughter Narrowly Escapes Death by Fire.

Must Raise the Bridge.

Lizzie, Mr. P. Quinlan's twelve year old daughter, narrowly escaped being burned to death on Thursday evening, when the house and all its contents were totally destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Quinlan, who lived on the Norwood road five miles from town, were attending to some work in the barn, and the little girl went in to put on the kettle to prepare for supper. In some way some combustible material near ??w caught fire, and in endeavoring to put it out her clothing also caught, and in a moment she was wrapped in flames. She started to run from the house and attracted the attention of her parents. All the lower part of her body was so terribly burned that the skin and pieces of flesh dropped off and she suffered great agony. She was brought to St. Joseph's hospital last night, when everything that might alleviate her pain was done for her.

The house was a frame one and nothing could be done to save it, as the wind was blowing strongly at the time. It and all its contents were destroyed, not a piece of furniture being saved.

Mr. Quinlan's hands were badly burned in his efforts to stop the blaze. The house was partially insured, but the loss will be heavy. The neighbors did all in their power to help the afflicted ones.

CALLED FOR A SHARE ONLY.

But the Man From the woods put up $3.75 all the same.

A man walked into the Times office yesterday to pay for a year's subscription to this great family journal, and threw himself down in the editor's arm chair, and after wiping the perspiration from his face, proceeded to tell his troubles.

"I guess I have enough left to pay for the Times," he began, as he unbuttoned his vest to let in any breeze that might come in through the open window, "When I got to town and put up my old nag, I concluded to have a shave by a city barber. I enquired of Jack Jayes where the best barber in town was to be found, and after getting directions, started for the shop.

"I had the shave in more ways than one. The man who got hold of me was an artist, I could see that. As soon as I got into the chair he didn't wait for me to say what I wanted, but tucked a towel around my neck and began running his fingers through my hair.

"'Shave behind and around the edges?' he inquired, getting out his shears with his other hand.

"'Nop. Shave,' said I.

"'Certainly, Sir,' he replied briskly, 'but I'll just take a little off around the edges here. It needs it.'

"He seemed to know his business so well that I let him go ahead and he entertained me with stories on hair treatment.

"He had almost finished his scissor work when he stopped short and stood aghast. 'Your hair is splitting badly, Sir,' he said with deep concern.

"'Splitting?' said I. 'Ha! is that so!'

"'Indeed it is, Sir. It requires singeing at once.' The man had a wax taper lighted by this time.

"'Ah, all right,' said I, and for another twenty minutes the shop in my vicinity smelled like a mattress factory on fire, while the barber really alarmed me about my hair. It was getting frightfully thin, he said; seemed to be inclined to drop out about the temples and near the apex of the crown. After I had had my shampoo, he said he thought he had better apply some 'Hairline,' a preparation which he alleged every man's hair required at last. I hadn't thought of a shampoo, much less 'Hairline,' but as I had already lost an hour, I let him lead me over to the water tank and shampoo me; then he opened a brand new bottle of 'Hairline' and applied it literally, after which he wrapped the bottle in paper and laid it aside.

"Then came the shave, which was delayed every few seconds by the manipulator pausing to examine and toy with what he finally confessed was tiny eruptions caused by an unsatisfactory condition of the skin. I had always considered my skin in perfect condition, but this man shocked me. He asked me who shaved me last outside of myself. I couldn't remember, and he confided to me that I had run a terrible risk in allowing every Tom, Dick, and Harry to shave me. My skin was in a shocking condition and cried out for an application of a preparation which luckily he had on hand. He applied this lotion as a matter of course, and within another half hour had turned me out completely rejuvenated, but with the loss of an afternoon practically. Here is the bill—Shave 10 cents, hair cut 15 cents, Singeing 25 cents, Shampoo 25 cents, one bottle Hairline $1, one bottle Creamaline $1. Total $2.75.

"I only wanted a shave," concluded our friend, ruefully, "but, as I say, I feel better. Will you please lay those bottles over in the corner. I may call for them later."

The bottles are still in our possession.

11 PEOPLE KILLED, 14 INJURED

Slatinton, Pa. 13.

A passenger train on the Lehigh and New England Railroad to-night struck an omnibus containing 25 persons at Benninners crossing about three miles east of here, and 11 of the passengers were instantly killed, and the remainder probably fatally injured. The injured were immediately conveyed to St Lukes Hospital, South Bethlehem on a special train.

WAS GOLDSTEIN POISONED

Strange Story of a Second-Hand Dealer, Winding up With His Sudden Death.

Toronto, Aug. 11.—The autopsy performed by Drs. Elliott and Parry yesterday afternoon on the body of Morris Goldstein, who died suddenly early in the day at a second-hand store, 69 Queen streest west, resulted in the discovery of what the doctors claim to be unmistakable traces of carbolic acid poisoning. When Coroner Young first examined the body he noticed a queer odour, and on opening the dead man's mouth found the tongue to be whitish color. The coroner's determination to hold an inquest around considerable opposition from Mrs. Helpert, who ran the second-hand store with Goldstein, and from a man named M. Shapero, who boarded with them. These two raised religious scruples against the mutilatioon of the dead man's body, but ultimately their objections were overcome, and Goldstein's body was taken to McCabe's undertaking rooms and the post-mortem begun. It was not concluded late last night, but the doctors found, on opening the stomach a strong smell of carbolic acid, and the presence of the stuff became a certainly when on touching the organ the doctors burned their fingers.

When the presence of the acid was established by the post-mortem, Coroner Young sent Detectives William Davis and Patrick McGrath to the Goldstein-Helpert store to find Mrs. Helpert and Shapero. The pair were found at the home of Mrs. Helpert's father on York street and were taken to police headquarters at half-past 10, and held as material witnesses for the inquest, which is to be held this afternoon at McCab's undertaking establishment.

GOLDSTEIN'S HISTORY

The story of Morris Goldstein's career, winding up with his sudden death yesterday, is a strange one. He was 63 years of age, and came here 15 years ago from the United States, with his iwife and four children. He started a second-hand store on York street, and made money. The family were happy for five years, when Fanny Helpert, a pretty Jewess, entered the scene, and it is said Goldstein and his wife no longer agreed. They separated, and Mrs. Goldstein, with her three daughters, went to Syracuse, N.Y. Mrs. Helpert and Goldstein became so intimate that the son, who had stayed with his father, began raising objections. A quarrel ensued, and Goldstein junior left his home. Morris Goldstein moved three years ago into the store at 69 Queen street west, and on the death of his wife in the States, his daughters came back to him. Hearing of his mother's death young Goldstein went to his father and demanded a share of the estate. Another quarrel followed, resulting i the son being sent to the Central Prison for threatening. The young man was last heard of across the line. Recently Goldstein's eldest daughter married Fanny Helpert's brother, and left home.

APPEARANCE OF SHABERO

Through business dealings in the mantle-making Goldstein met Shapero, who came to board with him.

It is said that Morris Goldstein had signed over his property to Fanny Helpert, who was also entitled to three-fourths of an insurance policy for $2,000 on his wife. Mrs. Helpert is credited with suggesting to Goldstein that he should go to South Africa with a brother of hers, and start a second-hand business, leaving her in Toronto, and Goldstein was willing. The woman's husband is a rather vague personage, the story being that he is a prisoner in Siberia.

A short time ago Goldstein served ten days for refusing to answer questions in a suit in the Division Court. At the time of his arrest he was alleged to have assaulted County Constable Boyed, and was to be tried at the September sessions for assault.

The inquest will probably be adjourned to-day until the detectives have finished their work in the case.

TRAIN WAS ROBBED, MESSENGER KILLED.

Mystery Surrounding the Hold-up of a Train on the Pennsylvania Lines, Near Columbus.

Columbus .O., 11.—The passenger traino n the Pennsylvania lihes khowb as "Pan Handle No. 8," due from the west at midnight, was robbed at some point between here and Cincinbati last night and Messenger Charles Lane, of this city killed. The Robery was not discovered until the train pulled into the station and the messenger was found dead with his revolver, several chambers of which had been emptied, lying by his side. The sontents of the safe had been stolen, the key having been taken from the messenger after the murder and left sticking in the lock. The utmost mystery veils the affair. Lane was about 28 years of age. The officials of the Adams Express Company give no statement as to the probable amount of money secured by the robers, but it is reported to be a considerable sum.

MASSACRE IN ARMENIA.

Two Hundred Men, Women and Children Slain by Turks and Kurds.

Constantinople, Aug. 11.—Advises received from Bitlis, Asiatic Turkey, say that 200 men, women and children have been massacred in the Armenian village of Spanghank in the district of Sasun by Turks and Kurds under Ali Pasha, the commandant of Bitlis.

He is also said to have ordered the village to be burned.

AN EXPLICIT WITNESS.

A Good Story Told of a Peterboro' Lawyer. His Hopes.

At a trial held not 100 miles from Peterborough in which a local limb of the law was chief counsel, the following dialogue took place.—

"This altercation, as I understand it, took place at McGuiggin's tavern," said the cross-examining attorney to the witness.

"It is called McGuiggin's tavern, replied the witness, "but McGuiggin hasn't had anything to do with it since the 13th of last arMch.'

"You are certain of that, are you?"

"I am."

"The 13th of March is the exact date on which McGuiggin ceased to have anything to do with the tavern that is called by his name?'

"It is."

"Now, bear in mind that you are under oath and that you are swearing to exactness. If you wish to say it was about the 13th of March that McGuiggin ceased to have anything to do with his place I advise you to put your answer in that form."

"I don't need to."

"You swear that since the 13th of March McGuiggin has had nothing to do with the place?"

"I do."

"Give your reasons for such an explicit statement."

"Because McGuiggin died on the 13th of March."

CHINESE ANXIOUS FOR SAFETY OF FOREIGNERS

Sheng Expresses Grave Fears for the Safety of the Members of the Legation.

RUSSIA WILL SOON HAVE 400,000 MEN AVAILABLE

French Jealousy of Britain in the Yang-Tze-Kiang Valley Causes Objection to the Landing of an Indian Brigade at Shanghai —England Will Not be Moved.

London, Aug 13. 3.30 a.m. The sooner we can get out of this the better, for it is inconvenient for the Chinese Government and unsafe for ourselves. This is a message received last evening from Sir Robert Hart dated Pekin August . and sent in cipher to the Chinese maritime Customs office in London. Commenting upon the morning Post, says.—It would seem to indicate that the Chinese Government is anxious for the safety of the foreigners, or at any rate to get them safely out of Pekin while Sir Robert Hart evidently expects that they will get out sooner or later. Sheng, director or general of railroads and telegraphs, according to a Shanghai despatch to the Standard, Expresses grave fears for the safety of the members of the legations, when the defeated Chinese troops return to the Capital. The Naval Commander reports to Vienna that the allies decided to rest for three days after the taking of Yang Tsung. A despatch to the News agency from Tien Tsin says. Junks and stones block the river beyond the advanced posts of the allies for a considerable distance, but the dryness continues of the country is in good marching order subsidiary dykes having made the evenings damming. Ineffective it is believed that some 500 have been added to the expedition by the increas in the numbers of the British naval brigade. Korea, according to a despatch consents to Japan sending troops there to provide for emengencies.

Rome, Aug 12.—The Chinese foreign office has received the following despatch from the Italian Ministers in Pekin marquis. Salvago Raggi, dated Aug. 5.—Shots exchanged between the defenders of Legation and Chinese, one killed and two wounded. We have no news from the allies since July 30. We hope they will not delay advance to Pekin.

be confronted with demands from all the powers engaged so harmoniously now that will in all probability cause her rulers to regret the day they were led to enter upon a war for the extermination of the foreigners.

This will also be the crisis for the powers. If Britain and the United States insist upon the maintenance of the integrity of the Chinese Empire they will come in conflict with Russia, who intends to get something more than glory out of the compaign. In that she will be supported by France and possibly by Germany, which nation has shown remarkable land hunger under the present Emperor. If these three on the side and the Anglo-Saxons on the other should fall foul in the settlement of the difficulty, there would be a war such as China could never supply. In the calculation Japan would have to be reckoned with and that virile little Empire would not co-operate with the Anglo-Saxons without reward. It is becoming evident, however, that only when China is dealt with by the allies the real crisis will have arrived.

THE SITUATION DESPERATE.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The following despatch communicating an additional message from Minister Conger was made public this morning by the State Department.

"Canton, Aug. 11—Secretary of State, Washington.

"Conger, Aug. 10. Tsinan, answering my message says that the legations are under siege by the Imperial soldiers. The situation is desperate. The losses of thel egations are sixty killed and about 100 wounded. There is some sickness nevertheless the general health continues good. He concludes. "Whatever may be the outcome, we will hold on indefinitely.' "Signed" McWade."

London, Aug. 11.—Britain's determination to take all possible precautions for the protection of her interests at Shanghai and in the valley of the Yang Tze Kiang is exciting jealousy and distrust on part of some of the allies. The French particularly are incensed at the proposal to land an Indian brigade at Shanghai, using as an argument against such a proceeding the fact that the force moving on Pekin is now nearly large enough and contending that whatever troops Britain can spare for the operations in China should be sent to reinforce the army between Tien Tsin and the capital. The contention amounts to a charge that Britain is evading its share of the responsibility of relieving the legations. The promptness and vigor of Sir Alfred Gaselee is ample refutation of this charge, which is apparently inspired by jealousy of Britain's commanding position in this, the most fertile and prosperous portion of the Empire. The objections that have been made are not at all likely to influence the course of the Government, there being general agreement upon the necessity of giving special attention to this district.

The belief that the imperial authorities would be moved only by fear of the allies has been borne out in many ways up to the present, but in no particular has this been more striking than in the instructions to Li Hung Chan to negotiate for peace. The Empress has learned of the advance of the allied army and is now prepared to make terms. But nothing less than the entry of the troops into the city of Pekin will satisfy the powers now. Before negotiations for peace are begun the safety o fthe legations must be put beyond doubtk, and this can only be accomplished by the allies escorting them to a place of safety. After that has been done China will

HYPNOTIZED AND THEN DRUGGED HIS GIRL-WIFE

St. Louis Couple, Two Months Married, Spend their Honeymoon Under Influence of Cocaine.

St, Louis, Aug. 11—Frank H. Peyton administered cocaine to his wife while she was under the influence of hypnotic power exercised by him. Now both are in the City Hospital in a serious condition.

Mrs Peyton is a bride of two months, and, according to her story, their honey-moon has been spent under the influence of drugs, mainly cocaine. She is not yet eighteen years old and for two years Peyton has been able to throw her into hypnotic trances. He is twenty-five years old, and has been a confirmed user of various drugs for seven years. He says that a long study of chemistry has taught him the proper use of drugs.

"Love for my wife and the desire to make her as happy as I feel under the influence of the drugs induced me to give her some at different times.' he said.

"I am cured of my habit, and I have used the last dose of drugs," is the statement made by Mrs. Peyten to a reporter in the presence of her mother, who is constantly at her bed side praying that she be cured of the habit so strangely forced upon her. "This experience has served to cure me of my love for this man. By some strange influence—I believe it is called hypnotism—he induced me to marry him and later to use the drugs."

Peyton is well educated and taks

Peyton is well educated and talks well when free from drugs. Yesterday the pair were found in a half stupor at their home in Oliver street, where they had lived in seclusion since their marriage. Peyton was trying to force his wife to take more cocaine when her screams attracted the neighbors.

Our Junior Reporter.

This g.f.j. sent its junior reporter out over his accustomed runways yesterday for news, and late in the day he returned with the following item, as his sole contribution to our bill of fare this morning—"News is scarce, and the Times man has been sorely pressed to find material to fill up the paper. We can't rustle a real live news item, one of the large, juicy kind, to save our bloomin' neck. Everything moves on in the same old way. The gang of whittlers still hold forth at their old stand in the Market Clerk's building, and talk about "tradin' hosses" and how somebody got beat in guessing on the weight of a steer or load of wheat. This is the busy harvest time, and the farmers don't come to town unless they have to, and the merchants do more or less loafing in consequence. The heat dances in sweltering ripples down the street and the mongrel cur chases the pussy cat under the sidewalk. Everybody is lazy, hot, and sweaty, and ambition is at a low ebb. Why don't something happen?"

THE PERIL OF ELECTRICITY.

This has been called the electric age. The praises of the mysterious fluid which now does so much work for man have been sounded by orators and poets. Civilization, it is declared, has been advanced a hundred years by harnessing the forces of lightning. Now come calmer-minded men to paint the other side of the picture. For if electricity has done much to relieve man of labor and to make life easier, it is also responsible for much destruction both of life and property. Every new electric invention adds one more danger to the many which now beset the residents in crowded cities, where such inventions are chiefly used. Statistics on the subject, recently gathered, are fairly startling.

In the matter of destruction of property insurance men differ as to the exact percentage of fires which are caused by the subtle fluid. Some of them estimate that the cause of 25 per cent. of all the fires occurring annually is electricity, while others believe that 50 per cent. would be nearer the truth. They all agree that the common use of electric lights and other electric appliances has added greatly to the danger of fire, and the "electric hazard" is a prominent factor in all their calculations. In 1899 the fire underwriters were able to trace directly to electricity 750 fires, with a total property loss of $6,500,000. The number of lives lost annually from electric shocks is even more appalling. Statistics on this subject are now being gathered and have not yet been put into tabular form. The report for a single day, however, shows that no less than sixty people were killed within twenty-four hours in the United States alone by various accidents for which electricity was directly responsible. The electric trolley has done much to turn the country into a place of suburban residence, but the number of people killed by fallen trolley wires has never been taken account of; the electric elevated, which has abolished the nuisance of smoke and cinders, is also responsible for many lives lost through the agency of the deadly third rail.

A third danger resulting from the almost universal use of electricity is that of electrolysis, which, it appears, destroys water pipes and injures all work in which iron or steel is used.

Electricity has without doubt done much for man and will do more. At the same time the facts in regard to its use simply emphasize the truth of the old proverb that every rose carries with it a thorn corresponding in size and sharpness to the beauty and usefulness of the flower.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The first obstacle the allies expected to encounter in their advance from Tientsin was the army of General Ma. If he is true to his name General Ma will will be found armed with a slipper.

THE DANGER OF BEAUTY

The Dreadful Suffering, Physically and Mentally Experienced by Women.

Beauty—when applied, at any rate to persons by the pen of the novelist, the dramatist and the historian—seems to be a vastly dangerous holding and instead of bringing in its trend that superb joy voiced by the dictum, it carries with it a burden which is indeed a very hard lot to bear.

Pick up any novel at random and you will read that the only persecuted creature in it, to speak by the card, is the beautiful young heroine. It is her beauty which has attracted the villain, like the bright flame which attracts the moth, and made him act as a brute to her.

Beauty in novels, freely interpreted, means dreadful suffering, physical and mental; it means a deadly poison which is as fatal as the sting of a viper and which permeates the body and soul of the average heroine of the modern novel. It brings no joy except at the end of the book.

The penalty for being beautiful would seem to be more exacting and more disagreeable than the disappointments experienced by the ugly. It is because the modern heroine of books, or of the stage, is described as a sort of daughter of the gods in form and build and looks that you take interest in her and follow her doings, her sufferings, through every page of a novel or through every scene and act of a play.

Leave fiction for fact. Scour the village of the United States from Maine to California and you will find, with very few exceptions, that nearly all can tell the sory of how once upon a time there lived in the village a beautiful girl who fell a slave to the mad delirium of love and after many years came back a wreck. There is recorded in the unwritten archives of nearly every village such a story as that told in one form or another

But this is not the story of a village merely; it is the history of the world.

It was this evil fate of beauty that wrecked Cleopatra, who in turn wrecked Marc Antony, broke the heart of Octavia and brought the horrors of civil war upon imperial Rome. The great Julius fell a victim to her exquisite charms at a single interview.

Cleopatra was a beautiful and magnificent creature, and her charms never failed to captivate and conquer those who passed before her. She was not only all this, but her personal beauty seemed to have influenced her mind intellectually in a marked degree for she was a woman of very high attainments. She was as intelligent as she was beautiful. She was a capital musician, skilled in several languages, a good singer and a brilliant conversationalist. No woman has surpassed her in cunning.

How she died is a mystery. The story of the asp biting her to death is a myth, but authorities agree that she died a violent death by her own hand—a hard price for such great beauty as hers.

There is the pitiful story of Julia Donna, who, in her maiden days a poor, humble girl was, on account of her great personal charms, raised from a common sphere to the high at that imperial Rome could offer. She became the wife of Severus, and thus Empress of Rome. Her beauty was her evil fate. She lent herself to the flattery of courtiers, permitted all and sundry to approach her with their sentiments; finally, she fell back into the position she came from, but not before she had been stabbed in the arm by son, who intended the blow, however for his brother.

Disappointed of all hope of ever becoming again the power she once was in Rome, deserted by those who brought her to her misery, forsaken by her friends, she ended her days in starvation.

There was yet another beautiful Roman Julia, who, through her extreme beauty, was introduced to and became the wife of a famous Senator when she was only sixteen. Between that tender age and four-and-twenty she lived up to the traditions of the times, fell a victim to the conceit of her own charms, became the prey of flatterers conspired against her husband, and was finally put to a violent death.

The story of the captivating Helen of Troy is interesting, and is on a par with that of the beautiful women just alluded to. Helen of Troy was tied to a tree and strangled—a condign punishment for the errors she fell into on account of her beauty. She was responsible for the many years' seige of Troy, her husband, Menelaus, being determined to revenge himself on Paris. It serves as an object lesson for those women who repine because they are not beautiful.

Josephine, the unfortunate wife of Napoleon 1., was said by her husband to be most truly a lovely woman, refined, affable, charming; a goddess of the toilet, kind and humane," yet because no son was born to them Napoleon divorced her—an overwhelming sorrow. She died an absolutely crushed and saddened woman.

Mother's Love

Is boundless. Yet it is utterly helpless to give strength to the child born with a low vitality. The time to give strength to the child is before birth and to impart this gift the mother herself must be strong. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives strength to mothers. It preserves them in robust health in the months before baby comes. It practically does away with the pains of motherhood, and enables the mother to endow her child with a healthy body and a happy disposition. "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol and is absolutely free from opium and cocaine.

"I consider Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the best medicine made," writes Mrs. Mary Murdock, of 220 Taylor St., Topeka, Kansas. "I know it has no equal. I am the mother of ten children and only one living—the tenth one. She is one year old and is as well and hearty as can be. She is a beauty. Of my other babies, some were born at right time, but dead, others were premature births; one lived to be one year old but she was always feeble. I tried different doctors but none of them could tell what my trouble was. I was examined by surgeons but they found nothing wrong. I did not know what to do, so I thought this last time I would try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took it the entire nine months and now have a fine baby girl, and I can not praise your medicine enough for the good it did me."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure heart-burn.

Confession of Crime By Hypnotism

Public interest has been aroused recently on this question by the exortion of a confession from a thief by means of hypnotism.

A confession of crime obtained in this way may or may not be a valid one. It is not necessarily infallible, any more than a voluntary confession would be. It would have to be verified by other evidence before it could be seriously considered.

Hypnotism will not make a liar instantaneously veracious. It is a very common opinion that a hypnotist can completely capture the mind of his patient without his consent, and discover all the secrets of his past life.

Hypnotism only gives us a means whereby we can the more readily get at the divine man within. It is not so much a key to the door of a man's mind as a more effectual way of ringing the door-bell and conversing with the occupant.

Generally speaking, a strong-willed man may still keep his criminal secret in spite of all influences, hypnotic or otherwise. As a rule criminals are very hard to hypnotize, because they set their whole nature against the hypnotist, and when a man is under the influence of liquor it is impossible to do anything with him.

There is no doubt that hypnotism can and will be used to detect crime. But we are only on the threshold of knowledge in this direction, and no one can set limits to the future of hypnotism in overcoming the obstinacy of criminals. The time may come when the old, ineffectual methods of regenerating the moral nature will be superseded by hypnotic treatment. The astonishing results already attained prove this beyond question.

By hypnotism we can reach people who are moral imbeciles, and by no other power known to man can you do this.

We can discover the sense of right and wrong where none seemed to exist. We can overcome evil habits and awaken the higher self which never completely dies in any man or woman.

Where every other influence has failed to restore a man to moral sanity, hypnotism has succeeded. So I would say that if it fails to extract a confession from a criminal no other means can be used with success.

There is such a thing as compulsory hypnotism, which can be applied to any person without his consent. It is possible to shatter a human will as you might break a china vase against a rock. But this is a new and almost undeveloped field, about which little can be said at present.

LIFE'S TRIAL.

Ever lurking, trying facing,
On my way;
Pleasant visions all erasing,
Joy disturbing, quiet chasing,
Fondest selfish schemes defacing
Day by day—

What's the use of trying, daring,
In this life?
Trials waylay, with spite unsparing
Baffling, slighting, paining, wearing,
Every peaceful thought ensnaring
Into strife.

Would I rest, then cares assailing
Banish peace;
Triumphing but leads to failing;
Sudden joy is turned to wailing;
Ease of mind begets but ailing;
Cares ne'er cease.

What's the end of all this toiling,
Troubles scene—
Where no sense is free from soiling,
Where belief but breeds embroiling,
Where no rest from planning, moiling
E'er is seen?

This I know, when trials defiant
Rise forlorn,
For the conflict, strong, reliant,
Wakes the soul, like sleeping giant,
To whose sinews, suple, pliant,
Strength is born.

This I know, that brave endeavor
Sinks in rust
If from trials we rest us ever;
Vain from courage trial to sever;
Toil and conflict draw us never
Into lust.

Each endeavor, true and earnest,
Leads to strength;
If from hope thou never turnest,
If for higher deeds thou yearnest,
Peace and joy, tho' late, thou learnest
Come at length.

Welcome trials, hidden blessings,
Sent from God;
Wooing not with soft caressings,
Teaching not in doubtful guessings,
Curing all our weak confessings
With thy rod.

A MYSTERY.

During my sojourn in Egypt," said Walton, removing his hookah from his burnt black beard, "I became interested in the horse; and desirous of possessing an Arabian of high quality, sought guidance of our local consul as to the best way of going about obtaining one. He gave me a letter to a certain camel and horse breeder of renown, located near Samana, Bedouin sheik, Hassam Moakbar by name. The sheik, he informed me, had reason to feel under obligations to him, which would insure me a pleasant reception. I took with me only a small escort—the consul's letter, in the Arabian tongue, being a sort of passport and affording me immunity from the toll gathering customary among the desert tribes. Arriving at the encampment at twilight, a scene of great beauty burst upon me. The stars were beginning to blaze forth with unusual size and brilliancy through the wonderful rare atmosphere. Threads of smoke rose perpendicularly from fires which sparkled among the long, low, wide tents, where preparations for the evening meal were going on.

"Negro slaves were roasting coffee, which gave forth a perfume only 'Araby the Blest' could yield. Round about parties of Arabs were exercising the horses—such creatures!—with manes flowing like the tresses of Princess Badroulbadour.

"Sehik Hassam, a man of noble appearance, met me, and after reading the letter, at once relaxed the stern dignity of his countenance, and the supper being now ready, bade me partake of the same tray with himself. The meal consisted of kid's flesh roasted delicately with certain condiments, of the nature of eau de cologne, and washed down with mare's milk. A noble cup of coffee, however atoned for the singularity of this repast, and lighting cheroots of a strong, sweet flavor, we strolled among the horses much of whose beauty and fine points were observable in the moonlight, for that luminary had now risen above the horizon. For reasons of his own, the sheik certainly did his best to get me what I wanted, and out of fifty, every one of which seemed to possess some different charm. I chose one, and regretted I had not chosen all the others. I was loath to leave so romantic a spot, and, though duty called, lingered some days, the guest of the sheik, who seemed equally unwilling to have me go, and plied me with rare tobacco and still rarer legends, dusky happenings of desert land, which had come within his ken, and revealed to few. I began to feel as if I had chewed the lotus buds, and did not care greatly whether I returned to my native land or not.

"One evening (that before the day set for my departure) while strolling and smoking, as usual, in the moonlight, at some distance from the encampment, our footsteps, whether by accident or the sheik's design, were directed toward a dark ridge of rocks which created a great rise of sand on the horizon and shone jagged against the rising moon.

"'That forbidding pile,' said Sheik Hassam, with a wave of his long arm, causing a metoric effect with the glowing end of his cheroot, 'formed once the centre of an oasis, discovered by myself and tribe while seeking an unfrequented portion of the desert for the purpose of establishing ourselves for the favorable pursuit of our business.

"'This oasis seemed the portal of paradise when, in the splendor of the noontide, we halted, after days of travel beneath a copper sky, before its waving palms and luxuriant shade, among which gurgled hidden springs of water, blessed water, and the songs of birds echoed among the foliage.

"'"Allah be praised! We shall prosper here!" I cried aloud, and bade them set up the tents, which were not few and dig a cistern, which was filled from the springs amid the groves. The heat diminished not, but rather intensified from day to day, so that the outer springs became dry, and we had to force our way inward (for the oasis was wide and of densest growth) to obtain supplies of water.

"'Here and there we encountered beaten paths, which struck us as being rather singular, as we had seen no living thing save birds. Possibly, we argued, they were made by the jackals, which howled about in the day time and went there for water after dark although on one occasion I could have sworn that a vague imprint in the sandy pathway was that of a beast of prey.

"'I kept a sharp lookout and sentinels even on watch about the horses, camels and goats tethered a short distance from the camp beneath leafy sheds. Nothing of note transpired for several days, except slight additional proofs from time to time that some living creature inhabited the place. The heat seemed to increase daily, and the sky assumed that reddish tinge which bodes no good to the dweller of the desert. At rare intervals across the yellow hillocks would come pirouetting diabolical little spirals of sand moved by puffs of wind, like breaths from a furnace.

"'On the morning of the fifth day Hamed my Circassian slave, a man of rare courage and singulr personal beauty, disappeared into the depths of the oasis in quest of fresh water, that in the cistern being used for the beasts only, and, from the length of time elapsing, must have penetrated further than usual. Suddenly we perceived him at the edge of the jungle, wildly gesticulating. The Arabs' rifles were at their shoulders in an instant, but there was a mingled scream and roar, a flash of tawny flanks, and Hamed, dragged down from behind, disappeared into the wood.

"'The riflemen who had been earest to him fell upon their faces, paralyzed with some awful fear, and could not be induced to stir. What they had seen I knew not. Drawing my simitar and grasping my pistol I bade a huge black, under threat of instant death, follow with a lance, and plunged into the tangled wood at the spot where Hamed had disappeared. White fragments of cloth upon the broken twigs, borne down by what must have been a creature of unusual size and ponderous strength, guided us onward. Panting wtih the heat, bruised with falling, and now feeling giddy with a strange odor which began to prevade the air we proceeded with the utmost caution along a path grown steep and rocky.

"'The terrible order had grown almost stifling, and mingling with it came a low, whining purr, apparently at no great distance now.

"'Crouching behind a ragged mass of rock which seemed to have been split by the heat (the black calling incessantly upon Allah with chattering teeth) I peered through the crevice into the space beyond. Soul of Mohammed! What a sight met my gaze!

"'Sprawled upon its belly at the entrance to a cavern, the lithe tail beating the ground, was a creature, the sight of which caused my scimitar to fall from my nerveless grasp. Out of a tangled red mane, rose a white neck of columnar strength, surmounted by a countenance of awful beauty. Beneath netted eyebrows glowed eyes like burnished brass, human in all save the slit pupils. The lips were a venomous red arch, through which flashed long canine teeth.

"'Before her, slightly propped against a bowlder, lay Hamed, white and limp, but conscious and fascinated. Ever and anon the great furry paw was thrust forward caressingly (the claws sheathed), and the eyes of the dread creature became narrow and tender, and the purring sound was repeated.

"'Streaming with sweat, I had managed to level my pistol across a projection, when a shadow fell over us which deepened, and a murmur broke upon our ears, increasing to a roar. Springing to its feet, its eyes blazing greenly in the gathering gloom, the Thing seized the shoulder of Hamed's garments in its teeth, and with a horrid screaming snarl leaped past us, as the simoon in all its fury burst upon us.

"'The black had already clambered to the highest rock and lay clasping the base of a large palm, face down, enveloped in his burnous. I did likewise and after a period of unconsciousness, awoke, and painfully drawing myself up to a sitting posture against what remained of the palm stree, gazed about me. The black lay rigid at my side, stifled.

"'Around about among the rocks and trees and across the plain were great drifts and billows of sand, but of all my faithful people and valuable beasts there was no trace. A tent pole, with a fragment of canvas here and there, marked their graves.

"'I was rescued in a delirious condition by my partner, who came weekly to visit the encampment.

"'That I am stopping in this vicinity is owing to an irrestible fascination the spot has for me, and to its being in the direct road to the market town, whither I go at intervals to trade. The mystery that yonder sand heaps envelop will never be revealed until the desert and the sea give up their dead.'"

"How did you and George get along at the seashore?" asked her best friend. "Swimmingly," was the reply.

Sahara is Not a Barren Waste.

The Sahara is not a barren waste, as is popularly supposed. Not long ago 2,000,000 goats and 260,000 camels in the Algerian Sahara alone, and the oases furnished 1,500,000 date palms.

THE COLORADO COPPER MINING COMPANY

LOCATION OF OUR MINES

THE COLORADO COPPER MINING COMPANY is fortunate in being the possessor of five splendid showing properties in the great Salida copper belt, the principal copper producing region of this portion of the Rockies. All of our claims have been more or less developed, and it is our purpose to put these on a paying basis at once.

Our company owns, clear of incumbrances, the following claims: The Sedalia Extension, the Sedalia Extension No. 2, which property adjoins the great Sedalia mine, which has been a big producer for upwards of seventeen years; the Copper King of Colorado, which immediately adjoins the above; the Copper Queen of Salida, a very promising property, only a few steps from the depot in Salida. This claim occupies an imposing position on a mountain just south of the city; and last, but by no means least, the Sunshine, located two miles east of Salida at Cleora station, on the main trunk line of the great Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, and also on the Arkansas river, which in length is one of America's greatest streams.

Newspaper "Ads" are Read.

Most newspaper advertisers know that they do not need to entrap people into reading their "ads," but have only to tell a straightforward tale. The same impulse that leads people to look into a show-window causes them to read the advertising columns. There they often discover a want that had not occurred to them, besides gaining a great deal of varied and sometimes useful information.

Beer vs. Whiskey.

The Provincial Inspector of Licenses passed through Peterborough on his way to Toronto Saturday. He says that the people of Ontario are drinking more ales and porter and less hadr liquor than formerly. There is less drunkeness than in previous years. At the present time. The Inspector states there about 3,000 liqour licenses in the province, but the tendency is to decrease this number, and considerable progress in that direction has been made this year. The class of hotels is generally growing better. One thing that goes a long way towards decreasing the illict sale of liqour is that the purchaser, as well as the seller, is liable to a fine, which in many localities is rigidly enforced.

SPORTING EVENTS.

GOLF.

A return game was played on the Cobourg links Friday between the Port Hope and Cobourg clubs, resulting in an easy victory for the latter by a score of 21 to 6.

BASEBALL.

Port Hope Guide.—The best that either Peterborough or Port Hope can do now is to tie Bowmanville for the championship, which would necessitate a couple of games more being played. Whichever is fortunate enough to play off with the westerners will we feel confident put them down and out of business. Of course we pick Port Hope, but should Peterborough conquer us in a fair game, we will back them in the final.

A True Fish Story.

They played a mean joke on a local nimrod the other day at Chemong. The story was related to the Times by Mr. Ed. Brown, and corroborated by Mr. Joe Yelland. "You see, it was like this," said Ed. "This young man is too lazy to fish. He is a beaut. He went up there last Monday, and while he wouldn't fish he was willing to eat fish, and also (just as willing to bring a basket full home with him and take the credit of having caught them. I worked with my rod line day and night, and finally landed quite a mess. Well, of course, our friends butts in on the haul and asks for the whole bunch to bring home with him. We didn't know how to refuse him, and he gets them—all fine black bass. He puts them into a basket, covers them all over and salts them down in ice after skinning the lot and pulling the fins out wi h pincers. We all go to the basket the night before he starts home, takes the fish out, fills the basket with coal, and while he was smiling us good-by, on the 'bus, waving the basket at us, we have the fish all safe in camp, and by that time to the skillet. When he gets to his girl's home here in town and unloads the good there was a terrible scene, and, according to the latest reports, he and his sweetheart are not speaking now." This is no joke.

"OZONE" FOR HAY FEVER.

Hay fever, like CATARRH, is a germ disease. If you have been unable to ward it off with DRUG medicines it is because such preparations do NOT KILL the germs. Hay Fever is beyond the reach of mere local remedies. Those who rely upon them for a cure lose valuable time and permit the disease to gain headway

—POWLEY'S LIQUIFIED OZONE—

Cures the most obstinate form of HAY FEVER, because it is a most powerful Germicide. It destroys the germ, builds up the system, makes the blood rich and healthy, stimulates and puts new life into the sluggish organs and clears the system of all poisonous secretions.

WHOLESALE MASSACRE BY RUSSIAN TROOPS

The Cossacks rode over the Field Killing the Wounded with Butt Ends of their Muskets.

THE RUSSIANS MADE A GREAT AND FATAL ERROR

According to the New Yook World They Turned Their Guns Upon the Americans—General Advance of the Relief Column Said to Have Begun on August 8

Shanghai, Sunday, Aug. 12.

A Chinese powder magazine exploded last night, the damage done is not known. Foreigners were not admitted within the magazine enclosures.

London, Aug. 14. 3,50 a.m

The British Consul at Canton says the Daily telegraph correspondent there has received the following message dated August 6th from Sir Claude McDonald British Minister in Pekin. Our situation here is desperate, in ten days our food supply will be at the end. Unless we are relieved a general massacre is probable. The Chinese offer to escort us to Tien Tsin, but remembering Cawnpore, we refused to offer. There are over 200 European women and children in this Legation. The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express, wiring yesterday says. The allies at noon yesterday were within 20 miles of Pekin. Yung Tsung despatch dated Aug. 7 giving details regarding the capture of the police says the heaviest loss of the day was sustained by the Americans, the 14th Infantry having nine killed, 62 wounded and several missing.

Another Yang Tsung special says,—Owing to a mistake, British and Russian guns shelled the 14th United States Infantry during the night, wounding 18.

The Daily Mail's St. Petersburg correspondent declares that the taking of Aigun has sealed the fate of the rising in north-eastern Manchuria. He adds,—"No prisoners were taken by the Russians. Wholesale massacre was the order of the day, and when the battle was over the Cossacks rode over the field, killing the wounded with the butt ends of their muskets."

London, Aug. 13.—The allied army, having made one short rush from Tien Tsin to Yang Tsun, is preparing for a spring forward that will land it at the gates of the Chinese capital in double quick time. This movement requires some preparation, and the three days that correspondents report as being set apart for this purpose is not too long a period. On all sides it is conceded that a rapid advance is urgently demanded, and there is considerable gratification expressed here that the outlook for this is so bright. Since the advance began nothing has been heard of the dilatoriness of the British. In fact, the reported casualties afford convincing evidence that the Britishers are in the firing line. This goes to prove that the reports emanating from French and American sources were inspired by hereditary hostility in the one case and by the jealousy of sensational prints in the other.

The determination of England to fulfil all her responsibilities in the north is not greater than her decision to protect her great interests in Central China. The powers and China are now working with the United States to persuade the Republic to protest the landing of troops at Shanghai. This effort is not likely to prove successful. Secretary Hay is on record against interference with Britain in this particular, and besides the policy of the present administration is to co-operate with the British throughout the whole campaign. There is little doubt that the Chinese in the Yang Tse valley are watching intently the progress of events in the north, and are ready to side with the victorious army, whether it be the allies or the imperial troops. The restless condition of the population calls for a show of force on the part of Britain, and that course is being followed regardless of the objections of France, whose interest in the Yang Tse is solely religious, there being many missionaries of that nationality scattered along the river.

The lull in news from the theatre of war to-day presages important happenings, out of which will come either safety for the besieged legations, or a tragedy unequalled in modern times.

TEN KILLED OUT OF FIFTY.

Berlin, August 13.—The Catholic paper Germania says it learns that altogether ten out of fifty missionaries in the Vicariate of southwest Pe Chi Li have been murdered and that 3,000 converts have suffered the same fate.

PEKIN IN SEVEN DAYS.

Yellow Journal Says the General Advance on Pekin Has Begun.

New York, Aug. 13.—Under copyright hear the Evening World to-day has a despatch from Frederick Palmer, dated Chefoo, August 10, which says that a general advance of the relief column began on the morning of August 8, and adds that the allied forces will probably reach Pekin in seven days.

The Chinese defeated at Yang Tsun have retreated to Pekin, says the despatch.

DE GIERS TOLD TO LEAVE.

St. Petersburg, August 13.—The Official Messenger states that the Foreign Office has received a message from M. de Giers, the Russian Minister at Pekin, which is dated Tsinan-Fu, August 7th, and is similar in purport to those sent by the Ministers of other countries, announcing that they had declined the Tsung-li-Yamen's proposal that they leave Pekin under escort of Chinese troops until they could obtain definite instructions from their respective Governments. In reply to his note, the Czar had cabled M. de Giers to leave Pekin on condition that the Chinese Emperor gives him safe conduct.

TERRIBLE MISTAKE MADE.

Russian Guns Fired Upon Americans at Yang Tsung.

New York, Aug., 13.—The evening World to-day has a despatch dated Chefoo, Aug. 9, signed by Frederick Palmer, telling of a terrible mistake at the taking of Yang Tsun. The despatch says.

Russian artillery opened fire on the American troops. Before the mistake was discovered many American soldiers had been killed or wounded by the Russian shells. Part of the casualties to the Fourteenth Infantry was the result of the Russian fire. As the Chinese fled the regiment enterd and occupied one of the Chinese positions.

A Russian battery some distance off did not notice the movement. It opened fire on the position and planted shells among the American troops. The Russians were quickly notified, and ceased their fire. Americans captured the Chinese works.

Their casualties are estimated at 70 altogether. Most of these are in the Fourteenth Infantry.

The long march and the heat played havoc with the troops, continued the correspondent. Forty per cent. of the Ninth regiment were completely exhausted as the result of the march and the fighting that followed. The allied force is resting at Yang Tsung for two or three days. Then it is to be a rush forward on Pekin. The Chinese are demoralized by their defeats and no rest or chance to recover from their demoralization is to be given them by the allied troops.

FATAL LEAP OF MAN AND WIFE.

Jump from a Moving Train, the Latter with a Babe in Her Arms.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 14.—Washington Turner a young man residing near Anniston, boarded the Southern railway train this morning at that place bound for McFall, twelve miles away, where he was reared. With him were his wife and baby. They had never ridden on the on the train before, and as the train sped along at the rate of forty-five miles an hour they watched anxiously for the approach of their destination. Half a mile from McFall the whistle blew, and recognizing their whereabouts from the scenery. Turner and his wife hurriedly left their seats and proceeding to the platform of the coach, made a wild leap for the ground, the wife clutching her babe. As the train had not slackened its speed Turner was killed instantly and his wife so badly injured that she died. The baby has a broken leg. The only possible explanation of the conduct of the couple is that they were unacquainted with railway traveling, and fearing that the train would not stop, proceeded to leave it.

DR. RYERSON DEFENDS THE FIELD HOSPITALS

Red Cross Surgeon Lands at Quebec and Talks of His Experiences in South Africa--Recovering From Veldt Fever.

Quebec, Aug. 13.—Surgeon Lieut.-Col. G. Sterling Ryerson, Canadian and British Red Cross Commissioner in South Africa, arrived in Quebec unexpectedly last night by the S.S. Corinthain from Liverpool. He left Cape Town on the 4th of July, remained 10 days in London, and then came direct home. He wished to say that the work of the different branches of the society in South Africa was most hopeful and did a great deal of good. He said, in an interview with a reproter,

"Mr Burdett Coutts was with me at the Bloemfontein hospital, and during the whole time he made no complaint whatever. He knew that if he had made such a complaint I had unlimited resources at my command, and could have easily remedied any deficiencies had they existed. He seemed perfectly satisfied with the arrangements made, and he reserved his changes until he was 7,000 or 8,000 miles away from the officials who could be injured by his utterly unwarranted statements. Of course, one cannot expect a war hospital to be in the same footing as a peace hospital under the circumstances, and the difficulties of transportation the care given the wounded and the sick was admirable. No one was neglected, and I heard n complaints whatever. While in London I appeared before the commission of enquiry, presided over by Sir Richard Romar, and gave my evidence in the case.

"When I arrived on the field of Paardeberg there were hundeds of horses and mules lying dead. The Boer laager was being looted by Kaffirs, and in the field hospital there were 250 wounded Boers, besides the British wounded, who were also very numerous. I immediately began making arrangements for transporting the wounded to Kimberley, where they could be properly cared for, and I was hampered in my work by the fact that a few mules were available. Ordinarily the ambulance wagons were drawn by mules, but these animals had been used for transport purposes, and all that was left for us were ox-wagons.

"The heat was frightful, and the journey took two days, hence it was not surprising that on the journey many of the poor fellows who had been hit died of their wounds. It was unfortunate that we could not provide better accommodation, but it was an impossibility.'

Surgeon Lieut.-Col. Ryerson, in his capacity as Canadian Red Cross Commissioner was intimately connected with the officers in command and especially after his appointment as British Commissioner at Lord Roberts' headquarterts.

He suffered from a slight attack of veldt ever while in Kimberley, but he soon recovered, and now is in the best of health.

BURIED THE WRONG MAN.

Hiram McCarthy Turns Up After Being Thought Dead and Buried.

Hiram McCarthy, a machinest, who has been employed for some time at the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Co's works, left for Toronto Saturday and surprised his wife, who thought she had buried her husband a month ago. McCarthy is now with his family at 3 Regent-avenue, Toronto, and the wife is wondering who was the man beside whose grave she stood a month ago.

It will be remembered that early in July the body of an unknown man was found floating in the Detroit river, and as it could not be identified at that place, it was shipped to Trinity Medical College for use in the department of anatomy. Mrs. McCarthy's husband, who is a machinest by trade had been missing for some time, and believing that the body was his, she wrote to the Windsor authoriities. A reply came that the body had been forwarded to Toronto, and that she could see it at the morgue of the Trinity Medical school. Taking her brother, who was well acquainted with her husband, she went to the morgue, and both positively claimed the body as that of McCarthy. Other friends of McCarthy also identified it later.

Then the trouble commenced. The college authorities had certain charges to collect before they would hand over the remains, and to these the friends objected. A compromise was reached, which gave the college autorities $30 and the relatives the body. The burial took place next day to St. James' cemeter.

There the story ended till Sunday when McCarthy arrived in the city very much alive. He had been working in town, and, when hearing of his death and burial he thought it would be interesting to see what his last rest-place looked like.

KRUGER HELPS BRYAN.

He Has Contributed Largely to His Election Fund.

London, Aug. 13.—Mr. John Stuart, Pretoria correspondent of The Morning Post, sends the following to that paper. "The Boers say that President Kruger is contributing to the expenses of Mr. Bryan between half and three quarters of a million sterling. They also say Mr. Webster Davis former Assistant Secretary of the Interior of the United States has recieved £25,000 toward the expenses of the American campaign.

SAY THE WORLD IS NEAR THE END.

Adventists Find Chinese War Predicted in Revelations and Pretending Judgement Day.

Does the present war in China signify the beginning of the end of the world?

Prophets are springing up all over the country to declare that it does. They base on the scriptures. In Philadelphia Adventists Fathers are announcing that the outbreak in the far east is the blowing of the seventh trumpe. mentioned in the book of Revelation, at the sound of which that great dragon rose up out of the sea and all the nations of the world fought together. Out on the Pacific coast a prophet named Jones has arisen, who devotes an entire book to proving how in the Bible are accurately prophesied all the important events in human history which have occurred since the Book Of Books was written, and how in the same way and with the same certainty the awakening of the Yellow Terror of Asia marks the final war among all the nations of the earth, in the midst of which "time shall cease to be and the struggling hosts shall be stricken dumb in a moment."

And the Sixth Angel poured out his vial upon the great River Euphrates and the water thereof was dried up that the way of the Kings of the East might be prepared.—Revelation xvi., 12.

And he saith unto me the waters which thou sawest are peoples, and the multitudes, and nations, and tongues.—Revelation xvii., 15.

SULTAN FIGURES IN IT.

The River Euphrates flows down from the mountains of Armenia into the Persian Gulf. Its valley is owned by the unspeakable Turk. When the power of the Sultan shall be crushed, which is what is meant by the "drying up of the waters" of the River Euphrates, then the sixth trumpet will have sounded and the way will be clear for the coming of the "Kings of the East" to the great battlefields, which shall immediately precede the last days of the world.

The modern statesmen look upon the existence of Turkey as the great barrier which keeps the powers of Europe from flying at each others throats.

AMERICA A KING OF THE EAST.

He mentions the fact that the United States recently had serious trouble with the Sultan and that there are other symptoms that the "sick man of Europe" is on his deathbed and that soon the waters of the Euphrates will be dried up indeed. By acquirign the Philippine Islands Prophet Jones declares that United States became one of the Eastern powers and must there ore be enrolled with the Kings of the East, which are marching on together to the last and greatest of the battlefields of all history.

Having cleared up these preliminaries, the prophet continues his quotations from Revelation.

And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of devils working miracles, which go forth unto the Kings of the earth and of the whole world to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. 14

MEANS CHINESE DRAGON.

Here he points out the Chinese dragon is plainly mentioned, and that the present situation in China, where all the powers are fighting side by side, is clearly prefigured. As for the false prophet, of the quotation that surely refers again to Turkey and to the Mohammedan power all over the world. And Prophet Jones, who is a student and a great traveler, finds ground for predicting that out of the present war in China will grow complications between the powers which will result in driving the Sultan from Constantinople and in finally arraying all the Christian nations of the world in solid phalanx against the forces of the "dragon" and the "beast" and the "false prophet" the last battle ground being Asia.

Here are some more verses which Prophet Jones and the other prophets declare refer to the present condition of things.

And there appeared another wonder in heaven; and, behold a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and crowns upon his heads.—Revelation xii. 3.

Thus in China, the symbol of which is the dragon, the Emperor and his six Ministers of State together make seven heads of the government.

And the dragon went to make war with the remnant of her seed which keep the commandments of God.—Revelation xii 17.

WAR WITH THE DRAGON.

Here is typified the fury with which the Chinese are attacking and killing the Christian missionaries and waging a war of extermination against all the "white devils" representing the Christian nations of the earth.

All the nations of the world, say these modern prophets, have been preparing for the last fifty years for the final great conflict. The world is now concentrating her forces for this final battle which will follow closely upon the heels of the present war in China.

"And what then?" asks Prophet Jones "'And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great Prince which standeth for the people of the children; and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time.'" And that is exactly what all the great powers expect, concludes the prophet.

ONE MORE CAPITAL FOR THE TRANSVAAL

According to a Special Dispatch Barberton is Proclaimed New Seat of Boer Government.

BULLER AND FRENCH ACTING IN CONJUNCTION

The Latter Moves Northward from Ermelo, While the Former Advances Eastward Upon Machododorp—Mafeking in Danger of a Second Siege, Civilians Hastily Quit the Place.

London, August 14.

The Boers have left Machadodorp according to the Lorenzo Marquez correspondent of the Daily Mail, and occupied Waterval in force. A considerable portion of Commandant-General Louis Botha's camp and stores at Dalmanthua was destroyed by fire on Sunday. According to another special despatch Barberton has been proclaimed the new seat of the Transvaal Government.

London, Aug. 13.—The stern chase after De Wet has certainly proved long enough to justify the proverb. The Boer leader is still struggling heroically to the northward with the intention of joining the force of Delarey,, now operating so successfully around Rustenburg. Hanging upon his flanks and rear are these British forces led by three of the most experienced generals in the campaign, but despite their pertinacity the guerilla leader and his band has crossed the Vaal and on Saturday last had reached the Kierksdorp-Potchefstroom Railway, thirty miles to the north, and was attempting to cross the line at Welverdeen and made across country to combine with his confrere. At that time Kitchener and Methuen were closing in rapidly from the rear and had, in fact, come to such close quarters with De Wet's rear guard as to capture six wagons and two ambulances. Smith-Dorrien movin up from the east appears to have come upon the enemy at the moment of crossing and to have engaged them with some success. Here the story as told in the official despatches of Lord Roberts' ends, and all are waiting to hear the closing chapter of De Wet's memorable resistances to the overwhelming force hurled against him for some months past. As De Wet is on the railway it is evident that troops can be brought quickly from Pretoria to aid in surrounding him, so that an overwhelming body of men may be assembled around him in short order. of Smith-Dorrien., Kitchenen and Methuen do not complete the task without further aid, but are enabled to hold their assailant in his position for a short time. It was probably anticipation of a move of this nature which caused Lord Roberts, after sending General French against Botha, to return with a large portion of his force to Pretoria, where he would be in a position to put the finishing touches to the ubiquitous De Wet. If De Wet escapes this time he is in such close touch with Delarey that the latter can materially aid him and enable him to reach a place of safety. Whether this will be done, or whether a second Pardeberg is imminetremains to be seen. Eastward of Pretoria General French is in charge of the operations against Botha, and has already reached Wonderfontein, half way between Middleburg and Machadodrop, the present headquarters of the enemy. General Buller is acting in collusion with the victor of Colesberg, and is moving northward from Laing's Nek through that part of the Transvaal immediately north of the Preoria-Delagoa Bay line, along which French is advancing. He has now occupied Ermelo, a hundred miles exactly south of Wonderfontein, and his movement is evidently with the object of keeping the right flank of General French clear of marauding Boers and of finally uniting with French in an attack upon Botha at Machadodrop or wherever the Boen general may place himself. A new complexion is placed on affairs in the western part of the Transvaal by the news that Mafeking is in danger of being besegged a second time and that Rustenburg has had to be abandened. This shows that the Boers are endeavering at all costs to keep the war alive in the district which Baden-Powell in his march from Mafeking erroneously thought has been pacified.

STILL PUBSUING DE WET.

Kitchener Overtook His Rear Guard Near Lindeque on Thursday.

London, Aug. 11—The War Office today received the following message from Lord Roberts:

"Pretoria, Aug. 10Johannesburg reports that a patrol from the waterwoks was attacked August 7.

"Buller occupied Amersport on the eve of August 7. The enemy retired before his force about six miles before Amers-port was reached The casualties were twenty men wounded.

"Buller was on the north bank of the Reitsprit August 9 on his way to Ermelo.

"Rundle arrested at Harrismith Commandant Marais, three field cornets and thirty armed burghers and a British subject of Natal named Marais, a Boer spy, Erasmus, and a former member of the Free State Intelligence Bureau.

"Hunter reports that 130 burghers with upwards of a million rounds of ammunition surrendered August 8, and August 9 Cloet, a member of the Volksraad, was a prisoner with Hunter.

"Kitchener engaged De Wet's rear guard yesterday near Lindeque within hearing of Methuen's guns six miles northwest."

FIFTY WENT DOWN TO A WATERY GRAVE

New French Torpedo-Boat Destroyer Went Down in a Collision off Cape St. Vincent.

Paris, Aug. 13.—During the manouvres of the French fleet off Cape St. Vincent Saturday night a collision occurred betweeen the first-class battleship Brennus, flying the flag of Vice-Admiral Fourier, commander of the fleet, and the torpedo-boat destroyer Framee. The Framee sank immediately. The accident was due to the fact that the Framee turned to the right when ordered to the left. Of the crew, consisting of four officers and 56 men, 14 only were saved. The losses include three officers, Captain Maudult du Plessix, the second lieutenant, and the chief engineer.

The Framee, which was 313 tons, displacement, was a recent addition to the Franch navy.

Admiral Fournier, in a despatch from Cadiz, says that at the time of the accident the Brennus was steaming ahead of the Framee on the left. The flagship and the torpedo-boat destroyer were exchanging luminous signals, when the latter approached too near the Brennus. The captain of the French ordered his helmsman to steer 20 degrees to the left, while he increased speed. The man misunderstood or badly excited his order, steering to the right, which brought the destroyer under the ram of the Brennus, her frame being cut in twain.

WARSHIPS TO STEAM UP THE GREAT LAKES.

British War Offic Busy With a Scheme to Strengthen Canada's Land and Sea Defences and put her in a Position to Attack.

London, August 13.—The War Office has been engaged for several months investigating the preparedness for war of Canada and the Australian colonies. The investigation is said to have been completed so far as the latter are concerned, and a scheme of defence is being prepared which will form the basis upon which the Government of the federated colonies will work. The dominant idea of this scheme is the constitution from various military odds and ends in the present divisions of one homogeneous colonial army, recruited voluntarily, but with power reserved of enforcing a modified form of conscription known as the militia ballot. Concurrently Australia will be raised to the rank of a second-class naval station.

The Canadian scheme is not so, far forward as the Australasian, for the reason that it is much more complex and because Canada not only has to be prepared against outside attack, but must be placed in a position to attack. Anxious consideration has been given the question how best to defend the long land frontier and furnish adequate protection to the ports.

In this matter the War Office has been co-operating with a small committee of naval experts appointed by the Lords of the Admiralty. The integral part of the Canadian scheme is the obtaining of safe and easy access for ships of war to the great lakes. Some such route is said to have been found and the House of Commons will be asked at the next session to vote money towards the cost of the works. Their magnitude is so great that Canada could not well be asked to undertake them from her own resources, particularly as the ultimate object is part of the general scheme of Imperial defence and offence.

The Canadian scheme further provides for an increase in the garrisons of Halifax and Esquimalt, the raising of a considerable force of Canadian regular troops if the Dominion Government's consent can be obtained, of which there is said to be some doubt, and the raising of the North American naval station to first rank, with an effort to tap for the royal navy an unlimited supply of recruits afforded by the fishing population of the Dominion and Newfoundland.

WHY THIS DIFFERENCE?

The contention that tidings of the retirement of Col. Sam Hughes were telegraphed to Lord Minto in the ordinary course of his business is weakened somewhat by the fact that His Excellency did not receive equally sudden news of the disgrace of two Canadian troopers.

Canada was as much interested in learning that two of her representatives in the Mounted Rifles had been convicted of high treason as in knowing that a technically non-Canadian officer had been retired from his employment.

It is to be remembered that Colonel Sam Hughes had no official relationship to Canada. He was in South Africa on his own account. Canada had no official responsibility for his conduct.

Yet the news that Col. Sam Hughes had been dismissed came hot over the wires to Rideau Hall, and Lord Minto never seems to have heard a whisper of the far more important news that two Canadian soldiers had been convicted of high treason.

If Lord Minto had not been following the career of Col. Sam with peculiar interest the news of that officer's retirement would have been apt to reach this country by slow mail, like the news that two Canadian soldiers had been convicted of high treason.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The worst about the Anarchist is that having lost his own, he may think a nation better off by losing its head.

* * *

The United States has offered Spain $100,000 for two small islands in the Philippines group which were not included in the treaty, owing to the poor geographical knowledge of the peace commissioners, and the Buffalo Express wants to know if it would not be better to offer Spain $100,000 to take a few of the other islands back.

* * *

Like the election prophets the campaign talker is now casting his eyes to windward. Windward is the direction where the blowing is done.

* * *

King Humbert's murderer says he killed the king because he hates monarchy. If anarchists believe that he was justified in murdering a king because he hated monarchy, they must admit that a person who hates anarchy would be justified in killing any anarchist at sight.

* * *

Every time the Minister from the United States asks the Porte for that indemnity he is courteously asked to call again. Turkey may believe that politeness pays even if Sultans don't.

Off the Track

This means disaster and death when applied to a fast express train. It is equally serious when it refers to people whose blood is disordered and who consequently have pimples and sores, bad stomachs, deranged kidneys, weak nerves and that tired feeling. Hood's Sarsaparilla puts the wheels back on the track by making pure, rich blood and curing these troubles.

Constipation is cured by Hood's Pills. 25 cents.

CANNIBALISM IN VOGUE

An American Indian in Jail for Eating a Woman.

An Indian cannibal has been sent to jail in Vancouver. His crime was part of an ancient rite. He was an initiate of the Ha-mattsas, an Indian secret fraternity which demands of its members that they acquire a taste for human flesh.

The Canadian government is greatly exercised over this outbreak of a barbaric custom that had been thought well nigh stamped out.

One of [illegible] was a well-known half-[illegible] named George Hunt. He had charge of a band of Indians exhibited at the World's Fair, and he acted as interpreter for Dr. Franz Boas, of the Museum of Natural History, New York, when the latter was in Vancouver collecting data for his important work on Indian customs, now filed at the Smithsonian Institution.

There was insufficient evidence for the conviction of Hunt, and the same is true of all the defendants save one. He was convicted of having devoured a portion of the body of a squaw.

It is only among a few of the far northern and inland tribes, remote from civilization and stubborn in their resistance to missionary effort, that the horrible rites of the Ha-mattsas, or flesh-eaters, survive.

Every spring the Ha-mattsas holds its initiation ceremonies for new candidates, accompanied by feasting and dancing and other wild orgies. The chief purpose of the initiation is to create in the aspirant the taste for human flesh.

In the case in question the body of a young squaw who had mysteriously died but a few days before was removed from the burying ground and taken to the initiation room, where it was lashed naked to one of the posts. A band of the Ha-mattsas, marched round it, inflamed by wild music and frenzied yells of the old Ha-mattsas, and proceeded to bite off mouthfuls of flesh from the arms, sides and legs of the squaw's body.

The Northwest Mounted Police were informed of the hideous rite and succeeded in capturing the ringleader.

Many curious facts about the cannibal fraternity came to light during the trial. It was developed that for initiation into the Ha-mattsas the novice must go and live four or five weeks in the forest seeing no one and eating no food.

At the end of his banishment his "spirit" appears in the shape of some animal, which he at once kills and devours raw, whereby he is supposed to imbibe its courage and strength, which thereafter dwell in him. He returns from the forest adorned with a headdress of cedar bark, dyed red which is one of the emblems of the flesh-eating fraternity, and is worn by him during the progress of the initiation. He is met by a band of the secret brotherhood, who escort him to the village with much ceremony.

They are joined by an attendant bearing in his arms a dead body, which must be that of a young squaw. In ancient times she was sacrificed for the occasion.

Walking behind this body, the candidate is led into the dancing-house, which has been cleared for the ceremony.

The body is tied to a post and the unspeakable rite begins.

There were witnesses at the trial who swore that Hunt, the half-breed, had cut the body to pieces for distribution among the old members and the novice, and that all joined in devouring the flesh. Certain it is that the man from the woods, naked and half-starved after his vigil, played his part in the rite, while his associates spurred him on with dance and song.

And if they did not actually join him in the gruesome feast, they stimulated his zeal by making concerted, wolf-like rushes at the mangled body and pretending to fight over the flesh.

Nor did the candidate for Ha-mattsa honors escape with one night of horrors. Four times, as darkness fell, he was led into the dance-house and compelled to undergo the trial prescribed by Indian tradition. On the fourth night the corpse had been all devoured.

Then came another stage of the ceremony—the eating of living flesh. In this the uninitiated spectators were allowed to play a passive part. The Ha-mattsa ran hither and thither among them, biting with the ferocity of a wildcat and eating their flesh.

It was a point of pride with the victims to endure the onslaught with stoicism. Besides, the customs of the order prescribe gifts for those who allow themselves to be bitten. The first prize on this occasion was awarded to a boy who allowed a large mouthful to be detached from his forearm.

Having faithfully performed all that was required of him, the candidate was pronounced by the elders a full-fledged Ha-mattsa.

It then devolved upon his proud family to give a great feast in his honor. Human flesh was not included in the repast, but the new Ha-mattsa exhibited his zeal by occasionally taking a bite out of his nearest neighbor's arm or shoulder, and these attentions were submitted to with great good humor.

Most important of all was the distribution by the young Ha-mat'sa of blankets and other gifts to all the persons whom he had honored by biting.

QUEER ISN'T IT

That women think nothing of going shopping without a penny in their purse?

That women walk boldly up to a dog and show such abject fear on the appearance of a mouse?

That women are much more thoughtful of the feelings of their mother than are men?

That women can be so easily imposed upon by men who deal in kitchen supplies?

That women find so little trouble in shedding tears at a wedding or at a funeral?

That women think every one believes them when they tell their age according to their own ideas?

PRECIOUS STONES

It is said that the agate quenches thirst, and, if put into the mouth, allays fever.

Amber is a cure for sore throats and glandular swellings.

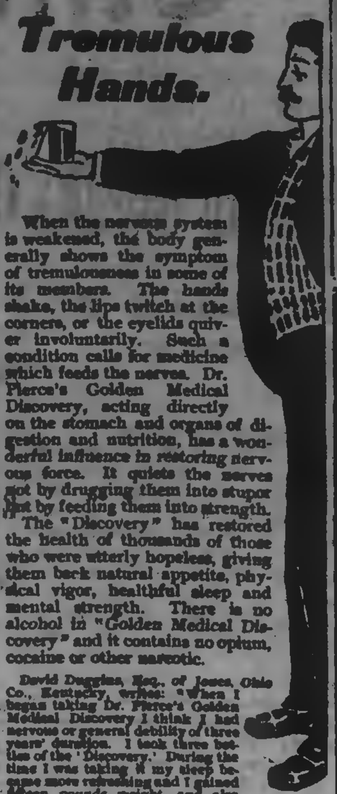
Cat's-eye is a charm against witchcraft.

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

Diamonds produce somnambulism and spiritual ecstasy.

Emeralds, friendship and constancy.

Garnets preserve health and joy.



Tremulous Hands.

When the nervous system is weakened, the body generally shows the symptom of tremulousness in some of its members. The hands shake, the lips twitch at the corners, or the eyelids quiver involuntarily. Such a condition calls for medicine which feeds the nerves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, acting directly on the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, has a wonderful influence in restoring nervous force. It quiets the nerves not by drugging them into stupor but by feeding them into strength.

The "Discovery" has restored the health of thousands of those who were utterly hopeless, giving them back natural appetite, physical vigor, healthful sleep and mental strength. There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery" and it contains no opium, cocaine or other narcotic.

David Duggins, Esq., of Jones, Ohio Co., Kentucky, writes: "When I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I think I had nervous or general debility of three years' duration. I took three bottles of the 'Discovery.' During the time I was taking it my sleep became more refreshing and I gained fifteen pounds weight, and also gained strength every day."

Free, on receipt of stamps, to pay expense of customs and mailing only, Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, 1008 pages. Send 31 one-cent stamps for book in paper covers, or 50 stamps in cloth binding, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

INTERESTING ITEMS

The New York Times tells of an incident that shows how large ocean steamships have become: "Once a little immigrant boy, about 7 years old, was lost for four days on the voyage over. He left his mother and started in quest of adventure about the big ship, but upon growing tired was unable to find his way back to her. Instead of asking some one to show him where to go, or telling that he was lost the young truant decided to continue his explorations indefinitely When found he was sleeping in an empty coal box down among the engines. One of the crew took him to the captain, who detailed six stewards to search for his mother. They found her with some difficulty, and discovered that out to look for her son and not being she, two had been lost, having started able to get to her own part of the ship again."

Americans who have visions of living cheaply in Paris should banish them. It is a good rule to count on its costing as much in the City of Laughter as in New York or Chicago, with this difference, that in Paris sleeping rooms heated by steam or hot air and lighted by electricity or gas can only be found in high-priced hotels and pensions. Bath rooms are equally scarce closets are important enough to be especially mentioned in the advertisements, a single window is the rule, and the majority of rooms face courts or back yards because of the peculiar construction adopted for French apartmens houses. Americans cannot find "all the comforts of home" without paying roundly for them.

A well-known water-front character in Bath, Me., recently spent a month in jail at Wiscasset and rather enjoyed it. The warden treated the man leniently, allowed him to go fishing and enjoy other reliefs to the monotony of prison life and used him as a mail messenger and errand boy. One night the prisoner was delayed on a mission to the post-office and did not arrive at the jail until after six, when the institution is closed for the night. The warden was waiting for the delinquent and gave him a small lecture, ending by saying: "If you are as late as this again I shall lock you out!" The prisoner was careful to be on time after that.

Trades unions hitherto have been but little known in Paris. It is now announced that 3,000 assistants employed in the three great shops, the Bon Marche, Louvre and Samaritaine, are meditating the organization of an association of this kind.

Famines of Modern Times.

The worst famines of modern times were the famine in Ireland in 1846-7, in which 1,000,000 people perished; the Indian famine of 1866, which claimed 1,450,000 victims; the Indian famine of 1877, in which 500,000 people perished, and the great famine in China in 1878, in which 9,500,000 died.

Why There are Heroic Jims.

"Why is it," the girl asked, "that the brave boys who are not appreciated at home—who are regarded as black sheep by the rest of the family, and go to war where they fall while carrying the beloved flag of our country up the rocky slopes—why is it that these noble fellows are always named Jim? I have read a hundred poems about them during the last year or two and every one of them was Jim. Is it merely a coincidence, or can there be something in a name, after all?"

"It is not a coincidence," the cynic beside her answered. "It's the name that makes them heroic. Juliet said a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, but Jim by any other name could not have poems written about him. Just think of the possibilities presented by slim, trim, vim, him, brim grim, dim, whim, glim, rim, limb, not to mention cherubim, seraphim and a lot more long words that could be used in a pinch. Jim is one of the boys that have glory thrust upon them."—Chicago Times-Herald.

MOSEBY ESCAPED

George W. Fink Had the Famous Guerilla Under Arrest

The man who captured Colonel John Singleton Moseby, the most famous of the Confederate guerillas during the civil war, was George W. Fink. The fact that Moseby was a prisoner under Fink for only a short time, not more than half an hour, in fact, does not take away much from the glory of his achievement, as may be seen from the circumstances of the incident as related by Mr. Fink at the Union station in the special train in which the colonists lay over while arrangements for the transfer from the Pennsylvania to the Fort Wayne were being made.

At the outbreak of the war Fink enlisted in Troop A, of the First Pennsylvania Cavalry, and went with that command almost immediately to the region of the Shenandoah Valley, where their field of operations continued to be. In 1861 Fink was one day a member of a scouting party sent out to reconnoiter, and in that capacity traveled a considerable distance from the spot where the camp had been pitched. It was learned from some of the Union sympathisers in the region that a small party of Confederates were concealed in a house three or four miles away, and a detachment was sent after them.

Fink himself rode up to the door and demanded entrance, which was refused him by the woman who answered his knock at the door. She denied vigorously that any soldiers were within and loudly protested against the intrusion of the scouts.

In one of the upper chambers two officers, a lieutenant and a captain, were found lying under the bed, and were triumphantly dragged forth, covered with dust and lint from the floor In another room a third man, dressed in civilian's clothes, but very evidently connected with the army, was found and placed under arrest in company with the others. Their arms were taken from them, and under the guard of Fink and one companion their return to the camp was begun.

On the way a thick wood was passed through. The man in civilian's clothes was riding at the front of the little party. When the middle of the grove was reached he wheeled his horse plunged the rowels into its side and dashed off to the right. Fink promptly raised his carbine and fired at the rapidly retreating form. The horse fell dead, but the rider leaped free from the animal's body and ran like the traditional white head further into the woods. The cavalrymen could not leave the two prisoners who remained, and who were watching with breathless interest the flight of their comrade, so the journey to the camp was continued without chase having been made.

When headquarters were reached the two officers were turned over to the commander. On their way to the guard house they turned to Fink and one of them said:

"You may be interested in knowing that the man who got away was Colonel Moseby." Then he started on with his companion. Fink, in telling the incident said:

"I was feeling sore enough over the escape, as it was, but when I heard who my prisoner was, I felt like going to the guard house myself and serving the longest sentence I could persuade my superiors to give me."

It has never been positively established that the man who got away in the woods was really Moseby. The two officers averred that it was, and Fink's comrades believed them and always called him "the man who captured Moseby."

If it was Moseby it was the closest escape he ever had from becoming a prisoner of the Federal government, for there was no man probably in the whole rebel army who was more wanted than he was and against whom more determined efforts were directed. Arch H. Rowand, Jr., the well-known local attorney, who was during the war one of the most famous of Federal scouts, put in the best part of three years in trying to apprehend him. Mr. Rowand this morning said in connection with the Fink incident.

"If Fink really had him I never heard of it. I put in my spare time and a good deal more during 1862-3-4 in going after the doughty old fellow, and when we weren't after him he was after us. I was once chased by three of his men from Stickers Gap clear into Harper's Ferry. My own opinion is that the man who skipped out in the woods Fink speaks of was not the guerilla at all, but that the officers who didn't get a chance to clear out just said he was, to make their own captors feel sore at their loss. Of course you understand I don't know anything about the affair, and that this theory is one of my own construction."

Moseby is still alive and resides in California. He came into great prominence just after the close of the Civil war by becoming a Republican, or as the phrase went then, a "reconstructed rebel." He held office under President Grant and has always remained an administration man. During the Spanish war he came into public notice again by applying for a commission. He was told to get the recommendation of the Senators of his State, but hotly declined to seek any such backing, closing the letter in which he did so with the characteristic declaration that he was after an army job, not a political appointment.

"The use of visiting-cards dates back to quite an antiquity," explains Mrs. Van Koert Schuyler, in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Formerly the porter at the lodge or door of great houses kept a visitors' book, in which he scrawled his idea of the names of those who called upon the master and his family, and to whose inspection it was submitted from time to time. One fine gentleman, a scion of the nobility from the Fauborg St. Germain, was shocked to find that his porter kept so poor a register of the names of those who had called upon him. The names, badly written with spluttering pen and pale or muddy ink, suggested to him the idea of writing his own name upon slips of paper or bits of cardboard in advance of calling upon his neighbors lest his name should fare as badly at the hands of their porters. This custom soon became generally established."

Need of Pure Air.

In order that sleep may perform its legitimate work of restoration it demands that its conditions and environment shall offer no obstacle to its accomplishment. Sleep demands a purer atmosphere than the waking hours of life. Awake and at work we are somewhat on the defensive, but we yield ourselves into the arms of slumber and are at the mercy of unseen foes lurking in secret hiding places about our rooms, close beside our beds and beneath our very pillows.

Albert Street.

Complaints have reached the Times from citizens residing on Albert street, in regard to the condition of that thoroughfare. About two months ago the corporation undertook to grade and gravel the street, consequently the crossings were torn up and have not been replaced either by stationery or temporary crossings. In dry weather residents on the south side are compelled to walk through three inches of dust and in wet weather ankle deep in mud, which is certainly disagreeable to ladies. To make matters worse the sidewalk on the south side has been torn up from one end of the street to the other and is left in that condition.

FROM SERGEANT TRUSLER.

An Interesting Letter to Mr. Matchett from South Africa.

The following letter from Sergeant A. H. Trusler will be read with interest by his many friends—

Norval's Point, South Africa, July 8, 1900

Mr. M. W. Matchett, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Friend,—Just a line or two, hoping you are quite well. We are having quite a time here. At least those who are fighting are, and it is a matter of chasing the enemy all over the country, for they seem determined to fight as long as possible, and our boys are getting all they want to do. The war is not over yet by any means, and there is lots o' work to do yet. A great many thought when Pretoria was taken that would be the end of it, but in that they were mistaken, for there has been lots of fighting since then, and likely to be. At home of course you will wonder how it is that the British are not making more progress and bringing the war to a close, but if you could see the nature of the country, which is a continuous range of mountains and kopjes, you would doubtless change your mind and say that the British have had some hard work to do and some hard positions to capture, and then again the treachery of the Boers is something to be considered, for after surrendering and giving in their arms and taking the oath, they have immediately taken up arms against us again, so you see we cannot trust them, no matter how well we use them. But Lord Roberts is fetching them, and I think as soon as De Wet and General Botha are captured, the war will be about over.

I have been rather unfortunate here, I have had a very severe attack of enteric fever, and was very low for some time, but I am very thankful to say I pulled through, although I am still very weak. The fever here is something to be dreaded more than fighting. Hundreds die every day from this terrible plague I have seen nine corpses on a wagon at once. They are buried in a plain blanket with no coffin, and it is indeed a sad sight to behold. Twelve hundred are buried in Bloemfontein alone. About 50 of the first contingent are buried there who have died from this terrible fevre. Our mounted troops are in fairly good health, considering all things, although we have lost a few men. I have not heard from Percy Price or any Peterboro boys for some time, and cannot tell you how they are.

Kindly remember me to all. Hoping to soon be back to dear Canada again, and wishing you all health and happiness, I remain yours for Queen and country and British fair play,

ALFRED H. TRUSLER,
Field Force, S.A.

P.S.—There is not much use in writing, for we do not get half of our mail. All we want is your best wishes, and prayers for our safe return to the land of the maple leaf. A.H.T.

The Kawatha Lakes.

Some changes are made in the time card of the Trent Valley Navigation Co.'s steamer service on the Kawartha Lakes. The Manita will now leave Fenelon Falls at 8.30 instead of 8.45, and Sturgeon Pt. at 9 instead of 9.30. Then the Ogemah will leave Burleigh daily at 1.30 instead of 2. o'clock.

A TRAVELLING MAN.

Tells Something About Cocaine Fiends He Had Seen.

"I never see a cocaine fiend," said a traveling man to a group of his friends in the National Hotel, as a Times' representative entered, the other evening, "but what I am reminded of the introduction that George Krenan received to a new York audience after his return from Russia. The gentleman who introduced him, with a wave of his hand toward Kennan, said—'This man has seen hell,' and, by the way, you know that the latest definition of hell is a condition wherein conscience is completely paralyzed and all sense of moral responsibility is annihilated. Our ethical friends, however, who coined this definition, would infer that it belongs to a future state Now, personally, I don't interrogate any future condition. Every day, in my visits to the asylums and drugstores, I see this paralysis of conscience and this loss o' all moral responsibility—this hell—that has been brought about by sinful ignorance in the use of drugs. So insidious is this awful thing in its growth that its dangers are not realized until the victim is a near friend, or, mayhap, a member of some one's family.

"To give you an idea of how this habit has spread: in Toronto, four years ago cocaine was unknown outside of medical circles or the pharmacies, but to-day there are hundreds, slaves to cocaine. At another station at a drugstore, in the course of an hour I counted 11 calls for morphine and 18 for cocaine. It is also a remarkable and well-known fact in the United States that whenever a town goes dry the sale of cocaine increases.

"By the way, I had a very funny experience once in an insane asylum with a druggist, who afterwards proved to be a cocaine fiend. Just think of it—a druggist in the asylum and crazy, and the officials didn't know it! He gave me a very large order—nearly three times what it should have been, which I accepted, and wondering at the time why it should have been so large and so freely given. Shortly after this I received word from the steward of the asylum saying that the goods were there subject to my order, and that they could not be accepted because the druggist, who had recently been found to be a cocaine fiend was under the influence of the drug at the time of giving me the order, and the asylum could in no way be held responsible for it.

"One of the saddest cases of this kind that ever came under my observation occurred some years ago. One day, while waiting to see a customer in one of the drugstores in a certain city, a young girl, scarcely 19 years of age, asked for paregoric. The bottle no sooner reached her hand than she removed the cork, and placing it to her lips drank a portion of its contents. She was a paregoric fiend. Three years afterward, being in the same city, in January, on a very cold night at that, I turned the corner from one of the principal thoroughfares tomer, when I was startled by a voice at my elbow, saying—'Won't you please give me a little help?' Turning I saw before me the shivering form of an ill-clad woman. She was a woman of the street—the lowest type. I placed a piece of money in her hand. She sped ahead of me as fast as her chilled limbs would permit, and by the light of the electric lamp on the further corner I saw her enter a drugstore. It being my own destination I followed, and, walking to the rear of the prescription case, saw the object of my charity standing with a small, white wafer in one hand, while she poured its contents into the palm o' the other. Then going to the faucet she added a little water, and holding it close to her nostrils she snuffed it. I knew then that the money I had given her had gone for cocaine; but I made a more startling discovery than this, for I recognized in her the girl of 19, whom I had seen in that same store drinking parego'ic three years before. She told me her story, and it was a sad commentary on the ignorance of mothers in the use of drugs, how her mother had given her parego'ic when a baby, and the desire for it had remained with her when a girl, but the system absorbing only so much o' the poison and no more; and the craving been intensified a hundred fold, a stronger, deadlier poison must be added or substituted. So she began using morphine until her legs became like two pieces of ossified wood from hypodermic injections. Finally, this drug, losing its effect, she resorted to cocaine. This was the last step. Without money and no friends, night found her in the street, homeless and a beggar, ready to sell herself for a pittance to gratify a perverted appetite. With conscience paralyzed, and all sense o' common decency and moral restraint gone, her life was certainly hell."

When the speaker had finished saying this he arose from the chair, and relighting his cigar and rolling it from one corner of his mouth to the other, he said—"Boys, if you forget any of the things I have told you remember this—that God may forgive you for your sins, butnature never will."

CHINESE ARE ATTACKING THE LEGATIONS AGAIN

Prince Tuan and One Hundred High Officials Have Left Pekin.

THE ORDER WAS TO RUSH ON CHINESE CAPITAL

The Forts at Canton Newely Armed—Trying to Engage a Foreign Electrician to Lay Mines in the River.

London, August 14.

The British GGovernment to-day received from Che Foo under date of August 11 GGeneral Gaselles brief despatches describing the capture of Pietsang and Yang Tsung. He says the Japanese dislodged the enemy from Pietsang in gallant style. Describing the fighting at Yang Tsung GGeneral Gaselles says "After ascertaining that the enemy held the railway embankment we forwarded for the attack with the Americans on our right and the Russian battalion on our extreme left. After a rapid advance of nearly three miles, during which they were under a hot shell and rifle fire, our troops carried the first line of defence in fine style. We are now encamped on the left bank of the Peiho, near the railway bridge over the Peiho. Casualties about 50 killed.

London, August 14.

A special despatch from Shanghai dated August 13 says numerous reports from Pekin dated August 8 have arrived there describing the situation at the Chinese capital. It appears the Chinese are again desperately attacking the Legations, which had very few defenders left. It is also alleged that Prince Tuan and a hundred high officials have left Pekin and that the news of the capture of Yang Tsun caused a heavy exodus of the residents. Finally it is said that the execution of Chen Yin Huan, the Cantonese who was special embassador of China to Queen Victoria's jubilee has created widespread terror and it is believed to be a fact that Yu Lu, the former Viceroy of Chi Li, was killed in battle at Yang Tsun.

London, August 15.

The Chinese Minister in London, Sir Chi Chih Lo Fing Luh is quoted as saying that he hoped and believed that peace would be established between China and the powers within the next six weeks. Yesterday he transmitted to the British Foreign Office another message from the British Minister in Pekin Sir Claude MacDonald, the contents of which the officials have thus far declined to make public.

New York, Aug 14.—Cabling to the World, Frederick Palmer, sends a despatch dated from the headquarters of the allied troops in the field, Tsitsung, China, Aug. 8, via Shanghai, Aug. 13, which says,

The general advance of the allied forces began this "Wednesday" morning. The order is to rush to Pekin with no rest. We probably shall arrive at the gates of the Chinese capital in seven days reaching there next Wednesday. The enemy is demoralized.

The Chinese are reported to have retreated straight to Pekin, after having been unexpectedly driven out of Yang Tsung on Monday.

Yang Tsung was captured by the Americans, under General Chaffee. They led the allies in the forced march from Peitsang and attacked before the natives had recovered from the effect of their signal defeat of the day before.

The United States regulars made a dash when they found the enemy and soon were masters of the position.

But just here a most distressing thing happened. The Americans had done their work so quickly and thoroughly that they were in the Chinese trenches before the rest of the allies knew it, and a Russian battery threw shells among the Americans through a frightful error.

CHURCHYARD DESECRATED.

Berlin, Aug. 14.—A semi-official despatch from Tien Tsin says the Russian Colonel Wojacek has received advances from Pekin announcing that during the night of July 31 the bombardment of the foreign legations was resumed, and that the European churchyard was desecrated.

London, Aug. 14.—General Chaffee's message of the 10th, announcing his arrival August 9, at Hosi Wu, stands as the latest official intelligence of the march of the allied force on Pekin. The English papers say it is rather annoying that their naval and military officers cannot communicate with the high officials here. While Admiral Remey and Gen. Chaffee can do so by the Shanghai-Canton wire.

Chinese reports are being distributed far and wide in the southern provinces of alleged Chineses successes in the north.

Secret inquiries at Canton show that the forts have been newly armed with 12 centimetre disappearing guns and that the garrisons are armed with Mausers and Winchesters. The Chinese have also been trying to engage a foreign electrician to lay mines in the Bogue, or entrance to the Canton River.

Dr. Marks, Li Hung Chang's physician, informed the correspondents in Shanghai this morning that he did not go north on account of the weather and the unsettled state of the country. The doctor is removing his family from Canton because he believes there may be an outbreak there.

OUTBREAK AT CANTON.

Paris, Aug. 14.—Despatches received here from the French Consul-General at Shanghai show apprehension existing there as to the conditions prevailing at Shanghai and its vicinity. The French Ministry has therefore decided to take precau[illegible] defend the French concess[illegible] Shanghai.

SHANGHAI STIRRED UP.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 14.—The St Petersburg papers are campaigning against the political activity of Great Britain in the Yang Tse Valley. The St. Petersburg Gazette has interviewed a member of the United States Embassy as to the reasons why the United States assumed a hostile attitude towards China, in view of Li Hung Chang's declaration that Minister Conger could be sent safe to Tien Tsin on condition that the United States abandon the idea of a march on Pekin. The member of the United States Embassy in question is quoted as saying the United States was indignant at thus being bargained with, and expressed the belief that United States would send many troops to China.

DISCOVERED A DIAMOND MINE

Colonel Ryerson speaks of the good luck of a Canadian, Sergeant Ross, of Roberts' Horse. While out patrolling in the Free State, Sergeant Ross, who is a graduate of the Kingston School of Mines, discovered a diamond mine. He has taken out papers, issued a prospectus and formed a joint stock company. There is always this kind of off-chance of making a fortune in South Africa, and the mineral resources of the Free State are unknown, because prospecting was not encouraged under President Steyn.

About the two Canadians guilty of treason. Colonel Ryerson states that the sergeant who led them into the difficulty was court-martialed and shot. The sergeant was a regular. The two privates were colonials, and got the benefit of their countrymen's gallant record. Col. Ryerson also tells of a sergeant-Major O'Gorman, of the Royal Engineers, who stole company funds and deserted to the Boers. He was wounded and captured at Sand River, and as soon as he was recovered of his wound, he was interviewed by a firing party.

Of white flag outrages, only one came under Colonel Ryerson's notice. Lieut. Palmer, of the Royal Army Medical Corps, was shot through the head while bandaging a wounded soldier's arm at Koornspruit.

Bridge Works Sold.

The sale of the plant, building and real estate of the Central Bridge and Engineering Co., has practically been completed the purchaser being Mr. Vincent Eastwood. It is understood that the machinery will be sold, but what will be done with the buildings cannot yet be said. An effort will be made to use them as a factory of some kind, but what the outcome will be cannot be foreshadowed.

[illegible]

[illegible] Robert McGuay, ten-year-old son of Mr. Jas. McGuay, confectioner, who is visiting at his uncle's at Pickering, was accidentally shot through the hand while he and some boy friends were playing with a revolver. The boys say they found the revolver in a church shed and did not know it was loaded. They were playing with it when it exploded and the ball went through Robert's hand. The wound is not dangerous, but will be sore for some time.

Salvation Army.

Ensign Sims and Captain Ash have been appointed to succeed Staff Captain Burditt, in command of the local corps of the Salvation Army. Public meetings will be held four times on Sunday, also every night, with the exception of Monday and Tuesday. On August 16th (civic holiday) the annual picnic will be held at Jackson park, and all friends are invited to join in the day's outing. Refreshments will be served on the grounds. Everybody welcome. Soldiers and friends meet at the barracks by 10 a.m.

DOCTOR WOULD NOT COMMIT HIMSELF.

Sifton's Injuries Might Have Been Caused In Two Ways By Blows or By a Fall.

London, Aug. 14.—Dr. Hadley Williams, who had charge of the postmortem examination on the remains of the late Joseph Sifton, was the chief witness at the Sifton examination this morning.

His evidence was not particularly satisfactory to the crown. He was unable, from a scrutiny of the wounds in the back of the dead man's head, to say positively what had caused them. This was probably due, he thought, to the fact that the examination had not been made until two weeks after Sifton's death.

Dr. Williams said there were three wounds in the skull which might, in his opinion, have been caused either by the fall or the blows.

He even said that, as deceased had had an affection of the heart, it was quite possible that a paralytic stroke might have caused him to fall from the beam.

Dr. Williams was followed by Mrs. McFarlane, mother of Mary McFarlane, who gave important testimony regarding her movements on the morning of the tragedy.

THE VARIETIES OF WHEAT.

Kansas Winter Wheat at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In 1893, the Ontario Agricultural College imported eleven varieties of winter wheat from Kansas, four from Indiana, one from Iowa, six from Ohio, etc.. The Turkish or Turkey Red, regarding which we are hearing so much at the present time, was one of the varieties imported that year and has therefore being grown at the college in each of the past seven years. We again imported fresh seed of the Turkey Red variety in 1896 and sowed both the Canadian and the Western grown seed in the autumn of that year. The results from the two crops in 1897 were slightly in favor of the Canadian grown seed but were almost identical, there being a difference of less than one peck in the yeild of grain per acre..

The annual report of the Ontario Agricultural College for 1898 gives the average of five years' results tests with each of forty-eight varieties in strength of straw, weight of grain per measured bushel, and yield of grain per acre.. It also gives the comparative hardness of the grain of each variety as determined with an apparatus similar to one invented by Prof.. N. A. Cobb of Australia.. The tabulated results on page 134 are followed by a report of about 1800 words especially dealing with the relative hardness of the grain of the varieties there given, including the Turkey Red, the Dawson's Golden Chaff, and the early Red Clawson.. Rather than recommend any one variety of winter wheat from Ontario, the College publishes from time to time the exact results of practical experiments and then allows those interested to make their own selection.. The report closes with the following remarks;— "The varieties which the farmers are likely to grow are those which they can usually harvest with the least amount of labor, and that will produce the greatest financial returns for their time and labor in growing the crop. The requirements of the market, however, should be closely watched, and the aim should be to grow those varieties which will give the best results, and at the same time furnish that quality of grain for which there is the greatest demand.. A careful study of the results of our experiments with winter wheat will greatly aid in this selection.. Work is now being done in the Experimental Department with the object of improving the best varieties of winter wheat by means of careful selection and cross fertilization.." The college reports are printed by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto, Ont.., and are distributed from there to all who apply for them. In the winter of 1898-9, from [illegible] to 90 per cent.., of both the Dawson's Golden Chaff and the Turkey Red varieties were winter killed.. Both varieties, however, came through the following winter in good condition.

The following are the average results of the field tests for six years with both the Turkey Red and the Dawson's Golden Chaff;—

	Turkey Red	Dawson's Golden Chaff..
Relative hardiness	Hardy..	Hardy
Strength of straw	Weak	Strong
Height of Crop (in..)	42.8	46.7
Nature of Head	Bearded	Bald
Date of maturity	July 17	July 18
Amount of rust	Slight	Some

The college report for 1898 states that the grain crop of 1898 and that the grain of the Turkey Red and the Pride of Dawson's Golden Chaff was referred to as a softer wheat, and the Early Red Clawson, as being the softest of the red varieties. Mr.. Robert Harcourt of the Chemical Department of the College has been doing some work within the past two years in determining the glutten content adn the bread-yielding power of some of the varieties of winter wheat grown in Ontario and as the work continues the results are becoming of increased value..

Men of long experience in handling wheat differ greatly in their judgment of the Dawson's Golden Chaff variety.. Within the past week, the writer invited leading millers of Guelph, Galt, Preston, Berlin, and Bridgeport to pass judgment upon the comparative value of two varieties of winter wheat for milling purposes.. These were the Dawson's Golden Chaff and the Treadwell, both of which were grown at the College this year.. The judgments were made separately and resulted in three of the millers selections.. the Dawson's Golden Chaff as the best and the other three selecting the Treadwell as the best wheat.. The Treadwell sample must have been representative of the old time Treadwell wheat as Mr.. S. J. Cherry of Preston, who has been in the milling business for many years, stated that he never saw a better sample of the Treadwell wheat, than the one shown him, and the Goldie Bros.. of Guelph considered to be of extra good quality and, in fact, the very best of the 36 varieties of white wheats grown at the College this year.

In the autumn of 1898, Mr. Peter Shirk of Waterloo County imported a car load of seed of the Turkey Red variety of win

A BLOODY CLASH IN GEORGIA.

Two Whites Murdered by Negroes and Captain Wade Mortally Wounded.

Sylvania, Ga., Aug. 15.—What is likely to result in a race war in a locality near here occurred Satuday night, when R. F. Harrington and Milton Means, driving home, met two negroes named Alexander in a buggy. The wheels of the vehicles collided. A quarrel ensued, when the negroes drew pistols and shot Harrington and Means dead.

The news quickly spread, and Capt. Jess. L. Wade, brother of Senator U. C. Wade, organized a posse to capture the murderers. As the posse approached the house of the Alexnaders a number of shots in rapid succession were fired into it. Capt. Wade fell mortally wounded. The posse withdrew and went for Sheriff Thompson. The Sheriff with a reinforced posse started in pursuit.

In the section where the tragedy occurred the black population considerable outnumbers the white, and it is said the colored neighbors of the Alexanders will assist them in resisting the Sheriff.

REBELS SNIPING IN PHILIPPINES.

Harassing the American Garrison by Day and Night Fire and Then Retreat.

Manila, August 14.—Reports from the Visayas islands show that there has been increased activity among the insurgents there during the last six weeks. The American losses in the island of Panay last month were greater than in any month since January last. General Mojica, in Leyte, and Gen. Lucban, in Samar, are harassing the garrisons, shooting into the towns during the night, and ambushing small parties, firing and then retreating upon the larger bodies. The rebels possess an ample supply of ammunition, and are organized to a considerable degree.

The Americans have garrisoned three towns on Samar Island, two of which shelter a tenth of the original inhabitants, who suffer from the continual "sniping" of the rebels from the surrounding hills. The third is without any native inhabitants, the rebel outposts a mile away preventing their return to their homes. GGeneral Lucban punishes the islanders who have any relations with the Americans. Cebu is likewise disturbed.

Barring those who have taken the oath of allegiance to the United States, the rebels are imprisoned in Manila.

When amnesty was proclaimed it practically was without effect, and the expectation that the proclamation would accomplish much in the unexpired time is daily diminishing.

London, Aug. 15.

Dealing with the British South African Chartered Compnays offer of free farms in Rhodisia to Conial Colunteers. The Morning Post maintains that although it is well meant it is a breach of courtesy to persuade Canadians and Austrailians to desirt their our country in favor of South Africa. In the Immediate Post, says the MMorning Post, we have so often slighted these great great but sensitive English speaking nations that it will be well to avoid even the appearance of such discourtesy. Fellow Canadians leaving Liverpool, dated London, Aug. 15, owing to the lack of the military farewell, the Daily Mail says. They left without a note of music to cheer them on their way, and without a voice to bid them good speed to testify to the gratitude of the old country. They were bundled through the Metropolis in vans, for all the world as if they were so many returned empties. The war office is to blame. Is red tape eternal? Can nothing be done to wither up and destroy forever this bane of our Empire. London Aug 15. The Pretoria correspondent of the Daily News wiring yesterday announces the safety of Col. Hoares Column and the convoy reported to have been captured by the Boers at Elands River

Cape Town, Aug. 14.

In the Cape House of assembly to-day by a vote of 46 against 38, the motion of Mr. J. W. Sawer former commissioner of Public Works that the House appoint a select committee inquire into the administration of martiall aw in the conony was rejected. Mr. Schreiner, former Premier and Mr. Solomon, attorney general in the Schreiner cabinet, voted with the government against the motion. This was the first crucial division of the season and resulted in a larger majority for the government than had been expected the passage of the treason bill is now assured.

London, Aug. 14.—General De Wet still eludes his pursuers. Despite the attack of General Smith-Dorrien, who overtook him near Wonderfontein on the Krugersdorp-Potchefstroom railway after a series of marches which outdo all records, the Boer general crossed the line and on latest reports was a few miles to the east of Ventersdorp, or twenty odd miles away. Kitchener and Methuen still hang upon his rear and are conducting a running fight, which results in much loss to the enemy. Ian Hamiilton and Col. Mahon, with strong bodies of mounted infantry are hurrying across country from the Pretoria district in order to be in at the death. De Wet is apparently now cut off entirely from any chance of effecting a junction with Botha, who is held at arms length fully three hundred miles away by French and Buller. His only hope is to join forces with Delarey at Rustenburg a hundred miles distant, and this he is striving with might and main to accomplish. The overwhelming advance of British troops from the east is, however, clearly proving too much for him, for he is being edged to the westward slowly but surely and may even be separated from Delarey before many hours are past, for there is no doubt that Lord Roberts is manoeuvering with this object. The reason for the retreat of Sir Fedenick Carrington to Mafeking now becomes apparent. Following his present route De Wet is only a hundred miles distant from that place. It becomes evident, therefore, that the British are endeavoring to drive him towards that place, whether Carrington has gone hurriedly to lie in wait for him. With Carrington in his front and Kitchener, Methuen, Smith-Dorrien, Ian Hamiltion and Mahon disposed around him De Wet's escape will be rendered difficult, though he may perhaps again work him a military miracle similar to that at Bethlehem and escape through his opponents' lines. That he is hard pressed there is no doubt, for the report that he has been obliged to abandon his ammunition is confirmed from an unimpeachable source, while his main convoy has actually been under Kitchener's guns. Should he succeed in joining Delarey the position of affairs in the Transvaal will have become more serious than for some time past, for there will then be in the field the two ablest generals the Boers have, the one west of Pretoria with fully 5,000 men and the other to the east with no less a force. The fact that the Orange River Colony is no longer a theatre of war is, of course, to be offset against this condition of things, as Lord Roberts will be able to concentrate his whole force of close upon 200,000 men for the conquest of Kruger's domain, where the weight of numbers is bound to tell quickly. The statement that President Steyn is practically a prisoner of De Wet is most important, as it shows that that gentleman has thrown up the sponge and wishes to make peace, but that De Wet is forcibly preventing him from doing so.

CANADIANS CHEERED.

London, Aug. 14.—One hundred Canadians who had been invalided from South Africa and had been recuperating at Shorncliffe arrived in London this morning and took train for Liverpool, whence they will sail for hoem. They were greeted all along the route with ovations. Thousands of London's residents turned out to welcome them upon their arrival and gave them a tremendous send-off as they marched through the city. The detachment belonged to Strathcona's Horse.

The Canadians will sail on the steamer Lake Ontario, which will leave Liverpool this afternoon bound for Montreal.

"Buller's occupation of Ermelo is having a good effect.

"A field cornet and one hundred and eighty-two burghers of the Standerton commando surrendered yesterday to Clerry."

HE MURDERED HIS FRIEND FOR GOLD

Wanted Money for Wedding Expenses and Planned Fendish Crime.

THE DEEP MYSTERY NOW SOLVED

Express Messenger Shot From Behind by a Man He Had Given a Ride in His Car.

Columbus, Aug. 14.—R. H. Ferrall, a former employe of the Adams Express Company, has been arrested and confessed to the murder of Express Messenger Lane and the robbery of the safe on the Pennsylvania east-bound train on Friday night. One thousand dollars of money has been recovered.

Ferrall murdered Lane in order to secure monry enough to defray the expenses of his marriage. Ferrall and Lane were old friends, and this friendship contributed to the success of the crime. Lane went up to Urbana Friday morning, and waited for the train When it arrived there Ferall went at once to the express car and told Lane that he was out of money, and asked permission to ride to Columbus with him. Land consented, never for a moment suspecting treachery.

For a short time after the train left Urbana they chatted pleasantly. Lane sat in a chair in the end of the car with his back slightly turned. When Ferrall had finally nerved himself for the crime he drew his revolver and stepped up behind Lane, unobserved, and fired three shots in rapid succession into the messenger's back. Lane rolled off the chair on to the floor on his face, and Ferrall quickly fired the remaining shots at the prostrate body. Lane was unconscious, but Ferrall, fearing that the wounds already inflicted would not cause death, took Lane's revolver and fired two bullets from it into the body. Ferrall then took the key to the safe from the pocket of the dead messenger, opened the safe and put Lane's revolvero inside, where he could reach it easily in case he was detected and needed it to defend himself. After he had taken out all the sacks containing the money packages, money orders and waybills, he placed them in a small satchel and waited until the car arrived at Plain City, when he slipped off the train.

It was at Plain City last Saturday Night that City Detectives O'Neil and Dundon obtained the clue that led to Ferrall's apprehension. At the hotel they found the revolver Ferrall had secreted, and, after learning of the express package, telephoned to Columbus, and had it intercepted. The package was opened and the stolen sacks containing the money orders, checks and other things which Ferrall desired to get rid of were found. A

THE ANARCHISTS.

Desperate diseases require desprate remedies, and it is therefore not surprising to learn that treatment verging on the radical is being suggested for the suppression of anarchy. Europe had a case of the shivers brought on by the recent assassination and attempted assassinations by feather brained freaks who thought and still think they have a mission to kill some one, and the concensus of opinion seems to be that anarchists should be treated simply as dangerous lunatics, with whom it is a waste of time to argue. As the Montreal Star puts it.

"A man who expresses approval of such crimes as the murders of the Empress of Austria and King Humbert should be treated like a dog suspected of hydrophobia."

THE DOMINION ELECTIONS AND NEWSPAPER METHODS.

The dissolution of the House of Parliament, cannot much longer be deferred. Under the constitution its terms is nearly complete and whether another session of the House be held or not is a matter of little consequence. A general election in the near future with its attendant blessings and evils is therefore a certainty, although the day or the hour is not yet made known.

A general election should be a good thing for the people of any country and in the century to come it will be robbed of many of its present malignant features. The signs of the good time coming are not so indistinct as many could like us to believe. The red hot campaign orations and the virulent partisan editorial are no longer called for and in fact breed nothing but well deserved disgust. The biased and unfair report of a public meeting produces the same result and the "ironical cheers" and "derisive laughter" so plentifully interlarded in the average party newspaper are no longer in demand. The people are growing in intelligence and consequently in fairness and the untruthful or garbled report of a public meeting is put in the same category as theft and dishonesty. These are healthy signs of the good time coming and the party politician, or the party editor who disregards the trend of the age will find his audience limited to the thugs of society.

It will be the aim of the Morning Times to conform to the high standard which we have here outlined and which an enlightened age imperatively demands, and every independent, reform, or conservative reader of our paper, will be able to look with confidence to our columns for fair reports of all public meetings political and otherwise. Reports and not satires are desired by the fair minded and self-respecting citizen and such reports and only such will be found in the columns of the Morning Times.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

A return of 3 3-4 per cent. per annum on a prime capital investment is good enough anywhere, but a big thing in the financial capital of the world. The issue of £10,000,000 Exchequer bonds in London on Tuesday last is the one referred to. From an investor's standpoint it is the most favorable loan Britain has made for many years. It was grabbed up readily both by British and American bankers, representing wealthy capitalists. Something like one-half of the issue was allotted to the bankers of the United States, and it is owing to this fact that the small investor in Britain objects. It is true that the loan is only for the short period of three years, but then it is to be redeemed at par. The immense war expenditure of Great Britain is responsible, of course, for the expansion of the debt of the country, and the burden necessarily falls upon the people, many of whom in this case had a right to profit by their subscriptions to this most favorable loan.

The decreasing gold reserves of the financial institutions of that country however, and the necessity of attracting gold from Aemrica, influenced the Chancellor of the Exchequer to allot an unusual proportion of the bonds to American capitalists. This this has resulted as anticipated, and on Wednesday and Thursday over $5,000,000 in gold were reported from New York, the bulk of it for London. It is pointed out that had the investment "plum" not gone out of the country the Bank of England might have been called upon to raise its discount rate to 5, or even 6, per cent., and to have taken extraordinary measures to increase its gold supply.

The general weakness of Canadian securities causes some disappointment among holders. The declining tendency is not due to any want of confidence, or to a falling off in business, but to the active demand for money in Canada and to the increased capital requirements to carry on business that shows great expansion. Within the past few months about a dozen financial and industrial institutions doing business here have found it necessary to increase their capital collectively about $18,000,000 and the financing for this large sum has been followed, and naturally so, by some liquidation. Among the companies that have been obliged to increase their capital to meet a larger business are; Dominion Bank, Ontario Bank, Standard Bank, Traders' Bank, Imperial Bank, Commercial cable Co., Telepone Co., and Canadian General Electric. Although some declines in prices of these stocks have taken place, these companies are in first class shape, and doing more business than heretofore. The stocks are better held now than for some time, and in the event of an easier money market prices would advance.

General wholesale trade in this city is, if anything, a little better. Good crops in Ontario are assured, and the outlook promises well. Dry goods merchants are receiving good orders for the autumn trade, and they are kept busy getting them ready for shipment. Prices of the leading staples continue steady. Domestic manufacturers have all they can attend to, homespun stuffs having a good run. The movement in groceries is active for the season, and values rule firm. There is a quiet trade in hardware and metals, while leather is in moderate demand for export. The shipments of cheese are good, and prices show an advance this week.

Took off His Arm Without Touching It.

A brief telegram the other day recited that one James McMullen had lost an arm in a wringing machine in a laundry at Hutchinson. Here is the remarkable story related about the accident by the Hutchinson News:

"McMullen stopped at the wringer and held his hands over it to dry them. He got one hand too low so that the air suction caught it, and his arm from the elbow down was taken off as by a miracle. The wringer is a large circular iron affair, with a smaller bowl inside it in which the clothes are placed. The smaller apartment is perforated with holes upon the sides, and the whole thing revolves at the rate of several thousand revolutions a minute. The effect is that the air currents within the wringer are as terrific in their power as the centre section of a Kansas cyclone. When a cyclone strikes a brick building and hurls it to atoms the force seems appalling and incomprehensible. The accident to Mr. McMullen was equally mystifying. The instant his arm came into contact with the current of air it was parted at the elbow. One part lay on the clothes that were in the machine and the other dangled from his shoulder. There was nothing about the machine to give him even a scratch.

"The nerve exhibited by McMullen was wonderful. 'It never touched me,' was the first thing he said. The girls in the room were screaming and McMullen calmly informed them that it was not his head that was taken off and told them to be still. He was taken to a hospital and his arm was amputated close to the shoulder."

The Health Problem

is much simpler than is sometimes supposed. Health depends chiefly upon perfect digestion and pure blood, and the problem is solved very readily by Hood's Sarsaparilla. You may keep well by taking it promptly for any stomach or blood disorder. It cures scrofula, salt rheum, catarrh, dyspepsia, rheumatism and other diseases are numbered by the thousands.

The favorite family cathartic is Hood's Pills.

Hard work does not hurt a well woman. It is the weak woman, suffering from diseases peculiar to her sex, who breaks down under the daily strain of household duties. For diseases of the delicate womanly organs Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the standard remedy. Over half a million women owe health and happiness to Dr. Pierce's treatment.

"No tongue could express the pain that I endured before I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicine," writes Mrs. Mollie Colgate, of Randolph, Charlotte Co., Va. "I was not able to do anything at all. Could not eat anything except bread and tea—or if I did the top of my head hurt so it seemed it would kill me; but now I can eat a little of almost anything I want and can do a good day's work as well as any body can. Am better than I have been for years. I think your medicine is the best that ever was made for it is the only thing that ever did me any good. I tried many other kinds but none did me any good but your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I can never praise them too highly."

NASAL CATARRH

Is caused by a particularly vicious and venomous animal germ which has its nest in the membranous lining of the nasal orifice. The cure of the disease cannot be accomplished successfully with DRUG medicine. OZONE is a powerful GERMICIDE or GERM KILLER and an infallible antidote to the germ principle of Catarrh. IT CURES THE DISEASE by KILLING THE GERM. Drug medicines only stupify the germ and give temporary relief. OZONE annihilates it.

QUOTES BIBLE TO SUSTAIN HIM

Wife-Beater Insists He Has Scriptural Authority for Chastising His Spouse and Appeals a Fine.

Trenton, Mo., Aug. 14.—Edward Spencer, a prominent farmer, was today found guilty of beating his wife and sentenced to jail and to pay a fine. The prosecution was forced by Spencer's neighbors, who declared that if the law did not interfere they would.

Spencer argued his own case, quoting scripture to sustain his actions. Mrs. Spencer admiitted she believed that, according to the Bible, her husband was in duty bound to whip her, but pleaded that he had gone beyond the limit. On one occasion, she testified Spencer whipping her because she could not see a squirrel in a tree, and at another time because she would not wash a buggy that they might drive to church, where he was to sing in the choir.

Spencer says he will carry the case to the higher courts.

Dewey Says Insurrection is Kept Alive by Assurance of His Election.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Admiral George Dewey came to town today from his country home in the suburbs of Washington.

"I regard the news from the Philippines as particularly encouraging," the Admiral said. "Aguinaldo's lieutenants are surrendering one after another. Whatever show of resistance to our authority there is at the present time in the Philipines will be kept up until after our election in November. The insurrection is kept alive by the leaders who hold out to the soldiers the hope of Bryan's election."

DE WET IN FULL FLIGHT.

Boer Leader Retreats Before the Advance of Kitchener.

London, Aug. 13.—The War Office received the following message from Lord Roberts.

"Pretoria, Aug. 11—The enemy is fleeing in front of Kitchener's and Methuen's forces. Early this morning he was trying to cross the railway at Wolverdeen Station, where he was engaged by Smith-Dorrien.

IT ISN'T THE THING YOU DO.

It isn't the thing you do, dear,
  It's the thing you leave undone,
That gives you a bit of heartache
  At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten,
  The letter you did not write,
The flower you did not send, dear,
  Are your haunting ghosts at night.

The stone you might have lifted
  Out of a brother's way;
The bit of heartsome counsel
  You were hurried too much to say;
The loving touch of the hand, dear,
  The gentle winning tone,
Which you had no time nor thought for,
  With troubles enough of your own.

For life is all too short, dear,
  And sorrow is all too great,
To suffer our slow compassion,
  That tarries until too late;
And it isn't the thing you do, dear,
  It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you a bit of a heartache
  At the setting of the sun.

—Margaret Elizabeth Sangster.

A LOCAL PARAGRAPH.

"The time has come for the American people to act. Shall fifty million patriots sit supinely by and let conscienceless rascals tear the stars of glory from the flag they love and trample its proud folds of crimson and white into the mire of national dishonor? Not while the deeds of '76 still shine through the mists of years in unexampled splendor. Not while the memories of '61 yet live in the hearts that thrilled with the stress of that heroic struggle. Not while"—Joel Snively, editor of the Melocgie Monitor, laid down his pen with a sigh.

Outside the dusty little window the green waters of the bay were sparkling in the sunshine. A keen north breeze was driving great huddling masses of white-shouldered clouds over a field of dazzling azure, and only a man who loved the sport with the whole-souled earnestness that filled his entire being could know how the fish must be biting on such a morning! Oh, to be out on that gleaming expanse armed with rod and line, with only the sun and clouds for company and a thousand pounds or so of gamy vertebrates playing about within reach of his cunning hook.

But also, it was Friday morning. On Saturday some two hundred impatient subscribers would expect the weekly dish of personal, political and intellectual pabulum which his facile pen had long served to them on that day, with more or less punctuality, according to the season. His duty clearly held him to his post at such a time, however, much his inclinations might have led him elsewhere.

So, with another lingering glance at the scene without, Mr. Snively took up his pen and resumed the stirring appeal which was to awaken fifty million patriots to action and incidentally convince the Republicans of Melocgie that it was their duty to vote for Joe Gridley for poundmaster.

So engrossed did the editor become in this pleasing task that he did not hear a step upon the creaking stair a little later. If he had he would have known at once that it was a woman and a lady who was approaching, for long and often painful experience has enabled Mr. Snively to determine with unerring accuracy what sort of person was climbing the somewhat perilous ascent to the editorial sanctum almost as soon as his foot touched the first step.

But for once the editor did not hear the soft footfall on the stair, so he was very much surprised and not a little disconcerted when a fresh, sweet voice, almost at his elbow, said "Good Morning, Mr. Snively," and looking up he beheld his neighbor, Mrs. Tracy, her plump figure buttoned into the trimmest of blue serge yachting suits, her smiling face shaded by a wide-brimmed hat and in her hand a fish pole, pointed, brass-tipped, elegant—the very perfection of dainty uselessness.

Without waiting for a response to her greeting she briefly made known her errand. She was anxious for a day's fishing and had been told of an Elysian spot, where the fish were so plentiful they were actually to be had for the asking. Unluckily, however, her own boat had not come, so she and ventured to ask if, in case he was not using it, Mr. Snively would be so kind as to lend her his yawl, it being impossible to hire one in the village.

Mr. Snively was delighted. Mrs. Tracy was a pretty widow of uncertain age but no uncertain charm, who had taken the cottage next to the editor's own some six months before. In the course of a rather desultory acquaintance the genial bachelor, whose ideas of the fair sex were those common to his kind, had discovered that his fair neighbor was a cheery little body of sound political views and excellent literary tastes (from the first she had been a prompt and paying subscriber to the Monitor), but beyond that his imagination had not soared. Now, however, behold the pretty widow invested with a wholly new interest. She was fond of fishing!

Eagerly Mr. Snively assured his visitor of his pleasure in putting his boat at her disposal and gave her exhaustive directions as to the means of obtaining it. A delightful half-hour of conversation followed. As though it were a magician's wand the dainty fish pole had placed the editor and his guest at once on terms of the most charming intimacy and the former didn't remember ever to have enjoyed a conversation so much in his life, albeit the talk was wholly of reels and rods and spoonhooks and other instruments of slaughter.

All things, however, are bound to come to an end, especially in an editorial office, so it wasn't long before Mrs. Tracy took her leave, escorted down the stairway by her delighted host.

At the door they were met by a spicy breeze straight from the pine woods across the bay. Mr. Snively sighed.

"Where is this wonderful place you are going to?" he asked.

"Ah, that's a secret," she replied gayly. "I promised I'd never, never tell."

"Oh, well, then I suppose it's a crime to even guess." And once more the editor sighed as he glanced out at the sparkling waters.

"But you've been so kind," exclaimed the widow, noting the sigh and immediately filled with compunction. "It seems ungracious of me to keep it from you who love so to fish." And then as she saw him give another wistful glance bayward she burst out impulsively: "Promise not to betray me and I'll tell you—It's Patchang Lake!"

"Patchang!" cried Mr. Snively in surprise. "Why, I never heard of a fish down there in my life."

"That's the charm of it," she rejoined gleefully, "and the man who told me about it (such a dear, dirty, old fisherman he was) was fearfully afraid some one else would find it out; so don't betray me." And she hurried away with a parting smile that made the dusty office seem duller than ever when he got back to it and reluctantly commenced setting up his editorials, for Mr. Snively constituted the whole working force of the Monitor.

And his task, too, seemed harder than ever, after the interruption. Thoughts of his pretty visitor kept intruding themselves into the midst of his most impassioned apeals to the voters of Melocgie.

How blue here eyes were and what bewitching little rings of hair the wind had blown up under the big hat.

And then the fishing.

The editor of the Monitor shook his head. Could it be possible any man living could have a soul so lost to honor as to play a joke on a woman who looked like that? It seemed impossible and yet Mr. Snively was as sure there wasn't a fish within a mile of Patchang as he was that there wasn't a free silver man in Melocgie.

Perhaps then Mrs. Track was sitting in that yawl vainly waiting for the bite he felt certain she wouldn't get if she sat there till the United States got an honest government. And he was actually staying at home and deliberately abandoning a friend to such a fate!

As this agonizing thought occurred to Mr. Snively he dropped his type and started for the door. But once there he paused and slowly returned to his form, only to find it more and more impossible to keep his mind on his work.

At last he gave up in despair.

Taking a hasty survey of what he'd already accomplished he found his columns tolerably full, with the exception of perhaps a single paragraph on the local page. By hard work the following morning he might hope to set up his pages and would trust to luck for the missing paragraph.

Like all fishermen, Mr. Snively was a firm believer in luck. He was also a man of action when he chose and within five minutes of this calculation he had locked up the editorial department and was on his way to Patchang Lake.

When he reached that shallow sheet of water a little lady in blue serge sat in a boat in the centre thereof, with an expression of virtuous indignation on her sunburnt features.

"What luck?" called the editor from the shore.

"Luck!" cried the fair sportswoman, dolefully. "There's not enough water in this lake to catch cold in, much less a fish. All I've got for my trouble is a mighty poor opinion of fishermen in general and one dirty one in particular."

"Come over here," said Snively. "I know a pond not a thousand miles away where the fish bite like mosquitoes. If you'll try it I think I can raise your opinion of fishermen before I'm a day older."

"I can't," confessed the widow, blushing with anger and mortification. "I'm stuck—in the mud."

One moment the man of letters hesitated on the bank-end then, with an inward prayer that he might at least be spared to get out that week's paper, he waded boldly into the expanse of treacherous mud that rolled between him and beauty in distress.

The next morning the editor walked into the Monitor office clad in his Sunday clothes. With his accustomed methodical neatness he pulled off his coat, hung it behind the door, and carefully drew over his linen sleeves a pair of black alpaca ones. Then he lighted his pipe and took his place at the form.

There, just as he had left it, was the vacant space at the end of the local column still yawning for the missing paragraph.

Mr. Snively regarded it for a few minutes reflectively—then he took up his pen, as a smile gradually spread itself over his face until it reached his eyes. It still lingered there when a little later he finished and paused to glance over his work.

What he read was this:

"The editor of the Monitor, after many years of bachelorhood, has had the good fortune to incur the risk and responsibilities of matrimony. He was married this morning to Mrs. Gertrude Tracy of Elm cottage and asks the congratulations and good wishes of his subscribers in this the happiest hour of his life."—Edgar Temple Field in Chicago Times Herald.

Employers' Excursion.

The employees of the Stanley Piano Company will hold their annual pic-nic and excursion to Stoney Lake on Saturday. The train will leave at 1.30 and will proceed to the lake steamer Majestic. Returning, the train will leave Lakefield at 10.00. The excursion is sure to be liberally patronized.

His First Attempt.

Without a nozzle for the hose,
He tried to wet the verdant lawn.
He placed his thumb upon the end,
And, then he turned the water on.
A quart or two went up his sleeve,
A might stream went in his face,
Some water reached the grass but he
Was the wettest thing about the place.

Shirt Waisted Men.

That the shirt waist for men is coming, is assured. It has not yet made its appearance in Peterborough, and probably will not do so before next season, but in the American cities it is the thing.

The Philadelphia Record says that the shirt-waist man has been fortified, encouraged and delighted by the enlistment to his cause of a strenuous recruit. Yesterday Judge Garrison, of the New Jersey Supreme Court, held Court at Camden in the most radical of summer costumes. Besides russet shoes, white duck trousers and white waist belts, he wore a buff silk shirt-waist and blue tie. Recently England was shocked when the heat forced the judges on the Bench to remove their hideous wigs, and it would regard as unconstitutional a session presided over by a shirt-waist Justice. Yet, besides being comfortable, Judge Garrison, was a thing of beauty.

REPORTERS' ROUNDS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

—Tomorrow is Peterborough's civic holiday.

—The town drivers have quit work of their own accord.

—The town has a gang of men at work on the Murray street canal.

—The National Hotel is being re-lettered.

—A house in Auburn has been placarded with a diphtheria card.

—Mr. Wally Pannell has been taken on as one of the drivers at the fire station.

—An assault case will come up for hearing before Magistrate Dumble this morning.

—Don't fret about the weather. There will be snow enough to shovel next winter.

—John Fry was arrested for being drunk and disorderly and was discharge with a warning yesterday.

—The county police have a case in hand in which three parties are accused of theft, theft consisting in the milking of a neighbor's cows.

—The baseball team play a league match in Port Hope to-day, leaving town on the 11.25 train and returning on Thursday morning.

If you wish to cure scrofula or salt rheum permanently, take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It expels all impurities from the blood.

—A monster excursion from Campbellford passed through town yesterday morning on its way to Stony Lake. It was the annual excursion of the Methodists of that place. The Campbellford band was in attendance.

—It is said that the traffic to the back lakes is not nearly as great as was anticipated, and far behind that of last season. In two months last year there were about 800 tourists registered at the Snowden House, whilst this year the number has been much less. The steamboat men, too, complain that traffic has been comparatively light.

—The Palace cafe has been fortunate in securing the services of an exceedingly affable and capable wine clerk in the person of Mr. W. Brooks, late of the Benson House, Lindsay, and the St. Lawrence Hall, Port Hope. Mr. Brooks possesses all the essentials which combine to make an acceptable caterer to the public, and will no doubt be found a valuable acquisition to this valuable house.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams has returned from a weeks holiday to Toronto and other places.

The Misses M. and S. Orris, of McCaul st, Toronto, are the guests of Mrs. C. Clemence, Walton St.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stratton and family are spending a week at Chemong, as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews.

Mr. John F. Fair of Millbrook, has been in town for the past day or two. He came up to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, the late W. J. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Denny and Miss Alma, formerly of Peterborough, left for their home in Ottawa yesterday after a visit of about three weeks among their many friends in town and Mount Pleasant.

Stoney Lake Attraction on Civic Holiday

The annual regatta at Stony lake will come off on Thursday, August 16th. A capital programme of races and aquatic sports has been prepared, and with anything like full entries, there will be an interesting time. Steamers will run and accommodate all, and return in time to catch the evening train down from Lakefield. Pack your basket and enjoy the civic holiday up the lakes.

Floral Tributes.

Among the many beautiful floral emblems which were received at the residence of the late W. J. Hall, Esq., from sympathising friends, were the following.

A PUNGENT FOOD DRINK.

With the Taste of Coffee.

"Perhaps no one has suffered more from the use of coffee or failed oftener in the attempt to leave it off, than I have. Although I never drank more than half a cup at a time, it even then gave me sour stomach and a whole catalogue of misery. This kept up for a long period and time and again I have resolved that I positively would drink no more coffee, but alas, the rest of the family used it, and, like the reformed drunkard who smells whiskey and falls again, when I smelled coffee, I could not resist it.

"Finally, we came to try Postum Food There I had my favorite beverage,—a crisp, dark coffee, rich coffee, with a fine pungent coffee taste, and yet with no sour stomach or nervous troubles after it. On the contrary, I have gained gradually in strength and sturdy health. All who have spoken to me about Postum agree, and we have found it so, that the directions for making must be followed, and it must be boiled at least fifteen minutes, or more, and it also requires the addition of good cream. We have tried boiling it a few minutes when in a special hurry, but found it insipid and unsatisfactory; whereas by proper boiling it is dark and rich with a delightful flavor.

"Dr. McMillan of Sunbeam, Ill., said he had used Postum and found it to be just as good as coffee, and more healthful. He is an M. D. of fine standing. Mr. David Strong and sister have left off coffee and are using Postum. They find it much more healthful. Rev. W. T. Campbell, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church of this city, says: 'You may say anything good that you wish, about Postum Food Coffee and I will substantiate it.' He was a very great lover of coffee and yet found it very injurious to his health. He now drinks Postum three times a day and the old troubles have disappeared.

"I shrink from having my name appear in public. The statement I have given you is truthful, and I hope will aid some people to discover that coffee is the cause of their aches and ails, and they are in a way to get rid of their troubles by leaving off Coffee and taking up Postum Food Coffee."

This lady lives at Monmouth, Ill., and her name can be given by letter, upon application to the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., makers of Postum, at Battle Creek Mich.

Thursday's Excursion.

A very pleasant outing will be afforded on Civic holiday, when an excursion will be run under the auspices of the W.F.M.S. St. Andrew's church to Rice Lake, per steamer Beaver. The tickets have been placed at 25 cents.

After Men.

Mr. George J. Chalmers, is in town looking up men for Mr. Edmund Hall, of Detroit, Mich, who is carrying on extensive lumbering operations, in the Sault district. Mr. Chalmers will remain in town until Tuesday next, at the Morgan House. He took 30 men about a week ago, who are all well pleased with their work. The wages are the highest paid by any firm on the North Shore.

Good for A Little Tot.

Mr. Harry Winch, who is spending a few days at Stoney Lake, in company with Mr. C. H. Winch, of Montreal, is enjoying some good fishing. Recently the party, composed of Baby Winch, aged six years, and several others, went out for a bass fish. The little tot pulled in six fine bass. Harry was not so fortunate, having a duck egg to his credit. The little one has beaten the record for baby fishing.

Very Popular.

The National Hotel, under the management of Mr. Moon, is rapidly becoming popular with the travelling public as well as the citizens generally. Mr. Moon is improving the house, and it is now second to none in this part of the coutry. Next season Mr. Moon proposes to try and induce summer visitors to come here from the United States and other parts. The fishing in the Otonabee is getting better every year, and there is no reason why Peterborough should not become famous as a resort.

Caught a Snake.

A prominent merchant went down the river fishing yesterday, and made a unique catch. When he came home he brought as a trophy of the day's angling, three catfish and a turtle. He also had experience with a snake that is worth recording. He baited his hook with frogs and when lunch time arrived, Mr. Froggie was left with the lines on the embankment. When the nimrod returned a snake had swallowed the frog, hook and all and was making off with the line and pole, when the angler made a rush and captured the whole outfit.

Nearly Drowned.

A son of Mr. George T. Bell, General Passenger Agent of the G. T. R., had a very narrow escape on Sunday evening from drowning, when his canoe was overturned in the storm in the vicinity of Kenmore. Had it not been for the prompt action of Mr. Jack Glassco, of the Electric Works, who bravely went to the rescue, a fatality would in all probability have resulted. Mr. Glassco is being highly commended for the self-sacrificing spirit which led him to imperial his own life to save that of another.

THE VARIETIES OF WHEAT.

ten wheat from the State of Kansas, but as the wheat did not reach Ontario until very late only a small amount was sown that autumn. A somewhat larger amount, however, was sown in the fall of 1899. In order to ascertain the results from growing this wheat on different farms, the writer recently went to Mr. Shirk's place at Bridgeport and Berlin who had grown at least a few acres of the Turkey Red wheat this year. Six growers were called upon and the following gives the report made by each;

Peter Shirk—4 acres, very rich land, crop badly lodged, 25 bushels per acre, about 64 lbs. per measured bushel.

[illegible] Quickfall—4 acres, killed out in spots last winter, very bad straw, resembling barley, straw, estimated yield 12 or 18 bushels per acre.

Moses Bulger—11 1-2 to 11 2-3 acres, excellent wheat land, which formerly yielded 50 bushels of the Fultz wheat, of clover and also applied farm manure to the acre, in 18[illegible], plowed under a crop [illegible] barley, yield of grain this year 425 bushels, weight of grain per measured [illegible] from machine about 63 lbs.

Mennok Bowman.—3 acres, clover sod, very weak straw, being about one half down, total yield of grain 90 bushels.

Elias [illegible]—[illegible] acres, corn ground, not as strong straw as some varieties, estimated yield 30 bushels per acre.

J. H. Shepherd.—8 acres, badly winter-killed in spots last winter, straw crinkled like barley.

It will be seen from the foregoing reports that the results obtained from growing the Turkey Red variety of wheat in Waterloo county and at the Ontario Agricultural College are very similar.

We have found from our experimental work with winter wheat that very frequently the season has a much greater influence than the variety in determining the quality of the grain. For instance the weight per measured bushel of the Turkey Red was 64.5 lbs. in 1898 and 55.1 lbs. in 1897 and that of the Dawson's Golden Chaff was 61.6 lbs. in 1898 and 53.5 lbs. in 1897. It will be remembered that in 1897 there was an exceptionally wet harvest and that a large amount of wheat throughout Ontario was sprouted that year. I understand that there was a large export trade from Ontario of flour made from the wheat grown in 1897 and this might have something to do with the reputation of our flour in the foreign market.

Within the past ten years, a good many varieties of winter wheat have been distributed to farmers throughout Ontario who applied for them for testing upon their own farms. Great care has been taken in the selection of the varities for distribution and some kinds, such as the Jones' Winter Fife, Bulgarian or Democrat, Pride of Genesee, Diamond Grit, etc., have been sent out owing to their quality rather than their yield of grain. Farmers have found, however, that all varieties would sell for about the same price per bushel and therefore have grown those kinds from which they could secure the greatest profit, hence the great popularity of the Dawson's Golden Chaff with the farmers of Ontario. The varieties to be distributed this year have again been carefully selected and two sets will be sent free by mail to farmers applying for them who will carefully test the three kinds in each set which they choose and will report the results after harvest next next year. The seed will be sent out in the order in which the applications are received as long as the supply lasts.

Set 1.—Dawson's Golden Chaff, Early Genesee Giant, Stewart's Champion Red.

Set 2.—Dawson's Golden Chaff, Turkey Red, Diamond Grit.

Each person wishing one of these sets should apply as early as possible, mentioning which set he desires, and the grain, with instructions for testing, and the blank form on which to report, will be furnished free of cost to his address, until the supply of grain for distribution is exhausted.

Much additional information regarding the value of the Turkey Red winter wheat for Ontario will undoubtedly be secured this year. Not only will it be tested in the co-operative experiments throughout the province, but as several millers are importing seed from Kansas an opportunity will be afforded the farmers of Western Ontario to grow it in large quantities and the millers can then grind the variety by itself and thus be better enabled to determine its value for both the home and the foreign trade. The results will be watched with interest by both the millers and the farmers.

Commandant Prinsloo Makes this Statement and Says He is Tired of the War.

THE WORLD WATCHES THE PURSUIT OF DE WET

British use 6,000 Captured Boer Horses Against Their Former Owners—Colonel Hoare's Column Safe.

London, Aug 15.—The war office has received a despatch from Lord Roberts announcing the Col. Hoare was holding out at Elands River last Friday. Lrdo Roberts considers that General Hamiltons cavalry must now be within fourty miles of Elands River. Cape Town, Aug 15.—message from Col. Hoare commanding the British garrison at Elands River who reached Mafeking Tuesday, reported that the Garrison was still holding when he left although Col. Hoare had sustained sixty-seven casualties. Gen. Hamilton with a force of cavalry has been sent to releive the garrison.

London, August 15.—The combatants in South Africa are resting on their arms watching the contest in skill and mobility which is being presented in the western part o. the Transvaal. Gen. De Wet, who has for months held his own against England's best generals, supported by a powerful army, and has conducted a retreat as remarkable as that of Xenophon and his ten thousand, over three hundred miles o. country, and is still forging his way to the northward, as far as is known. Kitchener, Methuen, Hamilton, Smith-Dorrien are in a state of chronic pursuit, the end of which comes slowly but surely. Lord Roberts and Botha have both suspended serious operations, awaiting the result of this trial of fineness and cunning which will go down to history. It is scarcely likely that Lord Roberts will do more than hold Botha at arm's length to prevent his creating a diversion in De Wet's favor until the fate of the latter and his flying column has been decided. When this has been done the war may be expected to break out with renewed activity east of Pretoria.

Cape Town, August 15.—Commandant Prinsloo, who surrendered to Gen. Hunter July 30, has arrived here. He says he is heartily tired of the war, and welcomes the prospect of peace. The commandant adds that a majority of the Boers are "disgusted with President Kruger."

Mr. James G. Stowe, the United States Consul-General, has returned here. Only ten Boers were in the party which attacked his train. The remainder of the commando was composed of foreigners. Mr. Stowe says a majority of the Boers desire a cessation of hostilities.

London, August 15.—A despatch to the Daily Telegraph from Middleburg, describes a visit to the Boer headquarters, where the correspondent says he shook hands with Generals Botha and Viljoen. He adds that the main position oft he Boers is at Bothasberg, north of Belfast, where there are probably 5,000 men, with a number of cannon. There are about 500 men in Belfast, mainly mounted police and Irishmen, with several guns. They all declare that they will make things lively when General De Wet joins them. Their avowed intention is to make a stand a little to the east of Belfast, again at Machadodorp, and eventually to resist for a considerable time in the Lydenburg hills. The correspondent declares, however, that if they are defeated both at Belfast and Machadodorp many will abandon the war. He describes the Boers as demoralized and bitter, and says that they are burning and looting by wholesale. Half the ammunition used by them is soft-nosed. This fact was pointed out to General Viljoen, who made no reply.

London, Aug. 15.—The Boer women and children at Johannesburg and elsewhere are being constantly sent by train to the Boer lines. The British in the Fouriesburg district neighborhood found a thousand horses and cattle hidden in a gorge. The British have captured now 6,000 Boer horses, 2,000 of which are in the pink of condition, and are being used against their former owners.

HORSE'S COLUMN SAFE.

London, Aug. 15.—The Daily News' Pretoria correspondent makes the surprising statement that oCl. Hoare's column and convoy, which were reported to have been captured by the Boers at Elands river, are safe, with the exception of a few men who were wounded.

MAFEKING HEROINE'S RETURN.

London, Aug. 15.—Lady Sarah Wilson's courageous endurance in the long siege of plucky little Mafeking extorted and outburst of enthusiasm and pride when she returned home yesterday to Brooksby hall, near Melton Mowbray.

School children from the surrounding villages and a large crowd of residents assembled at the station, and when the train arrived and she had walked through a tempest of cheers to her carriage, the horses were taken out, men took their places, and headed by the town band playing patriotic airs, the cortege moved slowly but triumphantly towards the hall.

LORD ROBERTS IN AFRICA.

Most Accurate Prediction of the Campaign Made by General Howard.

Perhaps the most accurate prediction of the course of the campaign under Lord Roberts in South Africa is that which was made by General O. O. Howard. At At one or two points of the British advance, the event did not fulfil General Howard's anticipation, and in an article in the August number of the North American Review General Howard gives the reasons for this fact. The veteran American general has the most generous appreciation of the ability shown by the late GGeneral Joubert and by Lord Roberts:

"Lord Roberts and Joubert not only planned well, but they varied their plans to meet emergencies. Such examples of generalship as those of Roberts and Joubert demonstrate plainly, not only that a professional training for a general is a good thing, but that in great emergencies a large experience which crowns years of faithful work, is most desirable, and that the possession of a character which will bring to the general the love and confidence of his soldiers is indispensable. The British was fortunate, in being able to send to South Africa a man so well equipped as Lord Roberts, strong in body and mind, ripe in the long experience of active campaigning, chastened by heavy trails, and so large hearted as to win the love of his subordinates and the respect of his enemies."

A SHOCKING DROWNING

A Father's Heroic Struggle to Save His Children From a Watery Grave.

The following is an account of the shocking drowning of the two sons of Mr. Connell Steers, of Ottawa, brother of Police Magistrate Steers, of Lindsay.—

"The heavy tempest which swept over Lake Deschenes at six o'clock last night brought death and desolation to one Ottawa home, and for a while members of several prominent families were in danger of being engulfed in the angry waves. After the storm broke out Thomas and Leo Steers, aged 14 and 12 years, sons of Mr. Connell Steers, 195 Waller-st., draughtsman in the survey records branch of the Department of the Interior, were drowned, and the father and two younger boys were only saved from a similar fate by a moment of time. It was a sad ending to a holiday in which the father was trying to give his boys a good time. About three o'clock Mr. Steers left Britannia in an ordinary rowing skiff with his four sons, to spend the afternoon fishing near Chartrand's island. When they saw the storm approaching Mr. Steers headed the boat for the Island upon which the lighthouse is situated, but unfortunately changed his mind and started to reach the Quebec shore at Aylmer.

"He had not gone far when the tempest broke out in all its fury. The storm was terrible, being the worst seen on the lake for years. The light boat was thrown about on the waves like a chip, and defied the strenuous efforts made by Mr. Steers to keep it head-on with the wind.

"The father realized the awful perial of his family of little ones and fought desperately, but it was an uneven struggle. Human arms and pluck were handicapped in struggling with the turbulent sea, and in a few minutes after the storm broke out the boat was filled with water and capsized. The position of Mr. Steers can better be imagined than described. Clinging to a boat and ruthlessly tossed by the ever-increasing storm, the father, agonized in the desperation of despair, heroically tried to save his four sons, the oldest 14 and the youngest 6 years of age. At first he managed to get them all holding on to the boat, but the waves dashing against the boat with awful ferocity, was more than the little arms could withstand, and first one would sink and then the other, but were time and again brought to the surface by the father. As the waves would recede Mr. Steers called loudly for help, but the roaring thunder and the splashing rain seemed but to mock his voice, yet hoping against hope the father courageously kept swimming to the assistance of one boy and then another. An idea of the awfulness of his position and the firmness of his resolution to save his sons can be gleaned from the fact that he dived no less than three times for one of his loved ones, with his youngest son, Connell, clinging tenaciously with his arms around his neck.

"Utterly exhausted, and with one little son, Harry, aged [illegible] on his back, and Connell, aged [illegible], clinging to his neck, the despairing parent suffered the unspeakable sorrow of seeing his two older boys, Tom and Leo, sink out of sight to a watery grave."

TWO TRAINS MEET IN FOG

Nine Lives Lost in a Railway Wreck Near Grand Rapids--Running at Full Speed.

Grand, Rapids, Mich., Aug. 15.—The worst wreck in the history of the Grand Rapids and International occurred about five a.m. to-day at Pierson, 29 miles north of Grand Rapids. The north-bound Northland Express, which left this city at 4.05, collided head-on with passenger train No. 2 due here at 6 a.m.

Nine lives were lost and many passengers were injured, some severely. Both engines and the baggage cars were completely demolished.

When the trains met day was just dawning, and the fog was so thick that the engineers could not see more than 100 yards ahead. The trains were to have passed at Sand Lake, two miles south of Pierson at 4. 52. No 2 was evidentlyl ate, and was trying to make the siding. The Northland Express had the right of way, and was scurrying along at nearly full speed. Either the engineers blundered in their oders or were not able to see signals on account of the fog.

The engineers and firemen of both trains were killed, as well as five other persons. The express train was mad eup largely of Pullman cars. It was the finest train on the road.

The killed, as far as known, are: W. H. Fisk, engineer on south-bound train; Gustave Grootveldt, engineer north-bound train; M. Letts, conductor of No. 5, and — Levan, baggagemaster, No. 5.

Six bodies have been taken from the wreck, and it is believed that the bodies of several others are still buried in the mass of broken iron and wood. Eight persons, thought to be fatally injured were taken to the hotel at Pierson.

Men are at work endeavoring to reach the dead and injured, who are still imprisoned. Several physicians accompanied the wrecking train to the scene.

CROWN CONFIDENT OF A CONVICTION

In Goldstein Poisoning Case, Says the Prosecuting Attorney Drug Clerks Will be Asked to Identify Shapero.

The present charge of murder against Fanny Helpert and Meyer Shapero is said to be the first charge of murder ever brought against a Jew or Jewess in the history of the British courts. Several local lawyers, when questioned to-day regarding the GGoldstein case, said they did not remember of ever having heard of a Jew being tried for murder before.

Crown Attorney Curry claims that, as a result of yesterday's investigation, the Crown case has been materially strengthened.

"I am satisfied that I can convict the prisoners of murder," said Mr. Curry this morning.

The Crown has taken possession of the book in which the sales of poisons in the drug department of the Simpson store are entered, and have refused to let anyone see it. They will endeavor to prove that Shapero purchased the poison, and, to this end, the drug clerks will be asked to look at the male prisoner to see if they can identify him as having purchased carbolic acid there during the past month.

The contention of the defence is that GGoldstein purchased the poison himself and suicided.

CANADIAN TRADE PROSPECTS IN WALES

Where the Products of Canada are Winning Public Favor On Their Merits.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—W. L. Griffith, Canadian Government agent at Cardiff, Wales, who was appointed agent there when the agency was first establishe dby Hon. Clifford Sifton, is in the city.

When the agency was first started in Wales, Mr. Griffith says the total immigration to Canada was fifteen persons a year, and these came from Cardiff and that neighborhood. Since that time there has been a considerable and constant movement from every county in Wales. In Cardiff and that vicinity there are about one and-a-half million people. The mining population numbers about 120,000. A point has now been reached when the mining districts will supply its own labor. In consequence, the surplus agriculture population will have to go over the sea. Canada will get the bulk of this immigration.

MORE CORDIAL NOW

There has been a great change in sentiment towards Canada during last year, or since the contingents were sent to South Africa, said Mr. Griffith. Previously conditions were more or less chilly to a Canadian. But all that is now altered, and at agricultural shows, where agents of the Government attend with exhibits, there is a great increase of interest andg ood feeling towards Canada.

At the Royal Agricultural show at York this year the products of Canada created so much interest that the people crowded around them all the time, and one could not get within several feet of exhibits for the crowds. Although, the attude of the public was marked by a remarkable accession of good feeling to Canada.

So far as Wales is concerned, said Mr. Griffith, the visit of Hon. Clifford Sifton in June had the effect of greatly stimulating the interest in and efficency of the working of the immigration department in the district.

WANT DIRECT SHIPMENT

At present the bulk of Canadian cattle, cheese, butter apples and dairy produce is sent by steamer to Liverpool or Bristol. From thee they are transhipped by rail to Cardiff. Those interested in the port of Cardiff are looking forward to the time when a direct shipment to Cardiff from Canada will be possible. The land line already runs direct from Montreal to Cardiff, and the amount of freight rates saved to the shipper represents a very decent profit.

One very large firm who ships beef froom Argentine Republic direct to Cardiff finds that the traid demands and justifies it. Their experiment has met with remarkable success.

WINNING ON THEIR MERITS.

The products of Canada are rapidly, by their merits, commanding an increased sale in the markets of Wales. On the streets and in the stores, everywhere, may be seen packages marked from Canada. As an instance. Ten years ago the amount of Canadian pea-fed bacon sold in Cardiff did not amount to ten per cent. of the gross sales. Now the Canadian sales amount to fifty-five per cent.

The reason for this is that the miner has a fastidious appetite, and becauseo f the peculiar atmosphere underground, the corn-fed bacon of the United States is objetionable. This is not the case with Canadian bacon.

Mr. Griffith is very hopeful as to the future immigration prospect from Wales to Canada. He intends going to Winnipeg and probably to the Pacific coast.

RELIEVING COLUMN IN CANNON SHOT OF PEKIN

Town of Matow, 20 Miles Away, Was Occupied by the Allies on Thursday Last.

LEGATIONS CAN HOLD OUT UNTIL AUGUST 23rd

French Ambassader Cables that they are on Siege Rations, but can Resist Until that Day—Chinese Still Fortify Canton.

London, Aug. 16. 3.50 a.m. The allies are reported to have reached Pekin Monday. Says the Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express wiring yesterday, he adds. Chinese official News confirms thei statement by without details. A Paris message reports this but the statement especially as it animates from Shanghai must be accepted with considerable reserve, other London papers basing these remarks upon Washington despatches which with the exception of the forgoing from Shanghai from the latest news regarding the advance are devided in opinion, some believing the allies must have reached Pekin, and others preferring to believe that the relief will not be accomplished until the end of the week.

Telegraphing from Yang Tsun Aug. 6, a Daily News correspondent says Sir Alfred Gaselee hopes to keep the enemy running, and to follow him right into Pekin.

London, Aug. 15.—The allied army is progressing satisfactorily in its march upon Pekin, and there is every reason to believe, as stated by authorities here that European cannon may now be within range on the Celestial capital. Following up the captial of Ho Si Wu on Thursday last, the releaving army pressed foreward to Matow, twelve miles nearer Pekin, which was reached on Saturday. As Matow is only about 20 miles from the objective of the column it is exceedinly likely that the interval of four days which has elapsed since the occupation of that place may have wit-nessed the arrival of the allies outside the walls of the Chinese capital. If the rate of progression so far maintained has been keep up, this is assuredly the case, and it is probable that the next official despatch from the East may bring important news. A perusal of the official despatches received here this morning reveals a considerable discrepancy between the views of Sir Claude MacDonald, the British Minister, and M. Pichon, the French representative at Pekin. Yesterday the former gave August 18 as the date beyond which the resistance of the foreigners must cease. To-day the latter avers that though he and his confreres are on short rations, they can resist until the 23rd instant. This, of course, puts a different complexion upon the state of affairs, and sends down the balance on the side favoring the Legations. With the relieving force a day's march away, and the besieged able to hold out eight days longer, prospects are indeed bright. Only an unexpected and prolonged resistance on the part of the Chinese outside their chief city can again make the position of the Legation more perilous than at present. The reports that the Chinese are strongly fortifying Canton, coupled with their refusal to allow the landing of British troops at Shanghai, clearly indicate that they do not intend to allow Great Britain an "open door" into the Yang-Tse region, and that ere long that quarter may be converted into a second scene of hostilities, the fight being for the fairest province of China, over which Britain has paramount rights.

MOUNTING LARGER GUNS.

Hong Kong, Tuesday, Aug. 14.—Continued investigations at Canton show the Chinese are mounting larger guns. Old gunboats are being overhauled and mines have been made ready to lay in the West river. A steamer from Wu Chow reports passing considerable numbers of Chinese troops going up the West river, probably bound for Pekin.

MORE MISSIONS PILLAGED.

Paris, Aug 15.—The following despatch has been received from the French Consul at Canton.

"All is quiet here. In the district of Swatdw the agitation against the Christains and missionaries is alarming. Many missions in that region have been pillaged and burned. The Viceroy and myself have decided each to send a delegate to make an investigation and re-establish order. With the view of giving weight to the mission and to show that accord exists between the mandarin and the Consulate the commission sails on the French war vessel Comet."

BRITAIN'S GREAT EAST INDIAN NATIVE ARMY

The Imperial Troops Now on Their Way to China.

The Greatest Fighters on Earth Will Help to Chastise the Chinese.

(Special to The Times).

London, August 12.—The Indian army has not had long to wait before being called on to render help to the British empire. The expedition to China will be a slight solace to it for having to mark time while the game of war was hotly played in South Africa.

The expeditionary force which is to be sent out will number 5,000 men of all arms With the exception of the field battery of artillery it consists entirely of native regiments.

But these regiments have in their ranks many races and many sects and creeds; stalwart Sikhs, Rajputs of high lineage and the bluest blood of Hindustan; fiery Pathans from the wild borders of Afghanistan; mild eyed Tamils and Telingas, from the rice flats of Madras; Sikh, Hindu and Mohammedan—are, and Roman Catholic, for Madras sappers usually profess this creed, although now and again a Protestant, a Noncomformist and even an American Methodist finds his way into the ranks of these splendid Indian engineers.

This contingent is thoroughly representative of India as a whole. Its departure will stir up a spirit of envy throughout the native army; it will start miltitudinous prayers for a large development of the Chinese crisis and the consequent need for many more troops.

In 1860-62 twelve regiments of native infantry sailed from India for the far East compared with five on this occasion, and two regiments of cavalry against one. To put it roughly, the Indian contingent in the early 60's was twice as large as on this occasion. But we only seem to be at the beginning of the China trouble. The Indian army is a more efficient and a larger fighting machine than forty years ago. Moreover, the Indian empire to-day marches for thousands of miles with the Chinese empire. Railways have advanced through Upper Burmah to within a little distance of the Chinese boundary, so should the rebellion spread Britain's army in the East will play a large part in quelling it.

But will India also have to pay? Before the first transport drops down the tide that question will be raised. India has been harably treated in the past, and in these days of plague and famine, while she can spare men she cannot spare treasure.

Of the regiments selected for service in China two particularly distinguished themselves in the Pathan revolt in 1897. It was the First Sikhs who furnished Mr. GGee, the political officer, with an escort on that ill-fated visit to the Tochi valley, when the party was ambushed as they sat at lunch and would have been annihilated but for the cool courage displayed by the native officers, every European officer having been shot down. The First Sikhs belongs to the Punjab frontier force. It has only four companies of Sikhs, two companies being composed of Pathans, one of Dogras or hill Rajputs and one of Punjabi Mohammedans.

The Twenty-fourth Punjab Infantry, which is recruited in exatly the same way as the First Sikhs, formed part of the famous garrison of the Malakand. Of its Pathan companies the story is told that when the little force was in the most desperate straits the tribesmen shouted to their fellow-tribesmen to lay down their arms. "Certainly," was the reply from within the walls; "come and take the rifles from our hands." The tribesmen, rejoicing at their treachery, rushed gayly in to be met by withering volleys and scornful cheers as the Pathans of the Twenty-fourth Infantry blazed into the brown. The doctor of the regiment is Major Whitchurch, V.C. He won the bronze cross at the seige of Chitral, when after a sally he carried home under heavy fire a wounded comrade on his shoulders.

The First Bengal Lancers, formerly Skinner's Irregular Horse, is recruited entirely from Mohammedans. Its honorary colonel is the Duke of York. It last saw service in Afghanistan. The Bombay regiment is raised mainly in Rajputana, while the First Madras Pioneers obtains its men from the south of the peninsula. The latter regiment was first raised as long ago as 1758. The Madras Sappers is a famous corps of engineers, in which families, generation after generation, have enlisted. At the building of bridges, the making of roads, the raising of forts, it is unequalled. It can handle a rifle with pluck. There is no regiment with a finer record in the Indian army list.

The First Madras Pioneers are stationed at Bangalore; the First Sikhs at Kohat, on the Punjab frontier. From Kohat to Bangalore is a similar distance as from Edinburgh to Gibraltar; similar, too, is the difference in climate, also in the breed of men. So it can be understood that the Indian army is not as homogeneous as the British army. But it always fights in khaki. And it always fights well.

KEEPS HIS PETRIFIED WIFE.

Spouse No. 2 Has Not the Slightest Objection

Chanute, Kan., August 16.—For several years J. H. Rickel has kept his two wives in his little carriage shop here, and the women have never spoken to each other, yet no jealousy exists between them.

The reason for this is that the first wife, who died in the Dakota bad lands 25 years ago, is petrified and is securely packed in a wooden box.

The living wife is her husband's constant companion and helps him in the shop, besides doing her housework.

When Rickel moved from Dakota, several years ago, he exumed the body of wife No 1, and found it to be petrified. He says it seems only natural that he should want her body as near him as possible. He adds that it is the only thorough case of petrification of a human body in the United States. The form is perfect and the features of the [illegible]

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 16 1900.

THE GERMAN FIELD MARSHAL.

It is clearly premature to speak of the appointment of Field Marshal Count von Waldersee as commander of the allied in China. The Emperor has designated him to command the German forces and has expressed his intention of proposing him to the powers for commander-in-chief; but the powers have yet to determine whether they are going into a war in China upon the basis contemplated by the German Emperor.

Certainly if Waldersee goes to China, he will be the ranking officer there. He may be called, in fact, the ranking military officer of the world at this time, and should combine military operations be undertaken on a large scale there would be obvious fitness in his selection for the command.

The German Emperor has never entertained any illusions about the outcome of this imbroglio and has made no pretense of peaceful intentions toward China. He has boldly declared his purpose to avenge the murder of the German Minister and to plant the German banners on the walls of Pekin. He has been dispatching troops for this purpose and now is sending the chief officer of his army to take command. Will the other powers, and particularly will the United States, co-operate with him in this war of revenge, a war of occupation and of probable spoliation.

The designation of Field Marshal von Waldersee is significant of the large expectations of Germany, which reach far beyond anything contemplated in the American programme. He is not being sent to rescue anybody, but to enforce reparation. That is a new proposition, which we have not come to in theory, even if we have in fact. For the United States to enter a European military alliance is even yet inconceivable.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Not having a force in China, and not having any ships that will float long enough to take any troops to China, the Sultan keeps his murderous hand in by falling back on that favorite Turkish pastime of slaughtering Armenians.

In retreating now the Chinese are consistent. They have been going back, or at least not coming forward, for centuries.

After all it's not to be wondered at that another Boer plot has been hatched at Pretoria. This weather is enough to hatch anything.

Many thousands of disappointed and impoverished gold-seekers are stranded at Cape Nome. The auriferous sands of the beach have long since been staked out into claims, and gulch prospecting is the only resource of the few late comers who have money and energy enough to explore the desolate country. The steamship companies could not bring back the superfluous population in time to avoid a crisis of famine and starvation even should free transportation be offered. If keen suffering is to be prevented at Cape Nome during the coming fall and winter months the agents of practical beneficence will have to exercise phenomenal activity in the near future.

GEMS.

The native music of aboriginal tribes is regarded as of great importance in anthropology, and the recent British expedition to the Torres straits and New Guinea have taken steps to preserve some of them. Some of the songs heard on Murray island are already obsolete, and will, it is believed, die out with the old men of the tribes. "In savage life," says one of the members of the expedition, "the songs of a tribe are its chief heritage."

Birmingham, England, is the only place in which manufacturing crowns is an industry that may be said to flourish. The trade is principally with Africa, where the numerous kings have come to regard a crown as a far more elegant emblem of royalty than the stovepipe hat which they formerly affected. A serviceable crown, gaudily decorated with imitation precious stones, may be purchased for quite a small sum.

The Japanese apply one of their many pretty ways to the launching of ships. They use no wine but hang over the ship's prow a large pasteboard cage full of birds. The moment the ship is afloat a man pulls a string, when the cage opens, and the birds fly away, making the air alive with music and the whirr of wings. The idea is that the birds thus welcome the ship as she begins her career as a thing of life.

The monster telescope at the Paris Exposition which will, it is said, bring the moon within thirty-six miles, is three times the length of the largest of its predecessors, the Yerkes telescope at Chicago. It is 197 feet long, 5 feet in diameter and weighs twenty-one tons. The lenses, the largest in existence, measure over 49 inches in diameter and weigh 1,320 pounds.

The English people think that the proposed new nine-penny coin will enable them to get the better of the French, who, it is assumed, will accept the coin as the equivalent of a franc. At present, when John Bull visits Paris, he frequently has to surrender a shilling in exchange for an article the value of which is a franc.

Lord Methuen, at his own expense, has erected a monument over the grave of Count de Villebois Mareuil, bearing the following inscription: "To the Memory of Count de Villebois Mareuil, Colonel of the Foreign Legation of France and General of the Transvaal, who died on the field of honor, near Boshof April. R. I. P."

It is calculated that 200,000 women are employed as dressmakers in Paris.

His Wife Insisted

And he thought he'd humor her, no doubt. The result shows that a man rarely loses by following his wife's advice. Those who suffer from obstinate cough, bronchitis, weak lungs and ailments in general which tend to consumption, will find speedy relief and perfect cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures ninety-eight per cent. of those who give it a fair and faithful trial. It purifies the blood, heals the lungs and builds up the body with firm flesh instead of flabby fat. The "Discovery" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, nor other narcotics.

"Only for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I think I would be in my grave to-day," writes Mr. Moses Miles, of Hilliard, Uinta Co., Wyoming. "I had asthma so bad I could not sleep at night and was compelled to give up work. It affected my lungs so that I coughed all the time, both day and night. My friends all thought I had consumption. My wife had taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and it had helped her so much she insisted on my trying his Golden Medical Discovery—which I did. I have taken four bottles and am now a well man, weighing 165 pounds, thanks to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I would like you to print this testimony as it may help some other poor sufferer."

"I could save more money," the young man admitted, "but I find it so hard to break away from my friends. A fellow can't be a boor and cut all his acquaintances without reason, you know."

DISCOVERED A DIAMOND MINE

Colonl Ryerson speaks of the good luck of a Canadian, Sergeant Ross, of Roberts' Horse. While out patrolling in the Free State, Sergeant Ross, who is a graduate of the Kingston School of Mines, discovered a diamond mine. He has taken out papers, issued a prospectus, and formed a joint stock company. There is always this kind of off-chance of making a fortune in South Africa, and the mineral resources of the Free State are unknown, because prospecting was not encouraged under President Steyn.

About the two Canadians guilty of treason, Colonel Ryerson states that the sergeant who led them into the difficulty was court-martialled and shot. The sergeant was a regular. The two privates were colonials, and got the benefit of their countrymen's gallant record. Col. Ryerson also tells of a sergeant-Major OGreener, of the Royal Engineers, who stole company funds and deserted to the Boers. He was wounded and captured at Sand River, and as soon as he was recovered of his wound, he was interviewed by a firing party.

Of white flag outrages, only one came under Colonel Ryerson's notice. Lieut. Palmer, of the Royal Army Medical Corps, was shot through the [illegible] while bandaging a wounded soldier's arm at Kornspruit.

BRAVEST HEARTS.

"None but idiots and lovers delight in constant repetition of the same thing."

A tiny imp of curious mien,
Arrayed in crimson slashed with green
Came dancing o'er the hill at morn,
To where I wandered all forlorn.

And though I knew him—knew him well,
I laughed to hear each tiny bell
That tinkled on his tasseled cap,
And fondled him upon my lap.

Oh, folly wise! oh, folly sweet!
A thousand times to me repeat,
The message that she sends by you;
A thousand times it will be new.

—Arthur Henry.

MAN OF ACTION.

John Desmond awoke at 3 in the morning and tossed about in his bed. Within his a fierce struggle between the brain and the heart was in progress. He employed every scheme that he was aware of to court or compel sleep without success.

Suddenly the truth dawned upon him, like a flood of soft warm light. He was in love. The love of his life, compared with which all his past loves were mere idle fancies. The battle was over. John Desmond, thirty, lawyer, athlete, man of the world, was conquered.

Being a man of action, Desmond no sooner acknowledged to himself that he really was in love with Kate Evanston than he resolved to marry her at the earliest possible day.

Kate Evanston was seated at the piano in the drawing room of Mrs. Saulsbury's beautiful home, where she was employed as companion to the lady of the house. The rich light of a middle May evening pervaded the place.

Her fingers were softly bringing back memories of "Erminie" and other Casino delights as her thoughts traveled back over the past.

After a time she arose from the piano and picking up a number of photographs of John Desmond's friends that lay upon the table, seated herself upon a sofa, with her back to the door and proceeded to contemplate each of them.

Desmond returning home early that evening let himself into his aunt's house very quietly with his latchkey, hoping to catch Kate at the piano in the middle of one of the sweet airs he had grown of late to love.

He approached the great drawing room doors and took a peep through the crevice which separated them. In an instant his heart seemed to cease beating with almost electrical suddenness, for the sight which his maddened brain encountered filled him with rage and jealousy.

With a heart of ice and lead he was about to turn to leave the house as noiselessly as he had entered when the sinking sun shot a ray of light through the room and revealed something which made the blood course faster through his body than it had ever coursed before. Then he turned away, and, closing the door very softly behind him, descended the front steps of the house and passed down the street.

Mrs. Salisbury and Miss Evanston were at their dessert that evening before John appeared. He had left word in the morning that he might be detained until a late hour, and so they had not waited dinner for him.

Mrs. Salisbury noticed that her nephew seemed to be laboring under considerable restraint and bluntly asked him the cause; but the good body's solicitude met only with evasion and she presently gave up all attempts to draw anything from him and retired early to her room, leaving John and Kate together.

No sooner had Mrs. Salisbury quitted the dining room than Desmond turned to Kate and said:

"Miss Evanston, I'm going to ask you to do me a favor."

Kate looked at him inquisitively.

"I want you," he continued, "to accompany me on a bit of a shopping tour. I've got a peculiar mission to execute and I want your help. Will you do it?"

"To be sure. I shall be most happy, Mr. Desmond," Kate answered, "and if you'll excuse me I'll be prepared in a very few minutes."

The streets were dark by the time they left the house for the shopping quarter of the town, and Kate took Desmond's arm. They had walked for a few moments in silence when Desmond said:

"I want to explain this errand to you and no doubt you, too, will think it peculiar. As a matter of fact, I've been commissioned to arrange for the wedding of two very dear friends."

"Two couples," Kate asked, quietly.

"Why, no! only one couple; a man and a woman," John answered, somewhat puzzled at the question.

"And was she a very dear friend?" the girl on his arm asked.

"Yes; the dearest friend I ever had among women; in fact, the only woman I ever really cared for."

In a moment John was half sorry, half glad he had said this, for he felt the little hand of his companion withdraw until only the tips of the fingers rested upon his arm. "That's a good sign," he mused.

For a moment nothing was said; then Miss Evanston broke the silence.

"And didn't she care for you?" she asked.

"Yes," he replied. "She loved me and she still loves me."

Presently Kate's curiosity got the better of her judgment and she asked: "And the man—you say he's a dear friend, too?"

"Yes," replied Desmond, "[illegible] one I ever trusted absolutely."

"And does he know that you love her and that she loves you?"

"He knows absolutely that I love her and he is mighty certain that she loves me."

Kate was now thoroughly mystified.

"And which of them asked you to arrange for the wedding?" she asked.

"He did," replied John curtly.

Kate could only say: "Well, this mission, as you term it, certainly is inexplicable."

"Oh, no, it isn't," said John. "It will all seem quite simple when the explanation comes, if any is needed. In fact, I think it will explain itself. Just you keep those eyes of your open and you'll see it all very shortly."

Presently John touched his companion slightly on the arm and drew her into the shop of the village jeweler.

"Now, I want you to pick out the kind of a wedding ring you think the bride should get," he said.

When he had paid and pocketed the plain gold band they resumed their walk down the village street and stopped at the local office of a great metropolitan daily and Desmond, leaving Kate at one side, went up to the desk and wrote out a brief notice and was about leaving with her when the advertising clerk called after him and said that he had not told him when he wished the notice inserted.

"Why, to-morrow, of course," Desmond replied.

"Now, then," said John, as they turned into a side street, "we'll go and make arrangements for the parson to tie the knot and then we will have finished our mission."

They turned into the gravel walk leading to the Rev. John Barclay's house and had just reached the vine-clad porch when Desmond stepped suddenly, as if he had but that moment thought of an important thing and, turning to Kate, who was standing close to him, almost whispered: "I want to ask another favor of you," bending his face close to hers. "I want you to let me kiss you before we go in there." And it was done in a moment.

Before Kate could recover from the perfect amazement into which John's action had thrown her he had dexterously drawn her arm through his and, leading her up the steps, had rung the door bell.

The Rev. Mr. Barclay answered the metallic summons in person and gave John a most cordial welcome, which surprised Kate, for she had supposed John an agnostic and didn't think that he numbered members of the clergy among his intimates.

"Mr. Barclay," began John, when they had entered the snug parlor, where the good gentleman's wife was seated doing some fancy work, "I've come over to-night to arrange for a wedding and I want you to perform the ceremony."

"When is it to come off?" asked the clergyman, consulting a small date book which he drew from his waistcoat pocket.

"Immediately," said John.

The Rev. Mr. Barclay cast a quiet glance at Kate.

"And who are the parties to be married?" he asked.

John took Kate's hand in his own and answered firmly: "This lady, Miss Kate Evanston, and myself."

Kate could not believe her ears. She stared at John in amazement. He hastened to reassure her.

"You're excited, my dear Kate. Calm yourself."

The whole truth had come to her. The explanation of the mysterious errand was solved. She looked into John's eyes and read love unspeakable and her own answered in kind. She went through the ceremony like one in a dream and feared it was a dream and hoped if it were she would never awaken.

The parson tied the knot and John slipped the ring which Kate had selected upon her finger and then the parson insisted upon his osculatory perquisite, and then they started for home, both supremely happy. All the way back Kate clung strongly to John's arm.

Before they had quitted the Barclay garden Kate said to Desmond: "Why did you want to kiss me before we went into the house?"

"I'll tell you," returned John, promptly. "You see, Barclay and I were classmates. I know his propensities, and I didn't want to suffer the reflection in after years that he had kissed my wife first."

When the happy couple reached their home Kate said:

"You are the most audacious man I ever met. You bought the ring and even inserted a notice of our marriage before you asked me to marry you. Tell me why you did not ask me first? How did you know I'd not refuse to marry you and make a scene in the minister's house?"

And Desmond answered: "When a man of action sees a girl kissing his picture he knows that the time for action, not words, has come, and he carries her off to the parson."

Kate blushed furiously, and pressing her face against his shoulder, whispered ever so low: "I love an audacious man."—Chicago Daily News.

Stomach to Fit.

During Sherman's "March to the Sea" rations were often scarce. One day an officer found a soldier eating a persimmon, and said to him, "Don't eat that, it's not good for you." "I'm not eatin' it because it's good," he said, "I'm trying to pucker up my stomach so as to fit the rations uncle Billy Sherman's a-given us."

The Pug—"Say, but dat new feller don't do a thing but put 'em to sleep quick."

The Mug—"No wonder! He was a preacher before he took to prize fightin'."

The Retail "Drummer."

The newspaper advertisement is the "drummer" for retail stores and for many other enterprises. It goes out to the great body of the people daily, with information that is to their interest, and thus enlivens interest. It is the principal thing that prevents the midsummer dullness which afflicts the wholesale trade from overwhelming the retailers. When a wholesale house lays off its drummers its business languishes. The same result follows when a retail establishment cuts down its advertising.

Some Men at a Barn Raising.

At a barn raising in a certain locality, after the work was done the farmer brought out six kegs of beer for the men to drink. After the six kegs were finished they heard the farmer had another in the cellar to be kept for the carpenters and insisted on having it also. The farmer would not consent, so the men took up a collection and bought the seventh keg. They then turned round and informed on the farmer for selling liquor without license, and the unsuspecting fellow was brought before the beak and assessed $37.85.

Score, 5—4. Peterboro has now a chance to win the championship from Bowmanville.

"I have a boy, two years old, weighing forty pounds and in perfect health who has been raised on Grape-Nuts and milk.

"This is an ideal food and evidently furnishes the elements necessary for a baby as well as for adults. We have used Grape-Nuts in large quantities and greatly to our advantage." F. W. Leavitt, Minneapolis, Minn.

One advantage about Grape-Nuts Food is that it is pre-digested in the process of manufacture; that is, the starch contained in the wheat and barley is transformed into grape sugar in exactly the same method as this process is carried out in the human body, that is by the use of moisture and long exposure to moderate warmth, which grows the diastase in the grains and makes the remarkable change from starch to grape sugar. Therefore, the most delicate stomach can handle Grape-Nuts and the food is quickly absorbed into the blood and tissue, certain parts of it going directly to building and nourishing the brain and nerve centers.

THE TIMES LETTER BOX

Letters from the People on Interesting Topics.

(NOTE.—The Times does not hold itself in any way responsible for the opinions expressed by its correspondents.—Ed. Times.

A Blatherskite.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have been much amused at the course of the Times in connection with Civic affairs. You took strong ground against the way the streets have been handled by the town Engineer, yet you never suggested a cure.

The walks have got to be laid, and the grades struck. The Times should know that the council cannot please everybody, and especially the Times.

FAIR PLAY.

Ans.—My dear boy, pardon us if we tell you in cold print that you are a blatherskite. This g.f.j has no use for such people as you. The only cure that will satisfy the people, and prove radicals will be to bounce the men who have been responsible for such jobs as the Murray street canal, &c.

Whom to Marry.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir, I see you have a department for answering of enquiries in The Times. I would like you to give your opinion on whom a girl should marry. I have a country lover, and also a city chap, who has asked me to be his wife, and as I like them both fairly well, I decided to ask your advice in the matter.

You will pardon the liberty I take in doing so.

JENNIE.

Ans.—Although this letter does not bear the signature of the writer, and may not be genuine, we nevertheless give it a place in the Times. Yes, Jennie, your country lover may wear overalls, have brown hands and his feet be in the way when he walks, but he is worth a dozen town dudes, with their white fingers and high collars and unpaid laundry bills. And take a country boy who will stay in the country. He is a free man. The town boy is a slave. He works all his life at a meagre salary and spends that in ways not always commendable. There are town sweethearts who are worth something. There are some who do not expect to have their wives support them by keeping boarders. There are some who do not loaf on the streets and stay up late at nights. These are town fellows almost equal to the boys from the backwoods. But beware of the other kind. Stick to the country sweethearts and stay stuck, is the advice of this great family journal.

—Miss Minnie Jacobs is, we are sorry to say, very ill of consumption. She is at present staying at Mr. Jas. Luke's. Her case is a peculiarly sad one, as she is entirely dependent on public charity. It is to be hoped that the general public will see the generous and Christian sympathy and help. Mr. Luke has set a noble example, but he is not in a position to do for the poor girl according to her requirements, and he is under no special obligations. Let others also bear in mind,—"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of these, etc." We think the public authorities should co-operate.

The Hot Week.

Horses, last week, suffered no less than men from the heat, but their names did not get in the papers, now were there any ice baths kept ready for them. It was pathetic to see one such horse, last Saturday, in the rear of the palace restaurant. His master was inside, but he stood full in the sun, panting until it seemed that he would fall over and die. Two or three around him, not moved particularly, only curious. It is interesting it seems, to see a horse that is overcome by the heat. Finally the master came from the saloon with a piece of ice. He rubbed the horse's head and sides with it for a little while, joking the while with some friends who looked on, and then he pushed the ice into the poor animal's mouth. That cold morsel seemed to delight the horse. He rolled it about with his parched tongue, and a look of relief came into his patient eyes. But the ice slipped and fell into the gutter. The horse made frantic efforts to recover it, but couldn't, for it had rolled too far away. His master watched him trying to reach the ice and laughed at his awkward and vain attempts. Then the man turned back with his friends into the saloon. "That brute ought to be reported," a bystander said indignantly, and moved on without making any effort to help the horse himself.

ALLIED ARMY IS NOW IN PEKIN, THE FOREIGN LEGATIONS SAFE

Official Announcement by the German Government That Occupation Took Place.

THE CHINESE SURRENDERED WITHOUT FIGHT

British Troops Will be Landed at Shanghai—Report that the Empress Dowager, With the Imperial Army and Boxers, Have Fled to the Interior.

Taku, Aug. 17, 1 a.m.w The following cablegram has been received from Admiral Remy.—Taku, Aug. 17, 1 a.m.—Bureau of Navigation, Washington. Just received telegram from Tien Tsin dated Aug. 14, 10 p.m. —Pekin was captured on Aug. 15. Foreign Legations are safe. Details follow shortly. (Sgd.) REMY.

Washington, August 17. The acting Secretary of State makes public the following plain telegram received this (Friday) evening from the United States Consul at Che Foo,—Chefoo, Aug. 17, received Aug. 17, 7.55 p.m., to Secretary of State, Washington. Japanese Admiral reports allies attacked Pekin last Wednesday, 15th. Obstinate resistance. In the evening the Japanese entered the capitol with their forces. The Chinese immediately surrendered Legations. Inmates safe. Japanese loss over 100. Chinese 300. (Sgd.) FOWLER.

London, Aug. 18 4 a.m. Pekin was relieved on the night of the 15th. This message was received last evening at the Custom Office in London from the commissioner of Customs in Chefoo. It is the only official message that has reached England in conformation of the earlier reports. Admiral Remey's despatch not having arrived in time for publication in London morning papers. The Morning Post which is the only paper printing the Chefoo message says.—To-day is not only a national rejoicing but it is also a day of congratulation for all the powers of the world. Proceeding to discuss the probabilities of a cessation of hostilities, the Morning Post assumes that the United States are willing to abandon any idea of further aggressive action, but it questions the disposition of Germany, and the other powers to agree to such a course. The Berlin correspondent of the Morning Post says he believes that no formal request for an armistice has yet reached the powers and that it is impossible that any such request would be granted. The other papers comment situation.

The Daily Graphic, in a paragraph evidently inspired, says there is no reason to believe that any of the powers will repudiate the previous understanding to respect the integrity of the Empire and the dynasty, adding that the proposal to land a British force at Shanghai originated not with the British Government but with the Chinese who at the same time urged that this should not be done is likely to lead to international complications. "This," says the Daily Graphic, "disposes of the story that the Viceroy of Nankin changed his mind under the influence of the Consuls. Her Majesty's Government, we believe, has no intention of contesting the right of France ort he United States to land troops, should either think it necessary."

Shanghai despatches say that Emperor Kwang accompanied the Empress Dowager to Hsian Fu much against his will. Prince Tuan commanded the read guard of the Imperial escort, of which Boxers formed 65 per cent. It was expected that General Sung Fuh Siang would follow after the arrival of the allies. All the palace treasures were sent to Hsian Fu.

LEGATIONS ARE LIBERATED.

London, August 17.—The allies have entered Pekin without fighting, the legations are relieved, and the foreigners are liberated."

The foregoing, received from the German Consul at Shanghai, was given out by the Berlin Foreign Office at 1 p.m.

PEKIN TAKEN ON AUGUST 15

Unconfirmed Despatch Says the Allied Army Have Entered the Capital

A special despatch from Shanghai says "The allies entered Pekin August 15. It is believed that Yuan Shi Kai's troops have gone to Shen Si to protect the Empress, who according to reports received by local officials here, with Tuan, the imperial household and the bulk of the army and Boxers, left Pekin August 7, for Hsian Fu.

CHARGED IN UNDERGROWTH

Cavalry At Ho Si Wu Could Scarcely Keep Their Seats

New York, Aug. 17.—Relative to the advance on Pekin a cablegram to the Tribune from London says—

"The difficulties encountered by the allies are strikingly illustrated in a message from an Express correspondent with the relief force. At the battle of Ho Si Wu the cavalry had to charge through an undergrowth so dense that it was impossible to see the enemy, and almost impossible to sit on horseback. The Chinese had carried out a number of big excavations with the object of running off the water from the Pei river and works, which it must have taken nearly a month to construct, and were almost finished when the allied forces arrived on the scene."

DANGERS OF CIVILIZATION

What Would 400 Million Chinamen do by its Aid

Oakland, Cal., August 17.—Ho Yow, Chinese Consul-General at San Francisco, in an address before the [illegible] Society, said,—

"There are 400 millions of my countrymen. They are quick to learn, and taking these facts into consideration, what would happen if the white race succeeded in forcing its civilization and its knowledge upon them? They would be able to manufacture guns and all the engines of warfare with equal facility. Under these circumstances Christianity might triumph, and again it might not."

The three chief causes of the present troubles in China Ho Yow declared to be missionary work, acquisition of territory by foreign nations, and the desecration of ancestral homes and the landscape of China.

In closing, Ho Yow said he could see no legitimate reason why one nation should wish to force its religion upon another.

EXCELLENT SCOUTING

Work of Russians and Japanese Aided a Rapid Advance

Paris, Aug. 17.—A despatch received here from Gen. Frey, in command of the French Marine force in China, dated Aug. 9, says the rapid advance of the allies towards Pekin was due to the excellent scouting of the Russians and Japanese. Gen. Frey returned to Tien Tsin in order to lead the reinforcements of French troops to the front.

EIGHT MURDERS CONFIRMED

China Inland Missions Receives a Cable from Cheh-Kiang Province

The China Inland Mission received a cablegram from Shanghai confirming the report of the massacre of eight missionaries in the province of Cheh-kiang. Three of the ladies hail from the United States, and are as follows,—

Mrs. Ward, who went to China in 1893.

Miss Manchester, who went to China in 1895.

Miss J. E. Desmond, who went to China in 1899.

The other missionaries murdered are Mr. G. F. Ward, husband of Mrs. Ward, who went to China in 1893.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Thompson, who went to China in 1881.

Miss Sherwood, who went to China in 1889.

Miss Thurgood, who went to China in 1890.

These all went out from England.

A report reached the China Inland Mission two weeks ago telling of the rioting at the stations where these missionaries were located, and the worst fears were apprehended for the safety of the missionaries.

Rain has fallen heavily in the Maritime Province, has local thunderstorms have occurred in Quebec, Manitoba and the Territories. Slightly lower temperature is indicated for Ontario and Quebec, and showers for Manitoba.

LI HUNG CHANG'S GETS NO SYMPATHY

His Appeal Gets Little Sympathy From the United States.

Washington, August 18.—At the close of a day of intense anxiety, the Department of State to-night made public the latest correspondence between the United States Government and China, constituting not only a remarkable series of State papers, but at the same time dispelling all doubt and uncertainty as to American policy in the present critical juncture. The urgent almost pathetic appeal of Li Hung Chang, submitted early in the day, that the victorious march of the allies stop at Tung Chow, and that the military commanders on the field be instructed to arrange an armistice at that point, was met with a response that General Chaffe already has been given complete instructions, empowering him to carry out an arrangement in concert with other commanders for the delivery of the Ministers and persons under their protection of the relief column, not at Tung Chow, as had been suggested, but at the Imperial city of Pekin. Furthermore, it was made known to China that General Chaffee's instructions left him free rein as to whether he should insist upon entering Pekin and going to the legations, or should receive the delivery of the legations at the gate of the inner Tartar city, or at the great outer wall. In short, China, through her peace envoy, besought a halt and an armistice at Tung Chow, twenty miles from Pekin; whereas the response of the American Government is, if there is to be a halt—an armistice—it must be at the walls of the Imperial city.

FOR CHINESE WATERS.

Gunboat Bancroft May go to China to Strengthen the Fleet.

Boston, Aug. 18.—The gunboat Bancroft, which has been undergoing repairs at the Charleston Navy Yard, is about ready to be commissioned. She is especially well fitted for service in the shallow water of Chinese rivers and will probably be sent there immediately. She will be manned chiefly by the officers and crew of the Machias, which recently went out of commission.

GENERAL DE WET JOINS DELAREY AND ESCAPES BRITISH PURSUERS

One of the Most Famous Retreats in Military History Has Been Accomplished.

DIFFICULTIES OF GENERAL ROBERTS INCREASED

General Botha is Now Sure to Have 10,000 Men and Many Guns—With Two Such Generals in the Field the British Will Have Their Work Cut Out.

Cape Town, Aug. 17. Lord Kitchener after a forced march has reached Col. Hoare of the British garrison at Elands River.

London, Aug. 17—

The War Office has received a despatch from Lord Roberts expressing a fear that Gen. De Wet has eluded his pursuers. Lobrd Roberts says he imagines that De Wet's escape is due to the breaking up his force into small bodies.

London, Aug. 17.—General De Wet has accomplished a feat of which any general might well be proud, and which has excelled the doings of all the other Boer generals during the present war. For three months he has held the field against a force overwhelmingly superior to his own. During that time he has inflicted immense damage to the British lines of communication, has captured cundreds of British soldiers guarding isolated posts and snapped up many convoys with their escorts. Pressed into a corner and surrounded by fifty thousand men, by a display of mobility and skill without parallel, he broke through the converging lines of his enemies, and with a dozen band escorting ex-President Steyn, of the Orange Free State, darted off to the northwest. For three hundred miles he conducted a masterly retreat with Britain's best cavalry leaders in hot pursuit all the way, and Kitchener, the conqueror of the Soudan, striving to repeat well-known feats against fleeing Arabs. On more than one occasion it seemed as De Wet was in his hands, but at the critical moment he gained a new lease of life owing to the resisting power of the small rearguards which he left to protect his retreat. Since entering the Transvaal his band has come an army said to number about 7,000 all the Boers who yet cherish a hope of defeating Britain being desirous of serving under the standard of so renowned a leader, who, like Rochejacquelin in La Vendee, is causing an expiring cause to go down amid the glamor of brilliant fears of arms. At last comes the news that the object of this daring guerilla chief has been accomplished; that he has outdistanced his pursuers and effected a junction with Delarey, a confrere who has been going all that mortal soldier could do assist him by creating diversions in the direction towards which his retreat was tending. The Transvaal war may now be expected to assume a new and more acute phase. With two such leaders in the field as De Wet and Botha, who can now act conjointly, the difficulties of Lord Roberts will be greatly increased and a recasting of his whole plan of campaign will become inevitable.

GENERAL DE WET HAS ESCAPED.

Pretori Aug. 16.—Gen. De Wet has managed to elude General Kitchener, in spite of the fact that all the British waggons had double teams of picked animals. The Boers evaded the British at night over grounds known to them, while their pursuers were obliged to march in the day time. Wet's success in evading the British is certain to bring large accessions to the Boer's fighting force. Small commandoes near Johannesburg drove in the British outposts at Sachswald yesterday. Gen. Vatjoen, with 800 men is directly north of here.

CANADIAN PRISONER RELEASED

London, Aug. 16.—It has been reported to the War Office that Pte. M. L. Isbester, formerly of the 13th Field Battery, C.A., and who was taen a prisoner by the Boers while serving with the Canadian Artillery in South Africa, was released some ago and has arrived at Lorenzo Marques.

MONEY FOR PRISONERS.

Cape Town, Aug. 17.—An American Consular official has gone from Lorenzo Marques to Nooitgedacht, to distribute money to British prisoners, there, each of whom received $20.

CONSPIRATORS ON TRIAL

Leaders of the Plot Against Roberts Withdrew Plea of Guilty.

Pretoria, Aug. 16.—The trail by court martial of Lieut. Cordua, of the Staats Artillery, and the others leaders of the conspirations concerned in the plot to kidnap Gen. Roberts, began to-day. The prisoners pleaded guilty, but at the suggestion of the court withdrew plea, and the trail is proceeding.

NATURAL GAS FOUND NEAR COLLINGWOOD

Engineer Costa, the Engineer, is at Work Prospecting in the Neighborhood and is Confident.

Eugene Costa, the eminent engineer, has been at work for some weeks in the vicinity of Collingwood prospecting for natural gas. Some years ago one or two gas veins were discovered within the corporation, and since then citizens have been firm in the belief that by the expenditure of capital many valuable gas wells could be sunk in the immediate district.

It is understood that the Smelting Works Company that purposes to establish a plant in the town, and has been bonused to the extent of $100,000 is directly interested in Mr. Costa's work, as an abundance of natural gas would greatly cheapen the cost of manufacturing steel.

Mr. Costa, assisted by Mr. Carmichael, of Collingwood, has secured prospecters' leases of several blocks of land in Nottawasaga township and his confidence that natural gas can be secured in large quantities.

The contract for the first well was let yesterday, and a drill will commence operations at once and continue until a satisfactory test has been made. The engineer says it will take two months to bore 2,000 feet.

ENGLAND MAY FORBID EXPORTATION OF COAL

She is Threatened With the Most Serious Fuel Famine That She Has Ever Known.

London, August 17.—The constant rises in the price of coal are threatening us with the most serious famine England has long known. A famine of coal would be hardly less perilous than a famine of bread.

To-day coal is the motive power of the whole of our industrial life. There is nothing we can put in its place. Make coal much dearer, and workshops of all kinds will close. This is already beginning. Small manufacturers find that with fuel six shillings a ton more than a year ago, they can no longer afford to keep on. They are limiting their hands and hesitating about taking fresh orders.

Whatever may be the cause of the coal famine, it is not because of the increased wages of the colliers, not because we are producing less. The output of coal was never higher than today. Since 1896 the wages of miners have risen 15 per cent., which is equal to threepence on a ton of coal. At the same time the price of coal has risen 6s. 10d. per ton. So, that the miners cannot be blamed.

Last year we raised over two hundred and twenty million tons of coal, the greatest of any land in the world.

What, then, is the reason of the scarcity?

THE CONTINENTAL DEMAND.

Every rival nation is coming clamoring for our coal, and the exports are increasing to an extent never before known. The French, Germans, Russians and others know that coal means wealth and they are prepared to buy at substantial rates. Hence English coal to-day is blazing in the workshops of Calais and Hamburg and St. Petersburg, while the English workmen have to face empty furnaces.

A brief table will show the increase that is taking place in the export of coal during the first five months of the last three years. The value of each export was

1898	$ 6,440,400
1899	5,750,592
1900	14,000,855

Germany has recognized that inexporting coal, whatever price is obtained, the nation is throwing away a source of potential wealth. The Government has ordered the Saar collieries that when they enter into fresh contracts they shall give the preference to home consumers. Accordingly the collieries have decided not to accept any new orders from France and very few orders from anywhere else.

STORED AGAINST US.

All over the world English coal is to-day being heaped up by rival powers against England. Our hard coal is the best in the world, and the other great powers know. They are buying steadily —filling their storehouses and arsenal yards.

This is a very good thing for the owners of Welsh coal fields. They are reaping princely profits from the national distress. The price of their shares is bounding up, and one well-known firm alone must have cleared not far short of a million by its advance buyings. But it is good for no one else in England.

If our supplies were unlimited we might look on the matter without much care, but even the English coal fields will not last forever. It may not be very many years before large tracts of what are now most profitable fields will be no longer economically profitable to work. England can stand many things; but, once cheap fuel goes, our commercial position goes with it.

The colliery owners have looked very well after themselves. The time has come for this country to protect itself. What form this protection must take remains yet to be seen. The most generally favored plan is a heavy tax on all imported steam coal. France once feared this, and in 1862 induced England to agree to impose no such tax for ten years from then.

Householders should see that they get full value for their money in the coal they buy. With prices so high, many retail merchants are greatly tempted to give short deliveries. It is wise to count the sacks on delivery. If there is any suspicion that the sacks contain short weight a reference to the County Council inspectors will decide.

TELEGRAPH LINE TO TURKEY.

Sultan Orders Construction of System Between India and Constantinople.

Vienna, Aug. 16—It is announced from Constantinople that the Sultan has ordered the immediate completion of arrangements for the establishment of a direct telegraphic connection between India and the Turkish capital. Formerly the line was via Fao, on the extreme outer edge of the Bassorah Gulf, at the head of the Gulf of Persia, but this route could not be maintained, and the messages have been sent for a long time by the English and Russian cables via Persia.

LINE WILL DIVIDE AT BAGDAD.

According to the new plan Fao will be connected by wire with Bagdad, and thence two lines, one over Aleppo and the other over Diabekir, will lead to Constantinople.

This system, which will cost between 30,000 and 40,000 Turkish pounds, is to be begun immediately, and it is estimated the rate will be 50 per cent cheaper than by the present route.

SAY SULTAN'S HEALTH IS GOOD

The report has been spread that the Sultan was seriously ill, but authoritative assurance comes from Constantinople tonight that the report is devoid of all foundation and that he is in his usual health.

THREE-DAY FESTIVAL AT GRAN

At Gran, a free city on the Danube, there began yesterday a three-day celebration of the 900th anniversary of the introduction of Catholicism into Hungary. Archduke Friedrick as the representative of the Emperor, the Hungarian Minister, the President, and other Cabinet officials were also present at elaborate church services. The dedication of a statue to the trinity and a brilliant illumination of the city were the chief incidents of the day's festival.

TERRIBLE RAGE OF THE BOER WOMEN

They are Even More Hostile then the Boer Men.

THEY WANTED TO WATCH HIM DIE

The Boer Women Who Sang the National Song in Pretoria—A Flag Incident.

London, August 18.—While events in South Africa no longer move with their former apidity and the closing scenes of this war may lack the theatrical effect which characterized their opening, the correspondents still find much of interest to chronicle in the constantly transforming scene.

"The men are still sullen, the women are still drumlie and sour," writes John Stuart, of the Morning Post, describing the Transvaal women about Krugersdorp. "As I have often before remarked, these women hate us with a hatred as cruel as the grave.

Wanted to Watch Him Die.

"Send me a wounded Englishman, wrote a young woman of this place to her lover, outside of Ladysmith, 'for I want to watch him die.'

"That was a common request found in letters from all over the country, mostly dated froom Krugersdorp. And now Tommy Atkins pervades Krugersdorp and addresses the young women who had such kind hopes for him in language which Mary Jane of Chelsea would think facetious. He means neither unkindness nor incivility. Only these poor women are not in a frame of mind to understand his large, friendly heart.

Woman Showed Her Colors.

"I am afraid that Mary Jane of Chelsea would be a little annoyed if she could see his simple overtures of peace. They are very frank, but here they are vey furtile. But I am going to tell you a story which shows that there is something akin to nobility in this passionate hatred of the woman.

"On Monday night, long after the town had surrendered, a Transvaal flag was floated over one house occupied by Plessie Koch, who is a brother of the geneal who was wounded to the deatrh at Elandslaagte. A trooper saw the flag and hauled it down.

"Next morning Mrs. Koch, an impurdent feminine obstinacy, had another hoisted. An officer ordered its removal. She called him into her sitting room and railed at him at considerable length. 'Ah,' she cried, 'you can take away our flags, and you can take away our independance, but you cannot take away our spirit.'

Sang a Song of Rage.

"Thereupon she opened a tinkling cottage piano, and played the Transvaal 'Volkslied,' singing the words in a voice that shook with age and rage.

"'Pretty tune,' said the officer; 'what is it? Play it again, please.' But she only shook her fist in his face She was speechless. Poor, wild woman! If she had been English or American she would have found a Whittier to put the pathos of the scene into jingling verse for the school books.

Promise Another War.

"The builders of New South Africa have a hard and difficult soil to work on, and nothing can be gained by hiding or ignoring the fact. Already an excommandant is foretelling a fresh outbreak of rebellion within two years. And many men who have given up arms promise us another round in the race war at the first Eeopean complication.

"'Wait,' they say, until we see England with her hands full, and you will find the whole country aflame!'

"There were enough Mausers in the Transvaal at the beginning of the war to supply every Boer in South Africa twice over. Our returns will soon prove that we have not received anything like half the number originally distributed."

Biggest Catch Yet.

The Stanley Piano Company has amongst its many employees several worthy disciples of the noted Izaak Walton, the great fisherman. Even Mr Stanley himself is regarded as an expert with the rod and line, and having the faculty of being able to coax the fish to bite when others fail. A few days ago Mr. Gus Hay the popular accountant of the Company, accompanied by Mr. W. Turner, another of the staff, paddled down below the locks. After pulling in a number of ordinary bass, from three pounds upwards. Mr. Hay suddenly found a terrible weight, on the end of his line. "By the great horn spoon," he explained. "I've got a whale this time, sure." "You'll break your rod with that big fish," exclaimed his companion as the boat was nearly upset in the struggle. "Oh, no, I'll play him till he's tired," replied Mr. Hay, and he proceeded to pull in the line towards the landing net, when, as true as you're alive the two men pulled up — the anchor.

LI HUNG CHANG A PEACEMAKER?

Is Li Hung Chang to be the negotiant of a peace between China and the powers? Are matters in such a state that peace is possible? Does Li enjoy the confidence of the white world? Has he the confidence of his own Emperor and Empress? Has he the trust of the anti-foreign faction and will that faction abide by any terms he may be able to concede or force? Has he the trust of himself? Can a Chinaman be so hardened against invitations and opportunity that he can be said to know his own morals or his own mind? Li Hung Chang is the most conspicuous figure in all China. He has been a servant and partly a ruler of his people for many years. He is one of the few who can venture to make suggestions to the imperial family. He is a man of learning, of insight, of force, of judgment. He has traveled, he knows better than any other man in the empire what concessions are possible and what the temper of the powers is likely to be. It would seem as though he was the ideal man for the work. Yet he is foxy, secretive, possibly treacherous. He has an itch in his palms more constant and irritating than that of an Canadian politician and his position and his shrewdness have enabled him to secure more of the medicine that is supposed to allay this itch than even Tweed and his similarly afflicted associates obtained.

Can he, then, be trusted? Can he act as negotiant in a case involving the [illegible] of rival or mutually suspicious nations? Will he not be amenable to secret promptings and palliatives? Suppose that Russia were to assure him of large gifts in case he arrived at certain decisions respecting territorial rights. Possibly Earl Li would deny her claims, but possibly also he would realize that it is only a question of time when those rights would have to be granted, and in that case why should not he, rather than posterity, be the gainer? There appear to be two kinds of morality in China. One is that of the books, which prescribe as fine conduct as could be asked for of any people, and this occasionally affects domestic and commercial conduct. The other is that of the street and court and the tong, or secret society, and permits robbery, torture, blackmail, slavery, the selling of children, brutal and spectacular punishments and murder. Can the powers ever arrive at an understanding that is completely friendly with a people whose morals are so various and so twisted that they could never [illegible] ethics on which such [illegible] was based? Li Hung [illegible] stands for all that is best in his country and is naturally its choice in a peace congress. But does he also stand for what is worst?

REPARTEE ON DRESS PARADE.

An Incident of One of the English Reviews at Aldershot.

During some manoeuvres at Aldershot to gain practice in the vedette system of employing cavalry to watch and report the movements of an enemy the mounted troops employed on the occasion were extended at intervals in a long line reaching some miles.

The major at one end of the line had occasion to send a message to the captain, who was at the opposite end:

"The enemy are in force in front."

The signal was passed along the line all right till it came to a man stationed about midway, who thought fit to add a private message of his own, intended for the benefit of his neighbor:

"Have you a chaw of tobacco?"

Unluckily, his comrade thought these words were part of the signal message, and they were passed from man to man until they reached the captain.

The latter was somewhat astonished at this request, but sent back this answer:

"I don't use tobacco, but there are two cigars."

The major found the cigars welcome, and as he lighted one, sent back the answer: "Who said you did?"

M. Faure's Irreverence.

Here is a laughable and true little anecdote about President Faure's historic visit to St. Petersburg. It seems that the Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul at St. Petersburg has a remarkable repeating echo, which is nowhere so pronounced as in the passages leading to the subterranean crypt, where the famous collection of holy relics is stored. Moreover, as might be expected, the approaches to the crypt are somewhat drafty. Just at the moment when in solemn silence the group of ecclesiastical and other dignitaries in attendance on the president and czar were ushering their illustrious visitors into the hallowed vaults, M. Faure's voice was heard in the half darkness to this effect: "Mollard!"

Immediately and as if by enchantment innumerable other eerie voices resounded and re-echoed the word on all sides.

"Mollard! Mollard! Mo-oll-a-rd!"

M. Mollard is a diplomatist of parts, but it was distinctly uncanny to hear his homely name thundering away thus in the obscurity of the crypt. The Russian clergy present were scandalized, the laymen were astounded.

But the astonishment became more intense when the president's voice droned out once more:

"My hat!"

And once more the noisy echoes took up the words and bandied them to and fro among the [illegible] arches: "My hat! My hat! My ha-at!"

M. Mollard brought the president's hat. And M. Faure immediately and unconsciously did the cause of the third republic much mischief by putting it on while he made his obeisance to the sacred relics of the imperial church of Russia.

The Deception of Sight.

"I'm through trying to prevent crime," exclaimed Brown.

"What's up now?" asked Cumpstead, wiping his fingers on the towel that swung from the counter.

"Well, it was this way," his friend went on. "You see, I went over to the Lyceum theatre the other evening—George Nicolai's a friend of mine, you know—and after the first act I strolled out into the confectionery next door for a package of cigarettes.

"There was a girl waiting on the crowd there. I bought a large package of the brand I smoke and handed the young lady in payment ten cents. She rang up five on the register. 'Ah, ha,' I said to myself, 'knocking down, I see.' Then a man came along and bought three glasses of ginger ale for himself and two friends. He gave the girl fifteen cents. She rang up another nickel. Then a fellow bought a quarter's worth of cigars and she rang up five dollars. Light began to dawn upon me. I understood. 'That girl,' I thought, 'knocks down a while, then rings up a big amount to sorter square her stealings.' I watched her a few moments longer. I saw her ring up three nickels on three purchases of a dime each, and then I made up my mind to tip her off to George. I couldn't see my friend Nicolai done like that, you know. So I went and told him. He listened till I had finished, and then what do you suppose happened?"

"I don't know," replied Cumpstead, "what did?"

"He laughed a loud, hoarse, winter-weather laugh and told me the register was busted and had been for three weeks, and that nickels and five dollars were all that it would ring. And I've been buying things for Lyceum employes ever since."

"Hunger is the Best Sauce."

Yet some people are never hungry. Whatever they eat has to be "forced down." There is, of course, something wrong with these people. By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla a short time they are given an appetite and then they enjoy eating and food nourishes them. If your find your appetite failing, just try a bottle of Hood's. It is a true stomach tonic and every dose does good.

The only family cathartic is Hood's Pills.

The Golf Girl

is the type of the modern woman at her healthiest and best. She walks with an easy grace. She is a picture of perfect womanhood in the springtime of life. But generally the golf club is laid aside with marriage. A physical languor oppresses the once athletic girl. [illegible] She tires easily. Usually she accepts this condition as a natural thing, but it is unnatural. Marriage should add to woman's happiness, rather than subtract from it. If women understood how intimately the general health is related to the local health of the womanly organs, they would appreciate the fact that there is no need to suffer from weakness and backache. The use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong, sick women well. It regulates the periods, heals inflammation and ulceration, cures female weakness and puts the body in a condition of sound health.

Mrs. H. A. Alsbrook, of Austin, Lonoke Co., Ark., writes: "After five months of great suffering with female weakness I write this for the benefit of other sufferers from the same affliction. I doctored with our family physician without any good results, so my husband urged me to try Dr. Pierce's medicines—which I did, with wonderful results. I am completely cured. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets.'"

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its consequences.

One of the best and simplest cures for insomnia is said to be the odor of raw onions. They should be mashed [illegible] all the [illegible] after retiring [illegible] to quiet the most nervous person, and relax the most overwrought nerves. Onions contain a form of opium. This gives them soporific qualities. The smell after a little while ceases to be obnoxious. People who are exceedingly sensitive to odor will feel no unpleasant [illegible] nor will it induce headache or nausea as might be supposed. [illegible] gentle lethargy steals over the person heroic enough to try this means of wooing slumber. The [illegible] become dull, the nerves weaken, and restful sleep follows.

The recent death of a member of a Sedalia, Mo., firm disclosed the fact that for thirty years the firm had kept no account books. When a bil of goods was purchased, each member of the firm paid one-half of the money, carried in his pocket.

In Newton, Mass., the other day, a man's $5 bill was blown out of his hand, and he could find it nowhere. Through the New System of Treatment Still Continues

MR. CHAS. DARBY

Is [illegible] the [illegible] Testimony to the Marvellous Curative Powers of Powley's Liquified Ozone.

CURED OF RHEUMATISM

"I readily give my testimonial regarding the wonderful curative virtues of the new system of treatment. For most of two years I suffered all the tortures of the rack. My pains were so severe I would scream so loud that it would easily be heard a block away. I had to be turned in bed in sheets. I had three of the best doctors in the city, but with all their excellent skill, they failed to cure me. I got very discouraged, and did not know what to do, so great was my suffering. Mr. Hill, the insurance agent, asked me to try Powley's Liquified Ozone, which I did, and I found it at once began to relieve my pains. I took about [illegible] bottles, and I am proud to say I am as well as ever I have been in my life. My work is easy to me now as my health has been improved. In [illegible] I have recommended the new treatment to all my friends, and I cannot speak too highly of the remedy as long as I live."

To Street Buyers' Demands.

A successful merchant credits the ordinary way with which his business is conducted chiefly to his newspaper advertising. The need of having fresh features to present to the public every day forces him to keep informed as to what goods are selling well and what lines have to be brought into prominence by special prices and advertising. The public shares in the benefit of his intimate knowledge of his business. He finds that he can do a great deal toward directing the demands of his customers through his advertisements. Everybody reads the Times.

A Railway Incident

Last evening an amusing accident occurred as the Midland train was leaving Sunderland for Blackwater, says the Lindsay Post. A small, pretty Poland Jewess seemed quite excited and called through the window of the car to her husband that the youngest child was missing. On enquiry it was learned that they had come to this country from Poland two years ago, and located in Vyremanton. They had made arrangements to remove to Havelock. The Jewess with six children were to go by G.T.R. to Toronto, thence by C. P. R. to Havelock, and her husband was to drive across the country with the horse and buggy. The children were bright, intelligent, neatly-dressed and clean. On arrival at Blackwater the conductor telephoned to Sunderland and it was learned the child had got frightened at the locomotive and had hidden somewhere about the station. The father had gone up to the village thinking it was there, the child all the time being at the station. The mother and five other children returned by the next train to get the lost one.

REPORTERS' ROUNDS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

—There was no police court yesterday.

—The 57th band played a very choice selection of music at the park last night.

—The North Star had about one hundred down the river on her regular trip.

—The ice has ordered to be placed in the fountain near the town buildings is being put down.

—Peterborough walloped Port Hope at baseball by a score of 4 to 8. It was an exciting game.

—The weather is getting warm again, and we would not be surprised if we will have another torrid spell.

—Mr. George Chalmers has secured a considerable number of men to go to the north shore lumber camps.

—There seems to be a scarcity of laboring men in town, for Contractor Hayes cannot get men to do the excavating on his sewer work.

—The Imperial Piano Company wants a bonus of $15,000 from Cannington to establish a branch of their business in that town.

When you say your blood is impure and appetite poor you are admitting your need of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Being taking at once.

—The Peterborough golfers, who were to have played a match here with the Orillia club to-day, have asked that the game be postponed till later on in the season on account of the hot weather.

—The Nestor Manufacturing Company is preparing to move from Ingersoll. Besides Peterboro, Galt, St. Thomas, Woodstock and other places are trying to get the company to locate in their towns. It is a matter of how much a town will pay.

—The Lindsay Y. M. C. A. intend providing high-class entertainments for the people of that town during the coming winter. Five highly recommended American orchestral companies have been engaged to give weekly entertainments.

—Mr. H. Matthews, manager of the Matthews Co., picture frame manufacturers of Toronto tried to buy basswood lumber in Bracebridge last week, but could not get it less than $17 per m. In Toronto solid brick buildings now cost less than brick clad buildings on account of the price of lumber being so high.

—Mr. E. B. Edwards has received another communication from Mr. Bell, of the Grand Trunk Railway System, in reference to the forty-five minutes time between the arrival of the Lakefield train and the departure of the boat. The letter says that the boat will be ordered to leave thirty minutes after the arrival of trains.

—The Rathbun Co., are at present erecting a large sawmill at Bancroft, the material for which is being shipped from the Campbellford agency. The cars carrying the lumber will be the first to run over the new railway to Bancroft, the work of laying the rails having been finished only a few days ago. The new branch is an extension of the Central Ontario Railway from Ormsby to Bancroft, a distance of 16 miles.

A good thing was noticed in front of a certain hotel the other day. The proprietor and a guest were sitting side by side on the veranda, the guest amusing himself by whittling the arm of the chair he was sitting on. The proprietor took out his knife and started cutting buttons off the guest's vest. Two of them was cut off before the gentleman noticed it, when he immediately asked, "Say! what are you cutting the buttons off my clothes for?" The proprietor answered, "For the same reason you are cutting my chair—to pass away time."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

—Miss Minnie Erskine, town, is visiting friends in Lakefield.

—Mr. J. H. Brandon, Fenelon Falls, was in town yesterday.

—Mrs. W. H. Robertson and her little daughter, Miss Mattie, spent yesterday in town, and returned to Fenelon Falls, via Sturgeon Point.

Will Hold an Inquest.

Owing to the numerous street rumors that have been current since the recent drowning accident at Lindsay, County Crown Attorney Devlin has considered it advisable to issue a warrant to Coroner Poole to hold an inquest over the body of Julia Sharp, the victim of the accident. The body has been exhumed and a postmortem examination will take place and every effort will be made to either confirm the rumors or set them forever at rest. A verdict has not yet been reached.

Mr. R. S. Davidson Chosen.

The arbitrators appointed on the claim made by Mr. R. A. Morrow for damages to his property at the corner of Brock and George streets, by the lowering of the pavement levels, met this morning. Mr. John Carnegie is Mr. Morrow's arbitrator, and Mr. R. H. D. Hall represents the town. They chose Mr. R. S. Davidson as third arbitrator. The arbitration will meet for organization next week. Nothing has been done in the matter of the Bradburn claims.

Fishing.

Lakefield is the fisherman's paradise Says the News. It can knock the spots off any fishing ground in this part of the country. On Thursday of last week Dr. Baker and Mr. C. L. Rickell undertaker, (a suspicious looking team) wended their way to the river between locks 1 and 2 and after spending a few hours there, returned home with 24 bass, all beauties. The story of the catch would fill a good sized volume, and just mention fish to Charlie and he will proudly expand his chest and spin the yarn. They did not forget to mention that only for the law they would easily have caught three times the number. But they are law abiding citizens. On Friday Dr. Baker with Mr. J. W. Bowden, as a partner, went down to the same place and again brought home 24, as fine bass as you would wish to set your eyes on. And so we could continue telling of catches, but those two are a good sample.

THE CIVIC HOLIDAY.

Great Crowds Leave Town for the Day.

Peterborough's civic holiday was generally observed, business being almost entirely suspended. People went in crowds out of town, Stony Lake being the popular outing.

Court Littlejohn's excursion to Toronto and Niagara Falls, was well patronized.

The Oddfellows' trip to Kingston took about 300 to the Limestone city.

Two trains, one of ten and the other of six coaches, carried pleasure seekers to Lakefield, where the excursionists parted, for, while Court Stanley, A.O.F. had an excursion to McCracken's Landing and Stony Lake, St. Peter's Court C.O.F., had an excursion up the lakes on the Majestic. Stony Lake attracted the big crowds, the regatta being one of the drawing cards.

The trip down the river by the W.F.M. Auxiliary of St. Andrew's church was also patronized. They went to Highland Park to picnic, and some remained on the boat for the trip down the river.

A couple of ball games took place, one with the Juniors of Lindsay, resulting in a victory for the local boys by a score of 8 to 6 in the one game, and in the other the Kims of Ashburnham played the West Enders, in which the latter came out second best by a score of 17—10.

Situation Wanted.

We have a couple of domestic servants for whom good places are wanted. Times Employment Bureau, Peterborough.

A Coming Event.

The annual picnic in aid of St. Mary's church, will be held at South Beach, Young's Point on Labor Day, Sept. 3rd. Everything is in perfect order, for an excellent day's outing. Full particulars will appear later on.

To-Day's Picnic.

The annual excursion of the employees of the Stanley Piano Company will take place this afternoon to Stony Lake. Train will leave at 1 o'clock, returning at 10.30 p.m. This will be a splendid outing. The 57th Band will accompany the excursion.

The Cement Works.

Mr. J. Milbourn of the Lakefield Portland Cement Works says that the Works will be rushed right along, and in a short time building operations will be commenced. He will receive tenders up to Aug. 25th for 275 peeled live cedar poles, 35 feet long and not less than 7 inches in diameter at the top. Also for the supply of cedar or tamarac timber for 5000 railway ties. He also wants ten good axemen to clear out a road to Buckley's lake.

It is Useless Advertising.

Advertising schemes, without any virtue to recommend them, but pushed by some plausible and glibed-tongued canvasser, is the bane of every merchant in business. Such schemes, particularly when pushed by outsiders, who have no abiding place, and who may promise his customers a circulation of 10,000, but in nine cases out of ten the number will be nearer one thousand. Yet before the merchant is able to find out the fact he has paid for the work, and the advertising man has departed for some other town. Such a scheme is being worked by an outsider in town at the present moment, but he is receiving very little encouragement from wide-awake merchants, who recognize a good scheme when they see it, and patronize home newspapers.

A Grand Exposure.

Many of the provincial papers are announcing: "No papers next week—the editor and his staff will take his well-earned holiday." Yes, like fun they will. The editor will route the foreman and all the apprentices out early and work them late on into the night rushing out the township voters lists and the prize lists for the fall fair. That is the kind of holiday the staff will have, and if the junior apprentice does not seem busy enough he will be sent to work in the editor's garden. We have vowed to expose all such schemes as this.

"A Word to the Wise is Sufficient."

But some stubborn people wait until "down sick" before trying to ward off illness or cure it. The wise recognise in the word "Hood's" assurance of health.

For all blood troubles, scrofula, pimples, as well as diseases of the kidneys, liver and bowels, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the effective and faultless cure.

Blood Purifier—"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla, and find it beneficial for myself and baby. It purifies the blood and strengthens the system." MRS. HENRY WALL, Clinton, Ont.

Strength Builder—"Myself, wife and children have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla and it strengthened us. It relieved me of a lame back." DAVID MCGEORGE, caretaker, Colt Institute, Galt, Ont.

AUSTRIAN EMPEROR'S BIRTHDAY

His Majesty is Seventy Years of Age To-Day, Hale and Hearty.

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 18.—Francis Joseph, Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, is seventy years of age to-day. He is keeping his birthday in the strictest privacy. The Emperor has not been in particularly good health and there is some uneasiness about him. People fear to think of the consequences of his death. It might lead to the disruption of Austro-Hungary and serious international complications.

STONEY LAKE REGATTA.

The Result of the Sports on Civic Holiday.

FIGHTING GONTINUES IN THE CITY OF PEKIN

Prince Yung Prevented the Departure of the Empress Dowager From Pekin.

IMPERIAL COURT TRANSFERRED TO SHEN SI

Prince Ching the Person of Importance to Meet the Invaders—Probability that the Chinese Will still Continue to Resist.

Rome, August 19.
A despatch from Taku via Chesfoo, August 18, says,—Fighting continues in the streets of Pekin and the allies have bombarded the partt hat is still resisting. Prince Yung prevented the departure of the Empress Dowager.

London, August 20, 4.20 a.m
Rear Admiral Bruse cables the Admiralty from Chesfoo August 19, as follows,—Am informed on the authority of the Japanese that street fighting still continues in Pekin, part of which is on fire. Yang Sa prevented the Empress from leaving, and a last stand is now being made in the inner city, which is surrounded by the allies and being bombarded.

Brussels, Aug. 19.
The Belgian Foreign Office has received the following from Tien Tsin, via Chesfoo and Shanghai Aug. 18, — M. Ketels, Belgian Vice-Consul, confirms the report of the bombardment and the capture of New Chewang by the Russians.

London, Aug. 20. 4. a.m.
Rear Admiral Bruce's report fo the continual of fighting in Pekin puts a more serious aspect upon the Chinese situation than was generally expected here, it appears effectually to despose of all statements that the Empress Dowager had fled although circumstantial accounts of her departure continue to come from Shanghai. Despite defeat the Chinese are apparently resolved to make a desperate struggle not only in their ancient capital but also in other parts of the Empire. Chang Chi Tung Viceroy at Pankow and Liu Kunyi Viceroy at Nankin according to advices from Shanghai have threatened the Consuls that if the person of the Empress Dowager is not represented the will withdrawn from these present friendly attitude another Shanghai despatch announces the death of Li Ping Heng Chang Lui Lin in the fighting before Pekin. The mandarins in the Southern province according to despatch to the Daily Express from Hong Kong issued an important proclamation recognizing the capture of Pekin as a just punishment of reactionary officials and warning the people not to interfear with foreigners, but also pointing out that the sole object of the powers should be the punishment of boxers and then the restoration of peace, confining, however, these operations to the north Emperor. Nichols has wired to Gen. Linvitch commander of the Russian troops in the province of Pechihic Congratulating him heartily upon the rapid capture of Pekin and bestowing upon him the thire class order of St George. The Russian also thanks Vice Admiral Alexeff and the heroic Siberian troops.

Gen. Grouff, Russian commander of the Amur Government, reports to the Russian War Orrice that Chingan pass was captured August 16, after a bloody battle, in which the Chinese suffered heavily, losing four or five guns. The Russian cavalry were in pursuit of the enemy. The principal Russian papers, notably the Novoc Vremiza, commenting upon the victory at Pekin declare that Russia should go no further in participating in common armed intervention, but should unite her military action to the frontier and the Manchurian railroad.

CHINESE COURT FLED TO SHEN SI.

London, Aug. 18.—The second edition of the Daily Telegraph publishes a special despatch from Shanghai which says.—

"The allies entered Pekin unopposed and met with a friendly reception from Prince Ching. All the hostile elements have already escaped from the city. The Imperial Court left for Sehn Si on August 11, with the Manchus. The Kausu troops have gone southwast with the object of drawing off the allies and preventing them from following the Court."

STORY OF THE ATTACK.

Tokio, Aug. 17.—General Yamaguchi wires from Pekin under date of August 16, as follows.—

"The allies attacked Pekin early yesterday, opening with artillery on the eastern side. The wall was obstinately held by the enemy. The Japanese and the Russians were on the northward of the Tung Chow Canal. The Americans and the British were on the south side. At nightfall the Japanese blew Aup the tow eastern gates of the Tartar city entered.

"In the meantime the Americans and the British had entered the Chinese city by the Tung Pien gates. Detachments of each force were sent towards the legations. The parties met near thel egations and opened communication. All the Ministers and their staffs were found safe. The Japanese loss was over 100 killed, including three officers. The losses of the allies have not been ascertained. Four hundred Chinese were kille."

London, August 18.—Beyond full confirmation of the occupation of Pekin with additional details of the memorable event, there is no new development in the Chinese crisis. Previous statements that the occupation of the Chinese capital was accomplished without resistance are modified by recent despatches, which make it appear that the Chinese waged a final battle before the walls of the city, which was not entered until the Japanese, who were in the forefront of the advance, had blown upt wo of the city gates. It is also certain that the Empress Dowager and the Imperial Court with the troops which are supporting the Chinese Government, effected a withdrawalt o Shen Si five days before the European entry. This gives an impression that the Chinese Government still maintains an attitude of hostility to the powers and intends to continue the fight. The complacency of Prince Ching, the only person of importance who met the allies upon their entrance can only be accounted for by the hope of that gentleman that he may draw from the crisis advantages for himself and his son, the heir apparent, whom he perhaps, already sees upon the throne, supported by the foreigners.

THE GATES DEMOLISHED.

Shanghai, August 18.—The general attack on Pekin began August 15, in the morning. The enemy obstinately resisted. The same evening the Japanese demolished the Chan Lang and Tong Chi gates and entered the capital. The other armies entered by the Tong Quien gate. They sent detachments at once to the Legations, where the Ministers were found safe.

FLED DURING THE NIGHT.

New York, Aug. 18—The allies reached Pekin on Tuesday night, and attacked the city Wednesday morning, the Chinese having opposed their communicating with the Ministers, says a Cheefoo cable to the Herald.

Tung Chow was captured by the allies on Monday morning, and they advanced within eight miles of Pekin. The enemy fled the night before. The Japanese took the arsenal and seized fifty thousand koku of rice.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING,

Death of Mrs. Arthur Dewdney, of North Harvey

The Bobcaygeon Independent gives the following particulars of the sad death of a Harvey lady who is well known in town.

A terrific storm burst over the northeast part of Harvey at three o'clock on Thursday morning. At that time Mr. Arthur Dewdney was awakened by the storm, and there were in the house besides his wife, two daughters, a son, and two young men from Peterborough, who were spending a holiday with him, Messrs. Henry Roberts and John Cox. Mr. Dewdney noticed that his wife was still asleep and he was about to rise and see if all was right about the house, when he felt a frightful shock, as if he had been struck by a heavy stone on the head. For a few moments he was helpless, though quite conscious, and as soon as he received power to move he found that Mrs. Dewdney, lying beside him, had been instantly killed. The fatal fluid had passed down her side, leaving a scorched mark. The flash had struck the chimney and followed down the stove pipes, scattering them in all directions. From the stove it passed through the floor, splintering several feet of it in its passage to the ground. The two young men were badly shocked, Mr. Roberts being seriously shaken, and Mr. Dewdney for a time had fears for his recovery.

Mrs. Dewdney was aged 57, and leaves a family of three daughters and two sons. She came from England with Mr. Dewdney, and was a lady highly esteemed by all with whom she was acquainted.

After a Tramp.

Yesterday a telephone message was received at police headquarters stating that a tramp was doing some begging. Chief Rossel and P. C. McGinty started after the Willie, and after considerable hunting, found him in the rear of Mr. Charlie Hartley's, McDonnell street, enjoying a quiet meal, which Miss Hartley set out to him. He was allowed to finish his repast, after which he was run in.

JOHN BULL GETS TIRED OF THE WAR

The Escape of De Wet a Very Serious Matter.

STERN MEASURES NOW TO BE USED

The Boer General is Said to Have at Least Ten Thousand Men—He Must be Captured and His Army Dispersed, at all Costs.

London, Aug. 20.—The way the South African war drags out wears upon Englishmen, and no news would be so welcome as that some well-wisher of the Transvaal and convinced President Kruger that nothing in Europe or China will make Great Britain relax her ever-tightening grip on South Africa. Everybody in the army or who has anything to do with it in South Africa wants to come home and is heartily sick of the whole thing. But, knowing that it must go on to a finish, the dregs of war are having some bitterness. The plot to kill British officers at Pretoria is taken in England as showing the savage temper of the Boers, while the British are reported to be doing something which are provoking adverse comment in Great Britain. Thus the Standard prints a Pretoria despatch, dated August 9, saying. 'The Boers sniped a train at Bronkhurst yesterday, on the line between Pretoria and Middleburg. Two of the occupants were wounded. In accordance with Lord Roberts' warning, all the farms were fired within a radius of ten miles.

DE WET'S ESCAPE

Gen. De Wet has now fully 10,000 men under his command, and it will take a formidable effect to subdue him. He is forcing recruits wherever he goes, so that many who have taken the oath of neutrality are again fighting with him. Lord Roberts has issued drastic orders to punish all such persons when caught.

KITCHENER STILL PURSUES

Lord Roberts is pursuing De Wet with his accostomed vigor, and will bring him to bay shortly, when a decisiev battle will have to be fought.

ANNUAL EXCURSION.

The Employees of the Stanley Piano Company Excursion to Stoney Lake.

On Saturday last the employees of the Stanly Piano Company enjoyed a half holiday, and excurted to Stony Lake.

At about 1.30 o'clock the employees, neatly decked out in yachting caps, and headed by the 57th regimental band, marched up George street. A large banner bearing the words, "Stanley Piano Co." preceded the procession and the men marched to the station via George, Hunter and Alymer streets and they were the subject of favourable comment on their general appearance.

The excursion was liberally patronised, five coaches being comfortably filled. A most enjoyable time was spent.

ENGLAND WILL BE REPAID

For Her Enormous Expenditure in Connection With the South African War.

London, Aug 20.—The end of the South African war is now in sight, and the future of the Transvaal rests entirely with the British government. Such fighting as is still going on is mainly guerilla, which, while it may cause some trouble, cannot be regarded seriously. The back of the resistance is undoubtedly broken. It could not be otherwise. I believe the Boers are only lengthening out their resistance because of fear of what may happen to them when they surrender. Once the people feel assured that no terrible results will follow surrender, they will bow to the inevitable.

The British government has doubtless its plans prepared for what is to follow the conquest of the Transvaal. Judging from what happened after the conquest of the Free State, it may be assumed that the Transvaal will be annexed to the British Empire. If that is so, we shall see a period of development in every line such as the world has never witnessed before. People in Europe and America has no idea of potential riches of the Transvaal, riches that as yet have been barely scratched. It has a territory twice the size of France, and a territory that possesses mineral and agricultural wealth unequaled by any land of its size anywhere.

Up to now, the development of the Transvaal has barely begun to open up a land. you must have railways. Great stretches of gold-bearing land have remained untouched because it was impracticable to bring machinery to work them. The first great step in the expansion of the Transvaal will be the building of railways in all directions. Many companies will be floated, many lines built, and millions in rolling stock and plant will be sent out there

With the building of railways will come a development of the coal fields. The Transvaal is one of the richest coal territories on earth. On British properties we have great seams of coal running parellel with the seams of gold, and we have already worked our coal to some extent.. But these seams of coal are running all over the land. they are at any easy depth to work and will give an unlimited supply of very cheap fuel.

Abundant transit and cheap fuel must mean the beginning of other mining apart from gold. There are extraordinary amounts of copper in the northern parts of the Transvaal, literally mountains of copper as well as silver, cobalt, lead and diamond mines.

But the growth of the Transvaal (still assuming that the British govern,ent annexes) is not going to be only a mining development. Farming will progress, too During the past few years many agricutturalists have made fortunes by farming there. They have secured land and have largely gone in for stock raising and sheep breeding with the most profitable results.

If the British government takes over the Transvaal it will come into possession of great expanses of real estate. All over the territory there are enormous stetches of state lands, the same as the common lands in England. Well-wooded, well-watered, mountains and valleys, with rivers running through them and fountains springing up, it is hardly possible to exaggerate their value. such state lands form admirable centres for the government to parcel out to immigrants in the country, if it wishes, for the purpose of tilling the land and raising the stock. These state lands are also highly auriferous, and gold and other minerals will be found in large quantities upon them..

In the past all that has been done in the Transvaal has been accomplished in the face of very great difficulties. Permission has been refused to build necessary railways, and enterprise has been checked on ever yhand. Hence most of the growth has been around Johannesburg, where every one has lived on the gold mines. In the future the developmnet will be more evenly scattered all over the country. You have seen nothing like what is now coming. Given a fair chance, the fertility and resources of the dominions are such that not only, in a few years, will millions find employment there, but the increase of trade and the demand for manufactures will bring fresh prosperity to the land.

The Dutch and English are going to live together in South Africa in unity. That is as sure as that two and two make four. The Boers will quickly recognize the inevitable logic of events. They have fought splendidly,—who will deny it? They are recognizing that they have failed, and once they recognize this, thye will peacefully submit to British rule. When they find that British rule means impartial justice, incorruptible government, and an ignoring orracial issues, their misapprehensions will fade away The Boer farmer will find that when he comes before the court against an Englishmsn, the English judge does not look to who is English or, who is Dutch, but regards merely the facts of the case.

The whole history of the Dutch people in South Africa since England finally annexed the Cape in 1806 is proof that Dutch and English do combine. Once the heads of disaffection in the republic are made harmless, much of the trouble of to-day will disappear.

It will be the wise policy of England, once the Transvaal is annexed, to deal very generously and leninetly with the Dutch, and not only the Dutch of the republics, but even the rebels of Natal and the Cape. No finer pioneers are to be found on this earth. I know what they can do in opening up a land, and none can compare with them. They can ignore hardships that would kill many Europeans.

The form of government must be a crown colony for the time being. To make it an annex, or in any way a dependency, of Natal or the Cape, would be fatal. Let there be an administrator, or lieutenant governor, working under the high commissioner, who of course, will be at Cape Town. But the States will only have to do with the high commissioner in his position as high commissioner, not as governor of Cape Colony. Then there should be an executive of twelve members, of whom four or five should be chosen from among the most important and inflential Boers in the Transvaal and the Free State. The remaining seven or eight will, of course, be men whom the Imperial Government selects.

Under some such system as this, the whole administration of the country will work very smoothly. The Boers will see that England intends to act fairly towards them, that they are not to be put aside and trampled upon.

It is amusing to see the things that have been said from time to time about the cost of the war. The expense is a mere bagatelle in comparison with the value of the new territories.

LORD ROBERTS HAS WARNED THE BOERS

Garrison at Eland's River Lost 12 Men Killed and 58 Wounded in Resisting Boers.

ESCAPE OF DE WET OFFICIALLY CONFIRMED

Lord Roberts Says the Boer Leader Broke up His Force into Small Bands and Eluded his Pursuers—French and Buller are Acting Against Machadodorp.

Pretoria, Aug 19
Lord Roberts' proclamation, after reciting the factt hat many have broken the oath to maintain neutrality and that the leniency extended the burghrs is not appreciated warned all who break the oath in the future thatt hey will be punished by death, imprisonment or fine. He declares that all burghers in districts occupied by the British except those who take the oath will be regarded as prisoners of war and transported, and that buildings on farms where the enemy or his scouts are harbored will be liable to be razed.

London, Aug. 18.—The British in South Africa and the Americans in the Philippines are encountering somewhat similar luck in their warlike undertakings. At the end of ten months the Boer war is still unfinished, and recent events seem to show that it will break out with renewed activity. The Boers are indeed upholding the reputation of their fighting ancestors and are proving as dogged and preserving as the English themselves might do under similar circumstances. The escape of General De Wet is now admitted by General Roberts, who adds that the Boers guerilla eluded Kitchener and Methuan by breaking his force into small bands thus creating confusion on the British side and causing the trail to be lost. Kitchener, indeed, appears on Wednesday last to have dropped the pursuit he has so fruitlessly waged for weeks past, and to have made a divergence to the Elnds River Valley in order to relieve Colonel Hoare, who, with a small isolated garrison, has long and gallantly held the Boers at bay. De Wet is now in the vicinity of Rustenberg, the town west of Pretoria which has had so many vicissitudes is being captured and recaptured by the contending forces. The future movements of De Wet and Delarey, who are now together, are a matter of much speculation. Rustenberg they occupy a position of great strategic advantage, being in the rear of Lord Roberts should he attempt to advance eastward against Botha at Machadrop. As they have 7,000 men it is almost certain that they will endeavor to hold the district as long as possible, and make us of it to hamper the further operations of Lord Roberts who is still in the position he occupied when Pretoria was captured, with the Boers on all hands.

SURPRISED A BOER LAAGER

Pietermaritzburg, Aug. 14.—Geneal Buller is taking stern measures to prevent the prosecution of surrendered burghers.

Recently Field Cornet Delango, on the main road to Vrede, carried off three neutrals. General Buller demanded their surrender, which was refused.

Sheraupen, Major Gough, with mounted infantry, four guns, and two pompoms, supported by infantry from Standerton, surprised Delange and 300 Boers in laager in the early morning. The laager was shelled and the enemy scatered in all directions, several being killed.

Major Gough also seized a number of cattle and burned Delange's house to the ground. There were no casualties on the British side.

THEY LAUGHED AT KRUGER.

Lorenzo Marques, Aug. 18.—A Hollander who is returning to Europe after fighting with the Boers says they are not worth assisting. Burghers are leaving, he says, for their homes in batches of ten and twenties, and those left are either loafi ngor carousing at Machadodorp. They are mostly Frenchmen, Germans, Hollanders and Irish who are now at the front.

Mr. Kruger, after visiting his burhhers at Machadodrop, issued another proclamation, exhorting the Boers to "stand fast and fight well," and to lure the "enemy within rifle range and shoot him down." In this way, he says, they will ultimately triumph, and retain their independence. The document asks "help from the Lord." then follow several Bible quotations.

It is reported that the burghers now receive these periodical religious manifestoes with laughter. Botha is said to have replied t oit to the effect that the proclamation was unnecessary, and thatt he burghers would fight together. He boastingly asserts that he will not surrender like Cronje.

PRISONERS TREADED BADLY.

Lorenso Marques, Aug. 18 Dr. Willis, of the First Mounted Infantry, who was wounded at Zoffey Spruit, southeast of Pretoria, and taen prisoner on July 16, and brought to Nooitgedacht, was released yesterday along with his orderly. Pte. Parker. Both of them have reached here.

There are 1,775 men and 30 officers at Nooitgedacht. Colonel Roberts is the senior officer. About 70 of the men are sick.

Dr. Willis declared solemnly that the Boers are treating their prisoners infamously. The men are only allowed three pounds of mealie meal, with one and a half pounds of flour, weekly. Those who have money may purchase food, but otherwise they go without it. Many of them are in an emaciated condition

Sailor was Drowned While Intoxicated

"Liverpool Andy" Fell off the Dock at the Foot of Jarvis Street.

FRIEND DROWNED IN SAME PLACE

His Companion Went to Bed and Did Not Take the Trouble to Try and Save Him

Toronto, Aug. 18.—A sailor named Andrew Hughes, better known among his acquaintances as "Liverpool Andy," was drowned last night at the foot of Jarvis street under the following rather peculiar circumstances,—

Deceased, who worked for Capt. Geo. Blowers, of the stone hooker Coral, had gone ashore early in the evening, and, in company with one John Hunter, of the scooner Abecore, had indulged with considerable freedom in strong drink. About 11.30 o'clock, Hughes decided to return to the Coral, and his comrade went with him. The two reached the wharf where the stone hooker lay, and Hunter got down on the deck to aid Hughes, who was apparently more incapacitated, to pass down too. Hunter grasped his companion by the legs and tried to land him on the deck, but both men fell into the water instead. Hunter managed to save himself and crawl up the wharf, but Hughes sank at the very spot where, exactly two weeks before, his friend William Saddler was drowned. Hunter apparently saw no reason to hurry or attempt t o save the other man, for he went to bed and slept until morning. He then reported the matter to the police, and ex-constable Williams was directed to drag for the body. It did not take him long to recover it, and it now lies at the morgue, where an inquest takes place this afternoon under Coroner Young.

A peculiar incident about the tragedy is the fact that Hughes, as intimated above, was drowned at the very spot where his friend Saddler sank. The former felt the death of the latter keenly, and in his memory planted some geraniums at an adjoining post.

Gen Hunter's Loss Was a Heavy One

Three of Highland Light Infantry Killed and 33 Wounded.

AND AFTER A FORCED MARCH

Colonel Hoare is Relieved and British Garrison at Elands is Safe.

London, Aug. 18.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Gen. Roberts,—

"Pretoria, Aug. 17—Hunter's engagement on August 15 was a bigger affair than he led me to suppose in his first telegram. Three of the Highland Light Infantry were killed and 33 wounded. Seven others of the corps were also wounded. One is missing. A lieutenant died of his wounds.

"I much fear that De Wet has managed to elude his pursuers, by, I imagine, breaking up his force into small bodies. He was last heard of near Rustenburg.

"Kitchener's latest despatch is dated August 15.—He reportedt hat he was pressing to Hoare's assistance from the southeast.

"Carrington was yesterday at Ottoshoop, a little east of where Erroll's Yeomanry was engaged with the enemy."

Gen. Hunter's action mentioned in Gen. Roberts' despatches has not been previously reported. It is presumed that he had an engagement with Gen. Olivier south of Heilbron.

Lord Kitchener, after a forced march, has relieved Col. Hoare and the British garrison at Eland's River.

INCONSOLABLE.

Is the Mother of Lieutenant Cornwallis West.

Paris, August 20.—The mother of Lieut. Cornwallis-West remains since her son's marriage strictly confined to her room at the hotel Ritz, denying all attempts at an interview.

Attendants say she spends her time alternately in weeping bitterly and in mad imprecations against Lady Randolph.

THE PARTITION OF CHINA.

In the Nineteenth Century Review Mr. Henry Norman makes some interesting suggestions for the settlement of Chinese affairs after the present disturbances are suppressed. He takes the ground that the Empress Dowager should be deposed and deported and the Emperor replaced upon the throne to rule by the advice of a Council of Chinese Ministers acting under the control of a council of representatives of the Powers. The whole of China must be thrown open to foreign trade. The Empire should be divided into a number of spheres under the direction of the Powers, each Power undertaking to keep order in its own sphere. Every power should enter into a formal engagement with all the others that no duties beyond those agreed upon by all should be levied, that no preferential or differential railway rates should be imposed in its sphere, that no force should be raised beyond that necessary to keep order, and that all matters of intercommunication should be decided by the council of foreign representatives. He thinks England should ask the United States to address a communication to the Powers simultaneously with herself in this sense, but he says the UnitedStates probably would not desire a sphere of their own, but that the Americans would be in the same position as the other Powers in the general control. If America should ever desire to relieve herself of special responsibility in the Philippines, these islands could be included in the Chinese union as the American sphere.

The suggestion may commend itself to those Americans who are opposed to the annexation of the Philippines and are puzzled to know what to do with them.

Demetrius C. Bouliger, writing to the North American Review on "America's share in a Partition of China," makes almost precisely the same suggestion. "Each power," he says, "would accept the responsibility of maintaining order, security and freedom of trade, besides other treaty rights within its sphere,and in the first place there would be little or no interference with the existing Chinese administration or system of laws. Partition would not necessary mean conquest, and it is probable that the Chinese themselves would cre te, with very little guidance suffice for all practical purposes."

But Mr. Bouliger thinks the Americans must have a sphere in China on the same conditions as the other powers. He says an ideal arrangement would be a joint Anglo-American sphere, but he is sure public opinion in the United States would not sanction such an arrangement, and he therefore proposes that the Province of Che Keang should be the American sphere.

If these suggestions for the Government of China would be carried out it would practically mean a federal union of Chinese states under the direction of the Powers.

A Record in Blood.

The record of Hood's Sarsaparilla is literally written in the blood of millions of people to whom it has given good health. It is all the time curing diseases of the stomach, nerves, kidneys and blood, and it is doing good every day to thousands who are taking it for poor appetite, tired feeling and general debility. It is the best medicine money can buy.

Hood's Pills are non-irritating. Price 25 cents.

FOOLED THE SOLDIER BOY.

Not Used to Feminine Ways That Are Dark and Tricky.

One of the soldier boys swung along in the parade with a heart far heavier than his gun, and as he passed a balcony on the avenue and saw a pretty girl and a repulsively well-dressed man there, he scowled fiercely. Last fall it was far otherwise. He smiled whenever he saw the girl, and the repulsively well-dressed man hadn't dawned yet. Last spring the soldier sacrificed two buttons from his blouse and had them made into hatpins for that girl. Two weeks ago he sat near her at the theatre, and when she removed her hat he saw that it had been pinned on with a turquoise fleur de lis and an enameled violet. The military buttons were not there. The girl had promised to wear them forever and ever.

The soldier boy went home and wrote her the witheringest note you can imagine. He told her that as she no longer cared for him she could no longer value the button hatpins, and that he'd like them back again. Of course, he put in a number of other remarks, some of them general, referring to the sex, and others specific and referring to her and to her conduct. She's a nice girl and an amiable girl, but that note was too much for her to endure. She sent a man servant with her answer:

"My Dear Mr. Skaggs: I would be very glad to return the hatpins you ask for, but I cannot tell which ones they are. They are all so alike that I am not at all sure which ones you gave me, but I send you what I have, and you can pick out yours. Very sincerely. FRANCES."

And that's why the soldier boy scowled. Being a mere man, he didn't even dream that six of the hatpins were borrowed.—Washington Post.

AN EXPIRIMENT IN LOVE.

It Cost the Bachelor a Wedding Present but He Was Satisfied.

Themoirs lifted his chin from his chest and his eyes from the toe of his shoe and sighed dolefully.

"I don't believe she'll have me," he said for the some dozenth time.

I smoked on.

"Why should she?" he asked, argumentatively.

"Why?" I asked, reflectively.

Tremoirs glanced at me. "What can she see in me?" he demanded.

"True," I replied; "what?"

Tremoirs regarded me doubtfully. "It's crass presumption in me to dare to love her," he asserted.

I nodded an enthusiastic assent.

Tremoirs glared at me for a full minute. "She is so lovely and pure and—and beautiful, that for a rough, crabbed, worldly fellow like me to marry her seems like an insult," he said.

"It is," I agreed.

"Confound you!" cried Tremoirs, hotly. "I'm as good as you are."

"Undoubtedly," I observed, in as sarcastic a tone as I could manage.

"And I'll propose to her this very night, if you do think I'm too big a scoundrel to" Tremoirs announced, bitterly, as he hastily departed.

Well, I suppose I'm out a wedding present, but I've proved my theory, which is that the self-abnegation lovers indulge in is simply unconscious hypocrisy.—Puck.

Root and Branch.

Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough, was accustomed to make an annual feast, to which she invited all her relations. At one of these family meetings she drank their health, adding, "What a glorious sight it is to see such a number of branches flourishing from one root!" But observing Jack Spencer laugh, she insisted on knowing what had occasioned his mirth, and promised to forgive him, be it what it would.

"Why, then, madam," said he, "I was thinking how much more the branches would flourish if the root were under ground."

No Ill Feeling.

An Atchison woman discovered recently that she had been slighted by failure to get an invitation to a party. In order feeling toward the hostess, she intends to go anyway.—Atchison Globe.

A Railway Incident

Last evening an amusing accident occurred as the Midland train was leaving Sunderland for Blackwater, says the Lindsay Post. A small, pretty Poland Jewess seemed quite excited and called through the window of the car to her husband that the youngest child was missing. On enquiry it was learned that they had come to this country from Poland two years ago, and located in Vroomanton. They had made arrangements to remove to Havelock. The Jewess with six children were to go by G.T.R. to Toronto, thence by C. P. R. to Havelock, and her husband was to drive across the country with the horse and buggy. The children were bright, intelligent, neatly-dressed and clean. On arrival at Blackwater the conductor telephoned to Sunderland and it was learned the child had got frightened at the locomotive and had hidden somewhere about the station. The father had gone up to the village thinking it was there, the child all the time being at the station. The mother and five other children returned by the next train to get the lost one.

The White Man's Burden

can be named in the single word—dyspepsia. It is the one disease, which more than any other, affects the American people. It is common to all classes and all conditions. It makes life miserable. It mars family happiness. It interferes with business and pleasure alike, and it discounts a man's usefulness just as much as it discounts his happiness.

There's a remedy for dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has lifted this burden from the bodies of hundreds of thousands. It cures ninety-eight out of every hundred who give it a fair and faithful trial.

"I used ten bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and several vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets' a year ago this spring, and have had no trouble with indigestion since," writes Mr. W. T. Thompson, of Townsend, Broadwater Co., Montana. "Words fail to tell how thankful I am for the relief, as I had suffered so much and it seemed that the doctors could do me no good. I got down in weight to 125 pounds, and was not able to work at all. Now I weigh nearly 160 and can do a day's work on the farm. I have recommended your medicine to several, and shall always have a good word to say for Dr. Pierce and his medicines."

Free. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. It contains 1008 pages and over 700 illustrations. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for cloth binding to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

TELEGRAPH LINE TO TURKEY.

Sultan Orders Construction of System Between India and Constantinople.

Vienna, Aug. 16.—It is announced from Constantinople that the Sultan has ordered the immediate completion of arrangements for the establishment of a direct telegraphic connection between India and the Turkish capital. Formerly the line was via Fao, on the extreme outer edge of the Bassorah Gulf, at the head of the Gulf of Persia, but this route could not be maintained, and the messages have been sent for a long time by the English and Russian cables via Persia.

LINE WILL DIVIDE AT BAGDAD.

According to the new plan Fao will be connected by wire with Bagdad, and thence two lines, one over Aleppo and the other over Diabekir, will lead to Constantinople.

This system, which will cost between 30,000 and 40,000 Turkish pounds, is to be begun immediately, and it is estimated the rate will be 50 per cent cheaper than by the present route.

SAY SULTAN'S HEALTH IS GOOD

The report has been spread that the Sultan was seriously ill, but authoritative assurance comes from Constantinople tonight that the report is devoid of all foundation and that he is in his usual health.

GREAT PACIFIC TEA CO.,
1464 St. Catherine St.,
Montreal, Que.

THIS DOG HAD TRAVELED.

He Had Also Been in Touch With Royalty Such as it Was.

There were several sincere mourners at a funeral that took place at Lowell last week. There was a little coffin, and in it a traveler who in his day had been in touch with royalty. The body in the coffin was that of a dog, born thirteen years ago under the shade of the trees near the royal residence in the Sandwich Islands. The dog was a rat-and-tan, and Mrs. John D. Gilmore of 431 Central street owned him. Mrs. Gilmore was for years connected with the Dominis household in Honolulu. She knew all the black kings and queens for twenty years or more. The dog was a great favorite with Queen Emma, and the dethroned Queen Lil often patted Denny, the dog, on the head and held him in her arms. Denny had made the trip between San Francisco and Honolulu four times with his mistress, and he has crossed the continent between Lowell and San Francisco four times. Mrs. Gilmore was a stewardess on the Pacific steamers after she left the Honolulu court and the dog accompanied her on all her travels for the past thirteen years. He was known to many people in different cities and to railroad men he was a familiar figure. For some time past Denny suffered from heart failure. He fainted frequently and his vigor diminished. Mrs. Gilmore tried to prolong his life because she was very much attached to him and because of his great intelligence. Yesterday morning she was hurrying up stairs when Denny ran after her and barked a warning, a trick Mr. Gilmore had taught him to perform when Mrs. Gilmore hurried. It was his last bark. Immediately he fell down and it was seen that he was dying. The dog did not last long after that. It does not matter where the grave is. The dead dog was dressed in his best blanket and his newest collar, and the coffin that holds his little body is marked with his name and age. Mrs. Gilmore, in telling a reporter about the funeral, said: "This dog has been with me constantly for thirteen years, over thousands of miles of sea and land, in rough storms and in various hard places. Some people may think I am foolish to feel so badly over his death but I can't help it. I am sorry he is dead, and by burying his body in a safe place, so that there may be no danger of the bone man getting him, I do only what I consider proper."

What Can You Offer.

Geologists believe Greenland to be a mass of land nearly covered by perpetual snow, with interlacing glaciers of vast extent. Of the character of soil thus hidden from the sight and use of man little is known, but ages hence, through the marvelous processes and forces of nature this great covering of ice and snow may disappear, the frigid cold be tempered, populous cities arise and the seeds scattered by the tiller of the soil return abundant harvests. Man may learn lessons from nature every day, and in them find the knowledge of how to move and triumph in his own little sphere. Nature buries no talents; though she sometimes hides them, she still uses and multiplies them away from the weak sight of puny mortals. It is not a step from the sublime to the ridiculous to apply the teachings of nature to the affairs of men. To the workman in the mill, to the statesman in the forum, and to the merchant in the mart these lessons come to point out the pathways to success; and to achieve the latter all the powers of man must be employed and displayed, for the world must know what each individual can offer for its benefit. To achieve results men may labor in the dark; but mankind must have the achievements, whether they be those of the inventor or of the merchant with his well stocked emporium

Crow and Chameleon.

A few days ago the vacant ground in Monastery Road Quarter, opposite to U Shwe Tha's house, was the scene of an interesting fight between a crow and a chameleon. A smart shower of rain caused the insects of which chameleons are so fond to come out from their holes, and when the rain abated a chameleon came down from a tree close by and began to make havoc among the insects. At the same time a crow came there, and while devouring his hearty meal like the chameleon came in contact with the latter, and a battle ensued. The crow, not daring to attack his enemy face to face, pecked the latter's tail, and he in return received a smart bite somewhere about the neck from the reptile. Thus the battle continued for about half an hour with varying success, in which the chameleon showed the more intrepidity. The crow never atacked his enemy in the face, but always pecked the tail, and by this means at an opportunity he carried away his courageous enemy, with a "caw! caw!" of triumph.

Power of Krag-Jorgensen

County Clery Morgan of Bedford county, Kentucky has the Krag-Jorgensen gun which his brother Harry brought from Porto Rico. The gun is guaranteed to the government to shoot accurately 1,800 yards, but it will shoot three or four miles. Mr. Morgan, with several others, tested the shooting qualities of this death-dealer the other day. They went down in a valley back of Bedford and fired at a black locust tree six feet in circumference, the ball going through, struck a rock on the side of the hill a glancing lick, and went two or three feet in the ground. It was also fired at a solid sycamore tree much larger than the locust, with the same result.

A good thing was noticed in front of a certain hotel the other day. The proprietor and a guest were sitting side by side on the veranda, the guest amusing himself by whittling the arm of the chair he was sitting on. The proprietor took out his knife and started cutting buttons off the guest's vest. Two of them was cut off before the gentleman noticed it, when he immediately asked, "Say! what are you cutting the buttons off my clothes for?" The proprietor answered, "For the same reason you are cutting my chair—to pass away time."

WENT HOME TO DIE!

Had Bright's Disease of the Kidneys and was Under Treatment in a City Hospital, Where the Best Medical Skill Failed to Effect a cure.

CURED WITH "OZONE"

Began Using the New Treatment and Marvelous Results Followed—78 Pounds of Water Taken From the System in 30 Days—The Dying Man of a Few Months Ago Well and Strong To-Day.

MR. G. W. McCARTHY.

Mr. G. W. McCarthy's testimony regarding his recovery:

He says: "With the greatest gratitude I give my testimonial of the wonderful curative properties of Powley's Liquified Ozone, and of what it had done for me. On the 6th day of June, 1899, I was obliged to stop work, owing to the severe nature of my illness. I had employed four different doctors up to the 4th of August, without receiving any material benefit, and was finally advised to go to St. Michael's Hospital, where I remained for two months. All this time my disease, which was Bright's disease of the kidney's, gained ground until the best medical skill felt that nothing more could be done for me. I had been tapped, but no water could be drawn from me. I was taken home and recommended to try Powley's Liquified Ozone. The first dose helped me, and after its continuance for thirty days the peculiar action of the Ozone took 78 pounds of water from my system. I have been steadily gaining ground, until now I am in good health, and feel I am going to have a new lease of life. There is not the slightest doubt but that I would have been in my grave had it not been for Powley's Liquified Ozone. I will gladly answer any questions as to what Ozone has done for me."

(Signed) G. W. McCarthy,
103 Pape Ave. Toronto.

Note — Since the above testimonial was given Mr. McCarthy states in a personal interview that he was visited during his illness by Rev. Mr. Hill, of Woodgreen Tabernacle, and Rev. Mr. Atkinson, of Oak Street Presbyterian Church, the latter gentleman regarding his condition so serious as to suggest arranging about his life insurance. He has also recovered sufficiently to enable him to resume work again with the Toronto Electric Light Company.

Renewed the Grudge.

Even an old sore will give its owner a twinge if it is roughly handled, says the Youth's Companion. Two elderly men met at a reception one evening, and after they had been introduced to each other, one of them said:

"I beg pardon, Mr. Yarty, but are you related to the family of that name who lived in Plattston about fifty years ago?"

"I am a member of the identical family," replied the other. "I resided there myself fifty years ago."

"Then you are Columbus Yarty?"

"Yes."

"I am delighted to meet you again. Do you remember Wesley Weston, with whom you played when a little boy?"

"Surely! Are you he?"

"I am."

They shook hands again, and after a little pause Mr. Weston said:

"You remember we had a quarrel about something or other the last time we met, and you pushed me over into a tan-vat and ruined a suit of clothes for me?"

"Yes, I remember it very well. Ha! ha!"

"Ha! ha! We can afford to laugh at it now, but it was a serious matter to me then. I have thought of it many times since and made up my mind long ago that if we ever met again I would tell you freely and fully forgive you for the mean little trick."

"But as I remember it, you were entirely to blame in the matter."

"Not at all. I hadn't done anything to you. However, as I said before, I don't hold any spite over it now. I forgive you——"

"But I don't want your forgiveness, sir! I won't have it! I told you——"

"Sir!"

"Sir! Good evening, sir!"

"Good evening!"

And the grudge of fifty years ago resumed business, so to speak, at the old stand.

A Good Method.

Entomologists have been studying the question of the best means of getting rid of mosquitoes, and have come to the conclusion that the best method is to pour kerosene oil on water where the pests breed. They say that the mosquito lays its eggs early in the morning in still water. The eggs hatch in about sixteen hours, and the larvae immediately seek the surface of the water, for they must have air. If they cannot rise to the surface they are drowned. This is why covering the surface of the water with oil is recommended.

BUSINESS PROGRESSION.

Our business is one of progress and success. No need to enlarge on our dispensing facilities; this department is run on correct principles; promptness and accuracy are our mottoes. We are daily renewing and assorting our stock of Perfumes, Atomizers, Sponges, Brushes, Combs and Toilet goods; no old stock; prices always the lowest.

Come to us for the genuine—the kind that cures. Ormond & Walsh, Druggists, Peterborough, Ont.

They Like Our Lakes.

On Saturday last Dr. Leffingwell and Messrs. John T. Holmes and C. H. Beatty, from Pennsylvania, dropped in to the Times. They were accompanied by Mr. Harvey Thompson, the genial and popular proprietor of the Rockland House, Bobcaygeon, who has charge of the party. The visitors are making Bobcaygeon their headquarters, from which point they make frequent excursions up and down the waters. Mr. Thompson reports a splendid season's business.

NEW ELECTRIC RAILWAY.

A Road That Will Connect a Number of Towns.

The Campbellford Despatch says.—On Tuesday morning we had the privilege of conversing with Mr. G. Harden, mechanical and electrical engineer, of Toledo, Ohio who passed through town on the route to Havelock in company with Mr. D. Carlaw, of Warkworth. They had driven from Brighton viewing the line of the proposed electric railway to run between Brighton and Havelock, touching at Warkworth and Campbellford.

He spoke encouragingly of the scheme as did also Mr. Carlaw, and thought that it could be made a pay investment and give unlimited privileges to all along the line.

This railway we believe, is more likely to be a reality than the C. N. & P., as enterprising American and local captialists are taking stock in the company, which will be known as the Brighton and Havelock Electric Railway Company. The company proposed getting their power at Healey's Falls.

FISH THAT ARE FISH.

Some Immense Fish Caught in the Kawartha Lakes.

Some tall fish stories appear in print from time to time, but no actual record of large fish caught in the Kawartha lakes has ever been printed.

The largest maskelonge, is said to have been captured in Sturgeon Lake by a Mr. Wickam, who once lived at the "Beehive" farm, Bobcaygeon. It weighed 46 pounds. Some few sturgeon are also known to exist in these lakes. In Cameron lake there fish have been seen sturgeon range from 80 pounds upwards None however, have ever been captured in Cameron lake. A man in the service of Mr. John Langton, who occupied "Brandeston" farm, many years ago is said to have captured a 150 pound sturgeon. Mr. Wm. Snowden the genial proprietor of the Snowden House here, says that when he resided in Bobcaygeon, he hooked a small sturgeon when out trawling one day. He had an extra strong line, and the fish towed the boat in which he and his companion sat, for nearly an hour. The fish finally broke the line and escaped.

In Stony Lake Mr. George Chalmers landed a 36 pound maskilonge, and in Rice Lake, Chief Pandash's son brought a 44 pound 'lunge to town, and placed it on exhibition. Chemong lake has also produced some good fish. An Indian named Taylor, brought a 38 pound 'lunge in town a couple of years ago, caught, it was said, directly opposite the Chemong Park Hotel.

Bass have been caught weighing 6 1-2 pounds. Mr. John Holmes, late of Burleigh Falls, told the Times that he landed a 7 1-2 pound bass at Burleigh several years ago.

Mr. R. D. Lundy has also made some good catches in Stony Lake. He has seen salmon caught there, that tipped the scales at 10 pounds.

There are many fish stories, as might be expected these days, but the above is fairly authentic.

SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATES.

Result of the Recent Departmental Examinations and List of Successful Students

Appended are results of Departmental Examinations, as follows.—

(a) Matriculation, part I and II.
(b) Junior Leaving, part II.
(c) Senior leaving parts I and II.

It has been found impracticable to publish a list of the subjects in which each candidate for junior matriculation has been successful. The following lists, so far as they refer to matriculants, contain the names of only such candidates as have passed in all the subjects in which they have written. The names of candidates for matriculation scholarships are not included in the lists.

Honors in matriculation will be awarded on the submission to the department of the certificates held by the candidates with statements of the dates and places of the examinations. Whilst in these lists the standing of each student is indicated only in connection with the particular examination for which he was a candidate, the certificate or statement of marks to be issued to each successful junior leaving candidate will certify to his standing as a matriculant.

Candidates who have written under the regulations of 1891-6 and have been awarded part II junior leaving standing, must submit evidence that they were entitled to write before formal certificates will be issued.

Certificates and statements of marks in connection with these examinations will be forwarded within ten days to the principals and inspectors concerned—in no case to the candidates themselves. Appeals against the decisions of the examiners to be considered must be received by the Education Department before September 20th.

MATRICULATION.

Peterborough—Part I—Cameron, Davidson, Elliott, Hammond, Harrison, Hay, Macdonald, Moore, W. H. Munro, Sherry, Wood. Part II—Burnham, Cameron, Hammond, Milburn, Shaw, Burley.

Norwood—Part I—Pettigrew, Sherry. Part II—Elmhurst, Sherry.

JUNIOR LEAVING, PART II.

Peterborough—Brown, Brumwell, Cameron, Corkery, Doris, Higgins, Mahony, McDonnell, Sullivan, Torpey, Walkey, Fessenden. Passed in grammar, arithmetic, and physics.—Simpson.

Norwood—Coughlan, File, McGrath, Powell, F. Waterman, Watts.

SENIOR LEAVING.

Peterborough—Part I—Andrews, Campbell, Hamilton, Kidd, Robertson. Part II—McFadden, McGrath, Robertson.

Candidates for Junior Leaving, Part II, wrote on the same papers as those for matriculation, part II, but were required to take one more subject, and also to obtain a higher percentage of marks than candidates for matriculation. The Senior Leaving Examination is that required for first class teacher's certificate.

A Pair of Alligators

Master C. Yokome, Gilmour street, received a couple of live alligators, which were sent him by Mr. J. C. Douglas, formerly of Peterborough, but now of Atlanta, Georgia. The alligators are little fellows, only a few inches long, and are quite lively.

Getting to Work.

The Lakefield Cement Company are getting ready to push things. An expert has been up at Young's Point looking over the water power there, with a view of transmitting electric power to the works at Lakefield. Men are being put to work on the buildings, and the construction of a road to Buckley's Lake, where the marl deposits are located.

The Ottawa Fire.

On Saturday the Town Clerk received a cheque from the Public Works Department, the sum being for the expenses of the Peterborough firemen who went to Ottawa at the time of the big fire. The letter accompanying the cheque said that after paying expenses the remainder of the money was to be handed over to the Firemen's Benevolent Fund.

Must Have Licenses.

The Chief Game Warden of the Province has called the attention of game dealers, commission merchants, storekeepers and others engaged in buying and selling game in the Province to the fact that it is necessary for them to procure licenses to enable them to legally engage in the business. Information may be obtained from the Chief Game Warden, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

The A. C. A.

Mr. W. J. English has returned from Muskoka, where he was attending the annual camp of the American Canoe Association. In this connection the Mail and Empire says,—The Regatta Committee has already been commended for their management of the races. An acknowledgement is also due to Walter English, of Peterborough, as starter, and C. F. Walters, of Rochester, the clerk of the course.

Is This Treason ?

We read about the seashore girl down where the breakers play, who listens to proposals six or seven times a day; the summer girl who flirts about the boarders taken farm, the cycle girl with sawed-off skirts, exhibiting her charms. The picnic girl is bold and sweet, the mother girl is wise, the golf girl wins admirers with her feet—and with her eyes. But in the ranks of girly girls there is no fairer girl in all the whole caboodle than a fresh young Peterborough girl.

TORONTO'S EXHIBITION.

Arrangements and Preparations Appear to Warrant the Best on Record.

Toronto, Aug. 18.—Toronto is making a big effort this year to bring success to the annual exhibition, which will be opened by Premier Ross on Tuesday, the 28th inst., with a great flourish of canon and blare of trumpets. The management apparently feel that on the outcome this year largely defends the success of the appeal to the people for $300,000 for new buildings. Entries in every department except the running and trotting races and the dogs, which close to-day, are closed, and a general survey of the situation warrants the statement that live stock, manufacturing and dairy products are all fully up to the standard. There is a slight falling off in the number of horses, but some breeders have been heard from who in former years have been absent, and the thoroughbreds and standardbreds are exceptionally numerous. There is to be four days of automobile racing which it is thought will prove exceptionally exciting. Thirty thousand dollars are to be expended in special fixtures, including an entire circus with 300 horses, dogs, monkeys, elephants and zebras, and the marvellous march, who descends from a height of 150 feet on a bicycle without pedals and plunges into a tank thirty yards away. Other exciting acts have been engaged which go to make up a really wonderful program. The big military tattoo on the opening night, Tuesday, 28th inst., when the Canadian camp before Paardeburg will be presented, will be on a scale of magnitude and splendor never before attempted, but the crowning effort of all will be the ten thousand dollar spectacle, the seige and relief of Mafeking which will be given every night after the first, in which five hundred people will participate, and in which the effects of modern munitions, pom-poms, maxims, etc., will be shown exactly as in modern warfare. There will also be four days of automobile or horseless carriage racing.

A SUNDAY BLAZE.

The Palace Restaurant Building Damaged by Fire.

A fire broke out yesterday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, in a room over the Palace Restaurant, and when the brigade arrived the room was in a blaze. A line of hose was taken up the stairway between the Restaurant and The Times building, and, after about half an hour's work the flames were subdued.

The damage by water is considerable, the restaurant being flooded.

The doors leading into the Times newspaper department, and also into the bindery, in the upper flat, were smashed in, and considerable damage done by smoke.

The total loss will probably not exceed $1,000.

And Fighting in the Streets of Pekin Continues—Landing of British Troops at Shanghai Causes no Excitement Among Natives

The identity of Li Tien Yuan cannot be traced.

London, August 21, 3 a.m.

Owing to the Pekin wires being down little news from the capital has come. What has reached London indicates that the allies are in need of reinforcemnts. The commander of the Italian 2nd class cruiser Fieramosca telegraphs from Taku, according to the Rome correspondent of the Daily Mail, that very urgent requests were coming from Pekin on Saturday for the immediate despatch of further troops and that in answer to these 400 Italian marines were sent off post haste. The Japanese Minister in London, Kato Tokaaki is said to have read a telegram last evening announcing that subsequent to the entry into Pekin a Japanese went to the Imperial palace to afford whatever protection was necessary. The enemy were in strength and fighting was still proceeding when the message was sent to Tokio. The main body of the Japanese was then at Tinganen gate the Tartar City with headquarters at the Japanese Legation.

Washington, August 20

The State Department has received a cablegram through Consul Fowler at Chefoo from Consul Ragsdale at Tien Tsin, saying that the Chinese troops are surrounded by the allied army in the palace grounds at Pekin.

Shanghai, August 20.

Official Chinese advices from Pekin say that Su Tung and Yi Tien Yuan, of the anti-foreign party, and Le Shan, an Imperial general, have been decapitated and that Yung Lu has been imprisoned by Prince Ching. It is added that the Emperor and Dowager Empress are 60 miles west of Pekin, under the constraint of Prince Tuan. Li Hung Chang goes north immediately.

Shanghai, August 20.

Hsu Not Su Tung was a member of the Imperial secretary and president of the Civil Board. Li Shan was a member of the Ministry of the Imperial household. Reports of the presence of the Empress Dowager were still contradictory but Gen. Yung Lue on the authority of the Shanghai correspondent of the Standard is difinitely announced to be a prisoner by the order of the Empress in the Imperial palace, this, perhaps says the correspondent is a good thing as detention in the capital will enable him to negotate with the allies commands which he would do as Prince Tuans enemy. The Chinese Ministers in London Sir Chin Chen La Feng Luh on being asked as to the whereabouts of the Emperor and Empress Dowager replied they have gone westward to the old Capital Hsin Fu and it think are quite safe threatening in the neighborhood of Canton, the Americans at Swatow according to the Daily Chronicals Shanghai correspondent have applied for a war ship in consequence of serious riotings of Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Mails says that a war ship is on the way there now.

MESSAGE FROM THE QUEEN

Message to the correspondent of marines at Pekin. "I thank God that you and those under your command have been rescued from your perilous position with my people, I have waited with the deepest anxiety for good news of your safety and the happy termination your heroic and prolonged defence. I grive for the losses and sufferings experinced by the besieged.

A Japanese war ship has left Yokohama for Shanghai according to the Daily Mail, to land troops and to protect Japanese subjects. The Daily Mail also announces that Germany will land a detachment at Shanghai. Further Yokohama advices to the same paper declare that Germany and Russia are objects of distrust to the Japanese press which urges that Japan having borne the chief burden of the operations must see to it that the future of China is not determined by the pleasure of the western powers it is felt, says the correspondent that determined action by Great Britain and aJpan will avert any danger arising from the ambition of continential Europe.

The semi-official Japanese organ says that if occasion advises Japan can send 50,000 troops and that if the powers are inclined to play a selfish game special measures will be necessary. Sir Chih Lo Feng Lih, interviewed by the Daily Chronicle is represented as saying,—"The present disturbances are only a temporary outbreak. We do not desire of peace. Everything depends upon the conduct of the allies who are now in Pekin. All subsequent questions with them for solution you may be quite certain that is not the antagonist to western ideas which is at the root of the troubles, but rather the difficulty of governing a great and innocent nation."

CLEARING OUT TARTAR CITY.

Washington, Aug. 20.—The Bureau of Navagation this morning received a cablegram from Admiral Remey, dated Taku, August 19th, which says.

"Authentic report from Pekin August 15th, from Lieut. Latimer. Troops moving of Imperial City. Clearing out Tartar City. All Americans who remained in Pekin are well, except one child.

"Reported from Chinese sources that the Royal family have escaped and are en route to Sian Fu."

WHERE IS SHE, ANYWAY

Berlin, Aug. 20.—The Foreign Office has received a despatch from the German consul at Chefoo saying the Dowager Empress was believed to be inside the palace at Pekin, and that the allies were still bombarding the fortifications.

INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS.

New York, Aug. 20.—A despatch from Washington says President McKinley is considering the advisability of porposing to the powers the organization of an International Congress, which shall sit in China and recommend to the several Governments represented a permanent solution of pending questions.

ESCORT DESERTED THEM.

London. Aug. 20.—Reports from Hankow say that the missionaries from Shansi, who have arrived there, suffered fearful hardships. The ladies were completely worn out. They had to struggle, half clothed, in the hot sun for 27 days. Missionary Saunders lost two children. Mrs. Cooper and Misses Rice and Houston also died from their sufferings along the route. Mr. Saudners says that their escort deserted them. The party of fugitives pawned everything of value they had, including the ladies' wedding rings.

The party reached Lucheng safely, but stripped of everything. They fled south with one donkey-load of bedding and a little silver. Twelve miles out a mob seized the donkey, clothes, and silver, and destroyed everything else. Mr. Saunders tried to hire a cart for the ladies, but the mob refused to permit them to do so, and beat them.

Misses Rice and Houston died from the effects of their injuries. On reaching Hupeh they received the kindest treatment from the magistrates under orders from the Viceroy. The whole journey occupied 50 days.

IN LEGATION GROUNDS.

Washingotn, Aug. 20.—The War Department has received the following despatch from General Chaffee.

"Pekin, Aug. 16.—We entered Legation grounds at five o'clock last night with 14th and light battery. Eight wounded during day's fighting. Otherwise all well."

The Navy Department has received thef ollowing cablegram from Admiral Remey.

She Appeared as a Ghost and was Killed

Negroes Took the Life of a Fifteen Year Old Girl

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 20.—While frightening a crowd of negroes last night by pretending she was a ghost Florence Almond, aged 15 years, was struck on the head by a brick and killed. The negroes were gathered on a lot and the girl who lived near by, had wrapped a white sheet about her and suddenly appeared before the crowd. The latter scattered in all directions and the girl was about to return home when the brick was thrown. She died in a few minutes. The negro suspected of throwing the brick has not been arrested.

A Troublesome War May Be Expected

If the Chinese Make the Final Stand of Orientals against Occidentals.

London, August 19.—For the second time in thirty years Pekin has been occupied by a foreign army. The historic tactics of the Chinese practiced with the view of postponing the evil day have again come to naught as in previous wars. Even the diplomacy and cunning of Li Hung Chang have been of no avail, and the incident of October, 1860, has been repeated. The whole of Christendom rejoices that there has been averted a massacre which would have robbed the diplomatic corps of the civilized nations and their principal churches of representative figures. It is only to be regretted that the many missionaries and converts who have been ruthlessly slain in various parts of China were not in the fortunate position of their brethren in Pekin. The rescue of the legations does not mean the termination of the Chinese troubles. As a matter of fact, it is quite possible that the beginning of serious work in the Celestial Empire has only been reached. The real cause of the whole ferment into which the Chinese Empire has been thrown—the Boxers—still exists, and is as formidable as ever. It is reported that the dowager Empress, with an army composed of Imperial troops and Boxers, who are undoubtedly acting together, has left Pekin and fallen back farther into the interior of China, and this is quite within the bounds of probability, as it is not likely that an arch-plotter like the dowager would trust herself into the hands of the powers. If it is the intention of the Chinese to make the great stand of the Orientals against the Occidentals a troublesome war may be looked for. The first duty of the allies is to restore order in China, a task which would have puzzled Hercules himself, and will certainly prove gigantic for the small force at the disposal of the generals at Pekin, who are pitted against millions of fanatical people. The first step of the allies will of course be to forward to the coast as rapidly as possible the Ministers, missionaries and refugees who have lived in daily fear of death since the beginning of June, and whose saftey seems almost too good a piece of news to be true. It will be many months perhaps years, before China will again be in a fit state for either ambassadors or missionaries, and the work of civilization must pause a while until the sword has cleared a path for it. With the news that Pekin has been occupied comes the equally good news that the British troops who have been held on vessels at Shanghai have been permitted to land, a fact which insures the preservation of British interests and order generally in the Yang-tse Kiang valley.

GERMANY SAYS THE POWERS WILL QUARREL

The Main Difference in Settlement of the Chinese Trouble is of a Commercial Nature.

Berlin, August 21—The German press comment anent the present situation is varied. The Lokal Anzeiger deems it probable that Field Marshal von Waldersee will not be bedded in roses in China, owing partly to the manifest lack of harmony among the powers, even at this early stage, and it believes that before long quarrels will arise between Russia and Japan, France and Great Britain, and the United States and Germany.

It points out that the main differences between the powers are "not of a military, but of a commercial character."

The Vorwaerts says the "irresponsible China policy," meaning the Emperor's has thus far "carried everything before it," adding that the "responsible policy of the cabinet has all along been annulled by the Emperor's."

There is an unusual number of Americans taking out passports at the embassy here, owing to the present rigid requirements of the Berlin police.

The prince regent of Bavaria, Luitpold, has summoned his Berlin delegate to the Bundesrath, Count von Lerchenfeld, to take counsel with him regarding article 64 of the imperial constitution, as to whether it is admissible that, beside volunteers, regulars also be sent to China. This, with a number of other signs, shows that Emperor William's vigorous policy toward China is by no means approved all round.

PROTECT PRINCE FROM ANARCHISTS

Fourteen Foreign Detectives Guard Him While at Homburg Will Take no Chances.

London, Aug. 20.—Precautions for the safety of the Prince of Wales during his stay in Homburg, where he has arrived, include the inauguration of a new system for the protection of royalty from the attacks of anarchists.

Under this system every member of a royal family traveling out of his own country has the services of a detective from each European bureau whose special qualification is his intimate acquaintance with dangerous anarchists.

These foreign detectives, fourteen in number, arrived at Homburg a week before the Prince of Wales was expected, in order that a thorough preliminary investigation might be made and all necessary precautions taken to insure his safety.

The Prince was also accompanied upon his arrival by six special-service men from Scotland Yard, who will guard him during his stay at Homburg.

Lord Salisbury, who is at Schlucht has a comparatively small guard—four English detectives and six from other European countries—as the town is small and it is easy to keep track of suspects.

Queen Victoria is also more carefully guarded than before the murder of Humbert. During yachting week Cowes swarmed with detectives, and the grounds at Osborne House are patrolled by guards night and day.

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain has three Scotland Yard men in constant attendance, and the two Balfours are similarly guarded.

Burglars Took a Young Girl's Life

She Was On the way to Rescue Her Father From Masked Burglars

Pittsfield, Wis., Aug. 20.—A little before two o'clock this morning three masked burglars broke into the house in Burbank street occupied by Contractor R. L. Fosburg, of Buffalo, N. Y., contractor of the New Stanley Electric Company's building. Mr Fosburg was first awakened. He heard the burglars down stairs and ran down. In the attempt to grapple with them, Miss May Fosburg was awakened.

She came down stairs where one of the burglars shot and instantly killed her.

The shooting awakened Mr. Fosburg's son, F. R. Fosburg, who in the struggle with the burglars was knocked insensible.

The intruders made their escape. The fire alarm was rung to arouse the people and make more difficult the escape of the murderers from the city.

Miss Fosburg was most favorably known in this city. She was a young woman of beauty, talent and culture, and during the two years of her residence, since the family came here from St. Louis, she had won a cherished position in church and social circles.

ESQUIMALT IMPREGNABLE

Result of the Manoeuvers of the British Flee

Esquimalt, Aug. 21.—Naval maneuvers recently held in the harbor at Esquimalt, B. C., appear to have given great satisfaction to the British officers in charge of them. One of the maneuvers consisted in attempts of torpedoboats to enter the harbor at night and approach the large ships of the fleet without being detected by the forts which guard Victoria and Esquimalt. All the lights on the little boats were extinguished and they made a dash for the harbor. The sentinels at the forts did not know the time of their coming, but when they were still a considerable distance away the searchlights of the forts and navy yard picked them up. Other entrances to the harbor were tried, but in each instance the attempt failed owing to the vigilance at the forts. The British officers are convinced that it would be impossible for an invading fleet to get past the forts and hte submarine mines which guard this base in the north Pacific.

WAR IN EARNEST.

Uncle Sam Has Eight Ships Getting Ready for Trip to China.

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—Uncle Sam has a fleet of eight vessels ready, to sail to China. During the next four weeks all of them will get away and on some of them will be the most formidable instruments of war ever sent out of this country. A battery of seige guns, a light battery and men and horses to man them will be among the first things to sail for Taku.

The Aztec is loading horses and provender at Folsom 2, while the Siam is being got ready with a similar cargo at Folsom 1. The Rosecrans and the Strathgyle are to take a seige battery and the horses and men between them, while the Warren will take the colored troops. The Logan is coaled and ready to sail while the Sherman is ready to sail at a moment's notice. The Sheridan will be ready in a week or so and could be put in commission the first of the month if necessary. There will be no trouble in getting all the troops required in China away inside of two weeks.

WEATHER NOTES

Warmer weather is indicated for Ontario with more local showers or thunder storms.

GEN. MAHON IS NOW FIGHTING GEN. DE WET

Ian Hamilton Engages the Enemy at Crocodile River and Captures Krupp Guns with Little Loss to British.

BOERS STILL CONTINUE TO LAY DOWN ARMS

In the Harrismith District, Where Rundle is Preserving Peace—Roberts Will Stand no More Trifling.

London, Aug. 21

Special despatches from Pretoria announce that General De Wet bivouacked 15 miles from the city and that Mahon was briskly engaging him yesterday morning.

THE NERVE OF DE WET.

Pretoria, Aug. 20.—Gen. De Wet has appeared north of Comman Nek, 20 miles from here. He sent a flag of truce to Gen. Baden-Powell, demanding his surrender.

This, however, was only a plan to discover the strength of the British force. Gen. Baden-Powell, seeing the ruse and hoping to detain Gen. De Wet, asked what terms would be given him if he surrendered. The messenger was equally sharp, and, having learned the strength of the garrison, returned to Gen. De Wet, who at once resumed his march northward, without the formality of sending his terms to the British. Gen. Baden-Powell is following him.

A BRAVE AMERICAN.

Pretoria, Aug. 20.—Gen. Roberts has confirmed the award of the Queen's Scarf to Trooper Chadwick, of Roberts' Horse, who was chosen by the troopers as most distinguished for bravery. Chadwick proves to be an American. He was one of the boat's crew who cut the cable at Santiago (Cienfuegos.)

The Queen gave four scarfs to be awarde'd for bravery, one each for representatives of the colonial troopers from Australia, New Zealand, Canada and Africa. Africa's scarf will therefore go to the United States.

DYNAMITED THE PASS.

Pretoria, Aug. 20.—Lord Roberts has issued a proclamation cancelling his previous order regarding oaths of neutrality and passes. Hereafter no oaths will be taken or passes granted, and all the burghers will be regarded as prisoners of war. Houses in which armed Boers find shelter will be liable to be razed, and farms used by the fighting burghers will be destroyed. Damage to the railways will be punished by fines on land.

The reasons for this action are the lack of appreciation shown by the Boers and their misuse of the leniency shown them, they taking advantage of it to continue their resistance to the British and the continual breaking of the oath of neutrality, which the Government of the Transvaal, it is said here, has advised the burghers, is not immoral.

Gen. Paget has blown up with dynamite the pass at Hornie's nek, 10 miles from here. Yesterday he drove the Boers out of the surrounding district, killing four.

Col. Hoare, who was relieved by Kitchener at Eland's river, made a magnificent defence against the burghers, fighting from the cover of a ravine. There were fifty casualties, most of them being slight wounds.

DE WET GONE NORTH.

Cape Town, Aug. 20.—Gen. De Wet's demand for the surrender of the British force at Commando Nek is considered as a pretence for the purpose of obtaining information. Finding that Commando Nek was strongly garrisoned, De Wet resumed his march northward, shadowed by General Baden Powell.

THE IRISH AMERICAN BOERS.

Irish Brigade Across Cannot Live in an English Transvaal.

New York, Aug. 21. — Matthew Kane, a Boer, and Peter F. Oates, an Irishman, who fought as officers in the Irish Brigade, in the Transvaal, arrived today on LaBretagne. "We have come out here," said Oates, "to settle. South Africa under English rule is no place for an Irishman. Generals Botha and De Wet can hold out with 10,000 men as long as they want to.

"The Chicago hospital corps took up guns as soon as they got in Boer territory. They tore up their Red Cross badges as soon as they left the depot, and they made good fighters. The first batch of Irish prisoners captured by the Boers asked to be allowed to join the Boer fighting force. They were a part of the Dublin Fusiliers.

"I was an officer in the Irish brigade and so was Captain Kane. The brigade took part in many of the prominent engagements, and always gave a good account of itself. At the end it was reduced to a small force. We lost heavily in the retreat to Johannesburg and in the fighting which took place in that vicinity.

"President Kruger is going to fight to the last, and has no idea of surrender. General Botha is a great General, and had he been in command earlier in the war I believe that the English would never have had an advantage.

FARMER KILLS HIS WIFE AND THREE CHILDREN.

Arlington, Minn, Aug. 20.—Theodore Wallert, a farmer living three miles from town, last night killed his wife, a boy of 19 years, a girl of 16, and a baby. He then set fire to his barn, destroying the stable with nine horses and a full hay barn. Mrs. Wallert had been trying to secure a divorce, the couple having separated. Wallert entered the house through a window and slaughtered the family with the exception of child, a boy, who was wounded, however, and probably will die. Wallert fled.

NEW YORK WILL SOON RIVAL OLD LONDON

Chauncey M. Depew Says It May Become Dangerous Financially—May Deal in Foreign Stocks.

London, Aug. 20.—Socially the week has been very dull, and there is little of interest for the smart set in the metropolis.

The city is still filled with American and Canadian tourists, who for the most part are going and returning from the Paris Exposition. Hotels and the better grade of lodging houses are doing a thriving business, and the reflex of the Parisian travel is filling the coffers of the publicans, even if the merchant classes are less fortunate in thriving by the wayside.

TRANSPORTATION QUESTION.

The transportation question has proven of considerable interest during the past week, the booking for trans-Atlantic steamers being much heavier than had been expected, and in many instances in excess of the capacity of the lines. A great many returning American tourists are said to have taken return passage by the lines to Montreal. However, the tide of American travel is still strong towards London. Many residents of the other side of the Atlantic are recuperating in England. Coaching is the delight of most of the Americans.

AMERICAN LOANS.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew sails on the American line steamer New York to-day. He has been in consultation with British financiers, who are specially interested in the ability of the United States to make loans to Europe. The Senator said,—

"The sudden development of our industries and the immense accumulation of money growing out of the fact that Europe is paying $600,000,000 annually for American products, has not only brought the bank rate and call loans up one and two per cent., respectively, but the Western banks are now buying paper in the east because there is no demand for money. The fact that half the British war loan—all if it had been permitted—was taken in the United States, demonstrates these conditions, which have already made New York one of the financial centres of the world. If the conditions continue, and I have no doubt they will, New York will soon be a dangerous rival of London in financing the Government enterprises of the world. The rapid information we are acquiring regarding the industrial conditions of the world, the necessity of finding a market for our increasing surplus products, and also our active participation in the solution of the Chinese problem, tend to make New York an active competitor in the schemes for the development of the far East. It is a near possibility that the New York Stock exchange will actively deal in many foreign stocks and bonds. The United States with 3,000 miles of ocean from European Governmental complications will never take a militant part in the rivalries, jealousies and wars of Europe. These very miseries, the wars, make the United States every year stronger as a financial factor; and will, I believe, make New York the financial centre of the world. Up to two years ago the European Cabinets took no interest in American diplomacy and finances. America was regarded as a granary in times of poor harvest on this side and as a dumping ground for surplus population. Now no Cabinet in Europe makes a move without considering what is the position of the United States in the matter."

THE ELECTIONS.

The impression seems to be growing that the general elections for the Dominion will be brought on in October. The political prophets have set the time for an appeal to the people so often that one is justified in hesitating to believe anything they say on the subject. The latest announcement is made on the strength of decision reached by the Reform Association at its recent meeting in Toronto, the Mail and Empire being authority for it. We would not as a rule look to our Toronto contemporary for information as to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's intentions, but it may be right this time. Among supporters of the government there is a strong feeling in favor of an election being held this year, instead of waiting until the house expires by efflux of time. On the other hand, there is a belief that if a census can be taken early in 1901 a redistribution bill can be passed, and that this would be in the interest of the Liberal party It is certainly hardly fair to the North West and British Columbia that the elections should be held before a redistribution. British Columbia is entitled to additional representation, and the Yukon ought to have a member. If they do not get them before the next general election, they will have to wait for them for four years, for no matter which party is successful, there will [illegible] be a [illegible] four [illegible] although the census discloses great inequalities in the representation. We do not believe that the government will be influenced to any great degree by a desire to do justice to the majority in the new parliament, even if the whole country west of Lake Superior goes against them. They claim that they will divide Ontario and have substantial majorities in Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. They do not pretend that they will have as strong a support in the new house as in the present one, but are quite confident of victory, no matter how much they may ignore the West.

In view of various stories that come from the Flowery Kingdom, it is not always well to accept a bare rumor for

THEIR SILVER WEDDING.

Only Three Things Wrong About His Story.

They were celebrating their silver wedding and the friends were admiring them as people always do other people when they are getting a lot of presents. You have noticed, of course, how people always look at you when you show them something somebody has given you. They are surprised and they envy you. They always wonder, however, in themselves what on earth any one could see in you to give you anything so handsome. That is unless it is your husband. Then they smile and wonder what he has been doing that his conscience needs rest. But if you'll notice you'll find that persons who get many presents have many friends. You may have many friends but get precious few presents. Presents make friends; friends don't make presents. Married people increase the circle of their friends with every anniversary of their wedding, because the presents get handsomer and more expensive. You can work this paradox out for yourselves, I haven't time.

They were celebrating their silver wedding, and of course the couple were very happy and very affectionate.

"Yes," said the husband, "this is the only woman I ever loved. I shall never forget the first time I proposed to her."

"How did you do it?" burst out a young man who had been squeezing a pretty girl's hand in a corner. They all laughed and he blushed; but the girl carried it off bravely.

"Well, I remember as well as if it were yesterday. It was away back in Maine. We had been out to a picnic, and she and I got wandering alone together. Don't you remember, my dear?"

The wife nodded and smiled.

"We sat on the trunk of an old tree. You haven't forgotten have you love?"

The wife nodded and smiled again.

"She began writing in the dust with the point of her parasol. You recall it sweet, don't you?"

The same old smile and nod.

"She wrote her name 'Minnie,' and I said, 'let me put the other name to it.' And I took the parasol and wrote my name—Smith—after it."

"How lovely," broke out a little maid who was beaming in a suspicious way on a tall chap with a blonde mustache.

"And she took back the parasol and wrote below it, 'No I won't.' And we went home. You remember it darling. I see you do."

Then he kissed her and the company murmured, "How nice."

The guests had all departed and the happy couple were left alone.

"Wasn't it nice, Minnie, to see all our friends around us and so happy."

"Yes it was. But John, that reminiscence."

"Ah, it seems as if it was only yesterday."

"Yes, dear; there are only three things you're wrong about in that story."

"Wrong? Oh, no!"

"John, I'm sorry you told that story because I never went to a picnic with you before our marriage; I was never in Maine in my life and I never went through that parasol business with you."

"My darling, you are wrong."

"I'm not wrong. You know I have an excellent memory. We have been married twenty-five years but I never knew about that minx Minnie. You never told me of her before."

I guess that she'll forgive, but it is doubtful if she forgets.

He Needed the Money.

A local real estate dealer tells this story:

Some time ago he had an allotment on the market and one day a foreign-looking individual walked into his office and said he wanted to inquire about the lots. He looked over the plat and finally picked out one that suited him.

"Vot's der price?" he asked when the location was decided upon.

"Eight hundred dollars."

"I give you six houndred cash."

"Very well," said the dealer, "you can have it."

Then the customer lowered his voice.

"I want der price of dot lot seem houndred to me, but eight houndred to everybody else. You understand?"

"Yes," said the dealer. "That will be all right."

"Vell, you see, it's like dees—I'm goin' to get married. I've got der girl picked out, und she has money. You see you vill sell der lot to her for $800. Den you vill motion to me, und ve vill go into der next room and you will pay me dot $200. See?"

"You want the $200 for a commission?" said the dealer. "That will be all right, too."

The customer looked relieved.

"It's choost this way," he said. "I must have dot two hundred or I can't get married."

"You shall have it," said the dealer.

A few days later the future bride, her mother and the coming bridegroom entered the office. The papers were quickly prepared and signed, and the mother from the intricacies of her skirts produced a wad of bills, which proved to be the necessary $800.

Then the bridegroom lingered behind as the bride and her mother passed into the hall. The dealer hastily counted off the $200 and thrust it into the bridegroom's hand.

"I have to have it," whispered the latter.

"All right," said the dealer.

"I couldn't get married without it."

"I understand," said the dealer.

The man with the two hundred paused, with his hand on the doorknob.

"I have to have it," he hoarsely murmured, "it is for my first wife's funeral expenses!"

Delays Are Dangerous.

A small pimple on your face may seem of little consequence, but it shows your blood is impure, and impure blood is what causes most of the diseases from which people suffer. Better heed the warning given by the pimple and purify your blood at once by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine cures all diseases due to bad blood, including scrofula and salt rheum.

Smile and Suffer.

That's the motto of many a woman's life. She manages the house, receives friends, entertains company, with a moan in the mouth which is stifled and a smile on the face which is a mask to cover up her pain. Only those who note the dark ringed eyes, the lines about the lips, the occasional pallor of the cheek, know the real story. Such women are among the most grateful for the cures performed by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. To smile and not to suffer is something wonderful to them. Women suffering from female weakness, inflammation, ulceration or the drains that so weaken the body, may take "Favorite Prescription" with almost absolute certainty of cure. It's sure to help. It's almost sure to heal. It has cured ninety-eight per cent. of those who gave it a fair and faithful trial.

Mrs. H. A. Alsbrook, of Austin, Lonoke Co., Ark., writes: "After five months of great suffering with female weakness I write this for the benefit of other sufferers from the same affliction. I doctored with our family physician without any good results, so my husband urged me to try Dr. Pierce's medicines—which I did, with wonderful results. I am completely cured. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets.'"

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Gen Hunter's Loss Was a Heavy One

Three of Highland Light Infantry Killed and 33 Wounded.

AND AFTER A FORCED MARCH

Colonel Hoare is Relieved and British Garrison at Elands is Safe.

London, Aug. 18.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Gen. Roberts:—

"Pretoria, Aug. 17—Hunter's engagement on August 15 was a bigger affair than he led me to suppose in his first telegram. Three of the Highland Light Infantry were killed and 33 wounded. Seven others of the corps were also wounded. One is missing. A lieutenant died of his wounds.

"I much fear that De Wet has managed to elude his pursuers, by, I imagine, breaking up his force into small bodies. He was last heard of near Rustenburg.

"Kitchener's latest despatch is dated August 15.—He reported that he was pressing to Hoare's assistance from the southeast.

"Carrington was yesterday at Ottoshoop, a little east of where Erroll's Yeomanry was engaged with the enemy."

Gen. Hunter's action mentioned in Gen. Roberts' despatches has not been previously reported. It is presumed that he had an engagement with Gen. Olivier south of Heilbron.

Lord Kitchener, after a forced march, has relieved Col. Hoare and the British garrison at Eland's River.

INCONSOLABLE.

Paris, August 20.—The mother of Lieut. Cornwallis-West remains since her son's marriage strictly confined to her room at the hotel Ritz, denying all attempts at an interview.

A MONOMANIACAL WITNESS

A Murderer Escapes the Hangman by a Lucky Reference to a Stack.

"That calls to mind a queer experience of my own," said a lawyer who had listened to the story. "Some years ago I defended a fellow for murder in a little Southern town, and the worst witness we had against us was an old German who was a stack builder by trade. A stack, by the way, is merely another name for a big chimney. The old fellow was perfectly honest and gave his story in such a clear, straightforward manner that I felt my client was doomed unless I could think of some way to break him down. While I was cudgeling my brains a friend whispered to me to ask him how high he could build a stack. 'What do you mean?' I asked, in surprise. 'Never mind,' said my friend. 'Just slip in that question and see.' So at the tail end of the cross examination I paused, as if struck by an afterthought, and said: 'You are a stack builder, I believe?' 'Yes, sir,' replied the witness. 'Well, sir,' I continued, 'about how high can you build—' I never got any further. A swift inscrutable change flashed over the German's face and he rose excitedly from his chair. 'As high as der sky!' he roared. 'So high dose angels come around it like birds!' In five seconds he was raving. You see, the man was a monomaniac— sane on every subject but one, and my friend happened to know his weak spot. It is hardly necessary to say that his evidence in regard to the homicide was promptly ruled out by the Judge, and as there was no other witness of importance my man was cleared. The rascal should have been hanged, and would have been but for the lucky reference to the stack."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

An Appropriate Text.

A little girl who lives up town went to church last Sunday. She is a bright little maiden and, considering her tender age, only six, she is decidedly intelligent. Her mother has been suffering from the grip and didn't accompany her, and as her father was away from home she went alone.

Whether it was the loneliness of the big pew or whether the church was poorly heated, mamma wasn't quite sure, but, anyway, the little maid came home and declared she was very chilly.

"My toes got so cold while I was sitting there, mamma," she declared. "And so did my fingers and my nose. I don't believe there was hardly a speck of fire in the furnace."

"That was too bad," said mamma; "did the other people seem to suffer, too?"

"Oh, yes, they did," cried the little maid. "They just shivered!"

Then mamma thought she would divert the little maid's attention.

"What was the text, dear?" she asked; "can you remember it?"

"I should think I could," was the quick answer: "I can 'member every word of it."

"Well, what was it?"

The little maid put her head on one side and screwing up her face, shrilly intoned:

"'Many are cold, but few are frozen!'"

And mamma had to admit that it seemed remarkably appropriate.

Willing to Concede.

At a convival party, recently, a gentleman who had returned from a lengthened tour in the East, was relating some of the wonderful things he had seen on his travels. The yarns he spun were decidedly "steep," but the guests politely accepted his statements as true. Encouraged by the reception accorded to his tallest stories he ventured to state that he had seen at the foot of the Himalayas a tiger forty-three feet long, from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail. This was too much, and everybody kept silence, until a gentleman from Oban dryly remarked:

"Oh, yes, the works of Nature are very wonderful and very large whatever. Just last week I saw a skate brought ashore at Oban, which covered a quarter of an acre of ground."

Nobody spoke, and amid the silence the Eastern traveler left the room. The host, perceiving that something was amiss, rose and followed him.

"Is there anything wrong?" he asked.

"I have been insulted," said the traveler. "That Scotch gentleman has dealt a blow at my veracity, and I cannot return until he apologizes."

Anxious that harmony should prevail among his guests, the host returned to the room, and explaining matters to the company, asked the Highlander to make an apology, if merely for form's sake.

"Weel," said he, "I'll no just apologise, but tell him to come back and take a few feet off the teegur, and we'll see what can be done wi' the skate."

He Could Wait.

A boy was sitting lazily in the stern of a boat dangling his feet in the water, when a man from the dock called sharply to him:

"What are you doin' there?"

"Nothin'," responded the boy.

"Do you get any pay for it?"

"No," and he drew one foot out of the water, ready to run if necessary.

"Why don't you go to work?"

"Will you get me a job?"

"Yes."

"Steady?"

"Yes."

"Pay anything?"

"Well, no," hesitated the man—"not the first week."

"How about the second?"

"Then I will."

"All right; I'll come round the second week. This is good enough for me now," and the boy put his foot back into the water, and winked at the man on the dock.

A Good Method.

Entomologists have been studying the question of the best means of getting rid of mosquitoes, and have come to the conclusion that the best method is to pour kerosene oil on water where the pests breed. They say that the mosquito lays its eggs early in the morning in still water. The eggs hatch in about sixteen hours, and the larvae immediately seek the surface of the water, for they must have air. If they cannot rise to the surface they are drowned. This is why covering the surface of the water with oil is [illegible].

Sailor was Drowned While Intoxicated

"Liverpool Andy" Fell off the Dock at the Foot of Jarvis Street.

FRIEND DROWNED IN SAME PLACE

His Companion Went to Bed and Did Not Take the Trouble to Try and Save Him

Toronto, Aug. 18.—A sailor named Andrew Hughes, better known among his acquaintances as "Liverpool Andy," was drowned last night at the foot of Jarvis street under the following rather peculiar circumstances:—

Deceased, who worked for Capt. Geo. Blowers, of the stone hooker Coral, had gone ashore early in the evening, and, in company with one John Hunter, of the scooner Abscore, had indulged with considerable freedom in strong drink. About 11.30 o'clock, Hughes decided to return to the Coral, and his comrade went with him. The two reached the wharf where the stone hooker lay, and Hunter got down on the deck to aid Hughes, who was apparently more incapacitated, to pass down too. Hunter grasped his companion by the legs and tried to land him on the deck, but both men fell into the water instead. Hunter managed to save himself and crawl up the wharf, but Hughes sank at the very spot where, exactly two weeks before, his friend William Saddler was drowned. Hunter apparently saw no reason to hurry or attempt to save the other man, for he went to bed and slept until morning. He then reported the matter to the police, and ex-constable Williams was directed to drag for the body. It did not take him long to recover it, and it now lies at the morgue, where an inquest takes place this afternoon under Coroner Young.

A peculiar incident about the tragedy is the fact that Hughes, as intimated above, was drowned at the very spot where his friend Saddler sank. The former felt the death of the latter keenly, and in his memory planted some geraniums at an adjoining post.

Miss Mann, who carries on a dressmaking business over Morgan's barber shop, had a valuable gold watch and chain and some money stolen from her rooms a few days ago. Among the representatives were some from the West Indies and the Southern States. The people of Knowlton gave the visitors a warm welcome and hospitable treatment. The Sun Life is very popular in Peterborough.

A Destructive Dog.

Yesterday a citizen called at the Times and told a story of woe. He said that his wife and he were sitting on the front porch with his maltese alongside, when a fellow came along with a big brute of a dog. The animal espied his wife's cat, and before he could secure her, the dog gave chase through the house. Tables, chairs and the china closet were upset. China, bric-a-brac and glassware were smashed to atoms. The dog came out of the parlor window, taking the screen with him, and all the fellow did was to pet the dog, gave us the laugh and walked away. He said he could not find the cat; his wife has hysterics and he was as mad as a hornet. Who's going to pay the damages? He asked. The Times advised them to interview Chief Rossel.

TO QUEBEC CAMP.

Cobourg Garrison Artillery Passed Through Yesterday

Yesterday the Cobourg Garrison Artillery, consisting of three officers and thirty-two men, arrived on the North Star from Harwood, and took the midnight C.P.R. express for Quebec, where they will put in a week's drill at the Isle of Orleans, Quebec.

The men are as fine looking a lot of fellows as we have seen in a long time.

The battery is commanded by Major Neil McNaughton and Lieutenants Pratt and Battle.

The Cobourg boys have for years carried off the chief prizes for artillery shooting, and are regarded as one of the finest battery corps in the Dominion. At the Isle of Orleans forty-pounders are used, and missiles are thrown long distances.

While in town the men were registered at the Snowden House.

MARRIED IN TORONTO

Marriage of a Young Lady Who Has Many Friends in Peterboro.

The following reference is made in the Toronto Globe to the marriage of Miss Marieta G. Wilson, daughter of Rev. A. C. Wilson, formerly pastor of the Mark st. Methodist church,—

"On Wednesday last in the Methodist church, Pickering, Marieta G. Wilson, a graduate and teacher of Albert College, Belleville, was married to Rev. Chas. L. McIrvine, Grand Valley, a graduate of the same institution, a Victoria man. The bride was charmingly attired in cream silk, trimmed with chiffon pearl trimmings, and carried a sheaf of cream roses. Miss Eva Weir, of Peterborough, attended the bride, and wore white organdie, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The little maid of honor, Ethel McIrvine, of the Sault, was dressed in white, trimmed with blue, and strewed the aisle with flowers as she preceded Miss Wilson, who leaned on the arm of her father. Rev. Harry B. Kenny, of Canton, supported the groom, and Rev. E. C. Stapleford, of St. Catharines, and Rev. P. J. Farley, of Canifton, acted as ushers. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, Rev. A. C. Wilson, assisted by his brother, Rev. J. C. Wilson, of Brighton, and his nephew, Rev. J. C. I. Wilson, B.A., B.D., of South Dummer. After the wedding dinner at the parsonage the happy couple left for Toronto and points in the States. The many valuable presents and large gathering of friends showed the esteem in which the bride and bridegroom are held.

BREAD DYSPEPSIA

The Digesting Element Left Out.

Bread dyspepsia is common. It effects the bowels because white bread is nearly all starch, and starch digested in the intestines, not in the stomach proper. Up under the shell of the wheat berry, Nature has provided a curious deposit which is turned into diastase when it is subjected to the saliva and to the pancreatic juices in the human intestines.

This diastase is absolutely necessary to digest starch and turn it into grape sugar, which is the next form; but that part of the wheat berry makes dark flour, and the modern miller cannot readily sell dark flour, so nature's valuable digestor is thrown out and the human system must handle the starch as best it can, without the help that Nature intended.

Small wonder that appendicitis, peritonitis, constipation, and all sorts of trouble exist, when we go so contrary to Nature's law. The food experts that perfected Grape-Nuts Food, knowing these facts, made use, in their experiments, of the entire wheat and barley, including all the parts, and subjected them to moisture, and long continued warmth which allows time and the proper conditions for developing the diastase, outside of the human body.

In this way the starchy part is transformed into grape sugar in a perfectly natural manner, without the use of chemicals or any outside ingredients. The little sparkling crystals of grape sugar can be seen on the pieces of Grape-Nuts. This food therefore is naturally predigested and its use in place of bread will quickly correct the troubles that have been brought about by the too free use of starch in the food, and that is very common in the human race to-day.

The effect of eating Grape-Nuts ten days or two weeks, and the discontinuance of ordinary white bread, is very marked. The user will gain rapidly in strength and physical and mental health.

FROZEN IN ELECTRIC WIRES.

Wizard Tesla Cages The Currents With Ice.

New York, August 21.—Nikola Tesla, the "Wizard of Electricity," has secured a patent for an invention which, if his claims are borne out, will prevent the escape of electricity from a wire.

Tesla's invention, it is claimed, solves the insulation problem in a simple manner. He insulates the wire by passing through it or near it air kept at a low temperature, producing a coat of ice on this wire, which the inventor finds by repeated and extensive experiments, cannot be broken through by the strongest currents, and at the same time gives an insulation that costs practically nothing.

By means of this latest discovery the loss of electricity or electrical energy in transmission, it is claimed, can be rendered so small as to be insignificant and that power can be transmitted to great distances by means of underground wires.

KING MILAN A LOAFER.

Servia's Ex-Sovereign is Now on a Chronic Debauch in Paris

Paris, Aug. 21.—Ex-King Milan, who tried to enter Servia secretly in order to incite a military rebellion against his son, was collared by the police of King Alexander the moment he stepped over the frontier and conducted back to Vienna, whence he reached Paris three days ago.

The ex-King has since been very promiscuously drunk about his favorite haunts.

The French government has warned Milan that unless he is more decorous in his behavior he will have to leave French territory.

WANTED A LOBSTER.

But Accidentally got the Wrong Telephone Number.

The telephone in the editor's office of this great family journal rang violently yesterday, and when we answered it, a sweet voice at the other end asked

"Is that No. 184?" "Yes, ma'am," we answered, "Well, this is Mrs. ——. I wish you'd send up that lobster right away."

"What lobster," we enquired.

"Isn't that 184?" "Yes, good lady, it is."

"Then you ought to know what lobster. I sent you the order this morning, and have been waiting ever since," replied the voice.

"Well, this is the office of the great Moulder of Public Opinion. The Times," we answered, "but if you want a lobster right bad, we'll send one of the editors of our little local contemporaries up right away."

The woman caught on right there, and said something about Mr Oaks, and the wrong number that was hard to understand.

WALES BEGS A PARDON

Asks His Royal Mother to Forgive Murderer

London, August 21.—The Prince of Wales has interceded with his royal mother in behalf of ex-Major Murchison, sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of a newspaper correspondent named Paralow, at Mafeking, during the seige.

Petitions requesting the Queen to grant the pardon are being circulated in the clubs and salons of London, and particularly in the army, and there is little doubt that the ex-officer will be granted clemency.

DEATH FOR A BLOW

Murchison, who belongs to one of the best familes in Scotland, says that Paralow, who was intoxicated, grossly insulted him at Mafeking and followed him across the square, continuing to revile him, challenging him to fight and accusing him of cowardice. No one witnessed the actual killing, but Murchison says the journalist raised his hand to strike him, whereupon he shot him dead.

GALLANTLY IN BATTLE

In the petition to the Queen stress is laid on the fact that Murchison behaved with conspicuous gallantry during the Mafeking seige, and that when the Boer commander, Eloff, captured the fort in which Murchison was confined after the Court-martial under sentence of death, he seized a rifle and led the attack on the Boers, after which he returned of his own free will to his prison cell.

CHINESE TRIED TO EXTERMINATE THE ALLIES

After They Reached the Capital—If Chinese Government is at Sian Fu There is no Means of Getting at Them Without a Prolonged Campaign.

London, Aug. 22. Among other things Admiral Seymour is said to have written.—"Two or three times our prospects were very dark and disaster seemed probable. Yet I never regretted that I had started as I could not have respected myself if I had not done so." Referring to the difficulties of controlling mixed troops and to their characteristics he says.—"The Germans we admired most, but for dash and go none surpassed or perhaps equalled the Americans. The Germans and Russians were inclined to hold together but the Americans were with us always.

Pekin, Aug. 14, via Chefoo, Aug. 20. The American and Russian flags were planted on the east wall of Pekin at 11 o'clock this morning. The Indian troops entered the British Legation at 1 and the Americans at 3.

There was a joyful reception from the wall. The tenants could have lasted but a little longer. They had only three days rations. The Chinese had been attacking furiously for two days. Four shells fell in the Legation during the seige. 55 were killed and 100 wounded. The Japanese began the battle before daylight, and they are still fighting about the north wall, where a part of the Chinese are defending the Imperial city. The Japanese casualties have not yet been ascertained. The Russians had 5 killed and twelve wounded. The Americans and British had a few wounded. The plan was to make a general attack tomorrow and the troops were arriving at camp five miles east all night. They were completely exhausted, and slept in the corn field. The generals, however, at the sound of a heavy attack on the legations pushed forward independently the British, Americans and French on the left and the Russians and Japanese on the right, beginning at two o'clock this morning. The Japanese diverted the brunt of the resistance to the northern city, their artillery engaging the Chinese heavily. The Americans and British met with but little resistance until they entered the city, where there was hard fighting. The troops finally entered the foreign settlement through the canal. The Chinese had continually broken the armistice.

London, Aug. 22. 3.55. a.m. In the news that reached London this morning from Pekin, Tien Tsin or Taku, there is nothing to confirm the report telegraphed from the Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express that the Empress Dowager and the foreign envoys are on the way to Tien Tsin, the Rome correspondent however, avers that the sacred City was entered Aug. 15, two day earlier than rear Admiral Bruce reported. The flags of the allies says the Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail wiring yesterday are now floating over the Imperial palace. Street fighting however continues. Considerable assistance in the capture of Pekin was rendered by 4,000 armed native christains, the legation were enable to hold out by purchasing ammunition the Chinese. Americas action in refusing to deal with Li Hung Chang in the peace proposal met with unanimous approval at the hands of the Morning papers. The Standard says We imagine that other powers will take the same course at any rate until Li produces satisfactory evidence of his authority to negotiate.

London, Aug. 22. In the news that reached London this morning direct from China, there is nothing to confirm the report that the Empress Dowager has been run to earth, the foreign envoys according to the Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express are proceeding Tien Tsin.

London, Aug. 21.—Divers paragraphs as to the movements of the Chinese Imperial family continue to be received at the treaty ports, and are thence faithfully transmitted to the European capitals. Those representing the court as having left Pekin are of exclusive Chinese origin. According to them, their majesties are well on their way to Sian Fu, about 500 miles inland.

Fighting was going on at Pekin on Saturday, according to one report, but according to a despatch received by the Admiralty from Rear Admiral Bruce the allies entered the Sacred City of Pekin on Friday.

If the Chinese Government is at Sian Fu there is no means of getting at them, according to the military men, without a prolonged campaign and with an army as large as Lord Roberts' to secure the bases of communications.

Advices from the provincial capitals show that the attitude of the southern mandarins has been far more friendly since the allies reached Pekin. Some of the magistrates have been issuing proclamations commanding the Chinese to attend to business, to avoid sedition, and acknowledging that the invasion of the foreigners is justified.

Yuan Shi Kai, the governor of Shantung is dead.

ENTERED THE SACRED CITY

London, Aug. 21.—The following despatch has been received from Rear Admiral Bruce.

"Taku, Aug. 19. Sunday.—The allies are reported to have entered the Sacred City of Pekin, August 17."

CHINESE TROOPS TRAMP OFF

Tien Tsin, Aug. 21.—About 5,00 Chinese troops, which are reported to have been at Sung Lie Ching, have left for Pei Hsang. Two thousand more Chinese troops have gone towards Tung Chow.

LI'S PLEA FOR PEACE

Paris, Aug. 21.—The French Foreign Office has received from Li Hung Chang a request similar to the one addressed to the United States Government, asking for the appointment of M. Pichon, the French Minister at Pekin, or another person, to represent France at the peace negotiations. It is said that all the powers have received a like message.

UNITED STATES TROOPS

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 21.—Two battalions of United States infantrymen left Chicago yesterday for San Francisco, from where they will be transported on August 30 to China. Another battalion of each of their regiment is now waiting at San Francisco to be transported to China, bringing the total number of troops sent from the department to the Orient up to about 2,000 officers and men.

PLENTY OF GUNS.

Berlin, Aug. 21.—A semi-official account of China's military resources, says that Herr Krupp has furnished to the Chinese Government since 1895 1,694 guns, of which 776 and 9-centimetre 1,694 guns, of which 776 and 9-centimetre guns, and that English concerns have furnished 244 medium guns and 306 small ones.

AFTER A HARD FIGHT.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 21.—Gen. Orloff, Chief of Staff to the Russian forces, reports to the Russian War Office the defeat of 7,000 Chinese, after a hard fight, the capture of Yuk-Shi pass, and the occupation of Meduchei.

An Imperial ukase has been issued prohibiting the exportatoin of arms of ammunition to China.

THE MIGHTY MOTOR.

Chas. Cadmus Has a New Brand Which Will Lick Everything Up-to-Date.

Hamilton, Aug. 21.—Chas. Cadmus, who is promoting an automobile manufacturing company has been for the past week in Toronto every day, getting a gasoline road wagon ready to bring to Hamilton to exhibit to contemplating purchasers of motor carriages. He states that this particular gasoline carriage is in many respects superior to any now on market. Its points of merit are that it is noiseless, odorless, and runs with almost no perceptible vibration. It possesses simplicity and strength of construction, combined with lightness and durability. The total weight of the carriage is only 400 pounds.

SAY SHE HAS HYDROPHOBIA.

Believed that New Jersey Woman's Illness is Due to Dog Bite.

Atlantic Highlands, N. J., Aug. 21.—Mrs. James Strathie of the Navesink Highlands is suffering from what is believed to be hydrophobia. Several months ago she was bitten slightly by a three-months old puppy. The dog died.

Two months after the dog's death James, the fourteen-year-old son of Mrs Strathie who also had been bitten, died of hydrophobia. Nine persons in all had played with the animal and had received wounds upon their hands. Mrs. Strathie began to show signs of the malady on Sunday. There is little hope of her recovery. All the other persons biten by the dog have been under Pasteur treatment since the boy's death, but great anxiety is felt for the safety of the others affected in view of the fact that he treatment has failed to save Mrs. Strathie.

CANADIANS WHO DIED AS HEROES

Four of Them Held Four Hundred Boers at Bay—Kept up a Steady Fire and Sold Their Lives Dearly.

London, Aug. 21.—A letter from the front gives some further details of the exceptional and splendid gallantry of a detachment of Canadians at Honingspruit, Orange River Colony. The correspondent writes.

"At the post there were, and are now, the 2nd Canadian Mounted Rifles. There are composed of Western Canadians, all good men and an instance of their pluck was told me by their commanding officer, Colonel Evans. I was in camp, and said to him, "We shall get it hot if the Boers reach that ridge (pointing to one a thousand yards off) before our guns get on." He replied, "Yes; our post is all right there now, but the other day four of my men managed to hold it by themselves.

"He explained that a patrol of these four men were coming back to camp, when some 400 Boers made for them and began shooting. One of the Canadians was wounded in the hand, and could not therefore fire, so he led the horses away. A second was shot in the chest and arm, and then propped himself against an ant-heap, as he says, 'to direct the other two.' The remaining pair kept up a steady fire, killed two Boers and saw others struck, some of whom were carried away, until both the brave fellows were shot dead.

"I send you a list of these men, in the belie f that, should you come across anyone connected with Canada and tell him of their gallantry, he will feel as proud of them as fellow-colonists as we do of our brothers-in-arms. Their names are. No. 291, Corporal T. J. Morden, killed; No. 292, Corporal T. R. Miles, wounded in the chest and shoulder; No. 287, Private H. V. W. Miles, wounded slightly in hand, sent back with the horses; No. 169, Private R. E. Kerr, killed.

Madern and Kerr were Canadian-born; the two Miles, who are brothers, were born in England, and their parents live at Bideford, Devon. All were ranching in Pinder's Creek district. Western Canada.

LEFT TOURISTS TO THEIR FATE.

Boston Agency Failed and Told 1,000 Tourists They Must Pay Their Way Home.

Paris, Aug. 21.—The stranding of large numbers of Americans in Europe for want of funds is much more serious than at first supposed. The facts seem to be these.

About a thousand Christian Endeavorers had paid in advance to a Boston tourist agency all the expenses of a trip to Europe. This agency had chartered the North German Lloyd liners the Saale and the Main, and when these steamers were destroyed the owners declared they were not obliged by law to find other transportation.

This caused delay and great expense to the agency, which, however, finally dispatched the tourists three weeks late.

On their arrival in Europe the hotel keepers refused the coupons offered by the tourists on the plea that the rooms had been engaged for earlier dates. In other words, the hotels repudiated their contracts with the tourists agency. The latter seems to have done its best for the tourists, but finally it failed just as most of its people were in Switzerland and Italy, and it informed them that they must pay their own way home.

As, however, they had already, as they supposed, paid all the expenses of the trip, most of them were only provided with pocket money.

Many are now in Paris, having made their way from Italy and Switzerland in emigrant cars. The majority are women, and their position here is naturally painful for them, though, as far as possible, those of the party who have money are coming to the aid of those who have not.

Suicide Buried

Remains Said Away Without Being Identified Positively.

The remains of the High Park suicide, still unidentified, were buried this morning by A. M. Craig & Co., in prospect cemetary. Early this morning Wm. Gallagher, the Everett farmer, paid a second visit to Craig's undertaking rooms to view the remains, but he contented himself with taking away a piece of the coat with a button on it. He left for his home on an early train and will show the piece of coat to his family and see if it can be identified as the same as was worn by Kidd, his missing brother-in-law.

It is added that his majesty, who will come alone, will reside at the Russian embassy while in this city.

DE WET NEAR FRENCHE'S LINE OF COMMUNICATION

De Wet Has Passed Pretoria to the North and is Close to Railway Leading to Delagoa Bay

LORD ROBERTS SENT A FORCE TO PURSUE HIM

But the Boer Guerilla did not Stop to Engage it, but Continued His Retreat—French Must now Pause Until His Rear is Cleared.

London, August 21.—Gen. De Wet still continues his retreat around Pretoria and the British have apparently recognized the futility of further attempts to capture him. There is now no further doubt that De Wet is proceeding as rapidly as possible to effect a junction with General Botha. On Sunday night he had reached a point fifteen miles to the northwest of Pretoria and retired before the advance of a British force sent out from the capital to attack him. It is likely that he will be heard of before long on the communicaions of Gen. French, who is separated from Pretoria by over a hundred miles of railway, upon which De Wet will undoubtedly make a raid during his journey to Machadodorp. De Wet has now covered nearly four hundred miles since his retreat began, and wonder at his audacity and skill is daily growing. Success has bred in him such confidence that he actuaccy comes within sight of Pretoria and circles around British columns as a clever skater displays his ability by swift manoeuvres. He is now perilously near the communications of General French. In fact, he occupies the same position in rear of that general as he occupied for so long a time in rear of Lord Roberts. The further advance of French, who by the way is waiting for the termination of Buller's flank movement against Botha from Ermelo, is therefore rendered uncertain, for he must wait until his rear is clear before he can assume the aggressive against the enemy at Machadodorp.

OFFICERS WITHOUT A REGIMENT.

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—The Militia Department yesterday received the report up to June 30th of Col. Drury, commanding the Royal Canadian Artillery. Owing to the fact of the different batteries being scattered all over the country Col. Drury received permission on June 5th for the brigade division staff to join Baden-Powell's force. They arrived at Mafeking on June 9th and found that "Baden-Powell" had gone east five days before. The Canadian officers carefully examined the surroundings of Mafeking and their opinion is summed up by Col. Drury.

"It is incomprehensible how such a mass of the enemy did not take Mafeking early in the war."

PRIVATE ERMATINGER RELEASED.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 21.—A cable from Sir Alfred Milner says that Private Ermatinger, of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, son of Judge Ermatinger, who was captured June 20 by Boers, has been released.

DE WET WOULD NOT FIGHT.

Pretoria, Aug. 20.—Gen. Christian De Wet passed north of Pyramid hills and camped fifteen miles northeast of here last night. A force was sent out to attack him, but he retired before the advance of the British, and there has been no fighting between the retreating Boers and the pursuing force.

ROBERTS IS STILL YOUNG.

Pretoria, Aug. 20.—Lord Roberts is daily displaying wonderful energy. He rises at daybreak, and examines and replies to all telegrams which have arrived overnight. After breakfast he consults with the heads of the different departments, while in the afternoon he is in the saddle, and sometimes covers enormous distances.

A characteristic anecdote of the Commander-in-Chief is at present going the round of the camps. While Sir Redvers Buller was here he accompanied Lord Roberts one afternoon on a ride to the western part of the town, where a small steeplechase course had been arranged for a weekly paperchase.

Lord Roberts, turning to Gen. Buller, said.—"Come, Buller, let us take the jumps!" "Too old for that, sir," replied Sir Redvers. Whereupon the commander-in-chief cantered forward and took all the jumps.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR AFRICA.

London, Aug. 21.—Orders were to-day sent to Aldershot for fresh drafts of reinforcements to be prepared for South Africa, so that it does not look as if the hope of the Ministry that a large proportion of Lord Roberts' army may be brought back in September is at all likely to be fulfilled.

MANY RAGGED FRENCHMEN.

Paris, August 21.—Major Hybert, returning from the Transvaal, appeals to the Boer Independence Committee to succor the many Frenchmen now ragged and destitute at Lorenzo Marques. He has induced the French Government to ship them back to France, but they will arrive penniless, and he urges their being supplied on landing with clothes and traveling expenses, for they have "reflected honor on the French name, and their heroism has seconded the Boers in their marvellous resistance."

Maybrick Sorrows For Russel's Death

Prisoner Says He was Her Friend, and was Trying to Obtain Her Release, but Who Believes Her

London, Aug. 21.—For the first time since her life sentence was imposed eleven years ago, Mrs. Florence Maybrick to-day had a private interview with her counsel, Dr. Clarke Bell, of New York, at Aylesbury prison. Mrs. Maybrick, like her many friends, is indignant at the attacks made by the Liverpool Post on the Late Chief Justice of England, Lord Russell of Killowen, former counsel for the prisoner.

"The only person up to the present who ever saw me alone," she said to the Associated Press representative, "was the Chief Justice. He said,—'Mrs. Maybrick, I am doing all in my power for your release. Whatever happens, remember this—that if there is one man in England who believes in your innocence I am that man.'

"It was only by accident that I heard of Lord Russell's death, for I have not seen a newspaper for a decade. But I could not help but feel that in his death I had lost my best friend. It is an outrage, in view of his constant and untiring efforts and friendship for me that he should be attacked now that he is dead."

Mrs. Maybrick is now 36 years of age. She has the prison pallor, but her blue eyes and dark wavy hair are still reminders of the attractions which made her a bride at seventeen. She wears the light blue check prison costume with a red star on her shoulder, indicative of it being her first offence, and of her former good character. Below this is the letter "L," meaning that she is a life prisoner, and her prison number.

Mrs. Maybrick said her health was generally good, adding.

"All the officials here or at the Home Office can do to mitigate my prison life is done. They are universally kind, but no one alive and free can know the weight of these dragging years."

What the result of Dr. Bell's interview with Mrs. Maybrick may be cannot yet be made known. The recent United States memorial is still in the hands of the Home Secretary, Sir Matthew White Ridley, and Mrs. Maybrick's friends are hopeful that when the answer shall come it may be a pardon.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE

To Mr. J. C. Hamilton on the Loss by Death of His Wife

Court Stanley, A.O.F., at their last regular meeting, passed the following resolution of condolence to be presented to Mr. J. C. Hamilton, of town, on the loss he has recently sustained by the death of his wife.

Dear Brother Hamilton,

At the last regular meeting of Court Stanley, A.O.F., the following resolution of sympathy was resolved.

Whereas, the Great and Supreme Ruler has in His infinite wisdom taken from you by the hand of death, your beloved wife, we humbly pray you to accept this as a heartfelt expression of our sympathy for you in this the hour of your sad bereavement.

In the midst of life we are in death. How very forcibly we realise the truth of this. Dear Brother, while you mourn your loss, remember it is Heaven's gain.

We cannot comperhend why the Great Father deals with some of us as he does. Eternity alone will unfold these mysteries to us. May you rest on that exceeding and comforting promise, "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." As brother Foresters, we commend you to the keeping of Him who is too wise to err and too good to be unkind.

May you be able to bear your trial with Christian fortitude, and look forward to a grand reunion where suffering and death never come.

Signed on behalf of the Court.
Dated August 20, 1900.
WM. J. JOHNSTON.
ROBERT WHATLEY.
DAVID HAMILTON.

The resolution was accompained by the usual $50 grant to members on the loss of their wives.

FRANCE TO WAR ON ENGLAND.

The Paris Government is Preparing for a Combat in the Fall.

London, Aug. 22.—The Express, which is ultra-sensational in all its news, prints an unusually wooly yarn from its Cherbourg correspondent this morning to the effect that France confidently expects war with England the coming fall. The despatch says the French government already has perfected a plan for taking Great Britain unawares by sending out its fleet several days before war is declared to sweep the seas of all British men of war it may find. The Express evidently takes the story half seriously, for in an editorial paragraph at the end of the despatch it points out how France by such an underhand move would lose the sympathy of the world and, in the end, surely be vanquished.

MAPS AND BOUNDARIES.

A correspondent of the New York Sun claims to have in possession an atlas dated 1831, which shows Oregon to extend northward to 54 degrees 40 minutes north latitude, and Alaska to extend southward to the same point. On this he founds an argument that British Columbia and the Yukon territory as well as Alaska, rightly belongs to the United States, and warns the United States Government not to make any more concessions to the British Government. If old maps are to settle the boundary question, we have some old maps in this country which show that Canada included the greater part of the Western States. The brave French-Canadian adventurers who explored that Western Country long ago made Canada occupy a big space on the map of America. The boundaries are different now, but we have the better half of the continent and what we have we'll hold.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A Washington man performed the novel feat of frying an egg in the heat of the sun on an asphalt pavement on Monday last. The egg was done on one side in seven minutes and thirty seconds, and on both sides in ten minutes. It was eaten by a little negro boy who was among the spectators of the experiment. The temperature as indicated by a thermometer placed on the pavement was 120 degrees.

Cheneyville, La., which has distinguished itself by not lynching a negro who had killed a white man, is the town which was made famous by Mrs. Stowe in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Evidently it is trying to live down its reputation.

A mob of 1000 people, white, set upon and beat nearly to death a dozen colored men and boys in New York City on Wednesday night. It is evident that the Boxer element is not confined to China.

Some people who have hard work to get enough to eat can extract some comfort from the case of John D. Rockefeller, who has an income of $30,000,000 a year and can't eat anything but bread and milk.

FUN AND SENTIMENT.

"I don't think that Mr. Eatington ever declines an invitation to dinner." "Oh, no! He's a sort of social lion seeking what he may devour."—Puck.

"I see it is becoming the fad to have your wedding cinematographed." "But a feller doesn't have to have his courtship cinematographed, thank heaven!" "... is ... descent ... person who ... to fall back on some praiseworthy ancestor for his own importance."—Detroit Free Press.

"... the emperor," said the ... "The ... boy hardly knows whether he is dead or alive." "From which," remarked Li Hung Chang, "I infer that he reads the papers."—Puck.

... this large and enthusiastic demonstration ... being held?" Boy—"Naw, sir. De local football club wiped de earth up wid der rivals."—Norristown Herald.

... "Pardon me, madam, but are you ... interested in the study of prehistoric man?" Miss Antique—No indeed! It keeps me busy trying to get the man of to-day interested in me.—Chicago News.

"Young Popularis is the most self-possessed man I ever saw. He never gets the least bit rattled under any circumstances." "Why, in what exigency did you ever see him tried, to have such confidence in him?" "I saw him exhibiting his first baby to half a dozen women at once, and answering every question rationally."

A Pert Old Lady.

Out in Indiana a good many years ago a certain old lady, summoned as a witness, came into court wearing a large poke bonnet, such as was then much affected by rural folks. Her answers to the questions put to her being rather indistinct, the court requested her to speak louder, though without much success.

"The court cannot hear a word you say, my good woman," said the judge. "Please to take off that huge bonnet of yours."

"Sir," she said composedly and distinctly enough this time, "the court has a perfect right to bid a gentleman take off his hat, but it has no right to make a woman remove her bonnet."

"Madam," replied the judge, "you seem so well acquainted with the law that I think you had better come up and take a seat with us on the bench."

"I thank your Honor kindly," she responded, dropping a low courtesy to the court, "but there are old women enough there already."—Law Notes.

Mistakes in Telegraph Messages.

Two funny telegraph stories are printed by the Pittsburg Dispatch on the authority of a former employe of the Western Union company.

He was receiving a dispatch from Albany, in which the sender was not overcareful in spacing his letters. Lawton took the address as follows:

"Dr. A. Wing, room car agent, Central depot, New York."

The dispatch came back with the marginal report that there was no such person at the address named. The operator at Albany was called up and explanations followed, in consequence of which the address was changed to "drawing room car agent, central depot."

A still more absurd mistake was once made in the same office when a telegram was received for "James W Giles, pie clerk, Brooklyn nasty yard." This was afterward amended to read "James W. Gillespie, clerk, Brooklyn navy yard."

A Correction.

An amusing double-barreled case of heterophemy occurred not long ago at a meeting of the licensing sessions in an English city. The chairman, discussing the law requiring the bona fide travelers to go a certain distance before being entitled to liquid refreshment, referred to it as being "three miles as the fly crows." A superior person hastily rose to correct the speaker, but could get no nearer than "Your worship means 'as the fly crows,' or rather," he added hastily, "as the cry flows.'"

No one was rash enough to make a further attempt, and the magistrates went on in their efforts in behalf of sobriety.

Sought Advice.

The Rev. Mr. Perkins being called upon suddenly to address a Sunday school, thought he would get a few original ideas from his young hearers. "Children," said he, "I want some of you to tell me what I shall talk to you about to-night. What shall I say?" At first there was no response. "That bright little fellow over there," said he, pointing to a youngster on a back seat. "What shall I say to you to-night?" In a little, piping voice came the answer:—"Say amen and sit down."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

A Resourceful Bride.

"Can we afford," he faltered, sadly, "to have a skeleton in our closet?"

As for the woman, she wept, for they were indeed wretchedly poor, but she was not, therefore, altogether unresourceful.

"We might keep it in the hall and use it for a hat rack!" exclaimed the bride, for her mind was giving way under the constant effort to practice economy.—Detroit Journal.

His Purpose.

"What are you assuming such a belligerent air for?" said the small potentate's adviser. "Don't you know that we don't want to fight?"

"Of course, I know it. And I realize that we've got to do something exceedingly plausible to keep the other people from finding it out."—Washington Star.

Eating and Sleeping.

Food supplies the substance for repairing the wastes of the body, and gives strength. Sleep affords the opportunity for these repairs to be made. Both are necessary to health. If you can't eat and sleep, take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It creates a good appetite and tones the digestive organs, and it gives the sweet, restful sleep of childhood. Be sure to get Hood's.

Biliousness is cured by Hood's Pills. 25 cents.

Grand Old Men.

Some men seem to defy old age. They walk erect. Their eyes are bright. Their laugh is hearty. They are men of to-day and men of yesterday. They are also men who have kept themselves in good physical condition in the past. As we grow older waste matter accumulates in the system. The body cannot throw it off without assistance. So, little by little the machinery of the body is clogged, vitality is lowered, and enjoyment of life ceases. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cannot make old men young, but it does make them strong and healthy. By removing the waste accumulations, by increasing the blood supply, by strengthening the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, and thus increasing the assimilative and nutritive powers, "Golden Medical Discovery" makes grand old men.

"I suffered for six years with constipation and indigestion, during which time I employed several physicians, but they could not reach my case," writes Mr. G. Popplewell, of Eureka Springs, Carroll Co., Ark. "I felt that there was no help for me, could not retain food on my stomach; had vertigo and would fall helpless to the floor. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little 'Pellets.' I am now in good health for one of my age—56 years. I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's medicines."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets greatly benefit old men by keeping the bowels in activity.

OZONE

GIVES HOPE TO THE MOST DISCOURAGED VICTIMS OF DISEASE

Given Up in Five Hospitals—Had a Tumer for 18 Years but now Permanently Cured with Ozone

William Francis case was considered so hopeless that in one hospital it was asked that his body be given them when he died. He had tropical dysentery and tumer in his stomach for 18 years. Two hospitals in London, England, and three in Toronto treated him but gave him up as incurable. Here's his story from his own pen, and it is truly a marvelous cure.

Toronto, February 16, 1900.

The Ozone Co., Toronto.

Dear Sirs, — I have much pleasure in testifying to the wonderful curing powers of your Ozone and what it has done for me for 18 years past I have been troubled with tropical dysentry, also a complication of other diseases. I attended St. George's Hospital London, England. They told me my disease was incurable. I then went to the West London hospital, at Hammersmith, England. I was told the same thing. For the last 8 years I have been treated by the General Hospital, Grace Hospital, and also Simcoe street Dispensary; they all did their best, but all said I was incurable. One of the hospitals asked me for my body when I died. This showed how bad my case was. I had also a lump in my stomach about the size of a hen's egg, which was thought to be a cancer. It burned like fire all the time. Finally I could keep nothing on my stomach and I also lost my appetite. Mr. A. Cunningham advised me to try Ozone as he thought it would cure me. After taking Ozone a few days my appetite came back and the lump in my stomach went away, and in a week's time I could get out of bed. I have taken four bottles of Ozone and all my complaints have been completely cured. I never felt better in my life. It is certainly a miracle to cure my diseased body after all the treatment I have gone through.

A Destructive Dog.

Yesterday a citizen called at the Times and told a story of woe. He said that his wife and he were sitting on the front porch with his maltese alongside, when a fellow came along with a big brute of a dog. The animal espied his wife's cat, and before he could rescue her, the dog gave chase through the house. Tables, chairs and the china closet were upset. China, bric-a-brac and glassware were smashed to atoms. The dog came out of the parlor window, taking the screen with him, and all the fellow did was to pet the dog, gave us the laugh and walked away. He said he could not find the cat; his wife has hysterics and he was as mad as a hornet. Who's going to pay the damages? He asked. The Times advised them to interview Chief Rensel.

HEART'S SUNSHINE.

Oh, if only those who love us
  Would but tell us while we live,
And not wait until life's journey
  Ended is, before they give
The smile we hungered after,
  Tender words we longed to hear,
Which we listened for, but vainly,
  For many a weary year.

There is much of pain and sorrow
  All must bear, and bear alone,
Yet how helpful is the sunshine
  Of a cheery look and tone!
How it brightens up life's pathway,
  And dispels the shadows grim,
And restores our shattered idols,
  Which we built in days now dim.

Then bestow your sunshine freely!
  Let it shine from out your eyes,
Let it breathe in heartfelt pressures,
  Let it breathe in heartfelt sighs,
Let it cheer the fainting spirit
  Of some brother in distress
Let it thrill our jarring voices
  With a note of tenderness.

For in serving fellow mortals
  We best serve the Father, too,
And in lightening their burdens
  Ours grow light and fade from view.
And a sympathetic nature
  That vibrates to others' needs
Is a bit of God's own sunshine
  Quickening to noble deeds.

—Anne B. Wheeler, in Boston Transcript.

SWEET SIXTEEN.

I was, I regret to say, it; the Unknown Quantity, and I was so for no other reason than that I had got over my earliest youth while she was at the halcyon age pig-tails. Her pig-tail was black, frequently tied with a black ribbon, and matched her blue eyes beautifully. People say that such things—blue eyes and dark hair—are to be found in Ireland by hundreds, but they say so many things about Ireland. I have not been to Ireland, but I do not believe it. I do not believe such beauties grow on any particular soil, like potatoes or turnips.

Often I railed at Fate for reducing me to an Unknown Quantity. Why, because I was supposed to have seen the world, having been in India for a few years, because I had brought back a few tigers' claws, purchased, for all she knew, in Regent street; because I was a little older than those boys who hovered round her, and had forgotten how to blush like them—why should I be reduced to this absurd position? After all, five years in India does not make one a grandfather, and a man may even have shot tigers without qualifying for the situation of a sphinx. But Fate, rejoicing in irony, has ordained that to 16 20 shall be a mystery, separated irreconcilably by long years of experience and intolerable wisdom, for 20 has seen life while 16 is learning deportment. The annoying thing about it is that in another year—or two at most—when the pig-tail shall have become a coil on the top of the head—unknown quantities will cease to exist; x, by the universal vanishing of age distinctions, will be resolved into one more man, and—from 20 to 100—no reasonable offer will be refused.

In the meanwhile we were friends—with a difference. She tyrannized over the collegians when they gathered in her train too sheepishly, or deferred to them when they blusteringly laid their reputations as rowers or batsmen at her feet, and she drank in their comfortable egoism. Our relations were not of the same simplicity. We spoke of tigers and other perplexing and Oriental subjects, in which she displayed a constrained intelligence and I a fictitious interest. I am not sure even that I was not compelled to get up the religion of Buddha from dusty works of reference, and I know she scored on the subject of Avatars. It was not so very long since I had stroked my college eight and my average for cricket in India. What does it matter? She could not understand that such subjects were meet for a traveled man, so that I had no opportunity of mentioning laurels won. Seeing on what easy terms they would have placed us, I kept regretting that I was so modest, but the laurels of mere wish or mere regret—I fear I am quoting some philosopher—are withered leaves that never were green. But nearest approach to mutual understanding, was when I ventured to tease her. If she understood my jokes, which happened, I admit, when they were at their poorest, we indulged in common laughter. And laughter is one of the methods of solving x. If, on the other hand, they contained some bewildering subtlety, she was good enough to overlook the point, and we went on to pastures new.

One day—it was at the time when May grows odorous among the bleaching black, when laburnums let fall their yellow rain in the sunlight, and the lapwing—as I am given to understand, although no ornithologist—takes himself another crest—My Lady of the Pig-tail brought out a divine sailor hat. Many were the collegians who saw her home from school, and purchased boxes of chocolates to win her grace. I also bought her chocolates, of Fiwenty, a superior flavor; but, whereas she accepted theirs as votive offerings with queenly condescension, mine elicited an impulsive gratitude, as though they had been the tip of some elderly uncle. Since then gratitude—the emotional quid for the material quo—has always, in my opinion, been least among the virtues. If I had been her uncle I might have felt differently. I suppose uncles do. But I was not her uncle, nor do I wish to be. The pseudo avuncular position is worse than that of the brother by compact. As an unknown quantity I writhed. She understood enough of x to read disappointment on my face, for she set about consoling me by stating that she wished for my opinion. To ask an old man for his opinion, as if you really thought it worth listening to (which, of course, you never do) is the surest way to his good graces. I was not an old man, and I wondered if the sirens spoke with so alluring a lisp. We were lightened the [illegible] [illegible], while many [illegible] collegians were playing. I gathered from her mysterious preface that several of the collegians had made daily requests for gloves and flowers and such things, indicative of momentous intentions. She desired my opinion upon them.

"I want to know what you think of Mr. Tom Redington," she said. "Do you consider him nice?"

"Mr. Tom Redington," I replied, "is a man of exquisite taste and unimpeachable good fortune."

"Why?" she asked.

"Because he has the felicity to attract your attention."

"No; but seriously," she lisped. It was somehow understood between us that polysyllables denoted the absence of seriousness.

"Well, then," I said, "he bats, doesn't he? or rows?"

"Are you sure you're serious?" she said. "Honor bright?"

"And shining," I said solemnly.

"He's got a very good average so far this season," she reflected, not taking me into this athletic monologue.

"The season is young yet," I said, hopefully. "You should never count your chickens until you're sure they are not ducks."

"But Mr. Dick Walker is higher," she went on, balancing names, "only he's so conceited about it."

"Pride comes before a fall," I said, "though a good deal depends on the bowlers."

"Then there's Mr. Dean,' she said thoughtfully; 'he brought me some chocolates to-day."

"What does Mr. Dean do?" I asked. "Bird's-nest?"

"Of course not," she said, laughing. He rows, and he won a thculling match the other day."

"Dean's a hot man," I said.

"There are such a lot of young men," she said, furrowing her brows, as Penelope did in all probability when she considered the vast number of her suitors.

"Wait a few years," I suggested. "There won't be so many then."

"Why not?" she asked.

"It's a kind of political economy," I said vaguely. "There'll want to be quite as many. Very likely more. But you will only see one. He will have an exceedingly high average, and you will probably think he ought to represent England against the Australians. Whether he sculls or not you will be convinced that he is the best potential sculler that was ever born. Other girls will not agree with you, and the Committee of Selection will declare that they cannot put even one into the English eleven. You will abuse the Committee of Selection. The only-existing-young-man will wave his hand negligently, and say that, after all there are better things than cricket. He will bring you as many boxes of chocolate as you please."

"That will be nice," she said; "only I may be tired of chocolates by then."

"Chocolates," I declared, "are frequently rejected in favor of other sweets."

"What sort?" she asked, looking at me and wondering at my great experience.

"A sort that doesn't make you sticky," I said, diplomatically.

"And will it be many years," she said, "that I shall have to wait?" She looked at me curiously from under the sailor hat. A little wind blew through the lilacs and carried the scent toward us. Many years? I looked at her. I thought of the lapwings rejoicing in their new crests and of the spring that brings love to the heart of a young man. But then I was the Unknown Quantity. I remembered how puzzling is the task of solving x. What right had it to puzzle My Lady of the Pig-tail—or to consider the matter on the lower levels of possibility—what chance of winning her so young?"

"And will it be many years?" she repeated.

"Not more than two or three," I said as cheerfully as possible.—From Black and White.

Race of Dwarfs Once Lived in Missouri

Workmen terracing King Hill, an old landmark of northwestern Missouri, which is to be converted into a residence suburb of St. Joseph, have unearthed a prehistoric cemetery.

The remains of a race of dwarfs whose skeletons are only four to five feet long, have been found. They were not allied with any tribe known to have inhabited this territory and are unaccounted for by Indian legendary. Their graves are on the summit of a hill which rises abruptly from the Missouri River bottom to a height of 600 feet.

Low, flat heads, with small intelligence and marked animal propensities characterize this people. Heavy jaws and strong, well-preserved teeth carry the records of their lives forward. Brutes, human but inhumane, self-reliant, they were savages of a lower order than any we know to-day.

Yet they honored their dead. Shells such as are found on the banks of many inland streams, plentiful on the sandbars of the Missouri, overlooked by King Hill, and stones of unusual hues, worthless in the commercial marts of to-day, the playthings of children, were deposited in the graves, collections gathered in loving tribute to the memory of those unknowns, even in race, to the historians of to-day.

The ravages which time has wrought has left but fragmentary parts of the skeletons, which crumble into ashes upon exposure. The big plough and the scrapers, with the trampling of the horses, usually crush the brittle forms until it is difficult to restore them to human semblance.

One of the ploughs last week overturned a bunch of human hair, which, however, fell to pieces upon being handled. As preserved it presents the unmistakable evidences of hair from the head of a human being; although much of it has fallen into fine powder.

She Forgot the Flour.

She measured out the butter with a very solemn air,
The milk and sugar also, and she took the greatest care
To count the eggs correctly, and to add a little bit
Of baking powder, which, you know, beginners oft omit;
Then she stirred it all together,
  And she baked it for an hour;
But she never quite forgave herself
  For leaving out the flour!

Annual Convention

Messrs. W. H. Hill and J. S. Knapman returned on Saturday evening from Knowlton, Que., where they had been attending the annual convention of the local managers of the Sun Life Insurance Co. There were over seventy in attendance and the gathering was a great success, both from a business and social standpoint. Among the representatives were some from the West Indies and the Southern States. The people of Knowlton gave the visitors a warm welcome and hospitable treatment. This claim occupies an imposing position on a mountain just north of the city; and last, but by no means least, the Sunshine, located two miles east of Salida, at Cleora Station, on the main trunk line of the great Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, and also on the Arkansas river, which in length is one of America's greatest streams.

Keeping up to Date.

A. McKim & Co., newspaper advertising agents, of Montreal, have published a revised list of Canadian newspapers, as a supplementary to their Canadian Newspaper Directory, which appears annually. Although the latest issue of the latter was published only a year ago, so many changes have taken place in the circulation, ownership, etc., of papers all over the Dominion, that this supplement became necessary. This revised list is supposed to contain the particulars concerning every newspaper published in Canada, and as it is published by a firm thoroughly reliable in every respect, the work should find a place on the desk of every advertiser. Half-tone illustrations show A. McKim & Co's offices in Montreal, with their large staff at work. The booklet is tastefully printed, and reflects considerable credit on the enterprise of its publishers. It will be mailed anywhere on receipt of 25 cents.

REPORTERS' ROUNDS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

—Schools open a week from Monday.

—A number of drives are on their way towards Peterborough.

—The merchants are complaining of dull times.

—The cottages at Stoney Lake are nearly all occupied.

—There is little doing on the market these days.

—Mr. Jack Butcher had his fortune told yesterday. It was understood that riches are to be his, but the story says nothing about marriage.

—The Steamer Sunbeam, as will be seen by advertisement in another column, will not connect with the train at Lakefield this evening.

—A camp of gypsies are located at Auburn. The people are tramping around the upper end of the town and cause some uneasiness to housekeepers.

Do you read what people say about Hood's Sarsaparilla? It is curing all forms of disease caused or promoted by impure blood.

—Contractors Evans and Langford are now at work on the granolithic pavement on Rubidge street between King and Charlotte streets and on King st.

—Philip McDonald, charged with vagrancy at the police court yesterday morning, was discharged with a warning not to do it again.

—Jas. Coombs, from Halifax, was in police court yesterday on a charge of stealing a ride on the C.P.R. The man was seen at Ordendale and arrested at Tweed. He was sent up.

—Market clerk English dropped a watch on the market square. It was a nickel timepiece, but, strange to say, when it fell the jar did not even wake up the policeman at the station. Mr. English found it next day.

—Fortune telling is a fraud, and parties plying such an avocation are liable to punishment by law. Notwithstanding that such is the case, numbers of persons make a good thing out of "foretelling the future," and imposing upon the credulous. A dark-eyed gypsy woman is now doing up the town and taking in those who are willing to listen to her nonsense.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

—Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Snow are registered at the Snowden House.

—Mrs. Matchett and daughter, Ashburnham, and Mrs. Peters, Canton, were the guests of Mrs. J. H. Parsons, Osaca, on Friday last.—Port Hope Guide.

For Throwing Stones

Mrs. Robert McNaffy, who lives in the northern part of the town, was fined $5 and costs by County Police Magistrate Edmison yesterday for throwing stones at a neighbor's children.

The New Band Stand

The Times has been asked why it is that the new band stand, which has been erected in Central Park, is not used by the band. We understand there is no light, and that the stand is not what it should be.

Golf Today

A very interesting golf match will be played today at the Auburn links, between Peterborough and Port Hope players. Peterborough players will be — Messrs. J. H. Burnham, R. M. Dennistoun, S. Ray, J. W. Garvin, W. D. Parker, D. H. Burnett, and R. M. Hamilton. The match will begin at two o'clock.

Interesting Mementos.

Lindsay Post. — Mr. T. C. Matchett, C. P.R. agent, a few days since was in receipt of a number of interesting papers and mementos from his friend, Sergeant McCrea, of Omemee, now in South Africa with the Canadian contingent. Among them was a telegraph blank and a railway weigh bill, both quaint documents; all printed in German. There was also a six penny piece, bearing the image and superscription of Oom Paul.

Successful Fishermen

Messrs. Harry LeBrun and R. B. McKee, returned yesterday from a few days' outing at Mr. LeBrun's cottage, Stony Lake. They spent a day at the head of the lake, in company with Mr. H. C. Winch, where they had great success in fishing. They were three of a kind, and filled each time they drew—in their lines.

The two Harrys make a strong team but with Mr. McKee to help them there was an unusually large catch. Harry says that one of the fish was so large that when they pulled it out of the lake the water went down perceptibly.

Change of Business

Mr. Dickson Davidson, as will be seen by an advertisement in another column, has returned to town, and has purchased the business carried on by Ormond & Walsh, which is one of the oldest and most successful drug businesses in Canada. For over half a centurn the name has been a familiar one, and has earned a high reputation for keeping only the best and purest drugs and medicines that the market can afford. Mr. Davidson is so well known that he needs no introduction to the readers of the Times. He is thoroughly qualified in his profession, and his genial personality will assure a large patronage. We wish him every possible success.

COFFEE AND HEART DISEASE.

Slowly and Surely Affects the Heart's Action

"My heart seemed to be jumping out of my body one morning after I had used some coffee, clear, without cream or sugar,—for I had been told that coffee would not hurt me if used that way. We were all greatly frightened at the serious condition of my heart until I remembered that it might be from the coffee.

"So when the trouble passed off, I concluded never to use coffee again. It had hurt me greatly, used in the ordinary way with cream and sugar, but I hoped it would be less harmful without the cream and sugar, but the result was no better.

"Since that time we had been using Postum Cereal Food Coffee and my heart has never troubled me at all. We are all delighted with the Postum because we know how to make it and know how valuable it is as a health beverage.

"In speaking to a friend lately about Postum Cereal, she said she did not like it. I found the reason was that it had not been made properly. After I told her to take four heaping teaspoons of Postum to the pint of water and let it boil full fifteen minutes after the real boiling started, she was greatly delighted with it and has been using it since and has been very much better in health. Yours truly," Mrs. L. S. McGillimmey, 1215 G. St., N. W. Washington, D. C.

Wheel Stolen

Notice has been received of the theft of a wheel from John Smith, of Campbellford, on the night of August 11th. It is an "Ohio" wheel, light green enamel, adjustable handlebars, Christy saddle, Morgan & Wright single tube tires.

Originality in "Ads."

The art of advertising has a few fixed rules. Peole read "ads" not for amusement, but to secure information; and the man who has a house, a medicine or any kind of merchandise to sell or services to offer to the public does the most essential thing when he says so simply, directly, and persistently. Still, there is always room for originality, and if he have a new idea as to how to display and arrange his announcements so as to arrest people's attention and make an enduring impression he is bound to profit thereby. New ideas in advertising will be in demand so long as they shall not violate the rules of simplicity and lucidity. Everybody reads the Times.

Suspicious Liberality.

"It was a mean trick," said a citizen to the Times yesterday, with a smile, "but I wanted my wife to come home, and it was the only way that I could think of to get her back. She went away about five weeks ago on a vacation and left me alone to get along as best I could. It wasn't long before I grew tired of the arrangement, tired of getting my meals at the hotels and restaurants, tired of sending checks in reply to her demands for more money. Three days ago I received a letter asking to send her $25 at once. It was then that my plan suggested itself. By return mail I sent her check for double the amount that she had asked for, and enclosed it with a note that read: 'Don't hurry back.'"

"It worked as I thought it would. My wife returned by the first train with a strange gleam of inquiry in her eyes and a set about her lips that bodes trouble for me if she confirms the horrible suspicions that she is laboring under. However, I have her at home, and I am not losing any sleep over what she may suspect."

Typhoid and Well Water.

People who us ewell water ought to be on the guard. A report comes from Chicago of an outbreak of typhoid, arising from drinking well water. Forty-seven members of a golf club hav ebeen sickened with the disease within a fortnight. At first there was no suspicion that the water of the two deep wells on the grounds could be contaminated, as there was no apparent source of danger. Still, a bacteriologist was asked to make an examination, and he found the water of the both wells alive with typhoid bacilli. It is obvious now that the examination should have been made before the opening of the golf season, but similar negligence is general. Sanitarians are utterly opposed to the use of well water, and wherever it is necessary to use well sthe water should be frequently analysed. The trouble is that until an epidemic breaks out people will not believe there is any danger. When a man has drunk from a well for years without injury, he cannot be convinced that there is anything to fear from the water.

PA'S SHIRT WAIST.

Georgie Tells of an Innovation That Provoked Scoff.

When paw came home a few days ago all het up he said;

"At last the men are getting some com mun sents. They are going to wair shurt waists. That's what they ot of done long ago. What's the use of having on a vest and coat that cost $20 when you mite be getting some enjoyment out of life, wairing a 50 cent shurt waist that lets you keep as cool as a kewcumber just offin the ice? They are lots and lots of things happening every little while to make a buddy think wimmen would be better off if they new more, but they have sents enuff to wair shurt waist any way. I'm going to get th e babbut."

"Goodness gracious, paw!" maw sed, "You surely ain't in ernest, are you?"

"Of course I am," paw told her. "Why shouldn't I be?"

"I don't believe enny man that has enny self respect would do such a thing."

"That shows where you haven't enny logick," paw ansered. "If it's right for wimmen to wair them I don't see why the men ot to be afrade. Look at the Old Roamuns. They ust to go round with a table cloth slung over one shoulder and keep comfortable. I bleeve that's what made them so grate, too. How can ennybuddy have nobull thots when they are nearly roasten becos they are such fools as to go round with four or five layers of hevvy cloth on that they don't need only for looks? There's the secret of the downfall of the Hewmun race. Close are to blame becoz we haven't ennay more grate men. If we would get up in the morning and rap a sheet round us instead of having to dress haff an our or so we would have that much more time to study and think and get to be filosofers and poets and things. I'm going to get a shurt waist tomorrow."

After maw thot about it a while she told paw they wasn't enny use spending the munny before he new whether he would l'ike the shurt waist or not. Our hired gurl is a large gurl with brod sholders and no corsets worth notusing, so maw borrowed one of her shurt waists that was just washed and got paw to try it on. It was a pritty good fit, only it wouldn't tuck into the top of paw's trousers very far, but he looked at himself in the glass and sed:

"Of corse, if I was getting a new one it would fit a little better in some spots but this looks pritty well."

Uncle Wesley and Aunt Grace came over while paw was keeping cool and Uncle Wesley sed he bet paw dassent walk it down George street.

"Just to sho you," paw told him, I'll go.

"Necessity Knows No Law."

But a law of Nature bows to the necessity of keeping the blood pure so that the entire system shall be strong, healthy and vigorous.

To take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is therefore a law of health and it is a necessity in nearly every household. It never disappoints.

Erysipelas—"Had a severe attack of erysipelas, suffering from dizziness and nervousness so that I could not rest at night. Tried Hood's Sarsaparilla with good results, and now recommend it to others." M. Chambers, Toronto, Ont.

Tired Feeling—"Was all run down and had no appetite. Was tired all the time. Hood's Sarsaparilla was suggested, and a total benefited me so much that now I would not be without the medicine." Mrs. G. D. Burnett, Central Norton, N. B.

Committees of Foreign Officers Have Been Named to Govern Pekin During Disorders

EIGHTING REPORTED IN THE THEN TSIN DISTRICT

American Board of Missions Reports the Safety of Missionaries at Pekin and Tung Chow—Admiral Bruce Praises a Great Feat of British Sailors.

Washington, Aug 22.

The reply of the United States Government to Li Hung Chang says in brief that this Government cannot enter upon negotiations until there is a Government in China which can prevent the hostilities of Chinese troops and Chinese citizens against the powers. The text of the reply has been communicated to the other Governments.

Washington, August 22

The War Department has made public the following,—War Department, Aug. 22, Major-general Chaffee, Pekin, via Taku, —"The President joins me in congratulations to you and the officers and men of your command on the brilliant achievement, in which the courage, fortitude and skill of the American forces in China have played so honorable a part with many of your fallen comrades. The whole country is proud and grateful for your great success.

(Signed) E. ROOT
Sec'y of War.

London, Aug. 23, 4 a.m.

To-day 1,500 Americans attacked the imperial palace, says a despatch to the Morning Post from Pekin, dated Aug. 15, and captured four of the courts. The American flag is flying over the imperial granary and the Imperial bank house has been looted. Describing events prior to the relief the Morning Post correspondent cables on Aug. 12,—The Tsung Li Yamen requested a conference with a view to a peace. No armistice was granted, however, and that night we entered the longest fusilade of the whole seige. It lasted 12 hours.

The Daily Chronical published an interview with the Japanese Minister in London. Kato Takoaki which represents him as having said "the Empress is the heart and soul of China. so long as she lives in China, so long as she remains in China, whether the power is taken from her or not she will always be the greatest force, the one above all others to be reckoned with, the difficulty will be to get any one who can speak for her. I fear that the influence of Li Hung Chang is now of extremely little weight, the powers must come to a final understanding quickly, riots, anarchy, bloodshed and misery throughout China will be the inevitable result of a policy that does not immediately dispose itself. The Government must be re established. The Japanese envoy expressed his approval of the reported American suggestion regarding a conference of the powers and said he believed that satisfactory compensation could be assured if the sources of China were properly developed dispite the fact that her present revenues are pledged.

Field Marshall Court Van Waldersee according to the Daily Mail correspondent expressed the opinion that his labor in China will be of long duration as pacification will be a difficult undertaking. Three hundred and seventy-five thousand Russian troops are already in the far east or on the way there by land sea or under orders to umbark. This statement is made by the Moscow correspondent of the Daily Graphic who adds that modilisation is in progress all over European and Russia and that there are now at odds some fourteen steamers chartered to take troops. According to a St. Petersburg special, a telegram has been received at the Russian capital from Shanghai announcing the departue of Li Hung Chang for Pekin.

London, Aug. 22.2—There is little new from Chinese sources. Evidence is steadily growing in favor of the belief that the Empress and Emperor, with the Imperial court, succeeded in effecting their escape before the entry of the allies into the Imperial city. The crisis is therefore as much complicated as ever, for it is evident that all the powers can lay hands upon the personnel of the Chinese Government the troubles cannot be brought to a satisfactory settlement. The allies are now face to face with a long and difficult campaign in the heart of China, six or seven hundred miles from the sea. The fighting reported from the neighborhood of Tien Tsin shows that the allies are already being attacked in a vulnerable point—their communications—and that the Chinese do not intend to give up the fight merely because their capital has fallen. They have certainly chosen the best method of resisting the allied powers, who are now receiving a foretaste of what a campaign conducted hundreds of miles from the main base would be like in a country teeming with millions of assailants. What a few thousand Boers have done to disorganise British communications in South Africa, the countless population of China certainly repeat with a vengance.

MISSIONARIES SAVED.

Pekin and Tung Chow Ministers Escape With Their Lives.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 22.—The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions has received to-day a cablegram from Chefoo as follows.

"Psalms one twenty-four seven.—Pekin and Tung Chow missionaries, also Chapins, Smiths, Wickoffs, saved."

The Pekin missionaries are. Rev. W. S. Ament, Rev. C. E. Ewing, wife and two children, Miss Ada Haven, Miss Nellie Russell, Mrs. J. L. Mateer. The Tung Chow missionaries who had taken refuge in Pekin are:

Miss Mary E. Andrews, Miss Jane G. Evans, Miss Abbie G. Chapin, Rev. Chauncey Goodrich, D. D., wife and three children, James H. Ingram, M.D. wife and two children, Miss Luella Miner, Rev. E. W. Tewksbury, wife and two children, Rev. Howard S. Galt and wife.

The Pang Chuang missionaries who were at the annual meeting and took refuge at Pekin are.

Rev. Arthur H. Smith, D. D., and wife, the Misses E. Gertude and H. Grace Wyckoff, Lin Ching missionaries under the same conditions are, Rev. F. M. Chapin, wife and two children.

This passage of Scripture alluded to above is.

"Our soul is escaped as a bird out of the snare of the fowlers; the snare is broken and we are escaped."

YANG TSUN THREATENED.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—The German War Office has received a despatch from Taku dated August 19 saying the advance of the German battalion was delaye by violent rains. It reached Pekin August 17. Yang Tsun, it is added, was still on the Imperial canal.

KEEPING ORDER IN PEKIN.

Committee of Allied Officers Chosen to Look After the Capital.

London. Aug. 22.—Half the Tartar city was placed under the control of the Japanese, and committees of Japanese. American, British, Russian and French officers were appointed to maintain order. A detachment of Japanese troops rescued the foreign missionaries and Chinese Christain converts, who had been imprisoned in the palace. Two hundred Japanese were killed and wounded.

BATTLE NEAR TIEN TSIN.

British and Americans Disperse About One Thousand Boxers.

Washington, Aug.22.—The Navy Department has received the following cablegram from Admiral Remey.

"Chefoo, Aug.21, Taku, Aug 20.

"Dickens' command is landing to-day. Pekin 16. All except Imperial City cleared of Chinese troops. American troops first to enter Imperial City. Have penetrated to the gates of the palace. Captain Reilly, 5th Artillery, killed on 15. Morning 19th —Sixth Cavalery and about 400 English and Japanese dispersed abou t1,000 Boxers eight miles outside of Tien Tsin. About 100 Chinese killed, 30 wounded. Two 1day's fighting, 5 Americans wounded. Chaffee's losses, 30 wounded. Two days fighting.

(Signed) "REMEY."

The Navy Department understands from the reference to the palace that the American troops after penetrating the Imperial City were, when the despatch was sent, attacking the forbidden City. This is the inner enclosure of the Imperial City.

IMPERIAL PALACE OCCUPIED.

Chinese Court said in Rome to Have Fled to Sian Fu.

Rome, Aug. 22.—Despatches received here from Taku, under date of August 20, say that according to advices from a Japanese source, dated August 17, the battle of Pekin was then finished, the Japanese had entered the Imperial palace, and the foreign Ministers, with detachments of the mixed troops, occupied the Imperial City, the Chinese Princes and Ministers have retired to Sian Fu, west of Pekin. Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee, the German officer who is going to the far East in order to take command of the allied forces in China with the three officers accompanying him, breakfasted with King Victor Emmanuel this morning, after which the field marshal went to the Pantheon and deposited a wreath on the tomb of King Humbert. The field marshal left Rome at 3.30 p.m. for Naples, where he will embark for China.

TASK OF THE ALLIES.

TAKING OF PEKIN IS ONLY THE BEGINNING OF THEIR WORK.

Anarchy in Country Feeling Empress May Try to Spread the Insurrection. Vacillation of the British Policy at Shanghai Causes Caustic Criticism of the Government.

London, Aug. 22.—The good news from Pekin, while it brings immeasurable relief to Europe, as well as to the rest of the world, serves but to hasten the real Chinese crisis. It cannot be assumed, of course, that military operations will be ended with the occupation of Pekin, but the collapse of the Chinese resistance during the march of the allies disposed once and for all of the terrible fear that civilization was fact to face with the "yellow peril" in its most dangerous form.

Every government in Europe a month ago believed that the ruling dynasty of China, after years of secret arming and other preparations, had deliberately embarked upon a campaign for the expulsion of foreigners and all foreign interests from Asia. It is now clear that if any such plot existed, it was limited in inception and premature in execution and has already been virtually defeated.

The situation now justifies the belief that China is not only divided hopelessly against itself, but throughout the north is practically without government and in a condition of anarchy. The subjugation of any further insurrectionary movements ought to be an easy task unless the flying Empress and her satellites seek to spread the uprising in the central and southern sections of the empire. The further south they go, however, the more their influence will diminish. In fact, one of the most probable consequences of the crisis with which the powers expect to be confronted is a revolt of the real China against the Manchoo dynasty.

Political Features of Problem.

It is necessary for the allies, while continuing preparations for any military action which may become imperative, to turn their attention immediately to the vast and difficult political features of the problem. This necessity is peculiarly embarrassing to Great Britain at the present moment. The Salisbury government had reason to believe until to-day that this most dreaded aspect of the situation might be kept in abeyance for a few more weeks in order that England might have one more opportunity to free herself from the deadly entanglements which are paralyzing her arms in South Africa before grappling with the perilous dificulties of the far Eastern question.

The diplomatic world today is discussing the sad vacillation of the British policy of Shangahi more eagerly than the welcome news from Pekin. The government finds no defenders, even among its own supporters. Why ask the Times and all other conservative organs, did the government announce its purpose to land troops at Shanghai if it were willing to by bullied or persuaded to abandon the purpose later? Vacillation is the worst possible mistake in dealing with Orientals, according to every authority, and the capture of Pekin is the only possible offset to the British weakness in the Shanghai matter.

It is quite true that Great Britain's action in the first instance caused what the Times describes as almost hysterical denunciation on the continent, and especially in France, but every government consented to the landing of British troops with, of course, the proviso that they reserve the same right. It is not yet clear why Lord Salisbury changed his mind, unless it was that the news that France was promptly sending a large force to the same port raised the fear that such complications might arise that an adjustment would be impossible.

Other nations will Send Troops.

At all events, the government has now recommitted itself to a policy of occupation and there can be no doubt that Admiral Seymour's troops will be joined in a few days by large French forces, while Russia and Germany will seek similar representation at the earliest possible moment.

The discussion of the problem as a whole has scarcely begun as yet, either diplomatically or by the general public. Their is no doubt, in any one's mind that Germany will demand a special reckoning with China. It is hardly expected in England that the Kaiser will be satisfied with merely pecuniary indemnity for the murder of Baron von Ketteler. In fact, England fears that she may be outvoted on the question of the maintenance of the integrity of the Chinese empire. The only support upon which she absolutely relies is that of the United States. There are signs, therefore, and the final decision to land troops at Shanghai is one of that Great Britain is making every preparation to get the largest possible share in case the dismemberment of the coast wise portion of China is decided upon by the other powers.

The suggestion that the Chinese question be referred to ahastily summoned international conference is negatived instead of supported by the rapid march of events. The necessity of immediate action is imperative. Every effort will be made by the telegraphic exchange of news to reach a solution. In case of a disagreement or dead-lock the last resort will be a temporary modus vivendi, pending further negotiations by conference or otherwise. The latter, however, will be a dangerous expedient, for much now depends upon prompt, firm and united action, if anarchy and revolution throughout China are to be avoided.

BOERS IN FRONT OF BULLER.

8,000 Boers Now Under Gen. Botha With a Quantity of Heavy Artillery.

The Boers are now concentrating in front of General French and Buller, and apparently intend to make a stand at Machadodorp, for they have not only 8,000 men under Botha, Meyer and Schalkburger, but also a quantito of the heavy artillery which once ornamented the forts at Pretoria. This news indicates the scene of the next great conflict in South Africa. On the whole it is good news, for the concentration of the Boers is a distinct advantage to Lord Roberts, as previous operations show. The more the Boers concentrate the more easy is it to strike a decisive blow at them. The only matter of surprise is that the Boers should commit the mistake of assembling in masses and thus playing into the hands of the British. One would have though that the lessons of the past would have shown the Boers that they have most to hope from scattering and pursuing a system of guerilla warfare.

CONSPIRATOR FOUND GUILTY

Pretoria, Tuesday, Aug. 21.—The trial of Lieutenant Cordua, formerly of the Transvaal artillery, on the charge of being concerned in the plot to kidnap Gen. Lord Roberts, was concluded to-day. The prisoner was found guilty of all the counts in the indictment against him, but sentence was deferred until the findings of the court should be confirmed by Lord Roberts.

BOERS CONCENTRATE AT MACHODODORP

Lord Roberts Reports that Generals Paget and Baden-Powell Engaged De Wet on Monday.

LIEUTENANT CORDUA CONVICTED OF CONSPIRACY

But Sentence will not be Pronounced Until Lord Roberts has Confirmed the Finding—Latest Report From Col. Otter.

London, Aug. 22.

President Kruger, according to a despatch from Lorenzo Marquez to the Daily Express has issued a proclamation counter to the latest proclamation issued by Lord Roberts. The Transvaal President says,—"It will help you nothing to lay down your arms or to leave the commandos. Every step homeward means a step nearer St. Helena

London, Aug. 22.—The most sensational feature of the South African war for many a long day is the publication of letters which passed between Henri Labouchere, a member of the British House of Commons, and Boer agents. These letters throw new light upon the case of the war, and its long duration. But most of all they show that Mr. Labouchere is a traitor to his country in that he has aided the Queen's enemies by counsel which has undoubtedly incited them to the point of commencing hostilities, aand has strengthened them in their porlonged resistance. The publication of the whole correspondence which passde between British members of Parliament and the Boer agents, which is promised, will doubtless reveal a lamentable state of affairs and show that men who have sworn allegiance to the Queen have all along been advising the Queen's foes how best to defeat her armies. It is to be hoped that the British people will show their disgust for such men by making public life impossible for them in the future. Not much more than a hundred years ago death would have been their punishment. As to Mr. Labouchere, it may be said in explanation that the taint of French blood has perhaps shown itself in this latest and most treasonable action.

WILL ALL BE PUNISHED

Correspondent of British M. P.'s With Boers to be Issued

London, Aug. 22.—Mr. Henry Labouchere's publication of the correspondence advising him of the censure at Pretoria of compromising letters to Secretary Reitz, is to be followed by publication of the whole correspondence which the Colonial Officials say will be issued to-night or to-morrow, all the members of Parliament involved having answered the official communication sent to them on the subject.

COL. OTTER'S LAST REPORT

On July 16th There were Only 443 Effective Men.

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—Col. Otter's report for the week ending July 16 arrived yesterday. The parade state shows. Effective, 443; at base camp, convalescent, 81; on command, 32; sick, 318; invalided to England, 200. The diary shows that five companies left Springs July 7, as part of a flying column to Drogfontein, but returned to Springs for Sunday, 8th. and they remained the balance of the week.

DISGUSTED WITH BOERS.

Madame Bron Says the English Used Her with Far More Courtesy

London, Aug. 22.—The London Times quotes from a Belgium paper the following remarks of Madame Bron, one of the Belgian nurses who went out to tend Boer sick and wounded, and who fell into the hands of the British at Jacobsdal. She says.

"First of all, I wish to state that, having gone out to help the Boers. I continued to serve them in spite of my growing disgust, because they were the weak side as a nation, and the helpless side in regard to ambulance organization. But I wish also to declare at the outside that I protest with the utmost indignation and the utmost love of truth against the abominable falsehoods poured out against the English. Having been their prisoner for three weeks at Jacobsdal, and having served with them during that period, I imagine I am in a position to judge of them.

The Boer is not wicked, and he is fairly hospitable. He is a brute, or rather a stupid, overgrown child. He is obstinate and boastful. As for his honesty or morality, we had better not dwell in those points. His pride is beyond conception, and his power of lying. As for his respect for women, I could relate details and furnish evidence, but it would be too nauseous. It was amongst British soldiers—I say it and repeat it, and no power on earth will induce me to deny the truth—it was amongst them that I found myself once more at home, surrounded by that gratitude, that affection, to which the humble folk of my own country had accustomed me. How good it was to feel oneself treated as a fellow creature after six weeks of cruel toil in a Boer hospital, full of typhoid patients, without even a single word of kindness."

Mme. Bron then poceeds to discuss the courage of the Boers, and on this point she intends in her book to quote the dying testimony of Colonel de Villebois Mareuil, "whose desparing words will show that galant soldier to have gone forth to his death as cruelly disillusioned as the humble nursing women who has now returned to Europe." The Boers fought with the tenacity of farmers or peasants all over the world who had been told that the English were coming to take their farms away from them. Had they been satisfied that their lands would remain untouched, with a present of money thrown in, they would never have fought at all.

EUROPE TRYING TO ISOLATE ENGLAND FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

London, Aug. 22.—Russia is seeking to disrupt the friendly relations existing between the United States and England, but so far has made poor progress. But Russia will perist until she succeeds entirely or fails completely.

This discovery was made by Julian Ralph while on a special commission to the continent for the Daily Mail, and was exploited fully on the editorial page of that paper yesterday.

Julian Ralph says his authority for the story is a diplomat of high standing, whom he has known for several years.

Russia, Mr. Ralph quotes the diplomat as saying, has passed the word all over her circuit of influence that America is growing too English and that every effort that can be put forth must be exerted to break the harmony and good feeling between the two nations.

"This new attitude has been adopted," the diplomat explains, "partly in the interests of France, but more largely in general continental behalf. The policy was arrived at a few months ago, when Boers, having plotted, declared, and begun war on Great Britain, began to wish they had not done so, and began to foment all Europe in hostility against Great Brittain. Having argued that the Boers were worthy of sympathy as the under dog in the struggle, these countries have now effected so great a moral combination against England that she is now the under dog. She has no first class power, except America, which offers her the slightest ground of hope for friendly bearing towards her in case the bitter feeling of to-day generates into war against her to-morrow.

TO ISOLATE GREAT BRITAIN.

"Russia's plan," says the diplomat referred to, "encouraged by Austria, France and Germany, is to strip Great Britain naked of support before such a war begins.

"It was thought on the continent a few months ago that France might make the attack. I believe that danger is over. It has been dissipated by the trouble in China, which gives the French people the distraction their Government desired.

"It was in view of the possibility of war between France and Great Britain that the project of a Russo-American alliance was set in motion. Were such an alliance to be affected England would be deprived not only of her sole hope of assistance, but of the greatest source of food, for when all other ocean lanes were blocked against her, American ships could still bring foodstuffs to her by northerly routes, too far removed from the busiest ocean channels to be policed by any navy or combination of any two navies now existing.

"True, the financial loss to America, were she to enter such an agreement, would be incalculable. It would lose for that country her greatest chance to enrich herself, but Russia fancies this point would be overlooked or would be regarded as a subordinate interest in an alliance so grandly moral and so purely pious."

RUSSIA BALKED SO FAR.

In reply to Mr. Ralph's question as to how the project was progressing the diplomat said not satisfactory to Russia thus far. The opposition met with, he said, was the tremendous weight of American strategy.

This led the diplomat to unfold a bit of political history hitherto unpublished.

"The Russians," said he, "vacated the best position which any country enjoyed in competition for American regard and threw away American friendship when America went to war with Spain. When that war was declared Count Mouravieff and the Russian cabinet felt that the German statesman who declared that the United States was a huge, shapeless monster, which might some day wrest the mastery of the world from the European powers if not throttled there and then. It was Russia who conceived and tried to ripen the plan for an European combination against the Unites States.

"At that time all the powers in Europe were sounded, and all welcomed the idea except England. Some countries, like Austria, grew hot and excited for its fruition. It pleased Germany. France played the more eager part, as might be expected, but England broke up the plot. She acknowledged her friendship for America, and the Government at Washington knows what valuable practical assistance it got from England.

RUSSIA'S FANTASTIC BELIEF.

"From that time until the two Spanish fleets were blown off the face of the water, checked and plainly beaten though she was, Russia still worked ahead for crippling America. It was her fantastic belief—and this gained ground in Vienna and Berlin—that the Southern States of America would seize the chance to reopen their rebellion and break the Republican confederation. Dangling this hope before the European powers, Russia persisted by back door means as well as by front door ones in her extraordinary activity against the great republic.

"I assure you this must be well known to the Government at Washington as in all the courts of Europe."

As a sort of confirmation of the diplomat's statements, Mr. Ralph cites the fact that a singularly pro-Russian paper in New York is making the project of a Russo-American alliance conspicuous in both its editorial and news columns.

CHINESE LOST COURAGE.

Planned to Give Battle at Che Sin, but Changed Their Minds

London, Aug 22.—General Linevitch, commander of the Russian troops at Pechihli reports to St. Petersburg that on Aug. 12 the Chinese intended to give battle at Che-Sin, where were concentrated fifty battalions of the best Manchoo troops, commanded by General Tung Fuh Siang; but that, losing courage, they retreated hurriedly, not waiting for an attack to be made.

The eyes of the world, which have been fixed hitherto on Pekin, are turnin gto Shanghai, where an imbroglio resulting from the jealousy and suspicion of the powers will probably shortly assume a serious aspect. The British landed Gurkas and Bombay regiments on Friday, and France is hurrying 1,700 Tonkin troops thither, some of whom are reported to have arrived already.

Russian's campaign in Manchooria seems to be progressing satisfactorily. General Orloff, chief of staff of the Russian forces in China, reports on Aug 20 that he attacked the Chinese at Medu-Chei on Aug 22 and subsequently advanced to Yak-Shi and captured an abundance of stores. The Chinese are said to be gathering in force in the neighborhood of Kobdo, from which place the Russian and Tartar residents have departed.

A Berlin despatch says the German marine battalions arrived at Tien-Tsin.

DUTY OF THE ALLIES.

For the second time in 40 years Pekin is at the mercy of a foreign army. The Japanese in their war of 1894 did not reach the capital, but in 1860 the city was surrendered to the French and English of the expedition and the troops go no further than the gates. The allies of that time held the capital of the Chinese empire less than four weeks and they left no mark of their occupation except the destruction of the Emperor's summer palace, eight miles northwest of the city.

Thirty years after the campaign of 1860 the Chinese of the interior provinces had not heard of the capture of Pekin. They had heard of the destruction of the Emperor's summer palace, but regarded this as an act of vandalism that was promptly avenged. The authorities had cunningly planned to give the color of truth to this impression and the concessions granted by the treaty signed in 1860 were explained on the theory that it was the pleasure of the Emperor to give them.

The allied armies are to-day in possession of the Chinese capital. The troops of the United States, of the European powers, and of Japan have fought their way from Taku against the best troops that the Chinese government could bring against them. They have gone forward not with the idea of conquest, but to rescue the envoys in Pekin. They have gone forward to vindicate the law of nations and to punish offenders. Holding their position, they can destroy every palace, every public work, every memorial of Chinese civilization in Pekin. They can beat down can take and hold for all time the city that has been the center of Chinese political and intellectual activity for five centuries.

They will not do all this, but something they should do to enforce the lesson of civilization upon those who have defied all law and international usage. If the allied troops hold a parley with representatives of the offending government, agree upon a truce, and retire from Pekin, they will enforce no lesson and accomplish no permanent good. The mandarins throughout the country will represent to the people that the foreign devils have again been foiled and that the Chinese are more than a match for all the world. The insufferable egotism, the boastful duplicity, the cunning brutality of the Chinese will be stimulated.

However, if the allies now holding the Chinese capital select some monument venerated by the Chinese and destroy it, select some public building and transform its character or raze its walls, or if they carry the government officials responsible for the recent outrages into captivity and hold them aloof from their people, the lesson will not be forgotten. This is a case in which mercy must give way to justice, even though the walls of Pekin be razed to the ground. Otherwise the blood spilled and agony suffered in East Asia in the last three months will be, not an earnest of future peace, but merely a promise of recurring savagery and war.

Inappropriate.

A poor little street Arab was brought into a hospital by the police. He had been run over by an omnibus and was badly injured. The chaplain was sent for, as it was thought improbable that the boy would live many hours. With little tact the chaplain began the interview thus: "My boy, the doctors think you are very much hurt. Have you been a good little boy?"

Boy (much bored)—You git aout!

Chaplain (shocked)—But I am afraid you are not a good little boy, and you know you may perhaps be going to die.

Boy (anxious to end the interview)—Well, tain't none o' your business any-'ow. Wot's me death got to do with you? 'Ave you got a pal in the coffin line?

It is pleasant to be able to relate that the boy finally recovered.

Now and then the doctor is believed to be almost omniscient. A patient in a military hospital was constantly getting into hot water because he smuggled food into the wards. One morning his medical officer was about to examine his throat with a laryngoscope. Seeing the little mirror all ready for use the man's chum whispered an anxious warning from the adjoining bed. "I say, Bill, you'd best 'ave a care. 'E moight 'appen to see wot yer 'ad for supper lawst noight."—Cornhill Magazine.

"A Dish of Tay."

A Gentleman traveling through the mountains of western North Carolina, recently, tells the following story on himself: Having heard that tea was not much used in this part of the country, the traveler provided himself with a pound of his favorite brand, thinking to have a cup prepared at his various stopping places. His first experience, however, was his last—the entire pound of tea being served to him in a vegetable dish, together with a lump of home smoked pork which had been boiled with it.—N. Y. Truth.

A Mother's True Friend

"I would like to express my gratitude for the benefit received from your wonderful medicine, 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mrs. H. C. Anderson, of South Britain, New Haven Co., Conn., (Box 33). "During the first month of pregnancy I could not keep anything on my stomach. Was so sick that I had to go to bed and stay for weeks. I tried different doctors, but with little benefit. I read about many being helped by using your medicine so I thought I would give it a trial. I began to take your 'Favorite Prescription' in November and I had a nice little baby girl in February following. My baby weighed over eight pounds. I was only in hard labor about one hour and got along nicely during confinement; was up and dressed on the eighth day. I never had the doctor with me at all. My friends thought that I was sick a very short time. I think Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is indeed a mother's true friend, for it helped me wonderfully."

TRAINING A HUSBAND.

How the Boy Grows Into the Man. Selecting a Dress for Mother.

It was a large store in New York where a sale of a special fashionable article of dress was taking place. The father and son, a boy of perhaps thirteen or fourteen, were customers. The boy was the purchaser, and was left free to select the garment, evidently intended as a gift for his mother. Hundreds of these articles were piled in confusion on the counter. At last a choice was made, when the father said, in a slow, contemplative tone,—

"I never saw mamma wear plaid."

The boy looked up.

"Don't you think she ought to?" he asked.

"Well, I do not know about 'ought;' she never seems to choose it," was the response.

The boy said in a determined tone,—"I like plaid."

"Oh, yes," interrupted the father, "but you want her to enjoy wearing it, not wear it just to please you."

"Why, of course," and the boy put down the garment of his choice and selected a dainty pink, saying, in a soft loving voice. "That looks like mamma more than the other, even if the other is pretty."

The father nodded, and the perfect love that surrounded one woman in this work-a-day world was evident to the chance observer, as was the fact that one boy was being trained to appreciate the clothes worn in his home and by those he loved. The ideal husband is not the man who provides, but the one who provides money with a warm, intelligent interest in the way it is expended, and notices and comments on the results obtained by the money expended.

HE WON HER.

"I learn," she said reproachfully, "that you were devoted to no fewer than five girls before you finally proposed to me. How do I know that you didn't make desperate love to all of them?"

"I did," he replied promptly.

"You did!" she exclaimed.

"Certainly," he returned. "You don't suppose for a minute I would be foolhardy enough to try for such a prize as you are without practicing a little at first, do you?"—Chicago Post.

OUR CRIME—HOW IT ENDED.

"Old man, I want your advice."

Debenham broke a piece of silence that had lasted some ten minutes or so.

"It's rather a curious affair," he began, diffidently. "It happened last night. I wanted to go out to Bayswater to see my old nurse, who lives there. I took the 'bus at Oxford circus. As I dare say, you remember it was a nasty night, wet and foggy, and the vehicle was soon full; in fact, by the time we reached Westbourne Grove there was only room for another. Here we picked up our last passenger. She was a young lady."

"And of course you contrived that she should sit by you," I said.

"You would have done the same yourself," Debenham retorted. "Any man would, for she had the sweetest face. It's haunted me all night—it has, really. I dare say she was about eighteen, or perhaps twenty—not more. She had brown eyes, very brown eyes—you know the kind that seem to speak almost—and they were shaded by long lashes. She had brown hair, too—the kind of hair that twists itself into a lot of little curls—natural curls, you know. I wonder why all girls don't wear their hair that way. Then her mouth—her mouth—"

"Never mind her mouth," I interposed, hastily, seeing that he was about to indulge in an extravagant flood of rhapsody. "It was an ideal mouth, I haven't a doubt."

"She sat down next to me," he went on. "There wasn't much room, and she thanked me when I moved. She had the sweetest voice."

"Well, there's nothing curious about that. I believe you said—"

"I'm coming to it if you'll only give me time," he returned, in an aggrieved tone. "You've no patience. It was when the conductor came round for fares. Then she felt for her purse; she found it was missing. At first she thought she must have dropped it, and I searched the floor and under the seat. However, it wasn't there. Poor girl! I never saw any one so distressed in my life. It seemed she had £5 in it, and it was evidently quite a fortune to her. Well, I paid her fare for her, and we got out together."

"I don't thing you need tell me any more," I said, drily.

Debenham stared.

"Why not?"

"Because I know the rest."

"How the—"

"Yes, I do. You lent her the £5, of course. My dear fellow, you've been 'had.'"

"I didn't do anything of the kind!" Debenham retorted hotly. "She would not let me. That's what I came to ask your advice about. I thought that as you were a lawyer you might be able to suggest something, but I wish I'd never mentioned it to you."

Of course I hastened to soothe his ruffled plumes, and in a little while he went on with his tale. It appeared that he had seen her home, and that he had learned her name. It was Charnley—Kate Charnley. She was a dressmaker and lived with her sister.

"And you want to help them, eh?" I said, after a time.

"Yes, but it'll be a difficult matter. They're a clergyman's daughters, and very proud. I don't see what I can do. It's awfully riling, you know, Kennion, to have a pile of money and not be able to do a little good with it once in a while. It's a shame that this girl should have to slave at a sewing machine all day while a great strong beggar like me lounges around killing time."

"I suppose you want to refund this £5?"

"Yes; I can't do more, but I don't even see how I can do that."

"Well, you might order a gown of some sort from them."

"Don't be an ass; men don't buy gowns."

"You could say it was for your sister."

"But I haven't got a sister, and if I had she'd never let me choose her gowns for her; besides, she'd have to be fitted on and all that, you know."

I was obliged to admit the force of these arguments, and a fresh period of silence intervened. Debenham had risen and was pacing the floor in a state of perplexity.

"How would it be if I enclosed the money in an envelope and sent it anonymously?" he said at length.

"You might do that, certainly," I replied, after a little consideration.

"But she'd be sure to know who sent it."

"Well, that doesn't matter, as you are not likely to see her again."

Debenham stopped and turned his eyes full upon me.

"What's that? Not see her again! But I must see her again. I—I feel that my fate is—er—linked with that girl Kennion."

"Oh, very well; then that squashes the idea entirely, unless— Look here why not assume the character of the thief yourself, and send her a letter saying you have repented and return the money?"

"But I don't want her to think that I'm a bad lot."

"Well, she needn't know that you sent it. You can pretend to be an ordinary pickpocket."

"So I can. I never thought of that. By jove, it's a capital idea! Where's the pen and ink? What shall I say? Give us a bit of a lift, old chap. You're a dab hand at this sort of thing."

I took up my pen, and after a little thought dashed off the following letter:

"Dere miss: This is from me, the bloke wot tuk yer purse I sens the muny bak bekause yer father wos once very kind ter me when I wos down on mi luck, an I noas yer needs it a sight more than I does, yer humble servant.
BILL NOKES."

"How will that do?" I said, as I tossed it across the table.

"Splendidly—splendidly!" he cried as he ran his eyes over it. "It's worthy of Bill Sykes himself. I'll send it off this very minute." And he trust it in an envelope with a £5 note.

"You'll let me know how it answers?" I said, as he took his hat.

"Oh, yes." And then, with a hasty good night he went flying down the stairs to catch the post.

The following morning it happened that a matter of business took me in the vicinity of Debenham's chambers, and having half an hour to spare I determined to call and see if he had heard anything in connection with his plot.

As I was about to enter his sitting room, however, I heard the sound of voices, and a hasty glance showed me that he was engaged. A young lady was standing by the table, facing Debenham, who looked as guilty as a schoolboy caught in an orchard.

"I got it back this morning," said the girl. "A man who is employed on the railway picked it up as he was on his way to his work."

"I—I am very glad," Debenham murmured, nervously. "He must have been an honest fellow."

"Yes," she said. "But the strange part of it is that by this morning's post there came a letter from a—a thief, enclosing a £5 note. You can read it if you like."

And she handed him the precious missive I had concocted.

He read it in feigned astonishment.

"I never heard of such a curious thing," he murmured. "It's positively—isn't it, you know?"

Of course this childlike attempt at deception didn't deceive the girl.

"Mr. Debenham," she said, "you wrote this letter—you sent this note."

"I? Really, miss—"

"Oh, yes, you did. It's no use denying it. No one else knew of our loss."

There was a pause. Debenham stood looking very red and foolish.

"Come, you'd better confess," she said, at length.

He rumpled his hair in a reckless fashion.

"It seems impossible for a fellow to do a good action in this world," he cried. "He's sure to be found out."

"Then you did send it?"

"Ye-es. You see, you wouldn't let me help you, and so—so it struck me that it would be a capital idea to pretend that I was a thief" (the humbug! his idea, indeed!) "I never thought for a moment that you'd see your purse again, and if you hadn't done so, my little dodge would never have come to light."

"No, I don't think it would," she answered; "for that was a most realistic letter you wrote."

Debenham groaned.

"You can't think what an effort it cost me," he said.

"What an effort, indeed!"

"I do hope you will let me keep it as a memento?"

"Yes—if you will promise to forgive me."

"Oh, there is nothing to forgive! It was very good of you."

At this very moment I caught a glimpse of her face, and I was forced to admit that Debenham had some reason for his extravagant praise.

"And you will not think the worse of me for—for trying to deceive you?" he went on. Really, he was getting positively absurd; from his voice one would have supposed that he was a prisoner suing for his life.

"Oh, I think better of you!" she cried. "I shall never forget your kindness." And as she gave him her hand she blushed in a ridiculous fashion.

Then Debenham made an ass of himself. Instead of simply shaking hands and saying good morning, he held her fingers and said nothing, but just stared at her in a moonstruck kind of way that was quite idiotic, and she drooped her head like a little silly and went the color of a peony; then—, But at this point I could stand it no longer and I quietly withdrew.

Of course I was not in the least astonished when Debenham rushed into my chambers the same afternoon and with a good deal of stammering confessed that he was engaged. He seemed amazed when I betrayed no surprise, but I didn't tell him that I had been a witness of his folly.

I was presented to the future Mrs. Debenham and her sister a few days later. When Debenham asked me what I thought of her, I told him she was one of the nicest girls I had ever met, but, as a matter of fact, she is much inferior to her sister, who, I don't mind admitting, indeed, is the nicest girl I have ever met, and I shouldn't wonder—

But there, that's "another story."—London Answers.

A Matter of Instinct.

Good advertising brings business to the advertiser by creating in the mind of the reader an impression favorable to the advertiser and his goods. Just how that favorable impression may best be created—just what means to employ—just what to avoid—how much to say and how much to leave unsaid—these are the things which constitute the art and science of advertising. No man knows them all. In fact, advertising like any other art, is largely a matter of instinct, of feeling.—Everybody reads the Times.

Severely Burned

A Lindsay shoemaker named D.J. Markham, was brought to town suffering from the result of a peculiar accident. It appears that while ascending the stairs to his room over the shop, with a lighted lamp in his hand, he struck his head against the low ceiling, and the lamp fell upon him and broke, setting fire to his shirt. Before he could tear the garment off he was severely burned about the neck and ears and down his left side. Dr. Gillespie was called in, and after treating the burns he advised his patient to go to the St. Joseph's hospital, Peterborough, as the cure would be tedious.

The Case Discharged.

Seriously Ill

We regret to learn that Dr. Bell, the esteemed village clerk of Lakefield, was taken seriously ill when in Peterborough on Saturday, and has been confined to his room ever since. He is, we learn, gradually improving, and we hope will soon be all right again.

The examination for cullers' certificates for Peterborough district will begin to-day, over the Crown Timber Office, Water street. About 20 candidates will write. The examinations will probably last a couple of days.

Circulation Booming

Mr. Pilsworth, the circulation manager of the Times, is adding hundreds of new subscribers to the paper. He is now canvassing Norwood and the country in that neighborhood. Advertisers are invited to inspect our mailing lists. Everybody reads the Times.

Two Dollars and Costs

Two boys, named John Flaherty and Spencer Revoy, appeared before police magistrate Dumble yesterday charged with fighting on the streets on Saturday. The scrap was rather expensive, for the boys were assessed $2 and $6.60 costs each.

Buying Goods

Mr. S. Windsor, Apsley, was in town yesterday, laying in his stock of school supplies, preparatory to the school opening which takes place next week. Mr. Windsor, like the sensible man that he is, patronizes the Times Bookstore for stationery, where goods are sold as cheaply as in Toronto. We are manufacturers of school supplies, and sell as cheap as the cheapest.

Matchett, C.P.R. agent, who made all possible arrangements for their comfort en route, says that fully 200 persons must have left Haliburton county points during the last two years. Some went to Swan Lake, Michigan, where there is a small colony of people from north country points, but the majority decided to seek their fortunes in our great West under the British flag.

Revolt of Boxers May Spread to Yang-Tze Valley in Which Case British Interests Would Be Affected.

TWENTY-SEVEN WAR SHIPS NOW AT SHANGHAI

Britain is Evidently Prepared to Protect Her Interest—Telegraph Line Restored to Within Twenty Miles of Pekin—Sir Claude Macdonald Ill—Li Hung Chang Still Acts Childishly.

Pekin, August 15, via Cheefoo Aug. 22.

Capt. Reilly was standing on the wall and directing his battery when a bullet struck him in the mouth, killing him instantly. The battery hammered at the gates until they fell. In the meantime the infantry cleared the streets and walls, where the Chinese troops with a fine cover stubbornly resisted. The fighting was close and sharp. A French battery while shelling the approaches to the palace narrowly missed the Americans. Gen. Chaffee and Mr. Conger are conferring regarding the diplomatic features of the situation.

London, Aug. 24, 3.56 a.m.

Fierce fighting and dissention are apparently following in the wake of the relief of Pekin. The Daily Mail published despatches from the Chinese capital dated Aug. 15 declaring that a great fire was then raging in the Imperial City. The Russian commander has declined to accept the decision of the other generals not to violate the Imperial precincts, and street fighting was going on. Gen. Chaffee, so it is asserted, maintained that the Chinese had been adequately punished already and that it would be unwise to take the Imperial palace. This explains the withdrawal of Americans after reaching Three Gates, as cabled by the special correspondent of the Associated Press. The Russian general, however, maintained that his Government had declared war against China and that therefore there was no reason to prevent him carrying the hostilities into the sacred city. Judging from various and in many cases contradictory despatches that have reached Europe this morning from Pekin the commanders eventually adopted a middle course for a neutral telegram asserts that sentries were placed to prevent looting, hence it is presumed that the Imperial buildings, although captured will not be destroyed. The fires appear to be incendiary and to be caused by the Chinese themselves.

All the despatches point to the fact that when the latest messages received here left Pekin the commanders were somewhat at sea regarding their future action all awaiting instructions from their Governments. The foreign residents appear to have been sent to Tien Tsin, although St Petersburg correspondent of the Daily Mail says the Ministers will not leave Pekin until negotiations for indemnity are rendered. Neither the commanders nor the diplomats were in communication with the Chinese Government. On Aug 17 they were then searching for Prince Tuan. Among the puzzling reports as to the whereabouts of the Empress Dowager is one from St Petersburg that she is in the vicinity of Pekin, but surrounded. She appears to have escaped.

The reports of the raisings in northern Korea are confirmed. It is believed that these are not due to ill will toward foreigners but to local dissatisfaction. The Korea Government is sending troops to the disaffected district.

According to a telegram from Shanghai considerable uneasiness is felt over the fact that no despatches have been received from Pekin since Aug. 20. Another despatch from Shanghai locates Emperor Kwang Su as under the protection of the allies and of the Empress Dowager as already captured by the Japanese.

LI HUNG IN IGNORANCE.

He Appears to be Acting Without Knowledge of What is Going on in Pekin

London, August 23.—The most welcome announcement comes from China that the telegraph line is open from Matu, twenty miles this side of Pekin, to Taku; so that it is likely that direct news from the Chinese capital may be received shortly, or as soon as the Chinese marauders upon the allied communications have been driven away from the strip of country separating Matu and Pekin. This task it is evident the allies are engaged upon, and judging from the speed with which one section of the interrupted portion of the line has been cleared it will not take long to clear the rest. The publication of the correspondence between the United States Government and Li Hung Chang scarcely shows the latter in an enviable or sensible light. Despite the fact that China is in a state of ferment, he affects to believe that order exists, and asks that negotiations for peace be opened. To this the United States have very properly replied that no discussion of peace will be tolerated until the Chinese Government shows its willingness to suspend hostilities. On the whole, Li Hung Chang appears to be acting without knowledge of what is going on in Pekin, and his offices are utterly useless so far as the restoration of peace is concerned. Grave news comes from Hankow, where the discovery of a conspiracy seems to indicate that the revolt has at last reached the Yang Tse valley. The presence of twenty-seven war ships at Shanghai shows clearly the estimation in which the news is held by Great Britain, who is evidently prepared, in conjunction with the other powers, at any moment to seize Shanghai, and force a way up the river in order to protect her great interests in that part of China.

THE TROUBLE AT HANKOW

Attempted Uprising Occurred on the Night of August 21st

Paris, August 23.—The French Consul at Hankow wires that an attempt at an uprising occurred during the night of August 21. A band of Chinese tried to set fire to a house adjoining the Customs Bank, adjacent to the British Consulate, with the object of pillaging the bank and burning the European quarter. The Viceroy, however, took immediate steps, and arrested the ringleaders, seizing at the same time arms and documents demonstrating the existence of a secret society and an organized plot. Two of the leading culprits were decapitated, their heads being subsequently exhibited in the centre of the Chinese town. Twenty others were imprisoned.

More trouble is feared when the flight of the Emperor to the west, if true, becomes known.

LINE OPEN TO MA TU

German Force Succeeds in Reaching a Point Near Pekin

Berlin, Aug. 23—The German admiral at Taku wires under date of August 20,—"Captain Hecht reached Ma Tu this morning and proceeded. This advance was difficult owing to the force of the current and the shallow water.

"The Madai battalion, after a very trying march, arrived at Yang Tsun Aug. 18."

It is inferred from the foregoing that the telegraph lines between Taku and Ma Tu (near Tung Chow) are working.

THE BEST BAIT.

A New and Very Successful Way to Catch Bass

"The best bait for black bass I ever struck," said a well known fisherman to the Times yesterday. I came across this summer. It is the invention of a friend of mine, and he had taken the precaution of having it patented. It acts on the principle of the ordinary spoon hook, but instead of trolling with it, with a sinker, it is made of wood, and floats on the surface of the water. You just cast from your boat toward shore, and reel in slowly. As the bait revolves on the surface of the water it looks like a big miller. The bass will rise to it when they won't take live bait, and snap at it. A slight pull from the rod will hook the fish, and it is there for keeps. I was rather skeptical at first, but it was soon proved to me the efficacy of his bait. We were trolling perhaps a hundred feet from shore, when a bass jumped out of the water up among the stones where we had been feeding. "I'll get that fellow," said my friend, and cast his patent bait just as you would cast a fly for trout. He landed within a foot of where the bass had jumped, and began to reel in slowly. The fish jumped before the bait had gone ten feet, he landed him good and hard. For the rest of the day I fished with the bait, casting under the banks, around stumps and half-submerged rocks and had the best sport of my life with black bass." This new bait will be on the market next year.

Ontario Fruit Goes To Great Britain

Model Shipment Sent To-day From Toronto to the Seaboard.

APPLES AND PEARS SENT

To Test the English Market—Exhibits For the Toronto Exhibition

Toronto, August 23.

In the office of the Minister of Agriculture to-day were two sample cases of the model shipment of fruit to Great Britain, which is being undertaken by the Ontario Government.

This fruit has been collected by Mr. Wolverton, a well known expert, and it will be transported to Montreal in special refrigerating [illegible] whence it will leave for England [illegible] Saturdays steamer. Manchester is the ultimate market.

The shipment comprises apples and pears, both prime varieties. The apples are packed in pasteboard compartments, in the same manner as eggs, and are further protected from bruising by wrapping of tissue paper. The pears are packed in peat moss and also have paper wrappings.

The Legislature this year devoted $1,000 to this purpose, and it is Mr. Dryden's intention to have this sample fruit reach England in the best condition. If a trade is ever developed in this line the profits will be considerable. The selected apples for instance, will retail for two cents apiece in the English market. As for pears, the trade is already extensive, any kind of Canadian pear being acceptable in England.

The Department later on will make a shipment of grapes, which will be supervised with special care. Grapes can be as widely grown as apples in Ontario, and if this fruit can reach England in first class condition the possibilities of developing the trade will be considerable.

The practical genius of Hon. E. J. Davis, the commissioner of Crown Lands, will not let the Toronto Fair go by without exploiting a few progressive ideas. For instance, the Ontario Bureau of Colonization will have an extensive exhibit, comprising the purely agricultural products of this year's growth in the new territories, which are now being settled. The exhibit will include the grains, grasses, and vegetables of the fertile regions in our north country. In the matter of grasses alone there will be one hundred varieties. The classification of the exhibit is in the hands of Mr. Southworth, which is a guarantee that it will be both intelligible and effective. The exhibit will be in the main agricultural pavilion, and an attendant will be in charge to answer questions and give out information.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Some of the Machinery Being Turned Out by the Canadian General.

The Canadian Electric News says that the Canadian General Electric Company are supply the Tegonia Water and Light Company with two 35 light 6.6 ampere arc dynamos, complete with lamp. This plant is to be used for lighting docks, etc., at Michipicoton.

The Canadian General Electric Company have recently installed one of their standard 120 k.w. single phase alternators for the Chesley Electric Light Company.

The Canadian General Electric Company have just received an order from the British Columbia Electric Company, Vancouver, for 165 of their standard type "H" transformers, aggregating in capacity a total of 6,500 lights.

The Canadian General Electric Company have just completed the installation of one of their standard 60 kilawatt single phase alternators for the Leamington Electric Light Company.

The Canadian General Electric Company have recently received an order from the Lake Superior Power Company, Sault St. Marie, for a 400 h.p. 500 volt direct current dynamo, with switchboard complete.

The Canadian General Electric Company are installing a 75 kilawatt alternator for Dr. A. Groves, of Fergus, ont.

The Penman Manufacturing Company, Paris, Ont. are installing a new electric plant in their No. 1 mill, and have purchased a 85 kilawatt multipolar generator from the Canadian General Electric Company for the purpose. This is the fourth plant the Canadian General Electric Company have supplied to the Penman Company for their different mills.

The Canadian General Electric Company are installing one of their standard 150 kilawatt three phase revolving field alternators for the Hanover Electric Light Company. The order covers the furnishing of several induction motors and a complete installation of series alternating arc lamps, with constant current authomatic regulating transformer.

The Canadian General Electric Company are supply Mr. J. A. Williams, of Dawson City, Alaska, with a complete electric plant, consisting of one standard 300 k.w. revolving field three phase alternator, on 50 h.p.; and one 10 h.p. induction motor, together with all transformers and electrical supplies required. The plant will be in operation very shortly, and the indications are that Mr. Williams' enterprise will be a very successful one.

The T. Eaton Company, Toronto, have placed an order with the Canadian General Electric Company for two 225 kilawatt, 125 volt direct current generators These will be direct driven by Robb engines. The installation, when completed will, with one exception, be the largest isolated plant in the Dominion, the other being that of the Montreal Cotton Company at Valleyfield, Que.

The Canadian General Electric Company have received an order from the Aylmer Electric Manufacturing Company, Aylmer, Ont., for one of their standard 3,000 light revolving field monocyclic alternators, with panels. This is a type of machine which will be very much sought after in the future where it is desired to furnish electric power to polyphase motors of all sizes and still maintain the simplicity of single phase distribution for lighting.

SHE WAITED FOR HER PAPA TO "COME OUT"

Pathetic Meeting of Counterfeiter and Small Daughter at Prison Gates

Philadelphia, Aug. 23.—Frank Silderman was released from the Eastern Penitentiary yesterday morning, after serving a sentence of five years. He was convicted with a band of counterfeiters and was sentenced by Judge Butler.

At the prison gate he was met by his little daughter, Clara, who said she was "waiting for papa to come out." The meeting between the counterfeiter and his child was pathetic, and both shed tears as they embraced each other.

A DIRTY HOLE.

There Were 8,000 Pilgrims in Jerusalem

The Rev. Dr. Carman, who is well known in Peterborough, returned with his son from a five months' tour through Italy, Palestine, Egypt, Germany and Great Britain. Speaking of the different places he visited, Dr. Carman designated Jerusalem "the dirtiest hole he had ever been in." There were eighty thousand pilgrims in Rome at the time of his visit, and the Pope cannonized two saints. The doctor, however, was not one of them. Dr. Carman enjoyed the Exposition greatly, but says that Europeans are not patronizing it to anything like the extent that Americans did the Chicago Fair. He attributes its non-success to the failure of Great Britain to take hold of it.

To Capture Fugitives

This Must Be Accomplished in China at all Costs.

Berlin, August 23.—The flight of the Dowager Empress and the disappearance of the Emperor of China is here regarded as of much greater and lasting importance than the mere taking of Pekin, and the complications resulting therefore are speculatively discussed by the press and in political circles. The overwhelming opinion is that, since all the powers have agreed to install a strong central government at Pekin, it becomes necessary first to destroy, or at least render harmless, the fugitive Government, which is responsible for the whole Chinese eruption. Therefore, it is claimed, it is necessary to follow and capture the fugitives. This probably will call for the employment of large additional forces besides those which are now in China. Surmises as to whether the United States, Great Britain and Japan will also share therein or leave the burden to Russia, France and, above all, to Germany, fill the papers to-day.

BELIEVES HARMONY EXISTS.

The German Government adheres to the view that perfect harmony prevails among the Powers regarding immediate action in China. A number of the opposition papers express deep dissatisfaction with the ignoring of the Reichstag and the whole of the Emperor's China policy, declaring it far exceeds the limits laid down by Count Von Buelow, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, in his circular to the ruling Princes of Germany on July 11.

GEN. DE WET'S FORCE NOW DEMORALIZED

His Guns Buried, His Personal Following Reduced to Three Hundred.

IS SEEKING A PLACE IN ORANGE RIVER COLONY

The Advance Guards of Baden-Powell and the Boers Gallop into Each Other and Have a Hand-to-Hand Encounter.

"It seems certain that De Wet, finding it hopeless to make his way eastward, has re-crossed the Magaliesberg with a few wounded, with the intention of returning to the Orange River Colony. He is in a very different condition from that when he left Bethlehem with six or eight guns and 2,000 men. His guns have mostly been buried and his personal following cannot be more than 300.

"It is stated that Steyn with a small bodyguard has crossed Pienaar's River on his way to join Kruger at Machadodorp.

"The Boers yesterday blew up a portion of the railway at Kootzee Drift, five miles north of Newcastle, and damaged the rails at a point thirty miles south of Newcastle.

BULLER ON THE MOVE

15 Miles South of Belfast Yesterday—His Casualties Were Twenty

London, Aug. 23.—Lord Roberts reports to the War Office, under date of Pretoria, Aug. 22nd, as follows.

"Buller's division marched to Van Wyckvlei, 15 miles south of Belfast, yesterday. His casualties were twenty

"Paget reports from Hamandnskaal that Baden-Powell engaged Grobler's rear guard all day yesterday. Grobler was driven back east of Pienaar's River. Baden-Powell occupied the railway station of that name. During the fight Baden-Powell's advance and that of the enemy galloped into each other, the Rhodesians losing Colonel Spreckley and four men killed and seven wounded. Many of the Boers were killed or wounded. They were at Cyferkil this morning. Plumer and Hickman were closely pursuing them.

DEBATE WAS BITTER

Cape Colony Treason Bill Sent to a Second Reading

Cape Town Aug. 23.—In the House of Assembly to-day the treason bill was sent to a second reading without a division. The debate on the motion was very bitter and occupied the attention of the House for five sittings.

Broadly described, the treason bill fixes the responsibility and future status of rebellious subjects of Queen Victoria in the colony of the Cape of Good Hope, although the question of compensation is left to another session, and the crux of the debate was the question whether indemnity should include amnesty.

The Afrikander Bund leaders availed themselves of the opportunity to attack Joseph Chamberlain's South African policy, especially as it affects the Cape Dutch, and to accuse Mr. Schreiner himself, a Dutchman, of "betraying the Dutch and of violating implied, if not expressed, pledges to the Bunds." Messrs. Schreiner and Solomon had voted with the Government majority on the first reading.

Mr. Rose-Innes, in moving the second reading, characterized the punishment which it is proposed by the bill to mete out to the rebels as "the mildest imaginable," observing that the rank and file, if tried by the ordinary courts, would be liable to disfranchisement for life.

Mr. Merriman, speaking for the Opposition, declared that the bill was an expression of Mr. Chamberlain's desire to establish an artifical majority to do his bidding, and to grind the whole race. He predicted that it would perpetuate strife, render a settlement impossible and create a new crisis. He said he had not the slightest doubt that the object of the bill was to wreck political vengance on the Afrikander party.

Mr. Schreiner, accepting Mr. Merriman's challenge as a veiled censure of himself and his Government, said he would support the treason bill, which showed wisdom and statesmanship, because it formed a rift in the clouds of the future. From his point of view it was a lenient measure. His colleagues had afiled to recognize that amnesty was a contitutional prerogative of the Imperial Government. He said he wished utterly to repudiate the charge that an Afrikander conspiracy had ever existed. If a conspiracy had existed, why was he not in it? Sympathy with the Boers was not disloyalty, provided that true allegiance was maintained.

To Wed Adolph of Mecklenburg

Queen of Holland Now Said to be Engaged to a German Duke.

ONE OF HER MANY SUITORS

Officer in Guard Regiment Was Hero of Exploit in Long Distance Ride

Frankfort, Aug. 23. — The Frankfurter Zeitung announces the engagement of the Queen of Holland to the Duke Adolph Frederick of Mecklenburg.

So often has Queen Wilhelmina been betrothed by rumor that nothing but the young monarch's own announcement will convey to her subjects and to the world assurance as to her final choice of a husband. Penelope could hardly have been more embarrassed by the number of suitors had she chosen to wed. Here are at least ten whose names have at one time or another been coupled with Wilhelmina's,—

- Prince William of Wied.
- Prince Bernard Henry of Saxe-Weimar.
- Prince Harold of Denmark.
- Prince Nicholas of Greece.
- Prince Eugene of Sweden.
- Prince Alexander of Teck.
- Prince Frederick Henry of Prussia.
- Prince Adolph Bernard of Schaumberg-Lippe.
- Prince Louis Napoleon.
- Prince Max of Baden.

Besides these, drastic reasons have been urged in favor of a proposed marriage with the Emperor William's eldest son, Prince Frederick William, who recently came of age. He is, however, two years the junior of the Queen of Holland, who is, moreover, a young lady with a decided will of her own, and who has signified in a sufficiently clear manner that the husband of her choice must be the winner of her heart, without any necessary afterthought of Continental alliance or reasons of state.

In this resolve it is certain she has the full adherence of her people, who have already come almost to idolize their young queen. Since her taking up the reins of government, two years ago, she has shown no disposition to depart in any way from the habits of practical common sense in which she was trained by her mother, the Queen Regent. She is highly accomplished, speaks English, French and German, is fond of music and painting, and is well instructed in history and constitutional practice. Of an active nature, she rides, drives, rows, plays tennis, is an expert cyclist and is described as a fervid little patriot who will not admit that Holland holds second place in anything. If her kingdom is a small one, it must be remembered that her possessions in the East and West Indies far surpass those of the German Empire and give her altogether nearly forty millions of subjects.

Duke Adolph Frederick was born at Berlin in 1873 and is a captain in the Cuirassier Regiment of the Prussian Guard. Though not tall he is powerfully built, and when he was only 21 years of age proved his endurance by a long distance ride from Cairo to Berlin. At the time this was the greatest feat of its kind accomplished by any German officer, though trials of the sort have since become common. Leaving Cairo, Duke Adolph rode across the desert by the caravan route to Jerusalem, thence to Damascus and through Asia Minor and Angora to Constantinople where he was magnificently entertained by the Sultan, who presented him with six priceless Arab horses on his departure for Berlin by way of Sofia, and Vienna.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

More railroad accidents have been appening and most of them were preventable. The commonest accidents in this country arise from the failure to abolish the grade crossing. So long as pedestrians and wagons and live stock cross the railways at their level so long will there be danger and death. The provision of a flagman or a gate in the cities is not a certain preventive. Sometimes the flagman is unavoidably absent; sometimes the gates come down after a person or a wagon has started to cross the rails. In these cases we may look for trouble. Safety from this will be secured only by the abolition of grade crossings and the carrying of highways across the tracks on bridges, or below them in tunnels. In Europe grade crossing has been practically done away, and with that abolition has done immunity from this class of accident.

Another disaster of which one hears too much comes of collision, usually of rear end collisions. These latter could be absolutely prevented by the block system. By this system trains are held back for a certain distance when a train ahead is stalled or delayed, from any cause. It required a serious accident and the killing thereby of an important railroad man to introduce this system on one line in the United States but its benefit has become so obvious that other American roads are accepting it. Indeed, as a measure which absolutely secures life, limb and property from one sort of casualty it is a question if our legislatures have not the right to compel all companies operating in their states to adopt the block system.

A third sort of accident is more mysterious and while it occurs less than formerly it should never occur at all. It is caused by what railroad men call "spreading rails." They give all sorts of reasons for this. Ties have rotted, they say, spikes have loosened, heat has caused the steel to swell or cold has made it shrink. So soon as the rails have worked loose the engine and car wheels naturally run off into the earth at the side, or, as may happen, over the edge of an embankment or trestle. This explanation does not excuse. Somebody is at fault when the rails "spread." The track walker has been careless in his work. He has taken something for granted. He has not inspected every rail, every tie, every spike, as it is his duty to do, or, seeing a spike that has begun to lift from the sleeper, he has not struck it a tap to drive it back into place. Again, the operating company may have used rails that were too narrow and too light, an inexcusable fault in these days when sound, long lasting steel rails are as cheap as iron rails were formerly.

Railroad accidents in which life is destroyed would occur less often if somebody were punished for them, and in 90 per cent. of all cases it is likely that the responsibility could be fixed. It is a prison offense to place obstructions on a track, and it is properly so. Accidents have been caused by tramps and hoodlums that better merited hanging than imprisonment. But when the collision, or the ditching, or the burning is known to be a consequence of bad engineering, of careless handling of a locomotive, of misjudgment on the part of a conductor, or negligence on the part of a switchman or track layer or section boss, or of criminal economy on the part of the railroad company, a jury should fix the responsibility, and a court should allot the punishment. Dozens of people are not killed and wounded except for cause, and while accidents do happen that are unaccountable and unavoidable others are constantly happening that are preventable, and the way to avoid them in future is to punish those who cause them.

THE MINSTREL AND MAID.

He stood before her window; his breast was full of love,
And this is what he warbled to the maid who slept above:

"Ah, must I say good-by, good-by?
Is this to be the end—
To meet in future and to greet
Each other but as 'friend?'

"Ah, must I say good-by good-by?
And must I haste away,
Nor come again to claim your heart—
Your heart and hand some day?

"Ah, must I say good-by good-by?
And must I leave you here,
And wander far from you who are
So dear, sweetheart, so dear?

"Ah, must I say good-by good-by?
Ere you have learned to know
The secret that I long to tell,
Dear heart, before I go?"

He fell below her window—he sang no more of love—
Some brute had hurled a pitcher down from the flat above!

BIT OF WEDDING CAKE.

"But what shall I do with it?" he asked, helplessly.

She looked up at him and laughed as he stood dangling the square, white box by its satin ribbon.

"There's a certain inanity in treasuring another fellow's wedding cake. Won't you take it—as a gift?"

"Thanks, no," she answered. "I have a sufficient; besides, the charm is broken if you give it away."

"Charm?" he echoed. "What charm has an infinitesimal piece of cake that would not stay the appetite of a mosquito? Silly custom this, anyhow, of——"

"Do you mean to say," she interrupted, solemnly, "that you have attained unto years of discretion and have never tried the charm that lies in a bride's cake?"

"Never!" he averred.

She looked so bewitching in her bridemaid array that he would have sworn to any fact or fallacy whatsoever could he hereby prolong the tete-a-tete. In seeking a spot where perchance that ubiquitous best man might be eluded he had found this curtained corner of the porch.

"Then you must try it before you are a night older," she said, with a pretty air of authority. "Cut a card into seven slips and give me a pencil, and I'll do the rest."

He obeyed with unwonted docility.

"This is merely a short and sure way to find out whom you are to marry," she resumed.

"I know whom I want to marry. I don't need a piece of cake and seven slips of paper to tell me that."

"Whom one wants to marry and whom one marries are not always the same individual!" she replied sententiously.

"O!" was his only audible remark.

"Now," she went on, "I shall write a name on each of these six pieces and leave one blank—for bachelorhood, you know."

"Um!" he assented.

"Then you will place them under your pillow, with the wedding cake, and draw out one each morning; the last one——" with a pause of emphasis.

"I understand," he broke in. "The last shall be first. But I can't think of six names; one is so indelibly written on my heart that——"

"O, I can arrange that!" she interrupted blithely. "You know they must be written by some one else, anyway—some disinterested person."

"O! Probably."

But as he watched her brows wrinkle in such perplexity he concluded that it was not such a bad thing after all, this idea of tying up wedding cake in boxes, and he became convinced that weddings, on the whole, were not such a bore when he saw the ubiquitous best man peer into the half-light of the veranda and retire precipitately.

"There's one thing I forgot," she was saying; "each slip must be destroyed as it is drawn out, and only the last one read."

"Hump! Strict requirements, these! It would give a fellow some satisfaction, perhaps, to know whom he had escaped."

"O, but the charm won't work unless you do! Promise, now"—imperatively.

And he promised. Then—

"O, I say," he cried, interrupting the writing again. "You'll put your own name down, won't you"

"Shall I?" she queried doubtfully.

"Well rather." And though the light was dim, she saw something in his eyes that made her add hastily:

"O, well, since it is by request."

On the eighth day thereafter she received the following telegram:

"Your name seventh. Has charm worked?"

And it was not till their honeymoon was at its zenith that she told him—confidentially—that each bit of cardboard had borne the same name, and there had been no blank.—Ex.

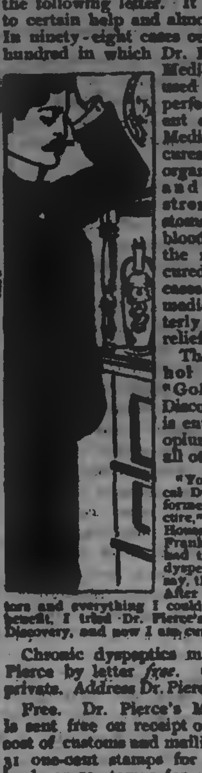
A Clever Cat That Could Reason.

Prof. Northrop tells the following story: "In the vestibule of the henhouse are ordinary crates, where is kept the corn for the fowls. Into these crates the mice get. The professor's father is in the habit of turning these crates upside down, now and again, to get the mice out.

"At these times he has the farm cat at hand that the mice may be thoroughly disposed of. The barn is a considerable distance from the henhouse.

"The professor was one day in the barn. The cat came to him and mewed. He paid no attention. She mewed. Still he paid no attention. then she mea-awed. He looked at her, thinking that she must want something from him.

"When she saw that she had his eye and his attention she scolded him a bit for his obtuseness and started off in the direction of the hen-house. There she went directly to the crates, looked up in the professor's face and gurgled low in her throat a request that he turn the crates over. He did so. No mouse came out. But the cat was satisfied and asked no further service."



Discouraged

Men, who have suffered the tortures of dyspepsia, will find encouragement in the following letter. It points the way to certain help and almost certain cure. In ninety-eight cases out of every one hundred in which Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is used the result is a perfect and permanent cure. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition, strengthens the stomach, purifies the blood, and nourishes the nerves. It has cured in hundreds of cases after all other medicines have utterly failed to give relief.

There is no alcohol contained in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

"Your 'Golden Medical Discovery' has performed a wonderful cure," writes Mr. M. H. House, of Charleston, Franklin Co., Ark. "I had the worst case of dyspepsia, the doctors say, that they ever saw. After trying seven doctors and everything I could hear of, with no benefit, I tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and now I am cured."

Chronic dyspeptics may consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. Correspondence private. Address Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Free. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay cost of customs and mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered book, or 50 stamps for cloth-bound volume. Address as above.

Dan Rice's First Circus Tumble.

"Did you ever hear of the joke which got Dan Rice, the most famous of all the circus clowns, his first job under the canvas?" asked an old-timer.

"No—what was it?"

"Dan, while still in his teens, applied to a circus manager for a position.

"'What salary do you want?' asked the manager.

"'Eight hundred dollars a night,' replied Dan.

"'Tell you what I'll do,' said the manager.

"'Well, speak quick,' returned Dan, 'I'm losing time.'

"'I'll give you $4 a week.'

"'All right,' said Dan, 'it's a go.'"

An Economical Duke.

The Duke of Cambridge is not famous for his liberality. They say that he is not in the habit of spending twopence where a penny will do. One wet day long ago he hailed a cab in Pall Mall and bade the jehu drive to Victoria station. Arrived in due course at the terminus, the Duke handed the driver a shilling. The cabby looked at the shilling and then looked down at the Duke.

"'Ere wat's this?" shouted the cabby. "Cant yer make it another tanner?"

"Certainly not," replied the Duke, "and, what is more, you came the wrong way. What made you go right round Hyde Park corner and Grosvenor place?"

The cabby saw he had no chance, but boldly replied: "Coz St. James's Park is closed, sir."

"Closed?" queried the Duke. "St. James's Park closed? Why, how's that?"

"Oh," bawled the cabby, sarcastically, whipping up his horse, "they say as 'ow the Dook o' Cambridge lost a three-penny bit a-comin' 'cross the park last night, and the park's closed by 'is order till they find it!"

Something of a Hint.

"Stolen kisses are the sweetest," he said.

"How I dislike a man who doesn't practise what he preaches," she returned.

SHE NEVER WAS A BOY.

When I came home the other night
With an ugly looking eye
That I had got into a fight
Poor ma commenced to cry,
But when I told pa how it was
He clapped his hands for joy
And told me I'd done bully, 'cause
Once he had been a boy.

"Boys will be boys," I heard him say;
"They won't be otherwise,
And the one that learns to fight his way
Is the one that wins the prize;
When I was his age fightin' was
My greatest earthly joy—"
But ma, she kept on cryin', cause
She never was a boy.

My golly, but I'd hate to be
A girl with fluffy hair,
And always prime as A. B. C.,
With clothes too clean to wear!
When ma was small I s'pose she was
Red cheeked and sweet and coy—
But, oh, the fun that missed her, 'cause
She never was a boy.

PAYING OFF.

I'll pay him off! I'll pay him off first chance I get, if 'tisn't till I'm old as Methuselum, now!"

Tony's two brown fists came together with a thump. His eyes flashed and his face was like a flame. Mamma looked up, surprised and grieved at the outburst, but she didn't say a word; she only waited for what would come next.

"I will!" cried Tony. "I'll have to, mamma! He's the worst boy that ever lived! He's—he's—I'd like to pound him all black and blue, so!"

Whack! came his fists together again, poor Tony; and the fire in his eyes was all at once put out by tears. Mamma spoke then.

"Tell mother all about it," said she.

And Tony sat down on a little cricket at mamma's feet, and laid his head against mamma's knee, and told; which was just what he wanted to do.

"He's kept plaguing me even since I began to go to school, mamma Johnny Spratt has and he's the biggest too. I wouldn't plague a boy littler than I was would you mamma?"

"No, dear; I don't think I would."

"But he does, and calls names, too," Tony went on, beginning to grow rosy again. He calls me 'Tony George' because I always lift my hat to old aunty Dinsmore—and that's right, isn't it, mamma?" as he thought he saw a little twinkle in mamma's eye.

"Quite right, Tony," she answered, quietly.

"'Cause it pleases her so much, you know. And sometimes I carry her basket for her 2 ways. And he makes fun. And this morning"—Tony's breath came fast and he doubled his fists—"this morning I was the least bit late to school, and when I went in they all commenced to laugh, easy, of course, so Mr. Blake wouldn't hear, and look at the blackboard. And I looked, too; and there was a picture of a boy lifting a hat bigger'n he was, and bowing real low—an awful-looking boy, mamma, and 'Tony George' was right under it. I knew who made it quick enough, and my face got hot as fire; and just then Mr. Blake saw it, too, and he said, 'John, rub that thing out!' cross as anything. He knew who made it, too, you see. Mamma, if I was big enough I'd—I'd thrash him all to pieces. I'd just like to pay him off so he'd stay paid one while Mamma!"

Mamma didn't even smile. She felt that this was a serious matter.

"I don't blame you a bit," she said, soberly, "I think I would want to pay him off if I were you. I think, dear, I would kill him."

Tony jumped from his cricket, he was so astonished.

"Why, mamma Walters!" he cried. "Why—mamma—Walters!"

Mamma smiled then—she couldn't help it. But she was quite in earnest.

"It would be a great deal better than thrashing him all to pieces, Tony," she said; and Tony hung his head and blushed. "Suppose you try it."

"I don't know how," said Tony.

"I think you can guess, dear. And now we won't say another word about it for a week."

"I s'pose," said Tony, slowly, with his face puckered into a dozen wrinkles over this new idea. "I 'spose, mamma, you mean the way that old Quaker man did that grandpa used to tell about. But I can't be kind to Johnny Spratt, mamma—how can I after the way he's acted? 'Sides, I wouldn't have any chance."

"Make one," said mamma. "Now—no more for a week, my son, and then——"

Tony knew what that meant. It meant that at the end of the week he would be expected to tell mamma just how much he had done toward killing Johnny Spratt with kindness.

"I'm 'fraid it won't be much," he thought, with a little discontented pucker between his eyes. "It'll be pretty hard, I s'pose."

And so it was. Why, it did seem as if Johnny Spratt grew worse every day. Tony had to bite his tongue hard a good many times to keep from telling tales out of school about him. And as for being kind to him—that seemed quite out of the question, though Tony honestly did his best and didn't get angry more times than he could help.

At the end of the week his birthday was coming, and Washington's; and the night before, he rushed home from school all out of breath with his hurry and delight.

"O mamma!" he cried, eagerly. "We're going to have the best time, to-morrow! We're all—all of our class you know—going to put in twenty-five cents apiece and hire Mr. Baker's great big cutter, and Mr. Blake's going to take us to—to some kind of a lake that the last of it's 'guntic,' and his sister lives right close side of it, and we're going to skate, and fire at a mark, with just arrows, you know, mamma, and eat dinner at his sister's house. And we've got to meet at the schoolhouse real early, and—won't it be grand, mamma?"

Mamma smiled, and kissed both glowing cheeks; for though Tony was a good deal more than half past nine, as he would have told you, he hadn't grown away from his mother's kisses yet.

"I hope you will have a very nice time," she said.

She said it again, next morning, when she had helped him into his ulster, and tied his muffler carefully, and settled his fur cap on his brown head.

"And now, Tony," she said, looking down into his clear, brown eyes, "I want you to remember whose birthday this is—and all about it, dear."

"Yes'm, I'll try," said Tony. And then he darted off to join the merry little crowd at the schoolhouse.

Johnny Spratt was there, too, but somehow he didn't look so merry as the rest. His eyes looked almost as though he had been crying.

But before Tony had time to wonder much about this, Mr. Baker's big, four-seated cutter was at the door, the bells jingling and the horses breathing out little puffs of steam on the clear, frosty air. Then what a scramble there was! It didn't seem longer than a minute before all of the laughing, merry company had piled in, and were tucking the robes around themselves.

Not quite all. There was one lonely little figure left on the platform.

"Come Johnny!" called Mr. Blake, kindly.

But Johnny Spratt shook his head and looked down at his feet. There were tears in his eyes, and he didn't want to cry before them all—a great big boy, almost eleven years old!

"I—I ain't going," he said. "I only came to see you off. I ain't got no—no twenty-five cents."

There was a stir in Tony Walters' heart just then, and he felt a funny little warm rush all over him. He thought of mamma—he remembered whose birthday it was. His cheeks grew cherry-red and his eyes grew misty. In a flash he was out of the cutter, pressing his silver quarter into Johnny Spratt's hand.

"Here, Johnny, take this," he cried. "You—you want to go more'n I do."

Poor Johnny Spratt! He looked at Tony and then at the sleigh-load of boys, and then at Tony again, and his face turned very red.

"I—I'd look pretty," he said, "a-taking your money after I've—— O Tony Walters! I won't!"

But the more he wouldn't, the more Tony insisted.

"Because it's my birthday as well as George Washington's, you know," he said, with a little laugh; "and I'd 'most as lieves stay to home with my mother. Come, Johnny!"

And then Mr. Blake, who understood all about it, said, "Come, Johnny, jump in," and Johnny obeyed, nearer to crying now than he had been before.

But all at once there came a voice from the driver's seat.

"Crowd in yourself, little chap," it said. "I don't believe you'll weigh half of twenty-five cents' worth. All aboard, now! Off we go-o!"

And off Tony went with the rest—if he hadn't I think I couldn't have told the story with half so good grace. And he never was so happy, and never had so good a time in all his life before as he had that day. It was a good time all around, and as for Johnny Spratt——

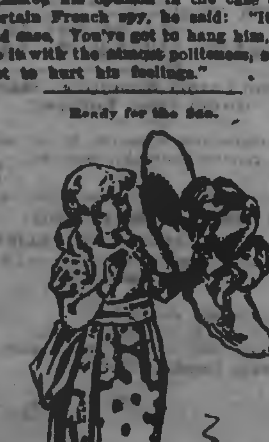
"Why, mamma," cried Tony, when he told his mother the story of the day's fun, "I b'lieve he's going to be one of the very best boys you ever saw—one of the very best ones!"

Bismarck and the French.

Bismarck had no great opinion of the French. He believed that they are too easily swayed by popular catchwords. "Talk to a Frenchman about liberty, equality and fraternity, tell him that his nation is the greatest in the world, and you can do anything with him. You can impress the French more than any other people if you tell them it is done in the name of freedom."

Asked his opinion in the case of a certain French spy, he said: "It's a sad case. You've got to hang him, but do it with the utmost politeness, so as not to hurt his feelings."

Ready for the Sea.



An Unexpected Answer.

Parent—Who is the laziest boy in your class, Johnny.

Johnny—I dunno.

"I should think you would know. When all the others are industriously writing or studying their lessons, who is he that sits in his seat and watches the rest, instead of working himself?"

"Why, the teacher."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Off the Track

This means disaster and death when applied to a fast express train. It is equally serious when it refers to people whose blood is disordered and who consequently have pimples and sores, bad stomachs, deranged kidneys, weak nerves and that tired feeling. Hood's Sarsaparilla puts the wheels back on the track by making pure, rich blood and curing these troubles.

Constipation is cured by Hood's Pills. 25 cents.

"I learn," she said reproachfully, "that you were devoted to no fewer than five girls before you finally proposed to me. How do I know that you didn't make desperate love to all of them?"

"I did," he replied promptly.

"You did!" she exclaimed.

"Certainly," he returned. "You don't suppose for a minute I would be foolhardy enough to try for such a prize as you are without practicing a little at first, do you?"—Chicago Post.

A Drunken Father.

An incident occurred at the Grand station the other day that shows what beasts some men are when in liquor. A man was in the act of boarding a train to go away, when his little six year old son called out, "you forgot to kiss me, papa," and went forward towards his father. The latter who was the worse of liquor, gave the lad a rough push that knocked him down, and entered the car, leaving the child sobbing on the platform. A number of people who witnessed the inhuman act were very indignant.

The Great Toronto Fair.

As there seems to be a feeling of general prosperity throughout the country this year, the attendance of visitors at the Toronto Exhibition, which opens a few days hence, on the 27th inst., promises to exceed that of any previous year. Many who have never been to this great Fair before are talking of going, and those who have been before are going again. The entries in all departments, especially that of Live Stock, are the largest in its history, and this is a pretty good indication that the Exhibition will score another great success. Although some of the manufacturers of reapers and mowers have decided not to exhibit at any fair in future, there will still be a good exhibit of other farming implements at this exhibition. The special attractions, which will to a great extent be of a patriotic character and up-to-date promise to be most interesting, including, among other things, a representation of the Siege and Relief of Mafeking in the present South African war. Many interesting trophies, brought back by the returned members of the Canadian contingent will be on exhibition. It is astonishing the great interest that is taken in the Toronto Fair through the country, and the approaching one is no exception. The usual cheap excursion will be given on all the railways.

Settled at Last

The long standing difficulty between the town, the C.P.R. and Mr. John Green, regarding the property on which a portion of the C.P.R. freight sheds stand, is settled at last, the company paying $150 to Mr. Green. Medal for Canoes.

Messrs. Strickland & Co. Lakefield Canoe Works, have received notice that their exhibit at the Paris Exposition has been awarded a silver medal. The exhibit was taken from the ordinary stock, and was not specially prepared. This is an additional reason for gratification. The boats were sent to Paris by the Company's English agents, and the first intimation that there was an exhibit was the notice of the medal having been awarded. This speaks for itself regarding the high class of boats built by the Lakefield company.

"Ads" That Reach

The influence of newspaper advertising is not limited to the people of the immediate community in which the establishments that advertise are located. At the seaside resorts within a short ride of Philadelphia are tens of thousands of people from the smaller towns and cities of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland who, being mostly persons of means, make frequent visits to this city to shop or transact other business. These customers depend almost entirely on newspaper advertisements to direct them to business places. Everybody reads the Times.

A Quiet Wedding.

A quiet wedding took place on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. Thomas Pascoe, corner of Dublin and Aylmer-st., when his youngest daughter, Lillian, was united in wedlock to Mr. Samuel A. McCall, of town. Rev. Mr. Thompson, of St Mark's church formed the ceremony. Only the relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom were present. The bride was prettily attired in white organdie, and the bridesmaid, Miss Lily McCall, was similarly attired. The groom was attended by Mr. Wm. Cox. The happy couple left on the nine o'clock G. T. R. train for a trip to London and other points in Ontario west. The Times joins in wishing them a long and happy life.

There Are Others.

The country merchant is the man to interest in advertising. The up-to-date city merchant has already studied the advertising question and knows how to reach the people. But the average merchant in a town from three to ten thousand does not know how to advertise. He thinks every man in town and surrounding country knows him, and if they want anything in his line they will come to his store. If he does advertise it will be in an old-fashioned, non-business-bringing way. Of course, any kind of an advertisement is better than none at all. Sometimes there are one or two good advertisers in a small town. The home newspaper should help the merchant. The merchant does not advertise simply because he does not know how. The newspaper should educate him; it will be profitable for the merchant, as well as the newspaper. The Times always helps its patrons.

SUICIDED IN TORONTO.

Thomas Stewart, Whose Mother Resides in Peterboro.

The Toronto Globe says.—Thomas Stewart yesterday put an end to his life by means of laudanum. He was fifty years of age, a victim of the liquor habit, and his health had not been particularly good during the past few years. A refusal on the part of his parents to longer tolerate and humor him in his dissipated career induced him to do away with himself. Stewart lived with his wife, a hard working, industrious woman, in a cottage in the rear of 80 Agnes-st. Of late he had been writing letters to his mother in Peterborough, asking assistance from her, and begging to be allowed to go down there to live. He sent one of these letters a few days ago, and received a reply yesterday morning. He tore it up as soon as he read it. Then he sat down and wrote to his mother as follows.

"Dear Mother.—I received your letter to-day, I asked to come and see you and you said no. Well, I have two ounces of laudanum. I want to hear from you. If not, I will be gone, and good riddance to me. I am tired of life. This is the last letter, Good-bye, old mother. I am sorry to disgrace you, but I cannot help it. T. S." On the other side of the single sheet of paper on which the letter was penned was the following.—Good bye, mother, I am sorry I can't meet you there." Stewart put this in an envelope and addressed it to Mrs. Stewart, Box 226, Peterborough." He sealed it, and put it in his pocket. He came out of the house with it, remarked to his landlord, John Patterson, who lives on 78 Agnes-st., that he had not taken long to answer the letter from his mother.

About 3 o'clock in the afternoon he had a talk with Patterson, and told the latter to call and see him about 5 o'clock. Patterson knew that Stewart would go in and take a sleep, and did not pay much attention to the invitation. About 6.30 he thought it time that Stewart put in an appearance and went to look him up. The house was locked and all was quiet inside. Patterson climbed through a window and found Stewart lying on the floor in a room downstairs. A two-ounce bottle of laudanum was found near him. About two-thirds of its contents had been drank. Stewart was dead, and his body was quite cold.

Word was sent to the Agnes-st police station and Coroner Greig was notified. He issued a warrant for an inquest, but afterwards withdrew it on learning the circumstances of the case.

The Railroads are Being Repaired—Further Fighting Near Tien Tsin on the Line of Communication.

SOME MORE OUTBREAKS AT VARIOUS PLACES

Turbulent Mobs of Chinese Spread Devastation—Missionaries from Shan Si Reach Hankow After Suffering Barbarities

London, August 24. General Gaselee, the commander of the British forces at Pekin, telegraphing from that place August 16, via Chefoo August 23, gives details of how he is disposing of his troops. He says the British losses were extremely small and announces that he is very short of food, that he was arranging for convoys, and that he hoped to assault the Imperial City that day, when the men had been rested. The General also says the good spirits and endurance of the troops were beyond praise and refers to the extremely arduous march owing to the heat and heavy roads.

London, August 25, 3.45 a.m. Five hundred American troops participated in a signal defeat of the Boxers outside Tien Tsin Aug. 19. The fact is briefly reported from Vienna. Details of the engagement come from the agent at Tien Tsin in a despatch dated Aug. 20. In addition to the Americans the force consisted of 375 British and 200 Japanese, all under the British General Dorward. The fight took place at a village 6 miles from Tien Tsin where the allied forces found a considerable number of Boxers, whom they engaged, killing over 300 and taking 64 wounded prisoners, who were sent to the hospital of the allies. The village was burned. The Americans had five wounded, the Japanese 6 and the British none. Hundreds of Boxers' flags, reapers and swords were captured.

From Shanghai comes a report qualified by the assertion that it is from purely Chinese sources, that the Empress Dowager, after proceeding on a day's journey from Pekin, became terrified at the looting by Gen. Tung Fuh Shager's troops and went back to Pekin.

A Chinese telegram from Tsiani Yu says that Prince Tuan has been captured by a detachment of the allies. Other Chinese messages record the formation of a provisional Government in Pekin by the allies but this appears to be a purely military measure and merely an elaboration of the scheme for dividing the city for sections for police purpose. Li Hung Chang has received word that the allies entered Pekin easily because the troops of General Tung Fuh Siang utterly refused to the allies. According to the Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express Earl Li recognizing the futility of his attempt to drive the foreigns from China, now professes conversation to reform principles. Shanghai advices announce the receipt there of a Chinese official despatch asserting that Emperor Kwang Su has been found and rescued by the Japanese. Messages from Tien Tsin report serious mortality among the American horses owing the heat. Delayed advices to Reuter dated Pekin, Aug. 14 reiterate the statement regarding the treachery of the Chinese on the night before the relief, they have informed the members of the legation that orders have been issued to cease firing. This was followed by a desperate attack and it was only the welcome sound of the cannon of the relieving forces in the morning that renewed the courage of the foreigners.

The correspondent adds,—"The Chinese admit having lost 3,000 in the various attacks upon the Legations. Our rations dwindled to one pound a day, consisting of horse flesh and rice." When the American detachment attacked, the whole Chinese force concentrated against them, leaving the Shaho Gate unwatched, whereupon the British entered there without the loss of a man.

DETAILS OF THE BOMBARDMENT.

General Gaselee's Report of the Capture of Pekin.

London, August 24.—General Gaselee, the commander of the British forces at Pekin, has telegraphed to the War Office as follows,—

Pekin, Aug. 15 "Wednesday," via Chefoo, Aug. 21 "Tuesday,"—At a conference Aug. 12 it was agreed that the allies should concentrate within five miles of Pekin Aug. 14, and the assault should begin Aug. 15. The attack, however, commenced early in the morning of Aug. 14, and our troops had to make a forced march of fourteen miles from Tungchow in great heat. We were on the extreme left, and attacked the southeast gate of the Chinese city. There was practically no opposition, as we were not expected at this point. The Indian troops broke down and rushed the gate, and I entered with cavalry and guns. I then sent other cavalry and the Punjab Infantry to the Temple of Heaven to secure our left flank and camping ground, and with the other corps pushed on towards the Legations. At 3 o'clock we got on the canal opposite the water gate and were signalled from the wall held by the Legationers. I, with a portion of the staff and 70 Indians, rushed across the almost dry moat and entered through the water gate without loss. We found all well in the Legations. Macdonald immediately showed us around the positions with the view of further action.

MOB BURNED THE TEMPLE.

Washington, Aug. 24.—United States Consul Johnson, at Amoy, China, cables the State Department, under date of to-day, that a mob burned the Japanese temple at that place to-day. Marines were landed to protect Japanese officials, and are restoring order.

FIGHTING NEAR TIEN TSIN.

London, August 24th. — While the commanders of the allied forces are waiting for instructions from their Governments as to what to do next, which in the present condition of telegraph service will probably take ten days to ascertain, the work of repairing the railroad beyond Yang Tsung is progressing slowly and the transportation of supplies by boat on the Pei river is improving.

A despatch from Chefoo dated Thursday, Aug. 23, says there has been further fighting near Tien Tsin. The Chinese sought to cut the line of communication, but were driven back with small loss upon the part of the allied forces.

Official advices from Pekin received at Tokio, Aug. 23, say the allies burned Prince Tuan's residence.

According to a despatch from Hong Kong dated August 24, turbulent mobs are devastating portions of the provinces of Fu Kien and Kiang Su. It is added that a mandarin with three hundred Chinese soldiers left Amoy August 23 to restore order.

Japanese bluejackets were landed at Amoy August 23, where a mob burned the Japanese temple.

Marines from the French cruiser Comet have cleared the streets of Swato and freed the besieged priests.

A despatch to a news agency from Shanghai, dated August 23, says eight survivors of the fourteen English missionaries who started together from Shan Si have reached Hankow after suffering frightful barbarities.

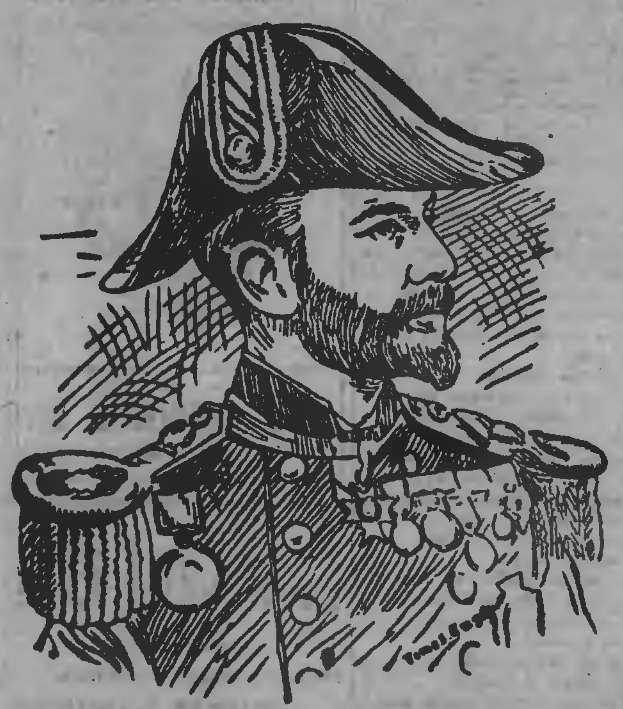
Seymour a Real Hero

Captain McCalla's Report Tells of His Conspicuous Bravery.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Capt. McCalla, United States Navy, in his report on the movements of the allied forces, which under Admiral Seymour, R.N., attempted the relief of the foreigners in Pekin in June says,—

"I hesitate somewhat to refer to the senior naval officer's admirable direction of the naval forces acting concurrently for the relief of the several legations in Pekin both while attempting to reach the capital over a railway partially destroyed and during the far more difficult and hazardous operation of falling back from Yang Tsung to Tien Tsin encumbered by wounded who could not be left to a merciless foe, and opposed by infantry, artillery and cavalry of the Imperial Chinese army assisted by Boxers who, there was evidence to show, had recently received arms from the arsenals of China. But Vice-Admiral Seymour's knowledge and ability are so eminent, and his tact and consideration so great and constant that I may say that the officers and men of the eight nationalities were only too pleased to execute his wishes, which were accepted in reality as orders; so that the 2,000 seamen and marines under his command or associated with him became a harmonious body actuated by but one purpose. But I should fail altogether in my duty to a fellow-seaman did I not call to the attention of the Government the honor which Admiral Seymour conferred upon our navy by not hesitating to call upon the officers from the Newark to assist his own magnificent body of bluejackets and marines; the esteem which he showed for our country by assigning me to the charge of the first train and afterwards of the construction train; the confidence which caused him to place officers and men from his fleet under my personal command; and his great kindness in permitting his overworked medical officers to care for our wounded, who were, I am mortified to state, without the services of one of our own surgeons. During the almost continuous engagements with the enemy Admiral Seymour was constantly with the advance, and so freely exposed himself that both his own officers and mine feared lest we should be deprived of his conspicuous skill in directing our movements. It would be a source of unqualified gratification to the officers and men of the Newark, who were associated with Vice-Admiral Seymour's command, if our own government would offer this distinguished officer some appropriate and tangible recognition of his services to our nation."



ADMIRAL LORD SEYMOUR.

Capt. McCalla concludes his report by adding that a number of foreign officers be offered medals for aiding the United States forces in action. Those mentioned are Capt. J. R. Jellicoe, Maj. J. R. Johnstone, Gunnery Lieut. E. G. S. Crofton, Fleet Surgeon Thomas M. Sibbald and Surgeon Edward B. Pickthorn and Eric McNamara, all of the British navy; Capt. von Usedom, German navy; Capt. De Merrales, French navy; Capt. Tchagin, Russian navy; Capt. Mori, Japanese navy; Lieut. Sirianni, Italian navy; Midshipman E. Procheska, Austrian navy, and C. W. Campbell, of the British Consular Corps.

NO CRIMINALS ARE WANTED IN CANADA

Hon. Mr. Sifton Prohibits the Landing of One at Halifax. No Room For Paupers.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—Hon. Mr. Sifton has had a proclamation issued with regard to immigration which will commend itself to the public generally. It having been reported to him that there were on board the Steamship Assyrian, bound for Halifax, a noted criminal who had served several years' imprisonment on the charge of murder, and, having found his way to Glasgow, he had booked for Canada, although the act prohibiting the importation or landing in Canada of criminal or vicious persons from any portion of the world has been on the statute book for a number of years and simply required the proclamation of the Governor-General in Council to bring it into force, yet no steps were ever taken until yesterday to put into operation the provisions of the law.

Mr. Sifton's determination is to secure for Canada the largest possible number of good settlers, in which he has been eminently successful; but he is also determined to prevent the immigration of pauper immigrants and protect the country from that class who are known to have criminal tendencies, and who in many cities of the United States have been a menace to the well-being of the community.

The steamship Assyrian arrived yesterday, and Johann M. Hanna, the criminal referred to, was detected and not allowed to land, and the steamship authorities will now, through this order, be obliged to return this man to the port from which he sailed.

WILL WELCOME THE BOYS

The Town Council Will Receive Privates Hall and Johnston on Their Arrival

The Town Council met in special session last night to make arrangements for receiving Privates A. J. Hall and Robert Johnston on their arrival at Peterborough from South Africa. There were present Mayor Kendry and Ald. Dawson, Chinkscall, Corkery, Weir and Robertson.

On motion of Ald. Dawson a committee of the whole Council was appointed to meet the boys on their arrival and tender them a suitable greeting.

The Town Solicitor was authorized to notify the G.T.R. that the shunting of cars on the Bethune street sideyard and keeping same there for several hours in front of citizens' residences, is a nuisance, which the town hopes will be remedied as soon as possible.

Ald. Robertson raised a question in the matter of laying new granolithic sidewalks. He thought the width of road between curbs on Brock, King and Rubidge streets too narrow and was afraid too low a grade had been struck in many cases. Engineer Hays replied that the minimum width of road between curbs was thirty feet, which had been decided last year as all-sufficient. With regard to levels, the engineer was instructed to keep the new granolithic sidewalks to as high a level as practicable. Council held the opinion that all the levels struck last year are far too low.

Ald. Robertson moved, seconded by Ald. Dawson,—That the bridge over the creek on George street, be fenced on the east side.—Carried.

Council then adjourned till the first Tuesday in September.

WEATHER NOTES.

Probs. Moderate to fresh southerly to easterly winds; decidedly warm and for the most part fair; local thunderstorms to-day.

The general outlook is becoming more unsettled; showers and thunderstorms are indicated for Manitoba and numerous showers and thunderstorms are likely to occur in Ontario; more especially on Saturday.

100 BRITISH PRISONERS FREED BY BADEN-POWELL

General Rundly Finds 150,000 Rounds of Buried Boer Ammunition in the Komati Valley.

LORD ROBERTS DECIDES LIEUT. CORDUA FATE

Marvellous Marching by Mackinnon's Column, Which Covered 224 Miles in 14 Days, While Pursuing De Wet.

The most recent despatch from Lord Roberts contains no news of a decisive character, though the minor successes he mentions are, of course, received with pleasure. The release of a hundred prisoners by Baden-Powell and the discovery of 140,000 rounds of Boer ammunition by Rundle shows the British generals are slowly but surely carrying on their work of subduing the Boers. To the wonderful marches already made in the war is added the remarkable performance of Colonel Mackinnon's force, which performed the incredible feat of covering 2224 miles in fourteen days, which considering the halts necessary, is almost incredible.

CONFIRMS THE SENTENCE.

London, Aug. 24.— special despatch from Pretoria, dated to-day, says General Lord Roberts has confirmed the sentence of death imposed upon Lieutenant Cordua, formerly of the Staats artillery, who was convicted of being a ringleader in the plot to abduct General Roberts and kill British officers.

PRISONERS RELEASED—AMMUNITION CAPTURED

London, Aug 24.—The following despatch has been received at the War Office from Lord Roberts.

"Pretoria, Thursday, Aug. 23.—Baden-Powell rescued one hundred British prisoners at Warm Baths Aug. 22 and captured twenty-five Boers and a German artillery officer.

"Buller's casualties Aug. 21 were seven men killed and Captain Ellershaw and twenty-one men wounded and five missing.

"Kitchener, Aug. 22, had eight casualties.

"While reconnoitering in the Komati Valley Rundle found 140,000 rounds of ammunication buried.

"The columns pursuing De Wet made wonderful marches. Colonel Mackinnon covered 224 miles in fourteen days."

DR. CLARKE MOBBED.

London, Aug. 23.—The Colonial Office to-day made public the text of the correspondence seized Pretoria. Besides Mr. Henry Labouchere, Mr. John Edward Ellis, Liberal member of Paliament for the Rushcliffe division of Nottinghamshire, wrote to Mrs. Solly for facts favorable to the Transvaal, and Dr. Gavin Brown Clarke, Radical member for Caithness and former Consul-General for the South African Republic in London, wrote to President Krugar, under date of Aug. 29, 1899, of the unsatisfactory results of a conversation he had with Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the Secretary of State for the Colonies. Dr Clarke said he thought war was inevitable, and discussed the effect of President Kruger's seizing the passes.

ADVANCE TO KRUGER

But the most interesting documents in the collection are letters from Sir Henry DeBillers, Chief Justice of Cape Colony, and Mr. Merriman, who was lately in the Cape Cabinet and is now leader of the party in the colony which sympathizes with the republics.

Strongly as both writers supported the Afrikander cause, they were most emphatic in urging President Kruger during the months preceding the outbreak of hostilities to grant reasonable concessions to the Uitlanders. Devilliers, who was one of the commissioners to sign the convention of 1881, goes as far as to declare that he would never have advised the British Government to grant independence to the Transvaal if he should have foreseen President Kruger's narrow, oligarchical policy. Mr. Merriman writes in the same sense, and directly warns the President that the continued denial of political rights to the Uitlanders must prove an explosion, and draws a vivid picture of the evils which the reactionary attitude of the dominant party in the Transvaal was bringing upon the country. The whole correspondence will doubtless supply material in the coming general election to the Ministerial speakers, who will maintain that by the admission of the Transvaal advocates themselves war was inevitable unless President Kruger altered his system.

CANADIANS ENTERPRISING.

London, Aug. 23.—Bennett Burliegh writes to the Daily Telegraph from Pretoria.

"When it was settled that General Baden-Powell was to come into Pretoria to meet Lord Roberts, General Hutton set out towards the northwest with 300 mounted infantry to secure the safety of the Rustenberg road. A party of 25 or 30 Canadians scouting to Hutton's rights fell across a small commando of Boers, probably about 250 strong. Putting a bold face on the matter, the Canadians attacked, and as the enemy retreated they followed up and found hidden away in the bush two guns, one a nine-pounder muzzle-loader and the other a catpured mountain gun. They brought them both in to General Hutton, and subsequently to Pretoria. The other incident was an attack by a body of the enemy upon Rustenberg. Colonel Hanbury Tracy defended the little town, and when hard pressed and shot and shell were flying thick, a body of 400 Australian Bushmen, who had made a forced march from Rhodesia, opportunity arrived and fellupon the Boer rear, defeating them with considerable slaughter.

LOSSES OF THE BOERS.

Middlesburg, Aug. 22.—From some official papers which have been found it appears that the Transvaal Boers suffered losses between Jan. 2, and June 29 to the total of over 7,000 Of these the death numbered 1,000.

PROCLAIMED A TRAITOR.

London, Aug. 24.—3.30 a.m.—Dr. Clarke is condemed by the morning papers, irrespective of party. Some of the Government organs in big black type, proclaim him a traitor of the worst kind.

Last evening he was mobbed by his constituents, and was only saved from a worse fate by one of his supporters, who held the furious crowd at bay with a revolver.

BASEBALL TODAY

A Good Exhibition Game Promised for This Afternoon

It is altogether likely a good exhibition game of ball will take place this afternoon. The Park Nine are now leaders in the Toronto City League, an organization in which excellent ball is being played. The locals are in the pink of condition and may be depended upon to do their duty. There should be a big attendance. In Oshawa, recently the Park Nines defeated the team of that place by the score of 16 to 3.

The players who will represent the Park Nine to-morrow here are Williamson, c.; Edwards p; Peuller, 1b; McCraney, 2b; O'Hara, 3 b; Winchester, ss; Hamilton, lf; Blakely, rf; and Armstrong, cf.

Peterborough will be represented by McCabe, p; Graham, c; Connors, 1b; Mulhall, 2b; Scott, 3b; Parnell, ss; Earls, lf Sheridan, cf; and Grady rf.

FACTORY GIRLS IN DEMAND.

Good Wages Await All Who Desire That Class of Work.

According to Miss Margaret Carlyle, one of the Ontario Factory inspectors, there is a growing scarcity of female labor in the factory towns of the province. The manufacturing business of the province has advanced during the last couple of years, much faster than the supply of labor, and as a result wages are up at the top notch. Girls in factories can now earn, under ordinary conditions, from $3 to $8 per week, especially in small towns where the female populations is not large.

The conditions of the factories in Ontario are much more sanitary and comfortable than they were a few years ago, and as a result girls and young women are in numerous cases forsaking their positions as saleswomen behind the counter and taking positions in factories at considerably larger salaries. In one factory in Toronto there are two young lady gold medalists from a Toronto University. They earn $9 per week, and prefer it to any situation in a store.

CONDITIONS ARE CHAOTIC

No Representatives of the Chinese Government in Sight at Pekin

Washington, Aug. 23.—The State Department authorizes the announcement of the receipt at an early hour this morning, through the Consul at Chefu, of a telegram from Mr. Conger, in the department cipher to the following effect,—"Pekin, Aug. 19.—Secretary of State, Washington.—The entire city, with the exception of the Imperial palace, is occupied by Japanese, Russian, British, American and French. It is being apportioned into districts for police supervision. The Chinese army fled. The Imperial family and the court have gone westward, probably to Sian Fu, in the Province of Shen Si. No representatives of the Chinese Government are in sight at Pekin, and the conditions are chaotic. The palace is expected to be taken immediately. Many missionaries have started for home, while others remain in charge of the Christian refugees, numbering about 1,000. "Conger."

A POOR HONOR.

It must have been a pretty poor exhibit that could not take a prize at Paris. There were 2,827 grand prizes, 8,166 gold medals, 12,244 silver medals, 11,615 bronze medals, and 7,988 honorable mentions, a total of 42,790 awards. This beats the record.

It has been proposed in France to establish a new order of distinction, composed of those who have never been decorated. It is thought that this will be much more exclusive than the Legion of Honor. Similarly, those who have not got a medal at the exhibition are at least distinguished from the crowd. There cannot be many of them.

THE WHITE PLAGUE.

The peril of the white plague was emphasized by the incident of the death, the other day, of a consumptive in a sleeping car on one of the railway lines passing through Toronto. The contagious character of tuberculosis has been fully demonstrated, and in many sections precautions are taken to prevent its spread. In Gravenhurst, where, owing to the establishment of sanatoriums for the treatment of consumptives, its perils are more truly understood, regulations have been adopted forbidding the patients to expectorate upon the streets and requiring the placarding of homes where they reside. That a patient should succumb to that fell disease in a car in which others were sleeping justifies the comment of the Toronto World, as follows;

We do not wish to say anything that might be, or seem, unfeeling in connection with the death of a human being, but it appears that a consumptive died on a sleeping car passing through Toronto yesterday. It is but a few days since a doctor was fined heavily for maintaining a hospital for consumptives in a residential district on the northern edge of the city. This hospital was condemned because of the contagious character of the disease treated. Surely it cannot be wise to permit consumptives in the last stages of the dread disease to use the public sleeping cars. The railway companies, in their own interests, will require to consider this point.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

According to official statements the Philippines have thus far cost the United States 2894 American lives and $186,-073,00. There is another fearful chapter in this history of "benevolent assimilation" in the slaughter of the natives and the destruction of their villages and the devastation of their fields. But that side of the account is probably not deemed worthy of consideration by the champions of Imperialism.

STORIES OF CONGRESSMEN

When Morgan Wasn't Arrested Stark and the Menagerie.

It is not generally known, perhaps, that Senator Morgan of Alabama was once threatened with arrest for alleged complicity in the assassination of Lincoln. Of course, Senator Morgan was not only innocent but actually did not hear of Lincoln's death until a week after it had occurred. He was then a farmer in Dallas county, his practice of the law having been prohibited by the Federal authorities, and he was ploughing corn when he heard that an order had been received by Gen. McArthur, at Selma, to arrest him and sent him to Washington for complicity in the Lincoln assassination. Senator Morgan went into his house, attired himself in his Confederate General's uniform, with starred epaulettes, belt, sword, and other accoutrements complete. Then he saddled his plough horse and rode to Selma, where he presented himself to Gen. McArthur.

"Good morning, General," he said.

"Good morning, General," replied McArthur, recognising Morgan's rank. "For what am I indebted for this visit?"

"I have come to be sent to Washington," remarked Morgan. "I understand you have an order to send me there."

Gen. McArthur expressed surprise to learn that the existence of the order was known, and smiled when Gen. Morgan told him that ex-Confederates had not lost their habit of acquiring information. Then he remarked that the order would not be obeyed—or at least, not until there had been a reasonable delay. This did not suit Morgan, who wanted to go to Washington to present some claims for destroyed cotton and was quite willing to travel at Government expense.

"I want to make one request of you," said Morgan. "When I went into the war I had $15,000 in gold in a bank in Selma. When I came back from the war I found that my gold had given place to $15,000 in Confederate money. With that $15,000 I bought half a box of tobacco. With some of the tobacco I secured coffee and sugar and shoes for my family, and the rest of it went for seventeen shoats. I kept those shoats until they were fat enough to kill, and now I have more meat than any other man in Dallas county. When I go to Washington, General, I want you to put a guard around my smokehouse."

"General," replied McArthur, laughingly, "you had better go home and guard the smokehouse yourself, and by the way," he added, "the restriction against your practice of the law will be removed."

Senator Morgan went back to his family and his plough, and he has never heard anything of the order from that day to this.

When a Congressman campaigns through his district he is sure to have some funny experiences. Sometimes he talks from the top of a sugar barrel, sometimes he utilizes a buggy as a platform, and sometimes, as did Representative Stark, of Nebraska, he delivers an oration to the accompaniment of the noise of wild beasts.

It happened in the town of Fairbury, Neb. Col. Stark had been billed to speak in that prairie metropolis but the opera house was engaged by a traveling theatrical company, and the Republicans had leased the only other available hall. On the outskirts of the town a circus was wintering, and it possessed, among other things, a training barn. The Populists hired the barn, filled it with circus seats, secured some gasolene lamps and started their meeting. The chairman mounted an elephant tub and solemnly announced that they had gathered to dedicate a new temple of liberty and justice. Then Congressman Stark arose.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said he.

"Roar-r-r-r," went the lion.

"In this eventful campaign," continued Col. Stark, whereupon the hyena howled.

"I come to speak to you—"

The elephant trumpeted with majestic noise.

"In advocacy of the great principle represented by—"

The camel gave a huge snort, and a man behind the scenes hit the beast a whack that sounded like a frame house falling down.

"—our great and glorious leader, the peerless statesman and matchless orator, William J. Bryan—"

At that moment all the animals in the barn joined in a tremendous chorus. The lions roared, the elephants trumpted, the hyenas howled, the camels snorted. A shiver of fear ran through the audience. "—at the mention of whose name," remarked Congressman Stark, after the noise had subsided, "even the wild beasts lift their voices in a tumult of appreciative joy!"

Anybody who heard Senator Allen of Nebraska deliver his famous fifteen-hour speech against the bill for the repeal of the Sherman silver bill would hardly believe that anything could stump him. Yet there is an experience in the Senator's life which shows that after all, he is like unto other mortals

"I was campaigning in my State once," said the Senator, "when I had occasion to speak at a fair grounds. The grand stand was full, and the occasion seemed to be full of promise for an orator overflowing, as I was, with political gospel. Just as I had commenced, a man brought out an ostrich hitched to a sulky. I don't know whether you ever saw the trotting ostrich in the East, but out West he was a great attraction. Well, as soon as that bird began to run around the track, I wasn't in it. The ostrich monopolised the attention of every man, woman and child. When the bird stopped the people listened to me, but when he threw out his long legs again there was a roar of laughter and applause which drowned every word I uttered. Finally I gave it up. I let the trotting ostrich have everything his own way."

Affection

Exhales from children as fragrance from flowers. The little lips are always puckered to give or take a kiss. In homes where there are children, love reaches its fairest and sweetest proportions. In childless homes the kiss of wife and husband grows formal, and presently is neglected; the springs of love in the heart become choked for want of use and exercise. Childlessness is a great sorrow to many women. It is like a curse from Nature, who bids all creatures to be fruitful. It is not a curse but a misfortune. Often the conditions which cause childlessness are removable. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has brought joy to many a woman by giving her the happiness of motherhood. It gives to the womanly organs vigor and vitality, removes local obstructions, and practically does away with the pains and pangs of maternity.

There is no alcohol or narcotic in "Favorite Prescription."

"I have never written you how grateful I am to you for your help in securing good health and one of the sweetest, dearest, thirteen pound girls that ever came into a home," writes Mrs. M. Vastine, of 647 South Liberty St., Galesburg, Ill. "I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and four vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' before I had taken four bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I was a new woman. I cannot make pen describe my heart-felt gratitude."

To keep the bowels regular use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

OZONE CURES CANCER

What Has Long Been Believed by Physicians To Be Incurable Readily Yields to the New Treatment.

NO KNIFE REQUIRED.

Cancer is generally believed by physicians and patients alike to be an incurable malady, and when it has been treated in hope of a cure, in ninety-nine cases in a hundred the surgeon's knife has played a painful part. Ozone has proved the fallacy of so drastic treatment and has tested satisfactorily its powers to heal cancer in attacking the seat of the disease, and clearing the system and killing the deadly germs which lurk in the cancer patient.

HERE IS THE PROOF!

Mr. Isaac S. Bewley, 122 Cumberland st. Toronto, says;

Dear Sirs,—It is with pleasure I write this testimony to the excellent qualities of Ozone. My wife had been troubled with a cancerous tumor on the under part of the knee, which had grown to the size of an ordinary hen's egg and at times gave great pain and burning trouble. She consulted doctors and used their prescriptions to no avail and was upon the point of having it cut out when I spoke to you about it. As a consequence of our conversation I got some of your Ozone and after using it for two or three weeks we noticed a marked change in the size of the tumor or cancer. We were so encouraged we kept on with the Ozone until it disappeared entirely. It is now considerably over a year since we stopped using Ozone, the cancer having disappeared altogether; my wife's health has been excellent since. We feel sure when the public gets to know the excellent qualities of your valuable remedy, you will have a large sale of it.

Respectfully yours,

Need of Pure Air.

In order that sleep may perform its legitimate work of restoration it demands that its conditions and environment shall offer no obstacle to its accomplishment. Sleep demands a purer atmosphere than the waking hours of life. Awake and at work we are somewhat on the defensive, but we yield ourselves into the arms of slumber and are at the mercy of unseen foes lurking in secret hiding places about our rooms, close beside our beds and beneath our very pillows.

A Bantam Rooster Living on a Grave.

It is by no means an uncommon occurrence to see glass cases on the graves of children in the cemeteries of the country containing toys and other articles that were the especial favorite of the dead child, but James Austin, a fruit tree man, tells of an instance of this nature that is out of the ordinary. He was making a delivery in the southern part of Tipton county this week when he noticed a coop sitting on a grave in a little churchyard. The sight was so unusual that he got out of his buggy and went for a closer view. In the cage was a red bantam rooster, which was quite tame and allowed itself to be petted. There was no stone to indicate whose grave it was on, but inquiry at a house disclosed the fact that the fowl had been a pet of the little girl of John Stover, and when she died the parents placed it in a wire cage on the grave, and they make daily trips, three-quarters of a mile to take it food and water.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

KEEP THE OLD FRIEND.

Make new friends, but keep the old:
Those are silver, these are gold:
New made friendships, like new wine,
Age will mellow and refine.

Friendships that have stood the test,—
Time and change,—are surely best;
Brows may wrinkle, hair grow gray,
Friendship never knows decay.

For, 'mid old friends, tried and true,
Once more we our youth renew.
But old friends, alas! may die,
New friends must their place supply.

Cherish friendship in your breast,
New is good, but old is best;
Make new friends, but keep the old,
Those are silver, these are gold.

COPLEY'S EYEGLASSES.

We had been talking over a lively incident in the life of one of our friends—his name was Thwaites—which had led to a peculiarly strong development of that individual's nose. Three of us knew Thwaites quite well, and one of the three had told the story to the others. The fourth man did not know Thwaites personally, but he did know a story of another man of which he said, this story about Thwaites reminded him.

"You know that eyeglasses make a great difference in the looks of a man, don't they? Well, this is how Copley came to wear eyeglasses:

"His eyes? They may have suffered from the artificial help they have been getting from those glasses all these years, though I believe he has had the good sense all along to wear simple lenses that make not the least difference to his vision. But he certainly never took up with those eyeglasses for the good of his eyes. It began in a matter of policy with Copley.

"When I knew him first we were both students in a big London hospital, trying to become doctors.

"Copley was very much in earnest, you see. He may have been naturally disposed to have his larks in one way or another, but he always had a certain shrewdness which kept him from playing tricks calculated to bring the professor down on him. In particular he knew how good a thing it was to stand well with the dean of the faculty.

"I ought to explain, in case you do not know, that there the dean of the faculty is the professor who has held office longest, and at that particular hospital the statutes made him very much of an autocrat. For instance, there were three big 'exams' to pass in the five years, and no student could present himself at any one of these without a certificate from the hospital he belonged to that he had attended lectures and demonstrations duly and faithfully' for a certain number of terms. Those certificates were signed at our hospital by the dean of the faculty alone. He took the reports of the other professors, but in the last resort his signing or not signing might be very much a matter of his own personal estimate of the individual student. See? The dean could practically stop a man from getting his degree, even if that man knew as much about medicine as Galen.

"Fortunately our dean was a good old fellow, and he used his power not only with justice, but with mercy. Perhaps his botanical studies made him mild. I have noticed that people who have much to do with plants and flowers are mostly of a gentle disposition. He was professor of 'materia medica.'

"One day he seemed fidgety and distraced when he took his place to begin the lecture. He seemed to be looking over the class in search of some one. Presently his eye fell on Copley. The old man puckered up his brow and stared at Copley through his spectacles.

"Then he began in a nervous, irritable way: 'Yes, sir, you. I don't know your name, sir. You, sir. What is your name, if you please?'

"Copley made no pretense of not seeing that he was the person in question. He frankly answered, 'My name is Copley, sir.'

"'Copley? Ah, very well, Mr. Copley,' says the old man. 'Mr. Copley, I have to tell you in the presence of this class unless your character undergoes a change you will never be fit to practice the healing art. You have no humanity; sir. You are cruel, sir—cruel.'

"Copley had no idea what the dean was talking about, and none of his friends could enlighten him. Some of the class could guess, but they did not happen to know Copley well enough to volunteer a hint. The truth was that some student had been making an ass of himself that morning with the schoolboy trick of fastening walnut shells on the feet of a cat, and then turning the beast loose in the lecture room corridor. The janitor had at last been obliged to kill the cat with a shotgun. The dean thought he had found the perpetrator of this outrage, but he was wrong. Poor Copley had not even been in the college and he knew nothing about it.

"As Copley had no idea what the dean was driving at, he could only submit to a harangue, after lecture, go and ask the dean what it all meant. But the dean only stared at Copley as a particularly imprudent specimen of a normally impudent genus—the London medical student.

"'Go away, sir. Go away, Mr. Copley, and remember that I have my eye on you.'

"But after that the dean seemed to have it in for Copley. Twice again in that same term Copley was reprimanded for outrageous behavior of which he had no sort of knowledge. The second time he was threatened with expulsion for having willfully and deliberately intoxicated a little street arab and then put him to sleep in the dissecting room, where he afterward came to himself in a terrible fright and very nearly had a fit.

"Whoever was the perpetrator of this villainy, the dean had, as he thought, the evidence of his own senses as to the perpetrator's identity

"'I saw you, sir, when you brought that unfortunate child into the inner courtyard,' said the dean. 'I saw you and wondered what you were doing with him.'

"Copley kept his head this time. It was a very serious affair, and he saw the necessity of using all his wits.

"The faculty never did find out who was guilty. It was a most unsatisfactory investigation. Copley's innocence was clearly established, but a disagreeable suspicion of several first-year and second-year men also grew up. Copley, I ought to say, was in his fourth year.

"The story of the street arab who had been frightened nearly to death got into the newspapers and made a sensation. There was no doubt that it would injure the reputation of the hospital. The board of directors debated over the affair at a special meeting, and all the 700 students debated over it on all occasions.

"It was a nurse—of all possible people—who gave us the first hint of a way to put a stop to the persecution of poor Copley. She was chatting with him, myself and a senior student, all of us on night duty in her ward.

"'The thing is quite plain to me,' she said. 'In fact, I believe I could put my hand on the guilty party to-morrow morning, if I wanted to. But the scandal has nearly blown over now, and the young man has been badly frightened. So we might as well let well enough alone.'

"'And how about me?' says Copley.

"'Well, then,' she said, 'Mr. Copley has a double—yes, a double. Mr. Copley's double is a young limb of Satan in his first year. I have noticed the likeness over and over again, but, as you gentlemen never see anything of the first-year students—'

"Of course, now that she had mentioned it, we all saw just how it was. The nurse did not tell us the name of this young man, but we three quietly kept on the lookout for Copley's double among the first-year men, and in less than twenty-four hours we found the double of Copley in a youth by the name of Wixem. We all three pitched upon the same man. There was no room for the least doubt. The only difference between Copley and Wixem at ten yards' range was that Wixem was already serious and even grave in his demeanor, and Copley had a gay, devil-may-care way, in spite of his troubles. Any one would have taken Wixem for a sober, earnest, ambitious student, which is just what he was not, and Copley was.

"Copley was so exasperated that he attacked Wixem on the sidewalk, just outside the principal gate of the hospital and gave him a terrible black eye. Copley was arrested by a passing policeman, but Wixem was too cunning to appear in court. He knew that people were still talking about the dissecting-room scandal.

"'Well, anyhow,' I said to Copley, 'that black eye will help the dean to distinguish between you and Wixem for some time to come.'

"But for several weeks Wixem did nothing that could get Copley into trouble. The dean looked at Copley very hard, with a puzzled expression, from time to time, and Copley bravely returned the stare.

"Then came Copley's eyeglasses.

"You see, we all, including the friendly nurse, agreed that Copley could not go on blackening Wixem's eyes periodically to keep from being mistaken for that young miscreant. So the nurse suggested that Copley would look very well, and immensely professional, in gold-rimmed eyeglasses. And after that there was no possibility of mistake."

"And so," one of the three asked, "your friend Copley stuck to the identifying glasses for life?"

"Yes, but wait a minute. The funny thing was that the first day Copley appeared in the hospital with his new glasses—I was with him at the time—he also wore a dark frock coat and a high hat, and it happened that he had never before appeared there in such a sober get-up. Just as we entered the inner courtyard, which happened to be deserted, Mr. Wixem, looking very solemn, which meant that he had been up to some devilish pranks, met us as he was coming from the museum wing. Copley glared at him, as if he would like to black his eye just once more.

"Wixem stopped short and said: 'Why, sir, I had no idea you were in town!'

"'Hadn't you, sir?' says Copley. 'Then, sir, let me recommend you to bear in mind that I am in town.'

"Wixem only stared for a moment, said 'Oh!' in a manner that indicated both astonishment and relief, and passed on.

"'Copley,' I said, 'that young man took you for his father.'

"'I'll father him if he doesn't mind what he's about,' says Copley.

"The general effect of the eyeglasses was wonderfully effective for good in Copley's career. In the first place, the dean discovered that he had made a good man a victim of his own mistakes. He wanted to reopen the inquiry about the dissecting-room, only the board wouldn't let him. But he became a fast friend to Copley, and that fact helped him on considerably long after he had begun practice.

"No, it isn't merely as a souvenir that Copley continues to wear his glasses. The fact is that the friendly nurse wouldn't hear of his taking them off. She is Mrs. Copley now."

Friendly Assistance.

"Can I help you to anything?" asked Boarder No. 6.

"Yes," replied the newcomer at the foot of the table. "You might give me a clew to this hash."—Philadelphia North American.

Signs and "Ads."

Every person who has a store, an office or other place of business, and who considers a painted sign over his door necessary, can increase the number of his patrons by newspaper advertising. An immense proportion of the people look to the newspapers for information as to where they can get what they want—a fact which should furnish business men with a strong motive for advertising. The successful merchant would as soon think of taking down his signs as of leaving out his "ads," which is proof that they pay for themselves. From a business point of view the only valid excuse for a failure to advertise is that which prevents an establishment from carrying an adequate stock—a lack of capital—diversity feeds the Times.

The Cunning Fox.

A number of persons were sitting in the back parlor of the Snowden House, when the conversation turned from fishing to hunting. The genial proprietor, who is Chief Agitator of the Gold Lake Hunting Club, said that foxes, like dogs have fleas to bite them, or words to that effect, and that the fox know how to get rid of his tormentors as no other animal does. The fox, simply backs slowly into a stream of water with a portion of the pelt of a rabbit in his mouth after the fox has made a meal off the rabbit. The water drives the fleas first up the fox's legs and then toward his head, and finally out on the piece of rabbit fur, and then the fox drops the fur and his pests are done for. Mr. Snowden says that when up at Gold Lake a couple of years ago, he witnessed the whole operation, and when the rabbit pelt floated towards him, he hauled it ashore with a stick, and found it alive with fleas. He says that if there are any who don't believe this, all they have to do is to ask Police Magistrate Dumble.

A MOUNTAIN CLIMBER.

Gains 12 lbs. on Change of Food

When a change in food can rebuild a man 77 years of age, it is evidence that there is some value in a knowledge that can discriminate in the selection of proper food to rebuild the body. A few months ago the physican attending Warren S. Johnson of Colfax, Cal., 77 years old, told him that death from old age would soon claim him. He suffered from general weakness and debility

An old lady advised him to quit coffee and drink Postum Cereal Food Coffee and to eat Grape-Nuts breakfast food every morning. He took the advice, and has gained 12 pounds. Says he is as well as he ever was, and can take long trips in the mountains, which he has been unable to do for a long time.

There is a reason for this; in the first place, coffee acts as a direct nerve destroyer on many highly organized people both young and old, and many people haven't the knowledge to select nourishing, healthful rebuilding food.

Both Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts breakfast food are made from selected parts of the field grains that contain delicate particles of phosphate of potash and albumen. These two elements combine in the human body to quickly rebuild the gray matter in the brain and in the nerve centers throughout the body.

Direct, sure and certain results come from their use and can be proven by any person that cares to make the trial. Both the Postum Food Coffee and Grape Nuts are kept by all first-class grocers.

A Western Hunt

Messrs. Dixon Jewett and Ald. Roger will go to Buffalo Lake, N.W.T., on a fall hunting expedition. Last year, it will be remembered, Mr. Jewett was at this place with the late Tobias Fitzgerald, when he met with the fatal accident. Buffalo lake is famous as a hunting ground.

$50 or Two Months

At the police court yesterday morning Jas. Coombs, who was arrested by inspector Carpenter a few days ago for stealing a ride on the C. P. R. was given the option of paying a fine of $50 or spending two months in jail. He decided to remain.

A Note of Warning.

The Ontario experimental station has sent a note of warning to the Ontario Department of Agricultural, calling attention to the fact that a company of fraudulent men are collecting money throughout the country by representing that they will plant complete orchards for farmers. They say that the trees are furnished by the Ohio experimental station. That institution has no trees.

Amendment to School Act.

Recent amendments to School Acts permits rural school boards to spend $300 a year for promoting athletics. Teachers retiring after twenty years service may be granted superannuation not exceeding the salaries at the time of retirement. The service required of teachers and inspectors has been shortened from thirty-six to thirty years.

Golf

All members of the club intending to enter for the open championship of the season 1900 shall drop a score card, initialed by another member of the club, into the box at the club house, on or before the 8th of September, in order that he may qualify for the preliminary round. Then all those in the qualifying round, whose score is 100 or less will be drawn. All those cards shall be marked plainly, "Open Championship."

A Great Industry.

Already nearly $5,000,000 has been distributed among the farmers of Canada in return for the cheese they have marketed for export to Great Britain this season. It is many years since such a profitable season was experienced for cheese markets, as they have received an average price of fully nine and a half cents a pound for their make up to the present. And when it is considered that eight cents a pound gives the farmer a good profit on his cheese, some idea of the harvest of renumeration he has been reaping from the commencement of the present season can be had.

A New Resort.

The Marmora Herald says;— Crowe Lake is becoming more popular than ever as a summer resort. It is one of the prettiest lakes in the whole country, is well stocked with fish and conveniently situated close to the village. For these reasons it will grow in the future. If some enterprising person would build there a summer hotel, it would not only be a great convenience, but would prove a most profitable investment as well. A great number would then be able to find convenient accommodation for short visits to the lake, and be able to secure boats for boating, fishing, etc.

To Welcome Hall and Johnston.

Arrangements are completed for a royal welcome to privates A. J. Hall and Robert Johnston, who are expected to arrive in Peterborough this evening. It is proposed that the members of the 57th Regiment and the 3rd Dragoons as far as possible, will turn out in uniform. The 57th regimental band will be on hand. At a reasonable hour before the arrival of the train the members of the 57th and 3rd Dragoons and 14th Field Battery will assemble at the drill shed and march to the station. The non-commissioned officers and men of these corps are asked to be prepared for this occasion and endeavor to give the returning warriors a rousing welcome back to their old home.

The New Electric Railway.

The Warkworth Journal says;— The prospects for the building of our proposed electric railroad seems as bright as ever. Mr. Harden informed us on Monday that everything is progressing very favorably. He expects his partner, Mr. Blackmar, of Toledo, will be here this week, who, with himself and Messrs. D. Carlaw, J. H. Douglas, M. P. P., and E. Cochrane, M. P., as promoters of the scheme, will then commence to shove the projected road through. Mr. Harden expects that grading will be commenced this fall and the road will be all ready for operation by the first of June 1901.

Bantam and Dog.

One of our local dog fanciers, while out for a walk the other day, took his terrier, of which he is very fond, with him. The spirited dog chased, after the manner of its kind, the cats, the chickens and the smaller sort of children. Finally it bore down upon a little bantam cock that was engaged in conversation with a hen. The cock did not run. He put his alert head down low, spread his wings a little and waited for the terrier. a little and waited for the terrier. He had a dauntless and fierce air. The terrier rushed on him with open mouth, as if to bite his head off. The bantam leaped into the air, kicked suddenly forward with both legs, and, behold! two deep red furrows ran down the terrier's muzzle. The duelists swung round and fought madly. There were growls, squawks, a cloud of dust and flying feathers. The dog tried to seize the bantam by the head, the neck, the leg, and the bird tried to dig out the dog's eyes with its spurs. Neither scored. Our friend in agony, shooed the bantam off and bore his fox terrier away in his arms.

The little woman now has tears of joy, for she took Hood's, which put her blood in prime order, and she lives on the strength of the present instead of worrying about that of the past.

DE WET HAS AGAIN MANAGED TO ESCAPE

Crosses the River towards the Orange Colony After Another Bluff.

BOERS ARE LIKELY TO LOCATE IN MONTANA

Lieutenant Cordua, Convicted of Plotting to Carry off Lord Roberts and Butcher British Officers at Pretoria, Pays Penalty of Treason With His Life.

Cape Town, August 26 Lord Robertsar rived yesterday at Belfast, a few miles west of Machadidoorp, where he met Sir Redvers Buller, Gen. French and Gen. Pole-Carew. Everything is now in readiness for thead advance.

Krugersdorp, August 25.—Commandant Delarey appeared yesterday before Bank Station with a large force and summoned the garrison commanded by Lord Albemarle to surrender. The garrison refused. In the meantime De Wet took advantage of this ruse and crossed the river towards the Orange River Colony.

CORDUA WAS SHOT.

London, August 25.—A despatch to the Central News from Pretoria says that Lieut Cordua was shot yesterday afternoon.

The press generally approves the execution of Cordua. The Daily Chronicle alone deplores the imposition of the death penalty, which it considers is so unlike General Roberts that it suspects it was dictated by orders from England.

DE WET IN THE HILLS.

London, August 25.—General Baden-Powell, according to a despatch to the Standard from Pretoria, dated August 22, headed off General De Wet, prveenting his junction with the main body of the enemy.

De Wet abandoned his transport and took to the hills, the commando dispersing, some trekking south. Lord Kitchener has returned to Pretoria.

A Panther Attacks Party of Berrypickers

Beast Prevented From Killing a Woman by Bravery.

A party of huckleberry pickers had an exciting experience a few miles from Buckhorn a few days ago. They drove up from Peterborough and were out for pleasure and profit combined.

Towards the afternoon one of the ladies got separated from her companions and Edward Barr, another member of the party, went to look for her. He soon saw her among the bushes at work. Almost at the same instant he saw a panther, or "wild cat" peering over the tops of the bushes at the woman. The animal was between them. Barr yelled, telling her there was a beast of some kind after her and to run the other way. The woman became excited and ran towards the man, and consequently towards the beast.

Suddenly there was a snarl and a leap, but the panther misjudged the distance and dropped at the woman's feet. Then there was a scream that the other members of the party heard. The woman fell prostrate in a dead faint, and the panther at once attacked her.

Bar had seured a dead limb and was approaching as rapidly as the thick bushes would permit. The animal tore the woman's dress into shreds and badly lacerated her body. As Bar approached the beast crouched as though to spring upon him, but Bar landed squarely with the dead limb on the skull of the panther. He followed up the attack with swift blows, breaking the old limb several times. The panther rose upon its hind paws and struck at its assailant. A claw caught in Bar's sleeve and tore it from the body to the garment. Another vicious sweep drew blood on Bar's right leg. He continued, however, to beat the animal with the club, and finally it bounded off toward the woods as the rest ofthe party came up.

The lady, although severely bruised, was little the worse.

SLEPT IN A PARIS PARK

American Cadets Seeing the Sights Had no One to Look After Them

Paris, Aug. 25.—As the result of inattention or a blinder more than one hundred cadets from the United States training ship Monongahela were obliged to sleep in the parks and streets of Paris last night. The vessel is at Harve, and the boys came here to spend two days at the Exposition, and arrangements were made to house them at the boys' college in Paris.

The party was in charge of a lieutenant, but when night arrived the lieutenant was not on hand to pilot the boys to their shelter. They were unacquainted with the language, and did not know the location of the house, and unable to seek assistance, they walked about Paris until tired. Then they took possession of benches in the parks and on the boulevards. Some of them met hospitable Americans who took them to hotels, but only a few were thus licky.

COAL ACCUMULATES AT THE PITS' MOUTH

Strike of the Taff Vale Railwaymen Threaten to have Serious Consequences to British Industry.

London, Aug. 25.—A strike on a little one hundred mile Welsh railroad stirs up more serious interest than anything else in England this week, because it is closely related to the coal supply and the manufacturing vitality of the Kingdom. The Taff Vale railroad carries the product of fifty thousand coal miners into Cardiff. The fifth day of the strike sees small quantities of the best steam coal commanding thirty-five shillings. All the Cardiff factories are shut down, and the merchant fleet unable to leave the harbor, because they have not been supplied with coal. Most of the mines are still piling up coal at the pit mouths. All will probably be idle in another week. The cause of the dispute is that two thousand railway servants want a halfpenny an hour more, and are upheld in that demand by the union of railway men of the United Kingdom, with £250,000 in the treasury and a strike income of £2,000 a week. Interwoven with the discussion anent the coal scarcity trouble is brewing elsewhere in the railwaay world. The Great Eastern men have handed an ultimatum demanding increased wages and threatening to strike if this is refused. The arrival in the Thames on Thursday evening of the British steamer Queenswood, with four thousand tons of coal, and the sailing of the British steamer Armster from Norfolk, Virgina, on Wednesday with four thousand tons destined for Bantry Bay for the British navy, afford text on which hang abundant speculation. English writes point to America's exhaustless coal supplies, and the ultimate certainty that large exports will be made from that country.

CANADA WELL ADVERTISED

At the Paris Exhibition—Will Stimulate Trade between the Two Countries

"The Canadian exhibit is distinctly good, and I believe has opened the eyes of French manufacturers to the great possibilities of trade which might be developed between France and Canada," said Monsieur E. Huguenet of Paris, in an interview recently. Mr. Huguenet has come to Canada to find out the wants of Canadian retailers in silks.

He said that a good deal of attention had beenattracted by the Canadian exhibit, and that the immediate result had been that several of the largest French firms were sending out their representatives to travel in Canada and open out trade. The French newspapers, he said, were mentioning the possibility of a closer trade union between Canadian and French firms, especially as regards ore and timber, which latter commodity was getting very scarce and proportionately high-priced in France.

Mr. Huguenet spoke of the attention the Canadian school system has caused amongst educational circles in France, and said that several prominent educationalists were advocating the adoption in France of several features of our school system. Mr. Huguenet says that he is much impressed with Canada as far as he has seen the country, and thinks Toronto is the most pleasant looking city he has seen on this side of the water.

He does not think that any appreciable number of Frenchmen will come to Canada, as there is plenty of wellpaid work to be had in France and no poverty worth speaking of, but he hopes that in the future a large trade may be done between the two nations.

A STRANGE WAGER.

DR. ATTIAS MAKES A REMARKABLE BET OF $25,000.

He Passes Through Peterborough on His Way West with His Bride—a Remarkable Man.

There passed through Peterborough on his way to Toronto, a few days ago, a very remarkable man, in the person of Dr. Peter George Paul Attias. He arrived from Montreal, and with his bride was located at the Snowden House for a day. The doctor arrived from England about a fortnight ago, on the steamship Lake Megantic, and has made Montreal the starting point of a world-wide trip, which means to him a good deal of hustling. He has to travel around the world within twelve months, according to wager, in a motor car, by rail or by steamer, by any conveyance, apparently, except his legs, and on the journey is required to make twenty-five thousand dollars. If he succeeds a good many impecunious men may be expected to follow his itinerary in the hopes of finding how he did it.

The doctor's handsome bride is the daughter of Major-General Mayo Moulton, of the British army, and the marriage took place last June.

The young bride has every confidence in her husband's ability to win his wager, and her encouragement will go a long way to bring it about.

The wager is with the London Sporting club.

In 1897 Dr. Attias undertook a tour of the world on foot on a previous wager with the London Sporting Club. The stakes were $25,000 and the conditions that he should go 40,000 miles by land and 220 by sea. A regular itinerary was drawn up, with certain distances to be drawn in each country, and the whole was to be completed within three years. Starting from Cadiz, the pedestrian went the length of Europe, through the Suez canal to India, China, Japan and Australia, returning to London by sea. Then from Cardiff to Baltimore, and on foot across the United States to California, and southward through the Central American republics to Valparaiso. Dr. Attias completed the tour one month before the specified time and won, in addition to the stakes of $25,000 $25,000 on the percentage of his backers' winnings, and the payment of the whole of his expenses. But an unfortunate carriage accident, while he was crossing the Andes on his way back to Europe, lost him the whole of his collection of photographs and manuscripts, and nearly cost him his life, his four assistants being drowned, in the canyon into which they were plunged by a landslide. Dr. Attias himself leaped out of the carriage window and was seriously injured, but his wonderful constitution enabled him to make a quick recovery.

In an account of his career, given to our representatives, Dr. Attias said he was born at Alexandria, in Egypt of Greek parents on May 21th 1874. From his early youth he had determined to be an explorer, and his father, who was a wealthy Greek merchant and broker, did not discourage the inclination. He was educated in Paris, and took the B.A. degree by special license when a mere boy. He afterwards went to the University of Geneva and took his doctor's degree in geographical science. But before he was 21 the sudden death of his father, who had had business reverses, threw young Attias on his own resources. In spite of the solicitations of his relations, he persisted in his determination to lead a life of adventure, and began in 1890 the long journeys on foot which have since formed so remarkable a feature of his career. He bought horses in California for the British government, traded in anything and everything, here, there and everywhere. In 1892, on the recommendation of the Geneva University, he was appointed chief of staff to the wealthy Russian exile, Prince Zamourim, by whose direction he undertook a series of explorations in Central Africa, during the years 1892-5. He had some lively brushes with the natives, out of which he came with two bullet wounds and a nasty sword cut, and his hunting adventures would make a good-sized volume. He left per C.P.R., for Toronto and the west.

Boers Laid Trap For Buller

Two Companies of the Liverpools Lost Ten Killed Forty-Five Wounded, Thirty-two Missing.

London, Aug. 25.—Lord Roberts has left Pretoria and has fixed his headquarters at Wonderfontein, the second station west of Machadodorp, where the bulk of the oBers in arms are supposed to be. Wiring from there Aug. 24, he says,—

"Buller reports the Boers laid a trap for his cavalry August 23, opening with several guns at fairly short range. The English guns silenced the Boers, but when the firing ceased and the pickets were being placed for the night, by some mistake two companies of the Liverpool Regiment advanced fifteen hundred yards into a hollow out of sight of the main body, where they were surrounded by the Boers and suffered severely.

"The Liverpools lost ten men killed and Captain Plomer and forty-five wounded. In addition they had thirty-two men missing.

"Gen. Buller's other casualties Aug. 23 were twenty men killed, wounded and missing.

Lord Roberts also wires that General Pole-Carew occupied Belfast, near Machadodorp Aug. 24, without opposition. Gen. French, with four brigades of cavalry, is moving east of Machadodorp.

The despatch of the British Commander-in-Chief in South Africa says,—

"There is a welcome green over the veldt which I hope means that our riding and transport animals will get grazing shortly. They have fared badly of late."

NEARLY BROKE IT UP.

How a Little Girl Offered her Congratulations.

A pretty little miss of about 10 summers nearly broke up a wedding party in town a short while ago. It was about the first wedding that she had ever attended, and she felt the importance of the occasion very much. After the ceremony she noticed that the people went up to the bride and groom and made remarks to them. She supposed that they were words of congratulation or condolence, or something of that sort, but her ideas of the proper thing to say under the circumstances were a little vague. Finally she whispered to an old friend of the family who was near by:

"What shall I say when I go up there?" she faltered.

"Oh, just anything to show them that you are glad they are married. Just something complimentary, you know."

In a few minutes the little miss had made her way to where the happy couple receiving the congratulations. There was quite a crowd around, but she didn't mind them one bit. She marched straight up to the bride, and, extending her hand, said; I wish you many happy return of the day.

The remark convulsed every one in hearing, but the little miss left with the consciousness that she had observed the proprieties.

FRANCE MAKING READY FOR WAR

The Restless Nation Prepairing to Tempt a Trouncing From its Great and Ancient Foe Across the Channel.

New York, Aug. 25.—A cable says,—That the French Government is preparing for war there can no longer be any doubt. The Pall Mall Gazette, of London, makes the statement editorially. It but puts in concrete form what newspapers in all parts of England have been saying in a more veiled way for three days, says a cable despatch

There is absolutely no reason for war between France and England save the hatred of every class of each nation for the other. What specially have scared the English are the French experiments with submarine boats. But many other French doings are having their effect.

FAMINE IS REPORTED IMMINENT AT TIEN TSIN

An Expedition May be Sent to Avenge the Massacre at Pao Ting Fu.

LOOTING IS NOW GOING ON SYSTEMATICALLY

Russian Flag Flies Over the Buried Treasure—Gen. Gaselee Praises the Spirit of the British Troops and Their Endurance.

Pekin, Aug. 19, via Taku Aug. 24 Armed Chinese are reported to the southward and westward. A well entrenched force has been located by the Bengal Lancers in a village four miles to the southwest. It is believed that the best Chinese leaders are in command. Detachments of the allied forces were out to-day reconnoitring and looting. The Imperial city and the forbidden city are closelyg uarded by the international authorities. This morning a thanksgiving service was attended by the members of the British and American Legations, the missionaries and the marines.

London, Aug. 27, 4 a. m. The latest news from Pekin indicates that the situation there is unchanged. The Imperial City is still invested but has not yet been occupied by the allies. When the last message came they wree refraining from aggressive action pending instructions from their governments. An attack from 30,000 Boxers was anticipated, and to meet this the whole American force and the British artillery, according to a despatch to the Morning Post from Pekin dated Aug. 18 were moved to the outer city wall. The Boxers were reported coming from the south. General Dorward, in his report ofth e engagement outside Tien Tsin Aug. 19 in a despatch dated Aug. 26 says the lines of communication near Tien Tsin are now free from danger. The enemy had been treating the villagers badly. Several decapitated bodies were found near their camp. The villagers are now flocking to Tien Tsin at the rate of about 1,000 a day. As there is not more than a month food supply there is every prospect of a famine shortly."

This declaration that a famine is imminent in consequence of the inadequacy of provisions for the hordes of refugees at Tien Tsin adds a new element of peril to the situations Shanghai advices say that the report of the capture of Emperor Kwang Su by the Japanese was erroneous it was a case of mistaken identity.

The Pekin correspondent of the Daily Telegraph wiring Aug. 19 asserts that the Empress Dowager fled westward and adds, she has a body guard of 1500 and as the mountainous character of country would prevent artillary following it is believed that she will not pursued. This correspondent reports every thing quiet on the date of this despatch but a telegram to the same paper from Tien Tsin dated Aug 24 asserts that a thousand Russian's, German's and aJpanese had pushed foreward from Pekin with intention it is assumed of pursuing the fleeing Empress Dowager At a conference of Ministers and Generals held at Taku Friday, it was decided according to the Daily telegraph to refer the fate of the forbidden city to Europe.

Tien Tsin despatch to Berlin dated Aug. 22 say; The Japanese troops possession of the wall around the inner most part of the forbidden city but have not get made their way to the Imperial palace, owing to lack of Government.

Li Hung Chang according to a Shanghai despatch dated yesterday has once more postponed his departure for the north. The Japanese have landed more blue jackets at Amoy, where order is maintained in spite of the excitement conspicuous gallantry was desplayed by captain Gaussen of the Bengal cavalry says the Shanghai correspondent of the Standard while under heavy fire in the recent fight at Tien Tsin Capt. Gaussen stepped and picked up an American trooper, lifted him into the saddle and riding off in safety.

Taku, Rriday, Aug. 24.—Transports are pouring into Taku. Three large German vessels have arrived and are unloading. One regiment that has disembarked is on its way to Pekin and another is bound for Tien Tsin. Three Russian vessels also are in the harbor. The Fifteenth Infantry, the Third Artillery and five hundred marines are camped at Tien Tsin awaiting orders.

Rations for forty days are being forwarded to the Pekin contingent by boat. A hundred civilians have left Pekin, including the customs force, and are on their way down the river.

The foreigners here desire that an expedition shall be sent against Pao Ting Fu to destroy the city and avenge the massacres of foreigners which occurred there.

JAPANESE MADE A HAUL.

London, Aug. 25.—A despatch from Pekin says that the French and Russian flags are flying over the best portion of the Imperial domain, where it is believed the Imperial treasure is buried. The Forbidden City has been respected by international agreement, although the punishment of the Chinese will be ineffective unless it is occupied. The Japanese have seized a board reputed to amount to 500,000 taels in silver.

The Dowager Empress, the Emperor, Prince Tuan and a number of officers have escaped to Taiguenfu, whence they will go to Singanfu.

WHO GETS THE REWARD.

London, Aug. 25.—There is some interest manifested here as to whether Emperor William will pay the reward he promised on July 6 for the rescue of the foreigners in Pekin. At any rate, it will be necessary to settle the question of who were the first arrivals at the Chinese capital before the reward will be paid.

PREPARING FOR A CAMPAIGN.

London, Aug. 25.—Moscow correspondent says that the Minister of Finance has announced an increase in taxation, due to the Chinese campaign. This is the third increase within a month. Rusia's war expance have been inconsiderable, and prospectively should decrease since the capture of Pekin, but it is abundantly evident that Russia is preparing for a great campaign in Eastern Asia, quite independently of the powers, with whom she, for the time being, is concerted.

Russia, despite her protests regarding the integrity of China, evidently intends to conquer Manchuria. The howl emitted by the Continental press at the mere thought of England securing exclusive rights in the Yang-tse-Kiang Valley is in strange contrast with the silence regarding the obvious intention of Russia to take some action in the Far East apart from the rest of Europe.

RUSSIANS ROUT CHINESE

Moscow, Aug. 25.—After Gen. Rennenkampf's brilliant fight at Sanjshan, he advanced 153 versts "about 100 miles" in a settled territory, and has now come into telegraphic communication with Blagovestchensk. At Mergen he inflicted a severe defeat on the Chinese, capturing 20 guns. The Russian loss was two officers and 20 Cossacks killed and three officers and 23 soldiers wounded.

BULLET IN HIS HEAD.

Berlin, Aug. 25.—A Pekin despatch says the body of Baron von Ketteler, the German Minister who was killed by the Chinese, has been found in a Chinese cemetery near the place where he was assassinated. It was found on examination that his death was caused by a bullet in the head. The body will be reinterred in a Christian cemetary.

ALLIES HOLD PALACE GATES.

Pekin, Aug. 25.—Detachemnts of the allied army are now occupying the Imperial city, and holding positions at the palace gates. The American marines, on the south, agreed not to enter. The city is full of Imperial troops. The Peitho mission was relieved yesterday and occupied by the allies. The Chinese losses were heavy. There were 200 casualties during the defence. The British have occupied the railroad station. The road is badly damaged. The city is strolled by the military to prevent pillaging and burning, which has been going on since the occupation.

THE BRIDGE COLLAPSED

EXCITING OCCURENCE AT KINMOUNT YESTERDAY.

The Burnt River Bridge Gave Way Under the Weight of a Herd of Cattle—Six Head Drowned—Trouble is Ahead for Somerville Township.

Mr. Fred Dettman, the well-known Kinmount hotelkeeper, is a large dealer in cattle, and while preparing to ship 100 head Wednesday morning he met with a serious loss as the result of an unusual accident. The animals were being driven in from a ranch, and while they were crossing the Burnt River bridge leading into the village the structure gave way in the centre, throwing 36 head into the River. The scene was widly exciting for a time, the bellowing of the frightened cattle and the shouts of the bystanders causing the remainder of the heard to stampede in all directions. Of the animals thrown into the river six were drowned and several injured.

The bridge — an ordinary timber structure supported on stone piers—was built about 20 years ago by Supt. Thomas Walters of Lindsay, consequently it has lasted as long as most iron structures are guaranteed for. For years the structure was a bone of contention between the counties of Victoria and Peterboro, it being claimed that it was practically a boundary bridge between the townships of Somerville and Galway. Finally the question was taken into court, and in due time the decision was rendered that the municipality of Somerville must maintain the structure. The township will now be called upon to pay the heavy damages to Mr. Dettman.

A GREAT DISCOVERY IN SURGERY.

The discovery that local anaesthesia may be successfully applied in cases of major surgical operations may well mark the commencement of a new epoch in medicine. Heretofore chloroform and ether have been the only agents used in serious operations, and the fact that they sometimes have a serious effect on the vital organs and always produce unconsciousness has lent an additional terror to the dread with which such emergencies are faced. Now, according to the reports brought home by Chicago physicians from the international medical congress at Paris, it is possible to apply local anaesthesia so that while the patients retains consciousness the operation is painless, and at the same time there is no danger of after affects. A discovery of this kind which lessens human suffering percentage of human lives is really of greater importance and significance than some of the more celebrated inventions which while helping to save time and work, add at the same time to the countless dangers with which civilization surrounds people. It is a striking thing that while the man who invents a new way of conveying or of storing the deadly electric fluid or a new and more wholesale way of killing men is richly rewarded in a financial way, the man who has made this great discovery in painless surgery gives it to the world without thought of reward except such as shall come to him in the way of enhanced professional reputation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There is grim justice in the fact that Rockefeller, the multi-millionaire, is a chronic dyspeptic and can eat nothing more dainty than bread and milk. Rockefeller has squeezed many a meal off the poor man's dinner table and the fact that he cannot now participate in the bountiful board will doubtless be some consolation to the chaps who have had their own rations reduced to swell his dividends.

A SYSTEM IN BUSINESS

Cheap Theatre Tickets and the Modern Plan of Remembering Things.

In the private office the head of the firm was closeted with the most important out-of-town customer, who had found that some matter of discounts or error in statement or correction of the price or some other circumstance of detail of the highest importance was operating on him to visit the city even though it was in holiday season. That New York in holiday times is a wilderness, unappeasing is wide of the question. It seems have been made so to the highly important, for even the confidential stenographer had been dismissed. Whatever it may have been, there was at least the evidence of cigars and hearty laughter to prove that it had been transacted to the satisfaction of both. After that had been settled the head of the firm broached the subject of entertainment. The customer was perfectly willing to take in a show that very evening and all the rest of the good things that might come his way, and it was the privilege of the resident business man to send out to reserve seats.

"I'll show you a wrinkle that may be new to you," he said with commercial pride. "You don't suppose that we pay box-office prices or speculators' premiums when it is possible to get just as good seats as there are in the house at fifty off. Just you wait while I telephone, and you'll see. I'll find the man in just a minute. That's the advantage of carrying system into everything you do. Just look at this arrangement. I guess it's got in it pretty nearly everything I want to know. Suppose I have an idea some day. Well, I jot down a memorandum on any piece of paper that comes handy and when I have leisure I file it away under its proper head in this system. Then when I want to use that idea all I have to do it to turn right to it here and find it at once along with everything else I know on the subject. Just you watch me. In this case the subject is theatre tickets, and where I can get them at a bargain. There's where the system of keeping track of things comes in. You observe I open the 'D' drawer and turn at once to the 'Dre's.' It's just like looking anything up in the encyclopedia. There, I've got just the man I want, telephone number and all, and I can promise you the tickets will be here as soon as we get back from lunch. That's where system comes in. You bet it's great."

"That's all very fine," replied the customer, "and I won't dispute the value of having a system. But I'll be hanged if I can understand why you turn up the 'Dre's' in order to find out where to scalp the theatres. Those letters are not the beginning of the man's name that you have just called and they do not spell anything that will make you think of the show. Why 'Dre'?"

"Why, man alive, that's just where the beauty and the simplicity of the scheme comes in. I want to get good seats at any theatre without paying too much for the tickets, so I look up the compartment 'Dressmaker' in the arrangement and find the information immediately."

"But why dressmaker? What has that to do with the subject?"

"See here, you're mighty particular seeing it's my system and not yours but I don't mind showing you that the old man is right after all. The way I first got on to this threatre scheme was this, my wife told me that her dressmaker told her that she knew a cigar dealer who always had good seats to dispose of for a reasonable discount. Got that straight and plain. Now, you don't suppose I'd put that under W just because my wife told me. A man's wife tells him so many things that if he was to start a system of this cold storage on them the W would be the whole thing and there wouldn't be any room for all the rest of the alphabet. So I skip the wife and nail the dressmaker as coming next. Then all I have to do when I want tickets is to think of my wife's dressmaker and there the whole story is told. But the more I use this system the more I wonder how we ever did business when a man had to remember things just any old way, indeed I do.

B—Excuse me, sir, but that open window is very annoying.

C (pleasantly)—I'm sorry, but I'm afraid you'll have to put up with it.

B—I wish you would close it, sir.

C—I should like to accommodate you, but I can't.

B—Do you refuse to close that window, sir?

C—I certainly do.

B—If you don't close it I will.

C—You won't.

B—If I come over there I will.

C—I'll give you odds you won't.

B—I'll ask you once more, sir; will you close that window?

C—No, sir, I will not.

B (getting on his feet)—Then I will, sir.

C—I would like to see you do it.

B (placing his hands on the window)—I'll show you whether I will or not, sir.

C (as B tugs at window)—Why don't you close it?

B (getting red in the face)—It—appears—to be stuck.

C—Of course it is. I tried to close it before you came in.—Illustrated American.

THE PRODUCT OF EDUCATION.

Helvetius says. "Man is the product of his education." The properly educated, trained and qualified druggist if he is acquainted with true business principles, must win the confidence of his townspeople. The liberal patronage bestowed on us up to the present, is ample proof that our efforts to please the public are appreciated. Family dispensing is our special forte.

Sure and Unfailing.

Rain or Shine,

The station agent is on duty. On his exact communication of train orders depends thousands of lives, and millions of dollars in property, each day. In his haste he runs out in the rain or the snow hatless and unprotected. Then comes the sequel—bronchitis or some other disease of the respiratory organs. The most effective remedy for bronchial or pulmonary disease is Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Almost all remedies prescribed for such diseases contain opium or some narcotic which soothes by stupefaction. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains neither narcotics nor alcohol. It stops coughs by curing their cause. It heals weak lungs, builds up wasted tissues, and promotes the health of every organ of the body.

"I am a railroad agent," writes I. B. Staples, Esq., of Barclay, Osage County, Kans., "and four years ago my work keeping me in a warm room and stepping out frequently into the cold air gave me bronchitis, which became chronic and deep-seated. Doctors failed to reach my case and advised me to try a higher air, but, fortunately for me, a friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. I commenced taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and by the time I had taken the first bottle I was better, and after taking four bottles my cough was entirely gone. I have found no necessity for seeking another climate."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate the stomach, liver and bowels.

Advised by Three Doctors To Make His Will

The Ozone Co., Toronto.

Dear Sir,—I take much pleasure in re-commending Ozone. I can truly say it saved my life. I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs. I was so run down that I had no hope of recovery. Three doctors told me to make my will. I tried everything recommended for consumption. I had taken nearly a dozen bottles of Cod Liver Oil, besides spending one hundred dollars in doctors' bills, until at last I was advised to try Ozone, before I had taken two bottles my cough was entirely cured. Before I had taken Ozone two months I was as well as ever.

KILLED IN BROCK TOWNSHIP

Charles Graham, Thresher, Had His Skull Fractured

Lindsay Post.—A very distressing accident occurred on Monday afternoon at the farm of Mr. John Francis, Derryville, which cost Charles Graham, an active young man, his life. Graham was assisting at the threshing in progress and was working about the machine when one of the belts came off. In the effort to replace the belt it broke and wound around a small shaft, wrenching the latter from a machine and striking the unfortunate man on the side of the head, inflicting such serious injuries that the brain protruded. Medical assistance was at once pretruded, but the injuries were so severe that death ensued some hours later. Graham was a steady, hard-working young fellow of about twenty-five years of age, and son of Mrs. W. Graham, postmistress at Derryville; a brother was also employed at the foundry in Cannington.

A YELLOW SEA POPPY.

Only a yellow sea poppy,
That grew in the shingle and sand,
Kissed by the spray of the ocean,
Afar from the dews of the land.
Hard is thy bed, little beauty,
And few are the comforts that bless;
No butterfly wing passes by thee,
Thy life is one lonely distress

Yet thou art golden in beauty,
And delicate, too, in thy form.
There! as I lifted thy glory,
'Tis shattered before the rude storm
Flower, thou art parched in this desert,
Too dry for one tear of complaint;
Around thee hard stones, and above
Fierce rays—thou wilt wither and faint.

"Oh, no," said the poppy, "not so;
God made me to blossom out here;
My red-coated brothers, I know,
Were formed for a different sphere.
But God wanted one little flower
To grow where no other bloom grew,
And He has provided my dower,
Where you think the comforts are few.

"And if He has called you to be
Where all things seem barren and bare,
Then learn this blest lesson from me—
God's flowers in a desert are fair.
The yellow sea poppy God made
To grow amid shingle and sand;
And here I have always His aid,
To me 'tis a good, fruitful land."

—William Luff, in N. Y. Tribune.

A Chat With a Detective.

There was a tremendous crowd outside the Marylebone Police Court last Tuesday morning when I presented my card to the policeman at the door.

Some time after I had entered the court, I was introduced to a very well known detective, who has gained many laurels in the past, and who will gain so many in the immediate future.

He is a very gentlemanly man, well-dressed, smart-looking; and when you have talked to him for a few minutes you realise in the quickness of his eye, and the sound sense of his conversation, the ability that has brought him into his present position.

I wanted his reminiscences; but an inherent dislike of publicity forbids him from helping his would-be scribes; nor would he help me more than others.

"Never mind," I said, "I shall have them for all that, you see if I don't." I I am able, however, to tell you some amusing things about this great detective, things learned in a chat with an old detective officer, almost as famous, and an ardent admirer of my subject.

He is now forty years of age; he has been in the service for twenty years, but has only been a detective for ten years. During that time he has seen as much of London life—in its better and more vicious forms—as any living man; and were he to write a book, it would be one of the most entertaining volumes that we could possess.

One of the most amusing cases that he was ever engaged on was when, in 1882, he arrested three famous "magsmen," that is, confidence-trick men, in a public-house near Euston Station.

He had followed these men for days, until one morning he saw two of them in the public-house and the third loafing about outside. They were waiting for a victim; "and so," said the "tec," "I will be their victim, and they shall try to play the confidence trick on me."

With that he strolled into the bar, and instantly one man nudged the other, and gave him the signal that the game was to begin, little thinking what a comedy they were playing or how particularly lively a bird was their audience of one.

The first process was for them to quarrel. They called each other a lot of bad names, and then one turned to the "victim" and said:

"Look here, sir," this man is my son, and I allow him a lot of money every month, which he dissipates and wastes. He has just spent five hundred dollars of mine, and he wants me to give him more; but I've no confidence in him—none at all."

Here the son called his father bad names, and then turned to the detective and asked him to have a drink. He had a drink, smoked with the men for over an hour, and pretended to be fresh from the country.

The fellows were delighted, and were about to confide in him, when in came the confederate from outside, and, suspecting something, said, "You fools; don't you see he's a 'D.'"

The game was nearly up, but the detective, quick as lightning, saved it. He pulled out some money from his pocket, and said:

"Look here, let's toss for drinks."

The pseudo-father cried to the suspicious man, "It's all right, you idiot, shut up," and then he fell to tossing with the detective, and finally opened the whole scheme, saying that, if the detective would trust his son with his one hundred dollars to go round the corner with, he would give him more money, and the son hinted that he (the victim) and himself might divide it.

"Exactly," said the detective, and with that he whipped out the handcuffs and buckled the pair.

Of course the swindlers were fairly taken. "That big sum of money did me," said one of them, "I never thought that the police went about with so much money."

These three sharpers were in a jesting mood when tried. They kept the judge and jury in fits of laughter, for they did not seem, even then, to have recovered their astonishment at learning that the supposed greenhorn was one of the sharpest men in London.

"Didn't you drink with me?" asked one; "didn't I stand you cigars?" inquired another, and to all this the detective merely smiled and replied: "Oh, yes; I enjoyed myself very much."

This is the amusing side of detective life. Let us take another side. In the same year, my friend was instrumental in capturing eight desperate burglars, of whom the captain was a man named William Lovett.

This man, a regular desperado, was traced by the detective to a loft over a stable, and, although knowing that two or three desperate scoundrels were at the top of the narrow stairs, our detective went up, taking but one officer with him.

The moment he entered the room he saw that the affair was full of danger. Lovett drew a knife from his pocket and sprang upon him, but he struck the man under the ear and knocked him down. Then, lest he should recover, he took him in his arms, and thinking that the other men were about to spring on him, he contemplated throwing Lovett down the stairs.

However, in the end he carried him down, and called his officer, who said, "We're carrying a corpse," a statement which frightened the "tec" very much. They laid the man down in the police-station and applied cold water to his head. But Lovett did not like cold water.

With a howl and a bound he sprang up, and made another grab at the detective who had caught him; rather a foolish proceeding, seeing that he was surrounded by police officers, and had no chance of escaping.

This Lovett, afterwards sentenced to a long term of imprisonment, was a daring fellow, for he made his escape from Millbank, and then walked about London for two days with a loaded revolver, his sole purpose being to shoot the celebrated detective, whom he regarded with a perhaps easily comprehensible feeling of animosity.

Fortunately for himself, that gentleman was at that moment lying in his own house, suffering from a sharp attack of typhoid fever, and when he recovered he learnt the great risk he had escaped.

All great criminals seem possessed of a great desire to shoot detectives, and this is not unnatural seeing that such officers are, in the opinion of thieves, impertinently inquisitive and offensive in their curiosity.

The suject of this article once had a narrow escape with an American burglar named John Owen, a man who had committed many crimes in the north of London. The detective followed him for days, knowing well that the man always had a revolver in his pocket; and that, were he tackled, he would certainly shoot his captors.

Here was a desperate job then; and one of the detective's assistants thought it so desperate that he begged not to be left alone with Owen even for a few minutes.

The hour for this burglar's capture came at last. Walking close by him in the street, the pursuer suddenly pinned his arms and threw him backwards. The fellow was thrown down, and when he learnt that his captor was a detective he said, "Well, I should have made a hole in you, I guess, if I'd known who you were."

These are but a few of the many great cases that the great enemy of evil-doers has been engaged in. For instance, he captured the perpetrators of the Regent's Park murder, when a young man was stabbed and no clue of any sort was left to identify his assailants.

Again, he brought Hatton to justice when a woman was discovered in a field near Elstree with her head crushed, and dozens of other cases have been characterised by the skill that he has brought to bear upon them. With these I do not propose to deal; but I may just cite one instance to show how ready is the insight of such a man and how true his quickly-formed conclusions.

One day a woman came up to the police-station, and said that her servant had been nearly murdered by burglars, who had wounded her, pulled her hair out, and made off with a valuable silk dress.

The detective went up to the house, and cross-examined this domestic, listening to her whole explanations, and then saying:

"What do you take us for, detectives or fools? Come now, where is that silk dress?"

Of course, he was abused. "How dare he suspect our servant! how dare he make such insinuations?" He listened to them, and laughed. He knew in a moment that the servant was lying, and that no robbery had been committed.

The girl had stolen the dress herself, and before he left the house it was produced; and the astonished householders confessed that his instinct was nothing less than marvelous.

Nor should it be forgotten that our subject wears a fine gold chronometer given him for saving life from fire. One night a house in Cardigan Square was ablaze. He heard cries and screams; he rushed in and brought out a woman, who, however, died in his arms.

He entered the house again, brought out a child; entered yet a third time, but was overpowered by the smoke, and fell back into the flames only to be rescued by the fire brigade.

Where Can We Find—

A woman to mop the brow of the mountain?

The whetstone that will sharpen a dull appetite?

The ring that will fit the finger of fate?

The correct measurement of the footprints of time?

The number of inhabitants in the matrimonial state?

A frame for the mirror that is held up to nature?

Experience to ripen these people who are green with envy?

A ladder that will reach the top of the morning?

Something to soothe the itch for fame and relieve some of the awful strains of music?

The Health Problem

Is much simpler than is sometimes supposed. Health depends chiefly upon perfect digestion and pure blood, and the problem is solved very readily by Hood's Sarsaparilla. You may keep well by taking it promptly for any stomach or blood disorder. It cures scrofula, salt rheum, catarrh, dyspepsia, rheumatism and other diseases are numbered by the thousands.

The favorite family cathartic is Hood's Pills.

A Note of Warning.

The Ontario experimental station has sent a note of warning to the Ontario Department of Agricultural, calling attention to the fact that a company of fraudulent men are collecting money throughout the country by representing that they will plant complete orchards for farmers. They say that the trees are furnished by the Ohio experimental station. That institution has no trees.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Exit Li Hung Chang.

In the blossoming land of the broad Wang Ho,
Where the soft Celestial pig-tails hang,
Li Hung's bosom is filled with woe,
For the powers won't deal with Li Hung Chang.

O, Son of the Sun, and Sun of the Moon!
Jay Gould of astral real estate!
You're nothing now, a mere buffer, it
A politician out of date.

For Princes Tuan and Tsong Chi Li,
With Chwang and Tung and brave Kang Yi,
Are bossing now, with Hsu! Hsi Yi,
And if they catch you they will hang ye.

The Boxers hanker for your blood—
Your earthly power has passed away—
The Emperor says your name is Mud.

The Grades Bad.

At the council meeting on Friday evening there was some discussion regarding the grades of the granolithic walks, laid last year, which did not redound to the credit of the Town Engineering department. If the parties responsible for the grades could only hear the people discuss their methods, they would probably make a change to the management of our streets.

Navigation Notes.

—The Beljame and Beaver arrived with the usual complement of freight and passengers.

—The Rainbow brought up a scow load of wood for the Matthews Co., Saturday.

On Saturday the City brought up a big excursion from Harwood, and Baltimore, known as Forbes' Annual Excursion. There were several hundred persons on board.

—The City will bring an excursion to town from Harwood on Tuesday. The excursion is under the auspices of the English church.

—Capt. Calcutt reports business good.

REPORTERS' ROUNDS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

—Everybody reads the Times.

—The Cobourg Garrison Artillery passed through Peterborough Saturday, Hastings bound.

—Windfall apples are very plentiful. They can be had in the country for the picking.

—Gilmour Company's drive of logs are just tailing out of the Little Lake. The river is full, clear to the Lake.

Nervousness is cured by making the blood rich and pure with Hood's Sarsaparilla. It gives the sweet, refreshing sleep of childhood.

—When it comes to a question of law the tailor has his share of suits, and the brewer always has a lot of cases on hand.

—When a fellow sees the bills going up for the fall fairs it makes him begin to moralize and wonder what he has done with his summer wages.

—One of our evening contemporaries advises people to use great care and drink only pure water—just as if he knew anything about water. The thing's absurd.

—Mr. James Bogue, contractor has been engaged by the Orillia Power Transmission company to supervise the erection of the dam and all masonry work at Ragged Rapids, where power will be generated.

—"Some of the simplest things in the world," says the Scientific American, "are the most efficacious. If you are afraid of lightning, here's a very simple safeguard to remember; Simply put on your rubbers and then stand up so that your clothes won't touch anywhere. Whether you're indoors or out of doors you're perfectly safe, for rubber is a non-conductor, and you are completely isolated."

—Fishing has been very good for the past week. Some of the tourists have taken some very nice lunge, and Mr. W. Hickson succeeded in landing a 16-pounder on Wednesday last. Since the limit for a day's catch was fixed we do not hear of the large numbers taken, but when a "sport" lands a 15 or 20-pounder we are sure to hear of it, as usual.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

—Mr. Thomas Donaldson, Cavan, was in town Saturday.

—Mr. R. Ruddy, barrister, Millbrook, is in town to-day on business.

—Mr. Wm. Fair, Millbrook, father of Mr. Fair, was in town Saturday.

—J. D. Gunn, M. D., of McGill University, is visiting friends in town.

—Mr. Robert Stewart, of the Matthews Company, is in Ottawa on business.

—Mrs. D. A. Fraser and children of Montreal are visiting friends in town.

—Mrs. Fred Duggan, of Toronto, is the guest of Mrs. Harris McAllister, Gilmour street.

—Mrs. C. L. Huffman and son are visiting at the residence of Mr. Thomas Walton, Lindsay.

—Mrs. M. Shea has returned to town after spending several weeks at the residence of Mr. W. Shea, Norwood.

—Mr. Jos. Halpenny has been confined to his room with illness. His genial presence was much missed in a large circle of friends.

—Rev. Dr. Torrance and family have returned from Muskoka. Rev. Dr. Torrance took the services at St Paul's yesterday.

—Mrs. Alex. Brodie and Miss Margery arrived last evening to spend a few weeks at the residence of Judge Edmison. Mr. Brodie is expected to arrive this evening.

—Mr. and Mrs. James Dawson have returned from their trip west. Mrs. Dawson will be "at home" on Monday Tuesday and Wednesday, next week, at 531 Water street.

—Mr. H. Sutherland, Toronto, manager of the Temperance and General Life Assurance Company, has purchased the property in Stony Lake known as Moore's Point, on which he purposes to erect a handsome cottage.

Not in Business.

We notice a number of our contemporaries are carrying advertisements of the "Great Pacific Tea Company," of Montreal. The Times' Montreal representative writes us that this company is not now in business, having been sold out for rent.

Rumor Untrue.

An organ grinder and a monkey has been doing the town for the past week, being followed around by droves of urchins. There is no truth in the rumor that the reporters of our little local contemporaries spend most of their time chasing the the musician and watching the monkey's antics.

A Deep Sewer.

Work has commenced on the section of sewer on Park street, north of Hunter street. It is being sunk eighteen and a half feet deep, and owing to the great depth, two platforms and three men are required to bring the earth to the surface.

The Kawartha Lakes

The Montreal Witness, on the 18th instant, contained an article on the Kawartha Lakes, which speaks in high terms of these waters. Our contemporary does not overdo it when it states that these lakes are not only picturesquely beautiful, but the hwole region abounds in minerals. There is a great future for this region.

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

The voice of the people forcibly proclaims the fact that our store is the popular emporium. Our dispensing facilities insure accuracy and safety at all times. We are building up an immense family trade, because we guarantee the quality of our drugs and medicines.

We are headquarters for fine Perfumes and all modern Toilet Requisites.

We can without hesitation recommend Paine's Celery Compound to our customers as the best of all blood purifiers. It has the indorsation of Canada's best people, and never fails to banish all troubles that result from impure blood. Try a bottle of this marvellous system renovator and builder; you will not be disappointed. John Nugent, Druggist, Peterborough Ont.

For Political Honors

Mr. J. D. Flavelle, a former Peterborough citizen, is likely to be the Conservative candidate for Centre Toronto for the House of Commons at the approaching election. Mr. Flavelle is popular, and will make a strong candidate.

Home Today

On Saturday Mr. E. J. Hartley received a telegram from Private E. J. Hall dated Quebec, stating that he would reach home this afternoon. Trooper Johnston, it is expected, will arrive on same train. Arrangements have been made to give the returning veterans a hearty welcome.

Unclean Wells

Complaints have come to the Times regarding certain wells of drinking water in town. There should be a systematic inspection of wells, especially in the heart of the town, under the supervision of the Medical Health Officer. Typhoid fever is very prevalent, and it is due, so it is said, largely to the bad water.

A Fine Fish

The Times tenders its hearty thanks to Capt. C. W. Calcutt for a very fine maskinonge, which he laid on the editor's table Saturday. If there is one thing more than another that we are extremely partial to, it is fish of the maskinonge variety. They are by all odds the best flavored and most wholesome of our native fish.

To Erect a Monument

The Managing Committee of the local Woodmen of the World, have placed a contract with Mr. Moore, of town, for a suitable monument to be erected in remembrance over the grave of their late brother, Henry E. Sherwood. The same will be unveiled on Tuesday, September 4th, with appropriate ceremonies, when several of the leading men of the order will be here for the occasion. The deceased member died last spring, after being a member of the order for a short time only.

Wanted for Mayor.

A citizen called on the Times on Saturday and suggested that Ald Roger be asked to run for Mayor next year. Our visitor was impressed with the stand taken by Mr. Roger in connection with the unsatisfactory way the street work is being done. He says Mr. Roger would easily be elected, if he appealed to the ratepayers, pledging himself to abolishing the office a paid engineer, and going in for economy.

Won 20th Place.

In the last number of the Canadian Military Gazette, the complete scores made at the matches of the Military Rifle League are given. The season throughout was the most successful in the history of the organization. The number of entries was largeer than ever before, being in the neighbourhood of one hundred, and Peterborough's team has the honour of winning 20th place. This is a very creditable showing, in view of the large number of enteries. The series was for a team of ten men, the ranges being 200, 500 and 600 Yds.

Church Notes

Rev. Dr. Torrance conducted the services at St. Paul's yesterday.

Rev. J. C. Davidson preached in All Saint's' yesterday morning and in the evening the pulpit was occupied by Rev. J. H. McCollum.

Rev. J. H. McCollum, of Toronto, officiated in St. John's church yesterday morning adn Rev. B. C. H. Andrews, of St. Alban's Cathedral, preached in the evening.

Rev. W. W. McCuaig, B.A., Port Hope, preached morning and evening at St. Andrew's yesterday. The services were special ones, in connection with the fourth anniversary of the induction of Rev. J. G. Potter as pastor.

A Strong Firm.

"In union there is strength," quoted the genial proprietor of the Snowden House, as he added a little water to the lemonade he was mixing for one of his guests. "Yes," responded the other. "I once knew a tobacconist of the name of Hiram Sting. He went into partnership with another tobacconist whose name was Solomon Kerr. They had plenty of money, and made honest goods, and when they undertook to put the Stin-Kerr cigar on the market they scored the worst failure you ever heard of." Mr. Snowden said that he never kept this brand of goods.

Important to Sportsmen

The Game Warden is issuing notices for the information of the public containing an abstract of the Ontario game laws. For the first time for many years, moose reindeer and caribou maybe killed between the 1st and 15th November, both days inclusive. Another opportunity to hunt these stately animals will not be given sportsmen until 1903, as the open season is restricted to a period of fifteen days every third year. Only one of each variety may be taken by any one person in one season, and no cow moose of either of these animals under the age of one year can be killed. Partridge, quail, woodcock and snipe may not be bought and sold before 1905. English or Mongolian pheasants, prairie fowl, wild turkey, beaver and otter may not be killed before 1905.

Old Man Drowned in the Lock.

Another very sad accident occurred here last Wednesday, the 22nd inst., An old man by the name of Hall, of Bobcaygeon, who has worked a good deal at carpenter work at North Verulam, came to the village on the previous day and was drinking considerably on Tuesday and Wednesday, and as the lockmaster, Mr. J. Walker, went to swing the south entrance gate, something was found to be against it. Pike-poles were used to find out what was the matter, and by their aid the body of the poor unfortunate was brought to the surface of the water. The body was taken to the town hall, where it was examined and no marks were found on it, hence it is thought he had been about the canal and had fallen in accidentally, when no person was near to see him or save him. It is understood the old man has no friends in this part of the country.

Ald. Rodger Disgusted.

Ald. Roger has a proper conception of his duties, and is not afraid to express his opinions when occasion demands it. At the Council meeting on Friday night he referred to the grades set by the Town Engineer for the new granolithic pavements that were being constructed on King street. As chairman of the Board of Works he had never been consulted about the matter. The pavement on King street had the appearance of being laid in the centre of the street, instead of along the side, and on Rubidge street it is built entirely too high. If he had been around when this work was being started he would either have had it stopped, or resigned his seat. He could not justify such work to the citizens. Mr. Hay was unable to satisfactorily explain matters when called upon to do so by the Council. It is time for a change.

DESCRIPTION OF PLANT.

The Capital Power Company, Limited, has been organized to purchase from Messrs. R. & W. Conroy all their property situated at Deschenes, on the Ottawa River, in the Province of Quebec, on Lots 15 and 16, in the First Range of the Township of Hull, south of the right of way of the Pontiac Pacific Railway

Messrs. Conroy also undertake to complete the new power house already nearly built, the power generated in which is rented to the E. B. Eddy Co., Ltd, and to turn the whole over to the Company as a going concern for the sum of Four Hundred Thousand Dollars, of which Two Hundred Thousand is to be paid in cash, balance in fully paid up ordinary shares of the Company on Oct. 1st, 1900. The whole to be to the satisfaction of the Company's expert.

Until the before mentioned date, the vendors have agreed to allow interest at 6 p. c. upon any moneys paid by the Company to them, on account of said purchase, thereby ensuring the earning power of all moneys subscribed and paid from the date of payment.

THE PLANT CONSISTS OF:

Power plant leased to the Hull Electric Company, which consists of two 52-inch Turbines, equal to 332 horse power.
Large power house, the power in which is leased to the E. B. Eddy Co., Ltd.
10 61-inch Turbines, equal to 2,280 horse power.
2 Generators, each 800 K. W., equal to 2,133 horse power.
2 Exciter Generators, 30 K. W.
Grist Mill with power leased to the Lake Deschenes Milling Co.
1 66-inch Turbine and 1 33-inch Turbine, equal to 175 horse power.
Spare power flume not leased, but which can at a small cost be made to develop about 500 horse power.

WATER POWER BONDS AND PREFERENCE STOCK AS AN INVESTMENT.

It is impossible to find conditions which secure for invested capital greater safety than is exhibited by water power propositions when such are situated upon such a reliable stream as the Ottawa River and when there is a constant demand in the immediate neighborhood for the power to be generated. That Ottawa requires the power is evidenced by the fact that all the power generated by the works of the Company has already been leased for terms of years with a certainty that at the end of the terms the prices paid will be increased.

It may be fairly accepted that the transmission of power electrically has passed all experimental stages, as is witnessed by the successful operations of such power plants as the Niagara Falls Power Co., the Hudson River Power and Transmission Co., Chambly Power Company and others.

The Five per cent. Bonds of the Niagara Power Co.—$9,000,000 in amount—are selling at 109 whilst the Bonds of the Hudson River Power Co. and of the Chambly Power Co are selling at substantial premiums.

Bonds, and even Preference Stock, such as are now offered may fairly be considered as equal if not superior to any investment as to safety whilst yielding a considerably better return than Bank Stocks and other investments which carry with them onerous responsibilities.

It is intended to get the Shares and Bonds of this Company listed upon the Montreal Stock Exchange.

PROVISIONAL DIRECTORS.

E. B. Eddy, Esq., President E. B. Eddy Co., Ltd., Hull, Match and Paper Manufactures; Louis Simpson, Vice-President Northrop Loom Co., Ltd., Cotton Manufacturer; J. M. Shanly, Esq., Great Northern Railway Co., Civil Engineer.

The Preference Shareholders will elect two directors.

Applications for Shares and payments may be made at the company's bankers, the Ontario Bank, at Ottawa.

GEN. BOTHA LOST OVER HALF OF HIS GUNNERS

After Conference With His Generals Lord Roberts Begins His Advance on Botha's Forces.

ENEMY IN FORCE AND THE FIRING WAS HOT

The British Commander Says That the Transvaalers are Making a Determined Stand in a Country Very Difficult for the Attacking Forces.

London, Aug. 28.

During General Buller's recent attack, according to the Daily Mail correspondent at Lorenzo Marquez the Boers lost heavily, half the gunners of Botha's command being killed as well as its commando commandant von Dalwig, a protégé of Herr Krupp. A Council of War of the Boers at Machadodorp, says the correspondent decided against the advice of Commandant-General Botha to return to the original plan of returning to Lydenburg. Former President Steyn and Commandant Delarey are reported to have had an interview with Mr. Kruger last Saturday at Waterval-onder.

London, Aug. 27.—The following despatch was sent to-day by Lord Roberts,—

"Belfast, Sunday, August 26.—Engaged the enemy the greater part of the day over a perimeter of nearly 30 miles. Lyttleton's division and two brigades of cavalry, all under Buller, operated southwest of Dalmanutha. French with two brigades of cavalry moved northwest of Belfast, driving the enemy to Lekenvly on the Belfast Lydenburg road. As soon as French reached Lekenvly, Pole-Carew advanced from Belfast in support.

"The enemy in considerable strength opposed Buller's and Pole-Carew's advance. He brought three long-toms and many other guns and pom-poms (quick-firing guns) into action. The firing until dark was hot and persisting. Buller hopes his casualties will not exceed forty. Pole-Carew has not yet reported.

"The Boers are making a determined stand. They have a large number of guns; the country is difficult, and well suited for their tactics, and is less favorable to cavalry than any we have hitherto worked over."

A SPY CAUGHT

Boer Dressed in British Uniform and Travelling in a British Ambulance

Pretoria, Aug. 27.—Kiss, a Johannesburg chemist, was arrested at a point about eight miles towards Moselekatse Nek yesterday. He was travelling in one of the British ambulances. He told the driver that he belonged to Roberts' Horse, that he had been sick and had just been discharged from the hospital, and that he was anxious to rejoin his regiment.

He was dressed in khaki uniform, and thirteen despatches for the Boers were found on his person. He was on his way to see Commandant Grobler when arrested.

The affair is regarded as very serious and the police are concealing the details. The prisoner admitted that he bought the English uniform for 40 shillings, and said he would make a clean breast of the whole affair.

GENERALS CONFERRED

Lord Roberts Discussed His Plans With Buller, French, and Pole Carew

London, Aug. 27.—Lord Roberts arrived Saturday at Belfast, a few miles west of Machadodorp, where he met Sir Redvers Buller, General French and General Pole-Carew. Everything is now in readiness for the advance.

Lord Roberts was at Wonderfontein Friday, twenty-two miles from Machadodorp. General Botha is retiring slowly. The British are advancing in three columns, one under General Pole-Carew from Belfast, another under General French from east of Machadodorp, and the third under General Buller from the south.

PAW IN NEW TROUBLE

GEORGIE'S DAD ASPIRES TO SHINE AS A BOXER.

Tries to show Uncle Wesley That Science Can Master brute strength, but in the attempt a Big Hit Makes Paw Change His Mind

A while ago the dockter told paw he must take more exersize than he could get putting up awnings and painting Porches or enything of that kind, so paw joined a jim nasyum and is lurning to be an nathleet. ham burnam and macks hamilton wanted him to join the golf club, but paw told him he hadn't enny youse for that game becos it dosent help a person to lurn the manly art of self defense. We could see a big change in paw rite after he joined. The first nite he came home with an awful lookin eye, and a few days after that he nearly broke a laig falling off a Horry Zontul bar.

"But never mind," he told maw when she complained about it. "They say these things happen to everybody when they begin. After I get a little ust to it I can stand a blo that would nock an ox down and ast for more, and it's always a good thing to no how to put up you hands, becoz you never no what mite happen"

"Yes," maw says; "I've notust that, specially when you start out to Do ennything."

Besides going to the Jim nasyum paw fixt up a place to exercise in the attick, with a punchen bag and injun clubs and a lot more things to give you mussul.

The other nite uncle wesley and aunt grace and the Bassetts come over to make it plesunt for us, and paw got to telling them about the way he had things rigged up, and Mrs. Bassett sed she would give enything in the world to see a boxing match, becos she had heard so much about it.

So paw invited them up in the attick to see him punch the bag, and after he did that a while he ast uncle wesley if he wouldn't like to put on the gluvs for a frendly round. Uncle wesley is about a hed taller than paw and ways 200 pounds before meals.

He sed he didn't care to make a munkey of himself before the folks but paw says;

"Oh, you needn't be afrade you'll do that! I'll do it for you!"

Paw and Mrs. Bassett were the only ones who seen the joke, and it seemed to tickle them a good deal.

I gess Aunt grace didn't like the way they laft about it, so she told Uncle wesley to go ahed and put them on just to sho that he had a frendly apeerut.

"All rite," Uncle wesley says, "but of corse I don't purtend to be a Boxer."

When they got the gluvs on, paw sed;

"Now you see the differunce between our size... Wes, you're neerly twict as big as I am/ and you have a narm on you that ot to Be powerful But it's not only strength that counts in this world. Look at David and the Giunt. If it wouldn't of been for David's skill what sho would he ever stood? Syunce is the thing that counts in this world every time. Now, I'll just sho you people the differunce between syunce and broot strenth."

They had thare Cotes off, and we all stood back to give them room, and they begun to fiddle for a noopening.

Paw danced around a good deal and put on a lot of extry flurrishes to sho how the thing ot to be done if a person wanted to be artistick, and then he hit Uncle Wesley a smash on the Cheak, and I gess it made Uncle wesley mad or sumthing. For he balled off in his big okward unsyentiffick way and let paw have one on the chin.

We could see the differunce between Syunce and Broot strenth with the naked I rite there.

After while paw got up and Looked around like if he wondered if he had only fell offn the platform or if the hole train had rolled over on top of him, and when he could speak he sed it was a chance blo..

"Yes," Mrs. Bassett told him, "we could all see that plain enuff. If you wouldn't of chanced to be there, it wouldn't of tutched you. But what's the good of syunce if it can't keep the thing you don't expect from always happening?"

Will Return Today.

A message received by Col. Edwards yesterday stated that Messrs. Hall and Johnston, the Peterborough men returning from South Africa, will arrive in town this afternoon at 5.30 o'clock by the Grand Trunk train from Port Hope. An enthusiastic reception will be given them. It was thought they might be in yesterday afternoon, but they were evidently delayed by the demonstration in Quebec and Montreal. A telegram was also received by Mrs. A. J. Hall from her husband this afternoon, stating that he would arrive to-day.

LATEST NEWS FROM U.S.

The Chinese Situation Greatly Relieves the Public Mind.

The Presidental Contest is Now Becoming Interesting.

Special From Our Own Correspondent.

Washington, Aug. 28.—While the Chinese situation has clarified somewhat, there remains many features still requiring elucidation, and until these are cleared up it cannot be told what further part the United States will play in Chinese affairs. It has been announced however, that no further troops will be sent to Taku unless conditions change to a more serious phase than at present and orders have been sent to those already on the way, diverting them to Manila. From every standpoint, political, economic and religious, it seems advisable for the President to avoid a formal declaration of war as long as possible. Whatever he might do, would surely be misrepresented in the heat of the campaign; trade would be even more seriously injured than at present, and a war which made use of the Chinese Christians as allies would inject a religious element into the situation which it has now been admitted has hitherto been lacking; the attacks on the missionaries being chiefly made because they were foreigners and not because of their religion. It is certain, therefore, that the President will go to the limit of conciliation before calling an extra session to declare war. From despatches received, it appears that pratically all the missionaries who took refuge at Pekin are safe.

A TROLLEY LINE.

As a relief to the nightmare that has prevailed in China for so long, comes the proposition of a German Company which wants to utilize the wall of Pekin as a roadway for a trolley line. This is probably only the beginning. With the electrical cart profaining the sacred city, scaring the respectable ghosts of dead Chinamen and mixing up the Fengshui, but a short time will elapse before some other Caucasian will appear on the scene to establish a steam railway on the great wall of China!

There will be elevators in the pagodas, electric-light companies will want to wire all the temples and the click of the typewriter will resound in the imperial palace. The forbidden city itself may be plastered with franchises. With the prospect of a Son of Heaven Heat, Light and Power Company operating in the royal palace, the foreign devil before he gets through may lay his ruthless hands on the very joss houses and convert them into ice cream parlors.

STRANDED IN PARIS.

Letters and telegrams from Europe show that the Christian Endeavorers who attended the great convention in London are having a hard time of it. Several hundred were a few days ago, stranded in Paris, whither they went to visit the Exposition, and were left without transportation home, owing to the destruction of the North German Lloyd steamers. Their hotel and railway coupons on account of the delay caused by this disaster, are out of date, and they are compelled to depend on whatever money they happen to have with them. Moreover, Endeavorers who went over to the recent convention in London are grieved by the contrast between British and American papers shown in the fact that the "London Times" only saw fit to give the space of one inch to the proceedings of the gathering.

CUBAN TEACHERS.

The most interesting event of the past week in local religious and educational circles was the reception by the President of the 1400 Cuban teachers who have been in this country for a short time, learning American methods. They came here through the co-operation of the citizens of Boston and the faculty of Harvard College with the government, and they have been attending a summer school in Cambridge, getting an idea of American educational ways. The visitors arrived on Friday and spent that day and Saturday in sight seeing. In the afternoon they were received by the President, who had returned from Ohio especially for this purpose. Later they were taken to the suburban resorts. The next morning, after visiting the Smithsonian and National Museum, they returned to New York and took a transport for Cuba, stopping at Philadelphia on the way. It is believed that the things they have to tell on their return home will make the task of the United States in Cuba easier.

IMPERIALISM.

While the exact feeling of the country in regard to "imperialism" will not be known until November, there seems to be a very wide spread feeling in regard to the civil service to be inaugurated in the island possessions of the United States. "Congress should see to it that stringent civil service laws are enacted before this administration, or any other administration, is permitted to appoint civil officers for our new colonial possessions," said a prominent visitor to this city recently. "The conduct of the single branch of government that has been placed in civil hands in Cuba shows what the political spoilsman will do when turned loose so far away from home. If something is not done to keep the political 'grafter' out of Porto Rico and the Philippines, our management of the affairs of those islands will become the scandal of the world. Therein lies the only grave danger to the country in a colonial policy. If the legislative branch of the government see to it that the islands are managed as government institutions are managed at home, there will come profit and honor from having embarked on a colonial career. It is to be expected that a thief will break in now and then—they do it at home—but they should be at once caught and punished, and any such wholesale robbery as was accomplished in Cuba should be forever impossible."

FITZ. WILL FIGHT JEFFRIES

But He Says it Must be Before August 31st as He is Going out of the Ring

New York, Aug. 27.—Robert Fitzsimmons, the pugilist, is quoted in the Evening World, as sayin that he is willing to fight Champion Jeffries on any terms, but the bout must take place on or before Aug. 31st.

"I will say here and now," says Fitzsimmons, "that I will fight Jeffries, the winner take all, or I will agree to an equal division of the purse, or I will consent to give him 65 per cent. of the receipts of the house before he enters the ring. I will fight him on any terms he names, if he will only get into the ring with me before September 1.

"I have to quit the ring. My wife objects to my fighting any longer. My children are growing to an age when I can no longer continue in my profession with credit to them. I am going to quit for good, and open a training school in Chicago. You can tell my friends that old Fitz is not going into the saloon business.

"If Jeffries isn't afraid of me the match will be made and fought on the last day of this month. I don't want this fight for the money that is in it. I've enough to satisfy me. All I want now is to retire with the championship."

HE SHOT HIS FRIEND

Wealthy Lumberman of Chicago Murdered in New York.

VERY MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR

Murderer Then Suicided—Seemed to Have Been Waiting for His Chance

New York, Aug. 27.—H. H. Stridiron, a lumber merchant of Baltimore, was shot in the back of the head and through the eye at the Hotel Vendome to-day by H. J. Ford, who registered from Boston. Ford then committed suicide by blowing out his brains. Stridiron registered at the hotel on Friday night as from Baltimore. The clerk of the hotel says Ford had been in the hotel several days, but had not registered until he saw Stridiron register.

The men breakfasted together this morning and then went out. They returned soon after and got the key to Stridiron's room, on the eighth floor. A few minutes later an elevator boy ran to the office and said that there was trouble in the room, and shots were heard immediately afterward. The men were found lying on the floor, both with their coats and vests off. Stridiron was conscious and holding his head. Ford was dead.

Stridiron was taken into the hospital in a critical condition.

The police said after the shooting that Stridiron was a wealthy lumber dealer in Chicago, although he registered from Baltimore. The men were seen together Sunday and were drinking most of the day. In Ford's pocket was found the following letter, crumpled and not addressed—

"The better the day the better the deed. I hope my friends will forgive me for this act. I hope to spend a better life in the next world than I have in this."

The police say Stridiron is a widower and has a daughter.

Stridiron told the policeman who first entered the room after the tragedy that he had been looking out of the window when he had been shot in the back of the head. He turned to see what was the matter and was then shot over the eye. Staggering to a sofa he saw Ford shoot himself in the head, blowing out his brains and falling dead at his feet.

MAJOR O'BRIEN'S COURT

He is President of the Transvaal High Court With Great Power

Johannesburg, Aug. 27.—The High court, of which Major O'Brien is president, has tried 272 cases since last June. Fourteen of these were for murder, eight for criminal assault, and forty-nine for concealment of arms. In the case of a Kaffir, convicted of assaulting a Boer woman, the death sentence was pronounced on Monday. Lord Roberts confirmed the sentence yesterday and the man was shot this morning.

A former zarp (policeman) who was found guilty of breaking his oath of neutrality in collecting parties of burghers and leading them outside the military lines, where they could join Boer commandos, was sentenced yesterday to seven years' imprisonment. Another charge against him was that he furnished the Boer commandos with provisions. The military court is rigidly enforcing the laws and the sentences imposed are very severe. One good effect of this is that the illicit liquor trade has been almost entirely extinguished.

WEATHER NOTES.

Probs.—Light to moderate winds, local thunderstorms, but mostly fair and decidedly warm.

The weather continues very warm from Ontario to the Maritime Provinces, attended by local thunderstorms, whilst in the Territories and Manitoba it has become very cold. Snow has fallen at Calgary, frost has occurred in many parts of Alberta, and local frosts are likely in Manitoba, to-night.

9,000 CHINESE TROOPS NOW MOVING ON PEKIN

Absence of News From the Capital Shows That Communications are Still Cut.

THIRTY-SEVEN MORE MISSIONARIES MURDERED

Agent of the China Inland Mission Says That the Slaughter Took Place in the Tai Yuen Fu—30 Converts Also Slain.

Washington, Aug. 27

The following despatch from General Chaffee has been received at the war department,—Taku, Aug. 27, — Adjutant General, Washington, — Col. Wint on the 19th reports that he marched at 4 a.m. and engaged large force of enemy seven miles from city, dispersed them killing about 100. Allies lost 5 wounded. Will cable names of wounded as soon as ascertained. "Chaffee." Colonel Wint is Lieut.-Col. of the 6th Cavalry but is acting in the absence of Col. Rumner, in Europe. The fight probably occurred near Tien Tsin, as the 6th cavalry was at that place at the last time mentioned.

London, Aug. 28, 3.30 a.m.

The allies, resuming aggressive operations, have taken the districts west of Pekin. This statement, based on Chinese authority, is cabled from Shanghai. From the same place comes the further statement that Li Hung Chang has wired the Empress Dowager at Hsian Fu requesting the arrest of Prince Tuan and the disarmament of the Boxers in order to give him an opening for negotiations with the powers. The illuminations projected at Shanghai in celebration of the relief of Pekin have been abandoned lest they should cause a native outbreak. Evidence has been received here, says the Shanghai correspondent of the Standard, going to show that General Yung Lu was the real author of the anti-foreign outbreak, the Empress Dowager, Prince Tuan and the others all having been persuaded by him to take the extreme attitude while he stood aside and awaited developments. American refugee missionaries in Amoy, according to the Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail, are anxious to return to the interior, but the U. S. Consul has forbidden them to do so and urged them to go to the Philippines or to return to America.

Shanghai advices to the Daily News say that consular opinion there looks on the action in landing of troops at Amoy, despite the protests of the consuls as similar to that of Russia at New Chwang, the whole indicating a tendency to the partition of the Empire.

Russian journals agree, says the Moscow correspondent of the Standard "that to deal with China in the spirit of revenge suggested by Emperor William. They believe that methods less drastic can better accomplish the ends of Russia in Manchuria. The question would be satisfactorily settled to Russian minds by the seizure of the northern provinces.

COMMUNICATIONS CUT.

London, Aug. 27.—Though there is great anxiety regarding the allied army in Pekin, whose communications with the coast have evidently been cut, it is difficult to see any justification for the gloomy view of their condition which has been indulged in by some authorities. The allies are in exactly the same position as Lord Roberts, who shortly after his occupation of Pretoria, was cut off from his base for fully a week by the daring raid of DeWet, and subjected to considerable inconvenience, though there was at no time entertained any fear that he would emerge triumphantly. Some Chinese DeWet has evidently inserted himself between Pekin and Tien Tsin, and cut the railway and telegraph, thus illustrating how history can repeat itself. It is to be expected that the allies will also give a similar illustration by clearing their communications and establishing them more strongly than ever. In the meantime, despite the statements that Chinese troops are advancing on Pekin, there is really nothing to fear seeing that the allies in a wealthy and populous capital such as that of China will be able to supply themselves with all necessary provisions and should have no difficulty in repelling from behind walls any attack which the Chinese can make.

ADVANCING FROM SHANTUNG.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 26.—Another telegraphic despatch, dated Taku, Aug. 26, states that as the Chinese troops and Boxers, who had gathered at Nanyuen, were about to attack the foreign forces at Pekin, Japanese and Russian cavalry were expected to encounter them on the 20th. The despatch further states that Chinese infantry, some 9,000 strong, with fifteen guns, are advancing northward from Shantung to make a rear attack on the allies."

FORMING A CONVOY

Non-Combatants of the Allies to be Taken Out of Pekin

Rome, Aug. 27.—A despatch received here from Taku under date of Sunday, August 26, confirms previous reports that a convoy was being formed at Pekin to conduct under a strong escort the allies wounded and women and children to Tien Tsin.

EMPRESS SMALL ESCORT

Left Pekin With a Bodyguard of Only 500 Horsemen

Washington, Aug. 26.—The Japanese Minister has received from the Japanese Foreign Office at Tokio the following—"An official telegram, dated Pekin, Aug. 18, was received at Tokio from General Yamaguchi, commander of the Japanese forces, to the following effect—"The capital is now entirely cleared of the enemy. A cavalry regiment, which had been sent to Wanshushan (where the Empress Dowager's palace is located), reports that the Imperial family, who had left Pekin Aug. 14, started after a short rest at Wanshushan for the west and were under the escort of General Ma and his troops, consisting of only about 500 horsemen and 20 carts.

VICEROY BEHEADS PLOTTERS

Planning to Burn Hankow—Armed With Muzzle-Loading Guns

London, Monday, Aug. 27.—It is reported in Shanghai that Viceroy Chang-Chi-Tung has executed thirty reformers who were plotting to burn the city of Hankow. They each had an old muzzle-loading gun and three hundred policemen's whistles. A few thousand placards which they had prepared were seized.

CONVERTS TORTURED

Native Christians Beheaded When Ransom is Not Forthcoming

Hong Kong, Aug. 26.—Outrages in the southern provinces continue. The Christian station at Yunktak was destroyed on Aug. 21, and the native Christians were made prisoners and tortured. The mob demanded a ransom of 244 taels for each prisoner. Several English-speaking natives who were prisoners were beheaded because the ransom was not forthcoming.

The Black Flags are marching on Pekin and are devastating the districts on their way.

HORDES OF REFUGEES

Villagers Ill-Treated by Boxers are Flocking to Pekin

London, Aug. 27.—Gen. Dorward, in his report of the engagement outside Tien Tsin August 19, when the Americans, British and Japanese signally defeated a large force of Boxers, killing over 300, says in a despatch dated August 15—"The lines of communication near Tien Tsin are now free from danger. The enemy had been treating the villagers badly. Several decapitated bodies were found near their camp. The villagers are now flocking to Tien Tsin at the rate of about one thousand a day. As there is not more than a month's food supply there is every prospect of a famine shortly."

This declaration that a famine is imminent in consequence of the inadequacy of provisions for the hordes of refugees at Tien Tsin adds a new element of peril to the situation.

VICEROY WILL FIGHT

Governor of Shantung will Resist any Attempt to Exert Territory

London, Aug. 25.—A special despatch received here from Shanghai, dated August 26, says—"The Viceroy of Shantung declares that he will resist any attempt to extort terriortty or to interfere with the armies of the various Viceroys. It is stated here that it was Prince Tum and not Prince Tuan who was captured by the Japanese."

HOW A CONSPIRATOR DIED.

Lieut. Cordua Walked fearlessly to His Death

London, August 25.—A special from Pretoria, dated August 24, gives details of the execution on Friday of the German officer, Lieut. Cordua, of the Transvaal Artillery, convicted by court-martial of breaking his parole and plotting to abduct Lord Roberts and kill British officers.

Cordua walked fearlessly to the garden behind the jail. At his own request he was not bound, and sat in the chair with folded arms. He told Capt. Barchard, commanding the firing party, that he was ready, and ten bullets struck him. The body was buried near the spot where the lieutenant fell.

JOHN BULL'S JOKE.

It is very doubtful if Great Britain had any motive beyond a desire to give protection where it was believed protection was needed, when she sent troops to Shanghai. Immediately a dark cloud of suspicion swept athwart Europe. What was England doing? Russia sent troops into Manchuria, and is practically carrying on a little war of her own there. This seemed to be regarded as all right and proper. But when Britain ventured to send troops to Shanghai, where she has many residents and predominating interests—which it were better to guard before they were attacked than relieve after they were invested and partially destroyed—her action at once caused a foreign shock of jealous anxiety. Such a vigorous protest was made by the Chinese viceroys and such mutterings of disapproval sent from foreign consuls to their governments, that the British seemed to be palsied. Admiral Seymour communicated by cable with his Government and then announced that Great Britain had decided to withdraw. The Admiral abashedly sailed away. Then the foreign residents and consuls saw visions of massacre rising before them; they began hurriedly to think that the dark-skinned Ghurkas and other troops of Perfidious Albion would be nice to have there, after all. This feeling developed to a very shriek of dismay, and the consuls dashed in a request to their governments to induce the British to come back and land. The British Foreign Office was then informed by France, Germany and Austria that they would be pleased to have British troops land at Shanghai. Admiral Seymour was sent after, went back and the troops were landed. It is now believed the whole thing was more or less of a quiet joke the British Foreign Office was playing. It is said that troops were sent to be landed at Shanghai, and were going to be landed there to protect British interests, no matter what any other Power thought. The ruse, if ruse it was, of pretending to be ready to abandon the place to its fate, succeeded admirably. The British authorities are having a quiet chuckle and the European residents of Shanghai are feeling better.

Renewed the Grudge.

Even an old sore will give its owner a twinge if it is roughly handled, says the Youth's Companion. Two elderly men met at a reception one evening, and after they had been introduced to each other, one of them said:

"I beg pardon, Mr. Yarty, but are you related to the family of that name who lived in Plattston about fifty years ago?"

"I am a member of the identical family," replied the other. "I resided there myself fifty years ago."

"Then you are Columbus Yarty?"

"Yes."

"I am delighted to meet you again. Do you remember Wesley Weston, with whom you played when a little boy?"

"Surely! Are you he?"

"I am."

They shook hands again, and after a little pause Mr. Weston said:

"You remember we had a quarrel about something or other the last time we met, and you pushed me over into a tan-vat and ruined a suit of clothes for me?"

"Yes, I remember it very well. Ha! ha!"

"Ha! ha! We can afford to laugh at it now, but it was a serious matter to me then. I have thought of it many times since and made up my mind long ago that if we ever met again I would tell you freely and fully forgive you for the mean little trick."

"But as I remember it, you were entirely to blame in the matter."

"Not at all. I hadn't done anything to you. However, as I said before, I don't hold any spite over it now. I forgive you——"

"But I don't want your forgiveness, sir! I won't have it! I told you——"

"Sir!"

"Sir! Good evening, sir!"

"Good evening!"

And the grudge of fifty years ago resumed business, so to speak, at the old stand.

A Happy Mother

Frolicking with her baby makes one of the prettiest spectacles ever seen in the home. But nothing is sadder to see than the unhappy mother, weak and nervous, striving in vain to hush the cries of her weak and nervous babe. There can be no happiness for either mother or child without health. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription "has done wonders" for many a woman, by restoring her health and opening for her the way to happy motherhood. This really wonderful medicine is not a cure-all. It is a preparation specially designed to cure diseases peculiar to women. It dries debilitating drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, cures female weakness, and removes the causes which generally make women nervous and sleepless. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it contains no opium, cocaine or other narcotic.

Mrs. James W. Blacker, of 629 Catharine Street, Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "Your medicines have done wonders for me. For years my health was very poor; I had four miscarriages, but since taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I have much better health, and now I have a fine healthy baby."

Use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets with "Favorite Prescription" if the bowels are inactive or irregular.

FAIR FANTINEKILL.

[B. E. Hampton.]

Fair Fantinekill, what boyhood scenes
Return again in manhood's dreams?
Each pathway through the wooded dell
Some tale of youthful pleasures tell.
Here Nature's lavish hand is seen
In richest hues—in greenest green,
And ev'ry little rippling rill
Holdeth a power to charm and thrill
The after years we feed upon
When youth and all but hope is gone.
Sweet memory floods my heart at will Repeating o'er Fair Fantinekill.

Thou nestling valley gem, walled in
By mountains tall—by mountains grim,
Each frowning, hoary head is dearth
In praises fitting to thy worth.
Fantinekill, fairy queen of brooks,
Thy small cascades were ideal nooks
Before the vandal woodman tore
The leafy giants from your shore.
Grim solace now, no more attacks
Can come from desecrating axe—
Dispelled yet murm'ring sweetly still
And still I love thee, Fantinekill.

The hazy time of life's ne'er dim
If but we turn our eyes within,
For there we findeth no decay
Among the mem'ries laid away.
Beneath the dust and grime of years
More oft the sun creeps out than tears,
More oft a deed of excellence
Stands side by side with recompense,
And spectral shadows fade and flee
When youth returns in memory—
Youth and hope and every thrill
That clustered 'round thee, Fantinekill.

The brooklet ages may defy
With voice attuned to song and sigh;
It's life must be as lives of men,
The past will ne'er return again.
Yet man, when in the twilight age
Turns dreamy eyes for inward gaze,
And feasting, finds that shadows lie
Too deep for retrospective eye.
'Tis sunkissed hours that mem'ry brings—
Like rose bereft of thorns and stings—
Thrice welcome ere to heart whose thrill
Responsive is to Fantinekill.

ROOM FOR TWO.

Mrs. Getty's coupe was at the curb in front of a florist's establishment on Fifth avenue, near Forty-third street. Her coachman held the coupe door open, for at the moment the lady was issuing from the shop. Across the way was an empty handsom cab waiting for patrons. There was rather more than the ordinary bustle of traffic in the famous thoroughfare. Automobiles rolled silently and swiftly, stages lumbered slowly and noisily, and all manner of private vehicles were on parade, making it a matter of no small difficulty for pedestrians to cross from one sidewalk to the other. The clock on the tower of the Grand Central station near by told all who cared to note that it was five minutes past 2.

Just as Mrs. Getty was stooping to enter her coupe a man came hurriedly up Forty-third street from the direction of the Grand Central, took in the scene on the avenue with a quick glance, jumped into the waiting hansom and pushed open the little trap in the top. There was a bill in his hand. The driver promptly possessed himself of the bill while he bent his head to hear his customer's orders.

"Go to No. 347 West Forty-fourth street as fast as you can," said the man; "there'll be somebody there to tell you where next. Don't let anything whatever delay you."

"All right, sir," answered the cabby, dropping the trap and jerking the reins.

The horse started at once, and at the same moment the passenger got out. Cabby saw him go, and wondered, but with the bill still crumpled in his hand, and with the passenger's struct injunction to let nothing delay him ringing in his ears, he drove on, and the jam of vehicles was so great that he could not even turn his head to see what became of the passenger.

"It's a good job, anyway," thought cabby, thinking of the bill, "and if the fellow at No. 347 is as generous as this one, I'll get that new coat I've needed so long."

The man who had left the cab he shortly after engaging it risked his neck by running in front of a stage, dodged an auto and darted across the avenue, making as straight as circumstances would permit for Mrs. Getty's coupe. She had nestled into a comfortable position and the coachman was climbing to his box when the man opened the coupe door, entered and pulled the door to quickly, but noiselessly.

"Say nothing, madam," he said sharply, "or I shall be compelled to resort to violence to quiet you."

Mrs. Getty shrank, terrified, against the side of the coupe, her cheeks blanched, her lips parted and her eyes distended. The man sank upon the seat beside her and breathed heavily. Then the coachman, all unmindful of what had taken place, spoke to his horse and the vehicle started.

The episode had attracted no attention from the sidewalks, for the pedestrians, intent on their own affairs could not see what went on in the roadway. It may be that a number of persons in passing conveyances saw a part of it, but they comprehended not and cared not. So when, a few seconds later, a number of men came rushing excitedly up from the Grand Central station, such information as they could gain by hurried inquiry sent them speeding, some on foot, some in cabs, down West Forty-fourth street.

So soon as the coupe was in motion, the man turned to Mrs. Getty with a deprecatory smile, in which there was a gleam of satisfaction, and said:

"I am truly sorry to intrude on you in this unmannerly way, madam, but there's room for two here, and you'll have to endure my company for a bit."

"I can easily attract the attention of my coachman," said Mrs. Getty, resolutely, "and have him put you out and into the hands of the police."

"As she finished speaking she raised a hand to rap on the window.

"Don't madam," exclaimed the man, appealingly, and he help up a hand too, not in threat, but as a gesture of entreaty.

At sight of it Mrs. Getty sank again into her corner and stared at him, once again, with speechless horror. Around the wrist he held up was a steel band, and from it depended a fragment of chain.

"I told you I should have to shock you again," he said quietly, "but you know the worst now. Yes, I am a convict. Ten minutes ago I was on my way to Sing Sing. You may not know that convicts are always taken up on the train that leaves the Grand Central at five minutes past two. The train has gone and I am here. With your assistance I shall be a free man within an hour."

"No! No!" she protested, faintly, "you shall not make me a party to your crime." And again she made as if she would rap on the glass.

"One moment, madam," he interposed, a little sternly, and as he displayed once more that steel band and the broken chain, her resolution gave way to helpless terror. "I have committed no crime," he continued, impressively. "My life has been venturesome, colored with many an episode that I regret, but before heaven I am innocent of the charge upon which I have been convicted and sentenced. I can prove my innocence if I can be free but a few days. To go to prison now would mean the destruction of my only hope of clearing my name, unless that might happen after I had rotted for years in a cell. You are listening, madam, and I will be brief, for time is pressing. Convict though I am in the eyes of the law, I have faithful friends who know my innocence. They have helped me thus far on my escape. One of them managed to supply me with a pair of super-hardened steel pincers. Another thrust money into my hand during the moment of confusion at the railroad station. I was manacled in the usual way to a deputy sheriff. When we were about to board the train I nipped the chain that bound me to my guard and broke away. My friends made a diversion that gave me a slight start, and here I am. Now you know everything except my plans for establishing my innocence. Those I have not time to tell you, and you might not understand them. Liberty I must have. You will not give me up. Pity me, madam, and save me from the unmerited degradation of a felon's life."

"What do you expect me to do?" she asked.

"Have your man drive to the Twenty-third street ferry," he replied coolly, "and cross the river. I shall then be not only in the Pennsylvania railroad station but in another State, and those facts together will give me all the time I need."

"I cannot do it," she said. "It is not right for me to interfere with the law. In a moment my man will stop. You may then go out, and I will not ask him to summon an officer. That is all I can do, and it is more than I ought."

Even then the coupe was driven to the curb preparatory to stopping.

"Madam," said the convict, hopelessly, "it shall be as you say, and within ten minutes from the time you leave me I shall again be a prisoner."

If he had used threats or shown desperation, the outcome might have been different. To this day Mrs. Getty is puzzled to explain her course to her own complete satisfaction. When the coachman opened the coupe door he started a little at sight of a stranger but, like a well-bred servant, said nothing.

"Wilson," said Mrs. Getty, with astonishing calmness, "my friend is in a hurry to catch a train at the Pennsylvania station. Go over by the Twenty-third street ferry, as quickly as possible."

Wilson bowed and closed the door.

"You are an angel!" whispered the convict.

He said nothing more for a time, but busied himself in winding a handkerchief around his manacled wrist.

"Unfortunately," he remarked at length, "I lost my pincers in the scuffle and so can't get rid of this just at present. May I ask one more favor of you? Fasten this bandage with a pin, please, and it will then appear that I have injured my wrist and the sign of my disgrace will not be visible."

He held his hand toward her, and Mrs. Getty, wondering if she were under a hypnotic spell, complied with his request. He thanked her and remained silent until the coupe was driven from the ferryboat to the platform of the railroad station on the New Jersey side of the river.

"Thank you once again," he said then, as he alighted. "If I might know who has assisted——"

"No," she interrupted; "I never want to know more than this."

"You are probably quite right," he responded. "Good-bye," and lifting his hat he went rapidly toward the ticket office.

In the next day's papers Mrs. Getty read long accounts of the sensational escape of a noted forger on his way to Sing Sing prison. There was a lot of detail about the pursuit of an empty hansom cab, but not a word about the coupe in which there proved to be ample room for two.

A Feeling of Resentment.

"Did you do anything to celebrate Shakespeare's birthday this week?"

"I should say not," answered the man with the big diamond and the fierce mustache. "A man who wrote those box office frosts like 'Macbeth' and 'King Lear' ought to be glad he's livin' without askin' for any celebrations."—Washington Star.

"Hunger is the Best Sauce."

Yet some people are never hungry. Whatever they eat has to be "forced down." There is, of course, something wrong with these people. By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla a short time they are given an appetite and then they enjoy eating and food nourishes them. If you find your appetite failing, just try a bottle of Hood's. It is a true stomach tonic and every dose does good.

To Erect a Monument

The Managing Committee of the local Woodmen of the World, have placed a contract with Mr. Moore, of town, for a suitable monument to be erected in remembrance over the grave of their late brother, Henry B. Sherwood. The same will be unveiled on Tuesday, September 4th, with appropriate ceremonies, when several of the leading men of the order will be here for the occasion. The deceased member died last spring, after being a member of this order for a short time only.

This claim occupies an imposing position on a mountain just north of the city; and last, but by no means least, the Sunshine, located two miles east of Salida, at Cleora Station, on the main trunk line of the great Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, and also on the Arkansas river, which in length is one of America's greatest streams.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 28, 1900

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

County Maps.

There are still a few copies of the new maps of the County of Peterborough left. Order one before it is too late. Price, Mounted on roller, $2; paper 50c. Times Bookstore.

The Times' Megaphone.

The very thing for Stony Lake cottagers and campers. It will carry the voice half a mile to a mile and a half. Made in two sizes. Price $1.25 and $1.60. Every cottager should have one.

Machinery Big Shipment.

On Saturday night the Wm. Hamilton Company shipped four tons of machinery to The George Gordon Lumber Company, Spanish River, by Dominion Express.

Gilmour's Logs

The Gilmour Company's drive of 80,000 logs is now at Young's Point. This bunch of logs will be in the Little Lake in a few days' time. The timber will be manufactured into lumber, ties, &c., at Trenton.

Strayed.

Strayed into the premises of R. Nevins North Monaghan, two miles west of Peterborough, about June 1st, a red heifer about one year old. Owner may have same by proving property and paying expenses.

Excursion To-Day.

The City of Peterborough will bring up an excursion from Hastings to-day. The excursion is under the auspices of its English Church and no doubt will be largely patronized. The boat will arrive about 1.30, and leave 3.30.

Flew Into The House.

A partridge flew into Mr. Tivey's house, in Ashburnham, a few days ago, breaking a pane of glass. This is the second partridge that has done this. Mr. Tivey is a noted sportsman, and a strong advocate of game protection, which probably accounts for it.

The Times at Summer Resorts.

The Morning Times is sent to summer resorts and residences, addressed to individuals at thirty cents a month. Persons visiting the lakes and other places may have the Times addressed to them for as short a period as one week.

A Large Drive

The largest drive of the season is now in the Otonabee River, consisting of 45,000 pieces. The last of the timber passed out of the Little Lake yesterday, and will be in Rice Lake about Monday next. The steamer City of Peterborough will tow it to Hastings, coming Tuesday. The drive belongs to the Rathbun Company.

Paving Contracts.

Cobourg, Post;—At the last meeting of the council, a contract was let for paving of Division st., south, Division st., north, Spring st., and King st., west, to P. L. Marden & Co., of London. The price is 10 7-8 and 11 5-8c per square foot. This price, we understand, covers everything, and if so is not out of the way. The contractor has been requested to begin work not later than the 1st of September.

"Ads" as Invitations.

When a man keeps a store, a shop or an office there is presumptive evidence that he wants custom; but when, in addition, he advertises in the public newspapers that he is ready to do business he issues a direct and particular invitation to the people to come to him and trade. Everybody has had experience with merchants and professional men who seemed to be reluctant to attend to patrons, if not resentful of their presence. Therefore we all feel more free to go to the stores and offices of those who invite us, day after day, through the newspaper advertisements with assurances of welcome and attention. Every body reads the Times.

Remember this—No other medicine has such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla. When you want a good medicine, get Hood's.

—Summer business at the Craig House, Lakefield, has grown to such proportions this season that Mr. Craig contemplates erecting several summer cottages in his grove facing the lake to be ready in time for next season.

—The pictures of the Grand Trunk system have been awarded the gold medal by the international jury at the Paris exposition. The collection, which is much admired by the visitors, includes seventy five views of different places on the line, including several good ones of Kawartha lakes.

Mr. H. E. Walsh the popular and energetic agent of the Newcomb piano, who has been a guest at the Snowden House for a fortnight, left by the midnight train for the east. He feels quite elated with the success of his piano at the Paris Exposition, where it took the gold medal over all competitors. His affable manner won for him many friends during his short stay here, some of whom escorted him to the train.

A Heroic Act

At Chemong Park on Friday afternoon, Mr. John Firth, of Toronto, traveller for the W. B. Hamilton Shoe Co., did a brave deed.

A young woman from Toronto who was with Mr. Firth's party as nurse, was in bathing and got beyond her depth, and was in immediate danger of drowning, having gone down for the third time, when Mr. Firth jumped in, dressed in his full clothes, and succeeded in rescuing her with some difficulty and at the risk of his own life. It is advisable that some kind of a line should be stretched at the bathing place at Chemong to show the limit of safety for those who are not swimmers. A life line would avert the danger of another such accident as that of Friday.

AT THE LAKES

Interesting Batch of News from the Back Lakes.

Hon David Askin, a United States Senator, passed through Peterborough yesterday for Stony Lake.

Mr. Garnet Bell, of the Young street branch of the Ontario Bank, Toronto, is spending his holidays at Stony lake, Kawartha.

Among those staying at Mr. Piper's cottage, Stony Lake, are,—Mrs. E. S. Piper, Toronto; Dr. Piper, London, and Mrs. F. Piper, Berlin.

The following compose a camping party at La Rochelle, Mr. Leplante's island, Lovesick,—Mrs. J. C. Sullivan, Misses Sullivan, Miss McNulty, Miss Casey, Ottawa; Miss Leplante, and Messrs. Fred Sullivan, O. Leplante, Fred O'Connor, and Rev. Father J. O'Sullivan.

Mrs. J. J. McBain gave a most charming dance at the Stony Lake pavillion, Juniper Island, for her daughter, Miss Ada, and her guest Miss Elsie Price, of Belleville. Needless to say, the evening proved the most enjoyable at the lake this season. The pavillion was gaily lighted and profusely decorated for the occasion. The music was furnished by Miss Hurley, and the floor was waxed to a nicety.

Miss Josie Sheppard, of Toronto, daughter of Mr. O. B. Sheppard, is the guest of Mrs. J. B. McWilliams at Tecumseh Lodge, Stoney Lake, one of the delightful places on the Kawartha. The steamers Sunbeam and Majestic appear to be doing the cream of the trade.

Broke Her Arm

Eleanor Latimer, the little daughter of Mr. W. J. Latimer, Gilmour st. had the misfortune to fall from a fence in the rear of her father's residence on Saturday night, and broke her arm. Medical aid was at once summoned and the fracture set, and the patient is now doing as well as might be expected.

The Canadian Horses

Montreal Witness. — Sergt. Willoughby, of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, Peterborough, third troop, A squadron, first battalion, Canadian Mounted Rifles, left his corps at Kroonstad, suffering from enteric fever. Sergeant Willoughby explained that the Canadian horses taken by the Mounted Rifles stood the work in South Africa very well, much better than the horses of any other class. For the required remounts they were given Argentine ponies, and they did not stand the fatigue nearly as well. He had one, and, though riding him carefully, killed him in two days.

The Witness of Saturday publishes a page of photographs of Canadian volunteers home from South Africa. Among them are Privates A. J. Hall and R. G. Johnston, of Peterborough.

About a Horse

"Is there any animal beside a horse," said a horseman to The Times yesterday, "that looks its best when it is scared to death? Take a man when he is scared. He's a sorry sight, and knows it. There's nothing in the world more obnoxious to himself and others than a scared man. A dog isn't much better. His spirited, gay air are all gone. He cowers and grovels, with his tail between his legs, and altogether he's a disgusting object. But a horse, when scared, is beautiful. His head is thrown back, his eyes roll grandly, his whole attitude is full of life and strength. The oldest, dullest cart horse, if youg ive him a good scare, becomes temporarily fine and noble. Can you explain this? Well, I can. The horse isn't really frightened at all. He is simply aroused and determined to look out for himself. In his noble pose, the pose we call a scared one, he might, to be sure run off; but he might also, if he had the chance, kick or bite a man to death. Fear, cowardice, is never beautiful, and a scared horse, if you could find one, would be as loathsome as a scared man. But horses are brave as a rule. They may become frantic, they may lose their heads, but these noble and good animals do not become afraid.

THE CAPITAL POWER COMPANY.

Rare Opportunity for Capitalists, to Secure Safe Investments.

Elsewhere will be found an announcement of the Capital Power Company, Ltd., of Ottawa, which is deserving of the attentions of investors.

The company is offering for sale $100,000 6 per cent 10 years first mortgage bonds and $100,000 6 per cent accumulative preference shares. That these are "gilt edge" securities is plainly evident from the statement of revenue in sight and expenses.

The company begin operations under the most favorably auspices, we believe it would be impossible to find conditions which secure for capital greater safety.

WAR BULLETINS.

Latest Despatches from Local and Foreign Battle Fields.

The Times is in receipt of the following war bulletins;

Gen. Snow Dan is preparing for a fall campaign at Gold Lake. The stores are now being purchased, and will consist of several rounds of ammunition per man, guns and many corkscrews.

Town Engineer Hay has a large force of men at work throwing up entrenchments on King street. He is also constructing a canal on Murray st.

Gen. Gar Vin will not go to China just yet. His new uniform is not yet from the tailor's.

A despatch says there is no connection whatever between the Golf Club and the Boxers.

James Ken Dry is still talking.

The Liberals are fortifying the Trent canal.

Col. Ed Wards is determined to capture the next town law suit, if he loses his entire force in doing so.

It is not true that Kris Gra Ham has joined the boxers.

A LIBERAL CONVENTION.

West Peterborough Liberals Will Meet September 12th

The long looked for convention to nominate a candidate to contest west Peterborough in the interests of the liberal party, at the approaching dominion elections will take place on or about September 12th.

There are a numbr of local names on the list, as probable candidates, but an effort will doubtless be made to endure Sir Richard Cartwright or Hon. Mr. Blair to take the riding. Failing in this it is said that Hon. Geo. A. Cox will be tendered the nomination, as many persons believe that he would easily carry the riding. Mr. Cox has large interests in Peterboro, and popular with the people, Conservative as well as Liberal.

Amongst the purely local men, none, perhaps, would be more acceptable to th epeople than Richard Hall, who has twice contested the riding under circumstances that made it next to impossible for him to win. Honorable, straight forward and strictly conscientious, Mr. Hall is justly regarded as one of Peterboro's most esteemed citizens, and his candidature, at the present time would mean strength to the Liberal party.

Amongst the other names mentioned are Messrs. J. H. McClellan, a man who is developing strength fast. E. B. Stone. Geo. M. Roger, Gus Gough, Wm. Ferguson, Adam Hall, R. F. McWilliams, and last, but by no means least, Mr. J. B. McWilliams. The latter may be classed as a "born politician," and a gentleman who usually makes a success of every thing he undertakes.

DESCRIPTION OF PLANT.

The Capital Power Company, Limited, has been organized to purchase from Messrs. R. & W. Conroy all thei property situated at Deschenes, on the Ottawa River, in the Province of Quebec, on Lots 15 and 16, in the First Range of the Township of Hull, south of the right of way of the Pontiac Pacific Railway

Messrs. Conroy also undertake to complete the new power house already nearly built, the power generated in which is rented to the E. B. Eddy Co., Ltd, and to turn the whole over to the Company as a going concern for the sum of Four Hundred Thousand Dollars, of which Two Hundred Thousand is to be paid in cash, balance in fully paid up ordinary shares of the Company on Oct. 1st, 1900. The whole to be to the satisfaction of the Company's expert.

Until the before mentioned date, the vendors have agreed to allow interest at 6 p. c. upon any moneys paid by the Company to them, on account of said purchase, thereby ensuring the earning power of all moneys subscribed and paid from the date of payment.

THE PLANT CONSISTS OF:

Power plant leased to the Hull Electric Company, which consists of two 52-inch Turbines, equal to 332 horse power.
Large power house, the power in which is leased to the E. B. Eddy Co., Ltd.
10 61-inch Turbines, equal to 2,280 horse power.
2 Generators, each 800 K. W., equal to 2,133 horse power.
2 Exciter Generators, 30 K. W.
Grist Mill with power leased to the Lake Deschenes Milling Co.
1 66-inch Turbine and 1 33-inch Turbine, equal to 175 horse power.
Spare power flume not leased, but which can at a small cost be made to develop about 500 horse power.

WATER POWER BONDS AND PREFERENCE STOCK AS AN INVESTMENT.

It is impossible to find conditions which secure for invested capital greater safety than is exhibited by water power propositions when such are situated upon such a reliable stream as the Ottawa River and when there is a constant demand in the immediate neighborhood for the power to be generated. That Ottawa requires the power is evidenced by the fact that all the power generated by the works of the Company has already been leased for terms of years with a certainty that at the end of the terms the prices paid will be increased.

It may be fairly accepted that the transmission of power electrically has passed all experimenta stages, as is witnessed by the successful operations of such power plants as the Niagara Falls Power Co., the Hudson River Power and Transmission Co., Chambly Power Company and others.

The Five per cent. Bonds of the Niagara Power Co.—$9,000,000 in amount—are selling at 109 whilst the Bonds of the Hudson River Power Co. and of the Chambly Power Co are selling at substantial premiums.

Bonds, and even Preference Stock, such as are now offered may fairly be considered as equal if not superior to any investment as to safety whilst yielding a considerably better return than Bank Stocks and other investments which carry with them onerous responsibilities.

It is intended to get the Shares and Bonds of this Company listed upon the Montreal Stock Exchange.

PROVISIONAL DIRECTORS.

E. B. Eddy, Esq., President E. B. Eddy Co, Ltd., Hull, Match and Paper Manufactures; Louis Simpson, Vice-President Northrop Loom Co., Ltd., Cotton Manufacturer; J. M. Shanly, Esq., Great Northern Railway Co., Civil Engineer.

The Preference Shareholders will elect two directors.

Applications for Shares and payments may be made at the company's bankers, the Ontario Bank, at Ottawa.

Lord Robetts Reports Satisfactory Advance of His Forces Upon Lydenberg.

GALLANT WORK OF INNISKILLINGS AND RIFLES.

They Charge Over a Bare, Open Space and Carry a Position—Buller Has Reached Bergendale—French Seizes Swartzkopies.

London, Aug. 28.—Lord Roberts reports, under date of Belfast, August 27th, as follows,—

"Our movements are slow on account of the extent and nature of hte country. To-day we made a satisfactory advance and met with decided success. The work fell entirely to Buller's troops, and resulted in the capture of Bergendal, a very strong position two miles northwest of Dalmanutha. I met Buller at Bergendal shortly after it was reached by our troops.

"I am glad to find the occupation cost less than was feared on account of the approach being across an open glacis, for two or three thousand yards, and the determined stand of the enemy. The Inniskillings and Second Rifle Brigade formed the attacking party. The latter suffered most. I hope the casualties do not exceed fifty or sixty. One officer was killed and two were wounded. A good many Boers were killed and a pompom was captured.

"French advanced on the left to Swarts kopjes, on the Leydenburg road, and prepared the way for the movement of Pole-Carew's division tomorrow.

"Baden-Powell reports that he occupied Nylstroom without opposition."

"As the country where he and Paget are operating in dense bush and veldt it is not desirable at the present to proceed further north and their troops are returning to Pretoria."

HEAVY BOER LOSSES.

Pretoria, Aug. 27.—Grobler's commando has been pursued north of the Farm Batha, seventy miles from Pretoria. His commando has been greatly reduced in number.

During last week's fighting north and west of Pretoria nearly a hundred Boers were killed.

CANADIAN CASUALTIES.

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—Col. Otter cables, Cape Town, Aug. 26. — Battalion Pretoria 24th; delayed line of communication Eerstesfabricken.

Sir Alfred Milner cables as follows, Cape Town, August 26.—Dangerously ill,—E Battalion, Royal Canadian Artillery, 445, Ross, De Aar; 409, Bradley, Kimberley; 339, Sanderbock, Canadian Artillery, Bloemfontein; 7,556, Turner, Kroonstad; 7,400, Wilson, Cape Town Canadian Regiment of Infantry; 23, Jordan Cape Town, Canadian Mounted Infantry. Cape Town, Aug. 25.—7,865, Dunall, Canadian Regiment of Infantry, died of enteric fever, Norval's Pont, 27th June; report only received by me to-day.

BRITISH LOSSES SMALL.

London, Aug. 28.—Lord Roberts cables,—

"Our casualties Sunday were wonderfully few, considering the heavy firing and the number of hours we were engaged. Buller estimates his as 2 killed and 24 wounded. His troops had to bivouac where they stopped after darkness fell, and accurate returns are as yet impossible. The casualties of the force operating north of Belfast were three killed, 34 wounded."

YOUNG MAN OF TWENTY

Lieut. Cordua Who Was Shot Was Young and Good Looking

Evidence in the Conspiracy Case at Pretoria—The Leader had Botha's Support

The London Daily Mail has the following from Mr. Douglas Story, its correspondent at Pretoria.

Much interest was evinced in the general court-martial, which was opened to-day in connection with the plot to kidnap Lord Roberts. Crowds stood about the Kerk square and in the principal streets. The majority of the Afrikanders and surrendered Boers showed a marked desire to affirm their disapproval of the plot.

The court-martial was presided over by General Marshall, the military Governor of Pretoria. Col. Godfrey acted as judge advocate, and Captain Burnham of the Transvaal constabulary, as prosecutor.

Other members of the court were Major Nichols, Major Buckall and Captain Burchard.

Lieut. Hans Cordua, late of the Staats Artillerie, was charged with having broken his parole, and also with having plotted to kidnap the Commander-in-Chief, Lord Roberts.

HE WAS A MERE BOY.

The accused was a young man of not more than twenty, with a keen, intelligent face, dark complexion, smooth, clean-shaven cheeks and hair worn very short. He is slightly built, and has a remarkably small head. Altogether he is quite unlike the conventional conspirator.

Cordua at first pleaded guilty, but under the advice of his advocate the plea was withdrawn and the case went to trial.

The prisoner, who was a handsome-looking youth, remained perfectly cool and collected throughout the proceedings, and stood to attention wiht a fair show of military bearing.

The first witness was a burgher named Du Toit, recently lieutenant in command of the Pretoria police. He is a fine-looking, soldierly man, who speaks English perfectly, and delivers his evidence clearly and straightforwardly.

The witness stated that the prisoner had approached him with a scheme for organizing a rising in Pretoria. The idea was to pounce upon the British officers by night, capture or kill as many as possible, and in the confusion to carry off Lord Roberts.

BOTHA AT THE BACK OF IT.

Prisoner assured witness his plan would require only 250 men to guarantee success. He had been in communication with Commandant-General Botha as to the details of the scheme, and had received from him a letter, which he did not show witness.

Witness declined to associate himself with the conspiracy, and asked if many others were working with Cordua.

Prisoner, in reply, said he had sounded several prominent Boers on the matter, but mentioned no names of fellow-conspirators.

Cordua eventually left with witness a pocket-book containing his plans, and, in cipher, the names of the officers and the houses in which they should be found. The route of escape was also marked.

The plot in detail arranged for the firing of a house to distract attention of the police. In the confusion expected to follow the officers were to be seized and bound.

Lord Roberts was to be conveyed in a carriage to a point at which Gen. Botha would meet the conspirators with 200 extra horses.

Lieut. Du Toit carried the pocket-book to the Pretoria police, whom he afterwards kept fully informed of the developments of the plot. This book was returned to Cordua the following day.

Mrs. Erasmus, wife of Major Erasmus, in whose house Cordua lived, identified the pocket-book as the property of the prisoner.

EVIDENCE AGAINST CORDUA.

The police gave evidence to the effect that in Cordua's room they found a cipher despatch, produced in court, purporting to come from Gen. Botha. In this message General Botha instructs the prisoner to go on with the business.

Lieut. Kruger, of the Transvaal Constabulary, stated that he had found papers connecting the prisoner with the plot. These he identified.

Matt Marais, late field cornet of Pretoria, stated that he was approached by Cordua and asked to join the plot or to render help.

Marais declined to implicate himself in the matter, but did not give information to the police of the conspiracy.

The evidence in the case is very complete, but the impression exists that the plan was from the first futile. The accused seems to be either a fool or the dupe of some cunning intriguers.

The impression exists that all there is of sensation in the trial has already been disclosed.

The trial continues.

PRAISE FOR DU TOIT.

To that small band of anxious watchers who lived through the night of June 4 in Pretoria, the knowledge that Lieut. Du Toit has so soon been able to render conspicuous service to the Imperial authorities is a matter for congratulation.

But for his manly determination when he was Chief of the Pretoria police to preserve to those who possessed them the full privileges of the paroles, there would still be with the Boers, Lord Cecil Manners, Lord Rosslyn, Mr. Donohue of the Daily Chronicle and myself. We spent a long and anxious night and its happy termination was mainly due to the man who the other day saved Lord Roberts and his staff from death or durance excessively vile.

For his excellent services to us on that occasion he was ordered by Gen. Botha to report himself at Middelburg for court-martial. He declined the invitation, and surrendered with the principal officers to Lord Roberts on the morning of June 5.

Unfortunately the slippery Hollander De Korte, who has been the most obnoxious thorn in the flesh of distressed Pretoria Britishers, approved himself more readily to the authorities, and secured a fat appointment. Du Toit went unrewarded.

He is a Capeman. Du Toit, tall and broad-shouldered, with clear, blue eyes and sits his horse like a Greek statue. Personally, I am indebted to him for my release from prison last February.

Du Toit is a good type of the Boer who realizes the hopelessness of his country's cause and the full responsibility of his oath of neutrality.

A ROYAL WELCOME GIVEN THE BOYS

The Returning Soldiers are Given a Hearty Welcome

Privates Johnston and Hall Arrive by Grand Trunk at 6.50 Last Evening and Were Met by Soldiers and Civilians

There was an immense crowd at the Grand Trunk Station at 6.50 yesterday afternoon to witness the arrival of Troopers Hall and Johnston, of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, who have just returned from South Africa. The 57th Regimental Band, the Bugle Band and C Squadron of the 3rd Dragoons turned out, and assisted in the ceremonies of welcoming the returning soldiers.

As the train drew up to the station, the band played "Here the Conquering Heroes Come," while the people cheered as the two men alighted. After the handshaking and greeting of friends and relatives, the troopers were placed in a carriage, and a procession formed. They were carried from the train to the carriage on the shoulders of their friends, and were each presented with a bouquet of flowers.

The bands lead off, followed by the military, after which came the carriage containing the returning troopers and Mayor Kendry and Chaplain Davidson. The Council and citizens followed in carriages. As the carriage containing the troopers passed through the streets, cheer upon cheer was given for the boys.

Arriving at Central Park, Major Miller called upon Rev. Mr. Davidson to offer prayer, after which a number of short addresses were made by the Chairman, Mayor Kendry and Rev. Mr. Davidson.

Trooper Hall was the first to reply. He was sorry he had been obliged to return on account of fever. He would liked to have staid with the troops until the end of the war. He thanked the people for their hearty welcome.

Some one suggested three cheers for Trooper Hall at this juncture, which were given with a will.

Trooper Johnston said he would not add much to what his companion had already said, but he felt grateful for the welcome given him, and took the opportunity of thanking the ladies for the favors sent to South Africa, which were great luxuries out there.

Cheers were then given for Trooper Johnston and for the Queen, after which the band played the National Anthem and the people dispersed.

Trooper Johnston left for his home in Centreville, where a public reception is awaiting him.

KAISER IN THE PULPIT

Summary of William's Sermon and Text of Prayer on Hohenzollern

The Emperor Preached a Very Interesting and Eloquent Sermon

Berlin, Aug. 27.—The Kreuz Zeitung publishes to-day the sermon preached on board the Hohenzollern by the German Emperor last Sunday.

His majesty took for his text the eleventh verse of the seventeenth chapter of Exodus. "And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand, that Israel prevailed; and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed." The Emperor began by an eloquent description of the scene Rephidim, the three holy men of God—Moses, Aaron, and Hur—praying on the mountain top while the fight went on below. That is the holy battle picture of our text. Who does not understand what it means for us to-day? The heathen spirit of the Amalekites is again astir in far off Asia—with great might and with much cunning, with fire and with slaughter, is the attempt being made to bar the way of European commerce and of European intelligence—to check the triumphal progress of Christian morality and the Christian faith. And once again has the word of God gone forth. 'Choose us out men and go out and fight with Amalek.' 'A terrible and bloody struggle has begun. Many of our breathern are already under fire; many are on their way to the hostile shore. When the word went out. 'Volunteers to the front! Who is ready to defend the empire?' you saw thousands gather together and march out with flying banners to meet the foe. But we, who are bound by sacred duties to remain behind at home, do we not hear the word of God which goes out to us, and says, 'climb up the the mountain top. Raise thy hands to heaven. The prayer of the just man is mighty when it is sincere.' Thus let it be. Away in the distant land the warrior hosts; here at home the hosts of supplicants. May that be the holy battle picture of our time."

His majesty went on to point out how easily the soldier may lose strength and cheerfulness under the trials of war—the long marches under the long nights under the pelting rain; how even the most valiant may quail when, amid the thunder of cannon and the bursting of shell, his comrades fall on every side. "Fellow Christians, in order that our breathern may remain of good cheer under the worst privations, faithful when their duty is most difficult, unwavering when the danger is the greatest they need something more than ammunition and edged weapons; more, even, than youthful courage and the fire of enthusiasm. They need the blessing from above. They need living strength and victorious might from above. Without these they cannot win or keep the victory. And this heavenly might is accessible to prayer alone. Prayer is the golden key to the treasury of our God. But whoso has this key has also the promise, 'Ask and ye shall receive.'

The Emperor then protested against the idea that they should remain idle spectators of the battle which others had gone forth to fight. "That would be the spirit of Cain and of his callous speech, 'Am I my brother's keeper?' No, never! We will mobilize not only battalions of warriors, but also a holy force of suppliants. And these is much that we have to beg and pray for on behalf of our brethren who are going forth to fight. They are to be the strong arm that is to chastise the assassins. They are to be the mailed fist that is to strike into the midst of these wild deeds. They have to defend, sword in hand, all that we hold most sacred." His majesty then dwelt upon the sacred power of intercession. "When Moses held up his hand Israel prevailed." God has not withdrawn a syllable of his promises. Even to-day the banner of the dragon can be hurled into the dust by faithful prayer and the banner of the cross planted upon the ramparts. Yea, the God of our fathers still lives. Our great ally still bears sway.' His majesty appealed to his hearers to think how it will fill the hearts of their breathern with courage, with enthusiasm, and with passionate devotion to know that they are the subjects of prayers of millions of Germans at home. "The King of kings calls, 'Volunteers to the front! Who will pray for the empire? Oh, that here, too it could be said that the King called and none remained behind." After declaring that history would show that the secret prayers of true believers had also been one of the great powers in these struggles, the Emperor prayed as follows.

"Almighty God, dear heavenly Father, O thou Lord of Hosts and Ruler of battles, we raise our hands to thee in prayer. To thy goodness we commend the thousands of our brothers in arms whom thou thyself hast called forth to fight. Shield thou the lives of our sons with thy omnipotent protection. Lead thou our soldiers to a mighty victory. To thy goodness we commend the wounded and the sick; be thou their consolation and their strength. Heal thou the wounds they have received for King and country. To thy goodness we commend all those who it is thy will shall die upon the distant field of battle. Stand thou by them in their last fight and give them eternal peace; To thy goodness we commend our people. Maintain and sanctify and strengthen the exaltation which now inspires us. O, Lord, our God, we go forth relying upon thy help and upon us. We know, O, Lord, that thou bidest us. In thy name we rise our standards. O, Lord, we will not let thee go until thou bless us. Amen!"

The Emperor concluded with the Lords prayer and the benediction.—From the London Times of Aug. 8.

A REVOLT IN PERSIA.

Shah's Visit to Europe Will Probably be Curtailed in Consequence of a Revolutionary Outbreak.

New York, Aug. 28.—"I hear from a thoroughly well informed source that a serious insurrection has broken out in Persia, which will in all probability cause the Shah's visit to Europe to be curtailed," says a cablegram to the Times from its Paris correspondent.

"The object of the revolt is to dethrone the present Shah, whose fondness for western ideas makes him unpopular to Persians of the old school and to place his brother on the throne."

KING TO GIVE UP ROME

A Report From Rome That King Humbert Was About to Give up the Capital of Italy

To the Hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church—A Letter to be Published

London, Aug. 28.—"As a result of the outcry against the declaration of the Osservatore Romano," says the Rome correspondent of the Daily Express, "that the late King Humbert some months before his death wrote to Cardinal Guiseppe Prisco, Archbishop of Naples, requesting that a trustworthy priest be sent to hear his confession. A priest was sent, but absolution was refused unless Humbert would agree to abdicate and give up Rome. The king asked time to consider, as he was anxious to receive the sacrament. According to the clerical version, 'it was this communication to the priest that induced the Holy See to grant Christian burial.'

"King Humbert's letter to Cardinal Prisco will be published."

ATTEMPT MADE TO MINE AMERICAN LEGATION

Telegraph line now Completed Between Taku and Pekin--Japanese are in Possession of the Summer Palace.

LI HUNG CHANG IS A PRISONER ON A SHIP

Pekin a Mass of Ruins—Mr. Picton Speaks of the Danger of a Second Attack by Chinese Troops.

Tien Tsin, Aug. 25, via Taku, Aug. 27, —Fifty Americans, including the Misses Condit, Smith, Woodward, and Pain have arrived here from Pekin, which city they left five days ago.

Tien Tsin, Aug. 24, via Taku Aug. 27, —Officers who have arrived here from Pekin report that General Chaffee is making all the necessary arrangements to maintain 15,000 men through the winter. Fifteen of the American wounded, including the marines wounded during the seige of the Legations have arrived here by boat from Pekin. Possibly Capt. Myers, of the United States marine corps is suffering from typhoid fever and cannot be moved. A large batch of refugees are due here to-morrow. The American Signal Service corps, co-operating with that of the British has completed the telegraph lines from Taku to Pekin.

Pekin, Aug. 21, via Taku.—Three Russian, two Japanese and one British and one American battalion searched the Imperial park south of the city and about five miles out. An armed Boxers' force was found, but only a single Chinese scout was killed. The Japanese are in possession of the Imperial summer palace to-day. The winter palace here is still closely guarded. The Russians wish to destroy it. A southward movement began to-day and will continue. Several detachments will remain to protect the conquests.

London, Aug. 29, 3.50 a.m. A Reuter despatch dated Pekin, Aug. 15, and sent by post from Shanghai, describes a scene of appalling devastation and wanton destruction. In Legation street all the house of foreigners were riddled with shells, burned or blown up. An attempt was made to mine the American Legation. A shaft was sunk from the top of the wall fifteen feet deep and was then continued as a tunnel with a sharp slope in the direction of the Legation. Apparently the Chinese did not have time to finish it. The Siecles report of a defeat suffered by the allies at Pekin is everywhere discredited. The Chinese Legation at St. Petersburg has received news that peace negotiations have already begun.

London, Aug. 28.—Affairs in the Orient are still in a state of obscurity, amid which it is almost impossible to base any conclusion as to the future. It is safe to say that no further steps will be taken by the allies until communication between Pekin and Tien Tsin has been formally established. That this is the chief difficulty in the way of a further advance is shown by a despatch of M. Pichon, the French Minister, who speaks of it as the thing which so long ago as Aug. 19 was exercising the minds of the allied generals. M. Pichon adds—"The insecurity of the routes renders this difficulty but urgent. A resumption of the offensive by the Boxers and regulars is feared and serious precautions must be taken. I am lodging at the Spanish legation. All my staff and domestics are in miserable health. The great part of the town is a heap of ruins." It will be seen that events have justified the tone of pessimism adopted by the French Minister, who is now entirely cut off from the outside world. In the meantime affairs in Southern China are going from bad to worse, and indications are that unless unusual measures are taken the south may follow the example of the north.

WILL DETAIN LI HUNG.

He Will Not be Allowed Out of the Allies' Hands.

Paris, Aug. 28.—Admiral Courrejolles, the French commander in Chinese waters, has cabled to the Navy Department here that a council of the admirals has notified the foreign legations at Pekin that it has been decided to hold Li Hung Chang on board ship until the opening of negotiations with the Chinese.

WHERE THE EMPRESS IS.

London, Aug. 28.—A special despatch from Shanghai says the Chinese officials there have informed the foreign consuls that the Emperor, the Dowager Empress and Prince Tuan have arrived in the neighborhood of Tai Yuan, 240 miles southwest of Pekin.

COLLECTING THE SPOILS.

Powers are Already Discussing How They will Make China Pay.

Washington, Aug. 28.—It is said in Administration circles that in the event of the ability of the powers to agree upon a Chinese policy that will preserve the integrity of the Empire the plan most likely to be adopted will provide for international administration of the customs service. Under this plan representatives of the several allied powers having forces on Chinese soil will be stationed at all the customs ports of China, to supervise or administer the service and watch the revenues with a view to the ensuring the collections of the enormous indemnity that will be individually demanded by each of the Governments. It is understood that this or some joint supervisory scheme of a similar character will be favored by this Government, and while other Governments may make other proposals for future policy of a different nature there is no information in the possession of the United States Government to indicate in harmonious action on such a supervisory plan.

RIOTING AT AMOY.

Richer Chinamen and Europeans Leave the Town.

Washington, Aug 28.—A cablegram has been received at the State Department from United States Consul Johnson at Amoy, China, relative to the rioting in progress in that city. He reports that many of the richer Chinamen and Europeans are leaving the place. A cablegram received at the Navy Department announces that the Castine sailed to-day from Shanghai for Amoy in accordance with the department's orders. She should arrive there Thursday of this week.

TO ESCORT THE BARONESS.

General Chafee Behaves Courteously to Von Ketteler's Widow.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The War Department yesterday received the following—

"Taku, China (no date).

"Adjutant-General, Washington—

"Have offered assistance to Baroness Von Ketteler; will furnish transportation, and escort Tien Tsin few days; have offered transportation accommodations to Nagasaki also.

"(Signed) "CHAFFEE."

Baroness Von Ketteler, the widow of the murdered German Minister to China, is an American, being the daughter of President Ledyard, of the Michigan Central railroad, whose home is in Detroit, Mich.

EMPEROR IN SHEN SI.

French Consul Wires Regarding the State of Chinese Officials.

Paris, Aug 22.—The French Consul at Shanghai wires that Emperor Kwang Su and Prince Tuan are now in the Province of Shen Si.

With reference to the missionaries and engineers at Chen Ting Fu, southwest of Pekin, the Consul says that they are as yet uninjured, but that their position is critical.

TAKING OF TIEN TSIN.

American Officer Tells an exciting Story of the Battle.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 28. — Lieut. Keith Naylor, of the Ninth United States Infantry, who participated in the storming of Tien Tsin, and was reported erroneously to be among the killed, has written a letter to friends in this city, under date of July 18, which gives the following story of the battle.—

"We passed over the first wall without much loss and took shelter in a mud house to get ready for the advance. Finally we started, the little Japanese in the centre, the British and French on the left and the United States on the right. A perfect rain of bullets fell around us, and men fell in scores. We had no shelter, but were forced to rush from ditch to ditch, every time under a heavier fire. We finally arrived directly under the walls of the city, with only a river between, when the ammunition gave out. This was about 9 a.m., and we stayed all day until 6.30, when we retired, and then only pursuant to orders. Our losses were about 25 per cent. of our total strength, which was 425."

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 29 1900.

BRITISH FORBEARANCE AND BOER PERFIDY.

The Pretoria plot was the last straw that broke the back of British forbearance. Lord Roberts has determined that mild measure and generous treatment are not only not appreciated by the benign burgher, but that they have been utilized by him as means to turn upon his kind conqueror, whenever the opportunity offered itself. The Pretoria plot had in its simplicity and daring all the elements of success, that it has failed was, in all probability, due merely to the desire of the original conspirators—some ten or fifteen —to include for summary completeness too many of their sympathizers in Pretoria. It is not at all surprising to learn that "the indignation throughout the army is intense," and that "the affair has created a tremendous sensation, since it is apparent that it was leniency that encouraged the Boers to contemplate so daring a scheme." There is the point and moral of the whole story. For the men who have been chief in the conspiracy and who have been arrested had all taken the oath of neutrality, and on their taking that oath had been allowed to go free and to move about like loyal and unsuspected citizens. It is a scandalous affair, but the impartial observer will probably declare that the scandal is as much on the British side as on that of the Boers. In our treatment of the Boers it may be said of us, as of the Bourbons, that we have learnt nothing: we have forgotten nothing of our simplicity and faith, and learnt nothing of the Boer duplicity and "slimness." The Boer has been doing his utmost, since we came in contact with him in this war, to teach us that he is utterly without honor that he is double-faced as Janus, and that, as with a pickpocket or a burglar, so with him, there is nothing so creditable as "slimness" — especially towards a Rooinek. He has read us that lesson again and again, and has underlined it with the finest emphasis. He has abused the white flag to shoot down our men over and over again, and the Red Cross to protect ammunition wagons; he has given an oath or a promise which he has no intention of abiding by, and when he has gone home to live under our protection, apparently a regenerate Boer, he has [illegible] our [illegible] officers [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] formed [illegible] has for ten months fooled us to the top of our bent in these regards, [illegible] our simplicity and [illegible] to fool us till the end. Several war correspondents have repeatedly pointed out the evils resulting from our misplaced faith and clemency. But their strictures have [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] at the front that the policy of these gentle and friendly treatment of the Boers was mistaken.

THE HARVEST

The Canadian wheat harvest is the most important agricultural event in the year. It is an event which is closely watched not only by the farmers themselves, whose interests are so vitally bound up in its [illegible] issue, but by bank and railway officials, steamboat managers, brokers and all those interested in financial operations. Nothing [illegible] of [illegible] more beautiful effect upon trade than the safe ingarnering of abundant wheat crop. Reports of harvesting operations in Manitoba and the territories received in Montreal during the past week are of a more encouraging nature than those received during the previous fortnight. Harvesting is in full blast, and the weather continues favorable. The crop itself though below the average is a fair one, and the quality of the grain has greatly improved during the last few weeks of the later growth and ripening period. This argues well for a prosperous winter for Canadian traders and merchants.

A SYSTEM IN BUSINESS

Cheap Theatre Tickets and the Modern Plan of Remembering Things.

In the private office the head of the firm was closeted with the most important out-of-town customer, who had found that some matter of discounts or error in statement or correction of list price or some other picturesque detail of the higher finance made it imperative on him to visit the city even though it was the holiday season. That New York in holiday times is worth any man's seeing is wide of the question. It must have been business of the utmost importance, for even the confidential stenographer had been dismissed. Whatever it may have been, there was at least the evidence of cigars and hearty laughter to prove that it had been transacted to the satisfaction of both. After that had been settled the head of the firm broached the subject of entertainment. The customer was perfectly willing to take in a show that very evening and all the rest of the good things that might come his way, and it was the privilege of the resident business man to send out to reserve seats.

"I'll show you a wrinkle that may be new to you," he said with commercial pride. "You don't suppose that we pay box-office prices or speculators' premiums when it is possible to get just as good seats as there are in the house at fifty off. Just you wait while I telephone, and you'll see. I'll find the man in just a minute. That's the advantage of carrying system into everything you do. Just look at this arrangement. I guess it's got in it pretty nearly everything I want to know. Suppose I have an idea some day. Well, I jot down a memorandum on any piece of paper that comes handy and when I have leisure I file it away under its proper head in this system. Then when I want to use that idea all I have to do is to turn right to it here and find it at once along with everything else I know on the subject. Just you watch me. In this case the subject is theatre tickets, and where I can get them at a bargain. There's where the system of keeping track of things comes in. You observe I open the 'D' drawer and turn at once to the 'Dre's.' It's just like looking anything up in the encyclopedia. There, I've got just the man I want, telephone number and all, and I can promise you the tickets will be here as soon as we get back from lunch. That's where system comes in. You bet it's great."

"That's all very fine," replied the customer, "and I won't dispute the value of having a system. But I'll be hanged if I can understand why you turn up the 'Dre's' in order to find out where to scalp the theatres. Those letters are not the beginning of the man's name that you have just called and they do not spell anything that will make you think of the show. Why 'Dre'?"

"Why, man alive, that's just where the beauty and the simplicity of the scheme comes in. I want to get good seats at any theatre without paying too much for the tickets, so I look up the compartment 'Dressmaker' in this arrangement and find the information immediately."

"But why dressmaker? What has that to do with the subject?"

"See here, you're mighty particular seeing's it's my system and not yours but I don't mind showing you that the old man is right after all. The way I first got on to this theatre scheme was this, my wife told me that her dressmaker told her that she knew a cigar dealer who always had good seats to dispose of for a reasonable discount. Got that straight and plain. Now, you don't suppose I'd put that under W just because my wife told me. A man's wife tells him so many things that if he was to start a system of this cold storage on them the W would be the whole thing and there wouldn't be any room for all the rest of the alphabet. So I skip the wife and nail the dressmaker as coming next. Then all I have to do when I want tickets is to think of my wife's dressmaker and there the whole story is told. But the more I use this system the more I wonder how we ever did business when a man had to remember things just any old way, indeed I do.

FLABBY FELLOWS

DR PIERCES GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

The body is built up from the food you eat. But before food can be assimilated by the body it must be prepared for assimilation by the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Food does not feed when the stomach is "out of order." The result is, weak muscles and flabby flesh. "Golden Medical Discovery" heals diseases of the stomach and digestive and nutritive system. It works with Nature to make manly muscle and form firm flesh.

In a letter received from A. D. Weller, Esq., of Pensacola, Escambia Co., Fla. "Ads" as Invitations.

When a man keeps a store, a shop or an office there is presumptive evidence that he wants custom; but when, in addition, he advertises in the public newspapers that he is ready to do business he issues a direct and particular invitation to the people to come to him and trade. Everybody has had experience with merchants and professional men who seemed to be reluctant to attend to patrons, if not resentful of their presence. Therefore, we all feel more free to go to the stores and offices of those who invite us, day after day, through the newspaper. Advertisements are assurances of welcome and attention. Everybody reads the Times.

RETIRED.

The strong tide beats upon the narrow pier,
The ships go by, and one who knew them well
Sits at the close of day, and sits alone

Captain no more! But he remembers yet
The little town in dear old Maryland,
Where first he learned by star and wind and tide
The track of the ocean, and the way of war,
Upon the wave that smote his native land.

Now all is done: a warship rides the bay,
With shining hull and blackened funnels high,
And his old heart leaps at its prisoned side,
For that his boy is there! He minds the time
When little arms were twined upon his neck,
And ears bent low to hear the thrilling tale
Of ships that fought in battles long ago.

He thinks of her who stood beside him then
With shining eyes—the light-house of his heart—
And outward passed, like to a little sail,
That, rocking in the mist, returns no more.

So comes the dusk; he hears the booming gun,
He sees the lowered flag, the night-lamps set;
And watching on the pier he falls asleep,
And dreams of golden anchors far away.

—John J. Meehan, in Leslie's Weekly.

MY DOUBLE DILEMMA.

Thoroughly tired of the pier, the esplanade, and the tennis-court, one afternoon, during my stay at the seaside, I took a solitary ramble through the coast.

With the tall cliffs on one side of me and a vast expanse of ocean on the other, I made my way over sand and shingle, careless of everything save the appearance of my immaculate flannel trousers, until the town of Brinybay was hidden by a chalk promontory, and I found myself alone, or apparently alone, with Nature.

As, however, I approached an irregular mass of rock lying together at the foot of the cliff, a scarlet object appearing above them attracted my attention, and, on nearing the spot, I discovered it was a parasol shading one of the most bewitching girls I had ever beheld in my life—and I have seen a good many.

Comfortably seated on a mossy boulder and deep in the perusal of a yellow-backed volume, she was becomingly attired in a dream of pale pink, and as I passed her I fancied she peeped at me from beneath her shady straw hat; but young men always think that girls notice them, especially when like myself, they are Oxford undergraduates with their college arms emblazoned on the breast of their blue serge jackets.

I had not left this siren very far behind, when my progress was suddenly brought to a stop by the tide which had covered the beach and was lashing the base of the cliff. I at once realized the unpleasant fact that the tide was flowing, and that if I did not speedily retrace my steps, my return to Brinybay would be prevented in the same manner as my advance.

Hastening back, and passing the maiden in pink, who was reading as unconcernedly as ever, I again found my path barred by a sheet of water several yards in width. I was completely shut off from the mainland.

To scale the cliff was utterly impossible, and although I might have resumed my homeward course after wading through the water, I could not have deserted the fair girl near me, who was evidently unconscious of her critical situation. The waves were rapidly advancing towards the rocks among which she was seated, and the seaweed clinging to them told me that at high water they were totally submerged.

Approaching the parasol, I coughed.

"Excuse me," I said, "but the tide is coming in very fast, and, I am afraid, will soon be up here."

"Oh, dear!" she exclaimed, blushing, and hurriedly looking around her. "Oh, dear, how very stupid of me not to notice it; whatever shall I do?"

"The only possible way of getting back," I remarked, as she slowly closed her book and left her seat, "is across this piece of water, but it is rather deep."

In silence she followed me to the spot, and after gazing upon the fast-widening barrier, looked up at me and smiled.

"I think I know how we can overcome the difficulty," I said, "but I hope you won't be offended at my suggestion."

"Oh, no, no," she exclaimed, with a little laugh; "anything as long as I can get out of this horrid fix."

"Then, I believe I could manage to carry you across, if you wouldn't object," I said, after some hesitation.

Another smile illumined her fair countenance, and she replied in tones of the deepest sincerity—

"Oh, thank you, thank you; I should feel so grateful if you would, so very much obliged."

Throwing off my shoes and socks, and tucking up my immaculate ones, I put the yellow-covered book into one of my capacious pockets, deposited my stick with the scarlet parasol on the beach and gently lifting its fair owner in my arms, in another moment had forded the water and deposited her on terra firma.

She returned with me to Brinybay. Her thanks were overwhelming, and ere long we were chatting together like a couple of old friends.

A proposal I made for taking her mother for a sail in my yacht pleased her more than ever, and when I parted with her near the pier—though ignorant of her name and connections—I thought she was the most charming girl I had met with for a long time.

On arriving at my apartments I found that the yellow-covered volume which she had entrusted to my care was still in my pocket. I opened it and found on the title-page the following: "Bessie Cragg, Sea View Villa, Brinybay."

Not displeased at my discovery, I penned a polite little note to "Miss Cragg"—who was evidently the bewitching possessor of the scarlet parasol—in which, after briefly referring to her book, I had the boldness to fix a day for the proposed yatching expedition.

Neatly enclosing the epistle with the volume, I left the parcel that evening at Sea View Villa.

Next morning I was told that a gentleman desired to speak to me in private. I ordered my landlady to show the visitor in, and forthwith a black-looking man, of middle age, entered my parlor.

"Mr. Lyon, I presume?" he began, eyeing me unpleasantly.

"I am Mr. Lyon; what is it?" I said, annoyed at the stranger's manner.

"What is it?" he sneered; "what is it, indeed young man! What do you mean by sending my wife such stuff as this, and by asking her to accompany you in a yacht, etc., you impertinent fellow?" and he threw my little note to Bessie Cragg on to the table.

"Your wife?" I exclaimed in confusion, "your wife, sir? I think you are in error; I think that you have made a mistake, sir."

"Mistake!" cried the stranger fiercely; "mistake—fiddlesticks. I am Mr. Joseph Cragg, young man, and if ever I catch you insulting my wife with another such billet doux it's ten to one you won't have a chance of repeating the offense!"

With this terrible threat, my visitor left the house.

I threw myself into a chair and groaned aloud—a pretty ending, forsooth, to the romantic incident of the preceding day.

During the next week I had little bliss; it made me miserable to think that fair and frolicsome Bessie was bound for life to such a wolfish monster as Joseph Cragg.

On reflection, I wondered why she hadn't informed her husband of her adventure by the seaside (for I presumed he was unaware of it,) and why, when she was with me, she had appeared so eager to accept my invitation.

I met Mrs. Cragg several times alone in the town and on the pier; but, always passed her without any token of recognition. On one occasion I fancied she smiled faintly at me, but taking no notice of her familiarity, I thought, for a married person, that her behaviour was extremely improper.

Just a week after my eventful ramble round the coast, while strolling listlessly on the esplanade, I was surprised on being accosted by a pleasant-looking old lady, who, grasping my hand, exclaimed—

"Are you the gentleman that saved my dear little Marie from being drowned when almost caught by the tide some days ago?"

I was absolutely bewildered, nor was it until I was seated in the gushing old lady's drawing-room conversing with her and her fair grand-daughter Marie—the identical possessor of the scarlet parasol—that an explanation of the whole affair took place.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cragg was a friend of Marie's and had lent her the yellow-backed volume which, on being returned to its original owner, had fallen into the hands of Mr. Cragg.

Without showing either the book or the note to his wife, this gentleman had opened the letter with the above recorded unpleasant result.

It may interest the reader to know that Marie and I took our yachting trip as proposed, and thoroughly enjoyed it, too; but beyond the information contained in the appending newspaper cutting, I cannot furnish further particulars of the consequences of my eventful ramble when, although I eluded the clutches of Neptune, I fell a victim to the snares of Cupid.

How to Read the Tongue.

The perfect tongue is clean, moist, lies loosely in the mouth, is round at the edge and has no prominent papilae.

The tongue may be furred from local cause or from sympathy with the stomach, intestines or liver.

The dry tongue occurs most frequently in fever and indicates a nervous prostration or depression.

A white tongue is diagnostic simply of the feverish condition, with perhaps a sour stomach. When it is moist and yellowish brown it shows disordered digestion. Dry and brown indicates a low state of the system, possibly typhoid.

When the tongue is dry and red and smooth, look out for inflammation, gastic or intestinal.

When the papilae on the end of the tongue are raised and very red it is called a strawberry tongue, and that means scarlet fever.

Sharp pointed red tongue will hint of brain irritation or inflammation, and a yellow coating indicates liver derangement.

The world contains an oversupply of average men.

There are still a few copies of the new maps of the County of Peterborough, left. Order [illegible] Price [illegible] Times Bookstore.

Charming flowers.

Mr. Head, the efficient gardener and florist at the Nicholls Hospital, has a very fine display of flowers in the grounds of that institution. The grounds are indeed a beauty spot, and should be seen to be appreciated.

A Hot Weather Poet

A correspondent from Lakefield sends the Times the following on the weather,—

I hev noticed that this humidity
Is the cause of much stupidity
For a feller's wit
Can't git up an' git
With a very great amount of rapidity.

Thick as Flies

The Toronto Collegiate Institute Board required a mathematical specialist [illegible] junior [illegible] were [illegible] 17, [illegible] of them carrying the M.A. and B.A. tag of the university, and an advertisement of the want in this great journal would have increased the number ten-fold, for the woods are full of them.

A Fly Pair

The Chief of Police, Toronto, has written to Chief Rossel, telling him of the arrest there for vagrancy of two Peterborough girls, giving their names as Murty and Brown. The girls are really Luella Brough, aged 15 years, and Florence Colby, aged 18 years, and neither girl is a type of virtue. Chief Rossel wrote giving what information he could, which was some. The girls are said to have left town last Saturday with a couple of drummers and were left stranded in the city.

"Ads" are Necessary.

Nearly every person in business should advertise in the newspapers. City populations grow rapidly, and old residents frequently change their locations. Moreover, business has become specialized. There are dentists who do not draw teeth, lawyers who do not go into Court, etc. To learn where to make purchases or where to engage professional or other services one must either consult the advertising columns of the newspapers or make inquiries at random at the risk of receiving doubtful information. Newspaper announcements save both the people and the advertisers loss of time. Everybody reads the Times.

Returned His Wheel

A young man named James Wallace called at the police station on Sunday and handed a bicycle over, stating that he had hired it in Belleville, and was to have returned it at 2.30 on Sunday. As prospects were small for getting it there in the three hours remaining to him he decided to deposit the wheel with the authorities that he might not be charged with theft and also that he might be in a position to prove that he did not ride the bicycle after the period for which he had engaged it. The Chief took the wheel and it was expressed to Greenleaf & Son, the owners. Wallace is a young man who has just returned from the States. On arriving at Belleville, where he had formerly lived, he found that his parents had removed to Peterborough, so he hired the bicycle and came on, which was a cheap way out of his difficulty.

Abbott, of Conductor Jobbitt's train, while playing on a roadway near the family residence, was attacked by a pugnacious bull, owned by License Inspector Prust. —The Times had a pleasant call yesterday from Mr. R. J. Munro, Lakefield, who was in town on business.

The Oyster.

Next Saturday the season will open for traffic in that succulent American bivalve mollusk known in zoological parlance as Ostrea Virginiana, and in everyday English as the oyster. Already word comes from the bays and rivers where the oyster has its habit that this year's crop is in finer condition than for the ten preceding years. This is cheerful news to the many Peterborian's who are eagerly waiting for the opportunity to have the juicy bivalve served to them in the sack, on the half shell or in the "altogether." In any event there will be more than enough to go around, if the predictions of well-known local packers and shippers count for aught.

Too Many Delinquents.

The Wiarton Canadian recently placed in court 200 cases of subscribers who did not whack up after being notified. In every case judgment was granted at the rate of $150 per year. Last week the same paper warned its delinquents that 200 more will be placed in court in three weeks. There would be no delinquents if papers were stopped at expiration of time, but a country publisher is in a peculiar position, at least as regards his local subscribers, many of whom would be offended if their papers were stopped in this way. Then by degrees some get behind and don't want to pay at all.

A Cunning Dog.

A subscriber sends The Times the following for publication.—A gentleman in town has a lemon and white pointer that is very affectionate. Whenever he starts out it will follow him. "Go home," he would shout, with a stamp of the foot, and the dog would turn and make for home, looking reproachfully back, but after a block or two it would dart down a side street, take a roundabout course and, half a mile further on, Mr. R.— would all of a sudden see it coming to meet him, wagging its handsome tail and frolicking so joyously that he would not have the heart to be angry. One day Mr.— went to the railway station to take the train for Millbrook. He bought his ticket, and when he came came out to the platform again there was the dog waiting to give him a jolly greeting. The train came along just then, and Mr. R.— got aboard The last thing he saw, as he looked back, was the dog tearing like the wind down the track after the train, but, despite all its efforts, slowly being left behind. Mr. R.— was walking about Millbrook an hour after his arrival there, when the dog came toward him. Its mouth was open to the limit, and its red tongue protruded a half-year. Nearly dead it was, but it had run the whole 15 miles from Peterborough to Millbrook and its master was proud of it.

SEEKS A WOMAN'S LIFE

Gilman, Ill, May be a Scene of a Lynching

Mrs. Dr. C. M. Wright, Accused of the Murder of a Young Girl, Resists Arrest, and Constable's Deputy is Shot

Gilman, Ill., Aug. 29.—(Special.)—Mrs Dr. C. M. Wright of this city is besieged in her home by a mob of infuriated citizens, who threaten to burn the house and lynch her if she falls into their hands.

The woman, who claims to be a physician, is accused of causing the death of Bessie Salter, who died and was buried on Saturday. The body of the girl was exhumed to-day and the Coroner's jury declared she had been murdered. A warrant was at once sworn out for the woman's arrest and Constable John Whitehead, with a posse of citizens, went to her home to place her under arrest.

The house had in the meantime been guarded by pickets to prevent the escape of the inmates. When the constable arrived he knocked and demanded admittance. The house was dark and silent, and he received no reply.

After repeated demands in the name of the law the door was broken open. Six or seven men entered a dark room. They were opposed by a locked door into another room. After more demands for admittance the second door was broken open by the feet of the men. No sooner had it swung in than there were two reports and Michael Ryan fell to the floor. He was carried out and into a neighboring house, where he died in a few minutes.

The constable and his deputies beat a hasty retreat and as they ran three more shots were fired after them. Dennis Carr received a shot in the leg, but it was not serious. The news of the killing aroused the citizens and a large crowd gathered around the woman's house, threatening to burn it to the ground if she did not give herself up.

KEEP LIFE UNDER WATER

French Invention will Revolutionize the Diving Industry

Paris, August 28.—One of the most important discoveries of the century may prove the outcome of the demonstration given yesterday at the French Academy of Science, when Desgrey and Balthazard showed a new apparatus for sustaining life without fresh air.

They proved that sodium dioxide possessed the property of renewing oxygen in the air that has been breathed and of absorbing the carbonic acid gas, which is so poisonous to life.

With their apparatus a diver can remain under water and walk about without having the air renewed by the pumping apparatus at present employed.

Boon to Fire Fighters.

Moreover, with the new discovery, miners will be able to penetrate into poisonous gases and foul air, and firemen into smoke without fear of asphyxiation.

The discovery will also render practicable submarine boats. Ample proofs of all that was claimed for it was given yesterday at the Academy. Two men put on diving suits from which all air was excluded and remained in them for two hours. Afterward the same men remained under water in the Seine for a half-hour. The discovery is creating the greatest world's excitement in scientific circles.

DESCRIPTION OF PLANT.

The Capital Power Company, Limited, has been organized to purchase from Messrs. R. & W. Conroy all their property situated at Deschenes, on the Ottawa River, in the Province of Quebec, on Lots 15 and 16, in the First Range of the Township of Hull, south of the right of way of the Pontiac Pacific Railway

Messrs. Conroy also undertake to complete the new power house already nearly built, the power generated in which is rented to the E. B. Eddy Co., Ltd, and to turn the whole over to the Company as a going concern for the sum of Four Hundred Thousand Dollars, of which Two Hundred Thousand is to be paid in cash, balance in fully paid up ordinary shares of the Company on Oct. 1st, 1900. The whole to be to the satisfaction of the Company's expert.

Until the before mentioned date, the vendors have agreed to allow interest at 6 p. c. upon any moneys paid by the Company to them, on account of said purchase, thereby ensuring the earning power of all moneys subscribed and paid from the date of payment.

THE PLANT CONSISTS OF:

Power plant leased to the Hull Electric Company, which consists of two 52-inch Turbines, equal to 332 horse power.
Large power house, the power in which is leased to the E. B. Eddy Co., Ltd.
10 61-inch Turbines, equal to 2,280 horse power.
2 Generators, each 800 K. W., equal to 2,133 horse power.
2 Exciter Generators, 30 K. W.
Grist Mill with power leased to the Lake Deschenes Milling Co.
1 66-inch Turbine and 1 33-inch Turbine, equal to 175 horse power.
Spare power flume not leased, but which can at a small cost be made to develop about 500 horse power.

WATER POWER BONDS AND PREFERENCE STOCK AS AN INVESTMENT.

It is impossible to find conditions which secure for invested capital greater safety than is exhibited by water power propositions when such are situated upon such a reliable stream as the Ottawa River and when there is a constant demand in the immediate neighborhood for the power to be generated. That Ottawa requires the power is evidenced by the fact that all the power generated by the works of the Company has already been leased for terms of years with a certainty that at the end of the terms the prices paid will be increased.

It may be fairly accepted that the transmission of power electrically has passed all experimental stages, as is witnessed by the successful operations of such power plants as the Niagara Falls Power Co., the Hudson River Power and Transmission Co., Chambly Power Company and others.

The Five per cent. Bonds of the Niagara Power Co.—$9,000,000 in amount—are selling at 109 whilst the Bonds of the Hudson River Power Co. and of the Chambly Power Co. are selling at substantial premiums.

Bonds, and even Preference Stock, such as are now offered may fairly be considered as equal if not superior to any investment as to safety, whilst yielding a considerably better return than Bank Stocks and other investments which carry with them onerous responsibilities.

It is intended to get the Shares and Bonds of this Company listed upon the Montreal Stock Exchange.

PROVISIONAL DIRECTORS.

E. B. Eddy, Esq., President E. B. Eddy Co., Ltd., Hull, Match and Paper Manufactures; Louis Simpson, Vice-President Northrop Loom Co., Ltd., Cotton Manufacturer; J. M. Shanly, Esq., Great Northern Railway Co., Civil Engineer.

The Preference Shareholders will elect two directors.

Applications for Shares and payments may be made at the company's bankers, the Ontario Bank, at Ottawa.

BRITISH BARK BURNED ONLY NINE MEN SAVED

Dundonald's Cavalry Pursues the Boers Seven Miles for Refuge at Helvetia.

FRENCH SURPRISES BOERS AT ELANDSFONTEIN

Burghers Retired so Precipatately That They Left Their Dinner Cooking.—Buller's Losses Were 14 Killed and 64 Wounded.

London, Aug. 29. The British bark primera, 585 ton, Captain Saman which left London May 21 for Cape Cross and was spoken June 11 near Latitude, 28 North, Longitude 13 West, was burned Aug. 4th. near Latitude 13 South, Longitude 28, west. One boat landed nine men on Ascension Island. Another which left the bark with five men is missing. Capt. Saman is dead.

London, Aug. 29.—As forecast in this despatch on Monday last, General Buller has occupied Machadodorp, the most recent capital of Kruger, who is by this time either among the Lydenberg hills or close to the Portuguese border in his private car. The Boers abandoned the town after making but slight resistance, the position of French well on their right flank probably making them nervous lest their retreat to Lydenburg should be cut off. For seven miles they were pursued by Lord Dundonald's calvary, which was close at their heels when they reached the protection afforded by the inaccessible hills of Helvetia, the British being compelled to return with their swords unfleshed.

The town of Lydenburg is only 45 miles from Machadodorp, so that the British so far as distance is concerned, are close to the locality which promises to be the scene of the greatest events of the war. Between the two places, however, are hills, valleys and streams in abundance, offering scores of positions which the enemy may defend, and hard fighting is undoubtedly in store for Lord Roberts and his force. Machadodorp will now become the base of operations against Lydenburg, towards which run two highways, one from Machadodorp and the other from Belfast, a few miles to the westward. Along the former road General Buller has conducted his so far successful advance, while General French has moved along the other, in an almost parallel line to Elandsfontein, near which the two roads unite. The cavalry leader is therefore almost half way between Machadodorp and Lydenberg, and well in advance, while Pole-Carew with the infantry division is moving up rapidly from the rear.

BOERS MADE BUT A POOR STAND.

London, Aug. 29.—Lord Roberts reports under date of Belfast, Aug. 28—

"Buller's advance occupied Machadodorp this afternoon. The enemy made a very poor stand and retired northward, followed by Dundonald's mounted troops, who could not proceed beyond Helvetia on account of the difficult nature of the country and the enemy taking up a position too strong to be dislodged by the mounted troops. It appears that Buller's casualties were very few.

"French continued the movement today as far as Elandsfontein, from which he turned the enemy out with no difficulty. The latter retired very rapidly, leaving cooked food behind.

"Gen. Buller's casualties August 27 were—Killed, one officer and thirteen men; wounded, seven officers and fifty-seven men."

GALLANT WORK OF YEOMANRY

London, Aug. 29.—Lord Roberts describes an attack upon the Imperial Yeomanry at Winburg as follows.

"I received a report, Aug. 24 from Winburg that Lieut.-Col. Ridley, of the Yeomanry, with 277 men, while reconnoitring was attacked by a stronger force of the enemy and it was feared that he had been overpowered.

"I ordered Hunter to proceed to Kroostad to despatch some of Bruce-Hamilton's men to Ventersburg to cooperate with the Winburgers.

"I have just heard that Ridley was relieved early to-day by Bruce-Hamilton. Ridley seems to have taken up his position on a farm and skilfully defended it against 1,000 men and two guns. Ridley lost thirty men.

"Kelly-Kenny despatched a small movable column under Lieut.-Col. White to withdraw the enemy from Ridley's position. White lost one officer wounded and one man killed and five missing.

"The health of the troops has improved at the front, and, I am thankful too say, throughout South Africa.

"Ian Hamilton has captured, near [illegible] River Station thirteen Boers several Cape carts 500 cattle and 1,150 sheep.

THE COMING ELECTIONS

West Peterborough Liberals Want a Strong Man

TO REDEEM THE RIDING

One of the Ministers to be Invited to Contest the Riding.

Sir Richard Cartwright Would be Acceptable to the Party.—If Not Him, Mr. Blair Would be Second Choice.

There is every reason to believe that the Dominion elections will take place this fall, although many appear to think that there will be another session. Mr. Kendry M.P., is inclined to think that there will be a session in December, when a redistribution bill will be introduced and passed, to take effect after the taking of the census next winter. Mr. George Guillet, M.P., is also inclined to think that another session will be held.

The government we think would benefit little by redistribution. Our friends evidently forget that a redistribution based on the next census could not be effected until after the census was taken, and all returns in, and tabulated, which would be too late for a session. The life of the present parliament expires on August 13, 1901, before which time the elections must take place.

The Times is of opinion that the government stands to lose as much or more than it would gain by waiting. There would be a number of new members from the west. British Columbia and Yukon and there, presumably, would be largely conservative. That would probably more than offset the advantage of redistribution.

As to West Peterborough The Times is informed that there is a probability that Sir Richard Cartwright will be tendered the nomination. Sir Richard has a safe seat in Oxford, and it is doubtful if he could be prevailed upon to accept. Hon. Mr. Blair's name has also been mentioned, as it is thought that a minister could carry and "redeem" the riding without much trouble. There is no doubt that the prestige which goes with a minister, especially in a thoroughly corrupt constituency like west Peterborough, would give the liberals an immense advantage over their opponents.

Failing to secure a minister the liberals will perforce fall back on some good local man. In this connection the names of quite a number have been mentioned, amongst whom are Messrs. Richard Hall, J. B. McWilliams, J. H. McClellan, W. B. Stone, George B. Elliott, G. M. Roger, Gus Gough, R. F. McWilliams, F. D. Kerr. These are all good men and true, the only question being how to make a selection.

The Times is of opinion that it will take the liberals all their time if they hope to win in west Peterborough.

MRS. VAN ANDA CLAIMS $20,000 DAMAGES

She Says Her Husband Died of Neglect on Board the Brittanic.

Alleges That Rev. Mr. Van Anda Was Compelled to Sleep on the Floor Covered With a Tablecloth.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 29.—Proceedings in admiralty to libel the steamer Brittanic, belonging to the Northern Navigation Company, of Ontario, for twenty thousand dollars, have been commenced in the United States court by Mrs. Elizabeth B. Van Anda, of Parry Sound, Ont. In her complaint Mrs. Van Anda charges the Master of the Brittanic with not properly caring for her husband, Rev. Carmi A. Van Anda, a Methodist minister, while the latter was a passenger on the vessel, and as the result of such carelessness he caught cold and died. The complaint recites that when he arrived on board in August, 1899, there was no berth for him. Her husband finally had to accept a damp, musty mattress on the floor or nothing. The only covering was a tablecloth. Before reaching his destination he took a severe cold and died of pneumonia, leaving his family without resources. The widow asks judgement for $20,000.

BUBONIC PLAGUE APPEARS AT GLASGOW.

Two Deaths Have Already Occurred and Ten Families Have Been Removed For Isolation.

London, Aug. 29.—While India is suffering from one of the worst outbreaks of cholera ever recorded, so that the people are dying at the rate of 7,000 a week, Great Britain is alarmed by the prospect of an epidemic of bubonic plague within her own boundaries. The medical authorities of Glasgow have already had several cases under their observation. On Monday a child sickened and died within 48 hours from an illness which was at first thought to be pneumonia, but after minute examination by the hospital authorities was pronounced to be bubonic plague. Another death occurred yesterday, and ten families were removed to the reception house for patients suffering from the disease, which the municipality has hastily established.

THE TRIAL OF THE [illegible]

Bresci Has Been Placed on Trial at the City of Milan.

How the Assassin Prepared for His Attempt on the Life of the Late King of Italy.—What His Defence Will be.

New York, Aug. 29.—The trial of Bresci will open to-day at Milan, according to a cablegram from Rome. Much interest has been aroused by the substitution for the defence of the famous Anarchist lawyer, Merlino.

It is expected that Bresci will deliver a statement which he has been preparing.

In an interview Merlino said:—

"The defence will consist of a simple but dramatic description of Italy's social, economic and political condition, which rendered the assassination of King Humbert possible."

Bresci maintains his attitude of cynical indifference.

THE TRIAL BEGINS.

Milan, Aug 29.—The trial of Bresci, the anarchist who shot and killed King Humbert of Italy, opened here at 9 a.m. to-day. An immense crowd of people gathered about the court from early morning seeking admission to the court room, where only a few places were reserved for the ticket-holding public.

Bresci sat in the dock, calm, and almost indifferent. His counsel, Signor Martelli, head of the Milan bar, and the anarchist writer, Signor Merlino, made attempts on various grounds for adjournment, [illegible]. It was said that Bresci had written to the judges declaring he would not reply to the interrogatory.

Soldiers and gendarmes were plentifully stationed about the court.

While the indictment, which was very long, was being read, Bresci scanned the faces of the audience without any sign of fear or effrontery. The indictment showed that the assassin had indulged in incessant target practice, and that he had prepared bullets so as to render them more dangerous.

The witnesses were then introduced. There were eleven for the prosecution and five for the defence.

The examination of Bresci followed.

He declared he had decided to kill King Humbert after the events in Milan and Sicily, "to avenge the misery of people and my town."

He added—"I acted without advice or accomplice."

The prisoner admitted target practice and preparation of bullets. He spoke in a low, firm voice and said he fired three shots at three yards with his revolver. Two wooden targets were here placed on the table before the judges.

Brigadier of Gendarmes Salvatori recapitulated the story of assassination of the King. He [illegible] Bresci from the crowd, who nearly lynched the assassin. Bresci was covered with blood.

Gen. Avegadro des Cantes di Quinto, the King's aide de camp, who was with his Majesty when the latter was killed, recounted how the King was shot, saying that in answer to a question of witness after the crime his Majesty replied—"I [illegible] this——"

The King stopped in the middle of the sentence, said "Yes," and then expired.

The testimony of Galembert and Olivieri did not adduce any new facts.

The [illegible] deposed how he had seized Bresci by the throat, and a witness named Ramella, who had lodged with Bresci, and a friend three days prior to the crime said the prisoner was always perfectly calm.

KILLED IN CHINA.

Son of a Canadian Congregationalist Minister Slain by the Boxers

Montreal, Aug. 29.—Friends of the Rev. Thomas Hall, formerly of Point St. Charles, and who is very well known to Congregationalists throughout Canada, will regret to hear that the casualty list from China gives as one of the killed his son, Pte. James Oliver Hall, of E. Co., 9th United States Infantry, "the famous fighting 9th." The deceased was 27 years of age. He served through the Spanish war in the Philippines, and was repeatedly under fire there. At Pekin the company scaled the walls and planted the American flag. The captain and a number of others were killed, he being among them. Young Hall was very daring and courageous. He did gallantly rescuing the besieged legations. He was engaged to be married to a young lady in Northern New York, and was confidently looking forward to the end of the campaign. It is the custom of the United States to bring all deceased soldiers home. In the event of this being done with those dying in China interment of Pte. Hall's remains will take place in Mount Royal cemetery, Montreal.

WEATHER NOTES.

Probs—Light to moderate winds mostly west and north; fine and slightly cooler to-day.

Settled weather conditions now prevail in Ontario and it is also likely to be slightly cooler, more especially at nights. Heavy thunderstorms prevailed during the night over Manitoba and a few scattered showers have occurred in the Maritime Provinces.

PLOT TO BURN THE WHOLE CITY OF PEKIN

At the Looting at Tien Tsin Dozens of Headless Corpses Floated in the Ditches.

WHITE PEOPLE HELD UP THE THIEVING CHINESE.

By Standing to the Gates of the City and Interrupting Looters They Secured Booty for Themselves—Repressive Measures Have Been Adopted by the Allies.

London, Aug 30. Sir Chin Chen, the Chinese Minister in London asserts that he is in constant communication with Li Hung Chang who is still in Shanghai despatches received this morning bring no later Pekin news.

A Shanghai telegram says that Li Hung Chang has sent a memorial begging the Empress Dowager to appoint Prince Cheng, Gen. Yung Lu and the Yang Se Viceroys as peace makers with himself.

London, Aug. 30. The Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail wiring yesterday says he understands that Gen. Gaselee the British Commander with the allies has countermanded the order summoning more troops to the north, and that probably the British troops will go to Amoy.

There are conflicting rumors of a great battle in which 1500 Boxers and Prince Tuan were killed.

Berlin, Aug. 29.

The Frankfort Zee has received a despatch from Shanghai saying a plot has been discovered there to burn the whole city. It is added that the Europeans consider the streets unsafe after night fall and the general situation is described as critical.

London, Aug. 30.

The Reform party under Kang Yu Wei is said to be actively preparing for rebellion. Gen. Creagh, in the presence of Vice Admiral Seymour reviewed 3,000 troops of all nationalities at Shanghai, Wednesday. It is reported from Hankow that 26 Reformers have been executed and their heads exposed.

The Taku correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, wiring Aug. 26, says that the country around Taku and Pekin is devastated by the peasantry. The Boxers, who were moving southward from Shanghai are now returning hastily to their homes. Belated despatches and the stories of refugees arriving at Che Foo continues to describe the terrible conditions in Pekin, one of the worst incidents of the shocking desecration of the foreign cemetery outside the west wall. The details are too revolting to be described. Hundreds of bodies of Chinese are found in the streets of Pekin, supposed to be those of traitors to the cause of the Boxers. A Shanghai correspondent of the Times says that a native official telegram from Pao Ting Fu announces the arrival of the Court last Sunday at Tayuen Fu. Communication between Pekin and Tien Tsin is interrupted, probably because bands of Boxers made the road unsafe for couriers. The country north of Yang Tsun is said to be flooded. A German firm is negotiating with Chang Chi Tung, the Wu Chang Viceroy to lend him one million taels on the security of certain Vice-Regal industrial undertakings.

A correspondent in New Chang, says that the Russians at Hai Cheng are awaiting reinforcements, whose advance is delayed by the impassable condition of the roads.

Eye-witnesses report an indiscriminate slaughter of noncombatants and the reduction of the country to a state of utter desolation.

HORRORS AT TIEN TSIN.

Tien Tsin, China, July 17.—The ancient stone walls of the Chinese city of Tien Tsin surrounded, on the days of its occupation by the allied troops a square mile of such filth, ruin and death, such turmoil and pillage as history could hardly duplicate. Under normal conditions the place was no better than a huge cesspool festering with the accumulated rubbish and slops from a population of nearly a million persons packed into a labyrinth of hovels around the palace of Viceroys and pretty taotais who absorbed their wealth and gave them not even sewers in return. Now it is the incarnation of all the sufferings, horrors and waste of war.

The European soldiers when they fought their way up to the walls, saw floating in the canals and ditches outside dozens of Chinese slain by their own people because they had refused to fight. The bodies were headless and their hand were tied behind their backs. Their heads wear discovered afterwards. Rows of them decorated the outer walls hung by their pig tails.

Five flags were flying from the high pagodas on the city walls when this newspaper correspondent entered—British, American, French, Japanese and Russian. "It was hard enough to get those flags up there," remarked a foreign officer, "but the real trouble will be to get them down." The suburbs of the city presented a foretaste of what was inside. Shells had torn the huts, and plowed the ground, while the dead were scattered among dead horses, pigs and dogs, testifying how thoroughly the bullets had swept the region the day before.

MANY CHINESE DEAD

The sights inside compelled respect for the fighting qualities of the Chinese. Their dead were everywhere. Dressed in the coarse blue coolie blouse and trousers decorated with characters guaranteed to render them invulnerable to foreign bullets they were strewn all along the top of the wall, where they had fallen. Walking a quarter of a mile along the embankment the bodies averaged one in ten feet and the wall was nearly ten miles long.

Throughout the city the demolished houses and hundreds of killed gave evidence of how vastly more effective had been the foreign shell fire within the walls of the city than the Chinese barbardment of the foreign settlement which lasting for a month, had killed only a dozen people. The Viceroy had constructed in the palace yard two comfortable and impenetrable bomb proof excavations guarded by sand bags, but the common people were less fortunate. Many women and children were lying dead in the streets, torn terribly by shrapnel. The living populace were utterly indifferent to their dead. They would not take the trouble to drag them out of the streets or even cover them with matting, but trampled them under foot without bothering to turn aside. Before the shooting in the streets was finished thousands of Chinese had emerged from their burrows, carrying white flags or the flags of foreign nations, principally the Japanese.

THE LOOTING

Most remarkable of all the sights was the looting of the city. The middle of the place was like an ant hill kicked open. Chinese swarmed everywhere, thousands and thousands of them dying into the flames of the burning shops getting under falling walls and into choking clouds of smoke. Most of them were half naked, grimy with smoke, and sometimes dripping with blood. They preyed upon one another. A Chinese appearing with a prize must fight his way, other Chinese sprang upon him, and clutched his plunder. They rolled among corpses, pulling and tearing, while children being trampled [illegible] cried for help and the mob [illegible] right over them.

The palaces, the mint, the pawnshops, the stores of silks, furs and jewelry were the first object to attack. Near the middle of the city was the most prosperous pawnshop, an institution that had probably existed for centuries. Wealthy Chinese were accustomed to store their winter clothing there for safe keeping. When the doors were battered down the mob flowed in like a tidal wave. In a twinkling all was pandemonium. Two forces collided in the gateway a rush line of Chinese struggling to enter and another line fighting to get armfuls of loot, while an occasional soldier went through the crowd.

The looting flourished for three days. On the first day it was entirely unrestrained. Many white people accumulated stacks of goods by simply standing at the city gates and holding up the best laden Chinese from the endless procession that flowed out. Packhorses, carts, rickshaws, coolies loaded with trunks, and sacks and piled with loose silks, furs and bronzes, crowded all the roads leading down to the settlement.

REPRESSIVE MEASURES.

On the second day a conference of commanding officers decided to adopt repressive measures. The commanders, excepting the French empowered the British, who were doing provost duty, to seize all loot. The official statement was that all seized loot would be sold, the proceeds to be divided among the soldiers as prize money.

On the third day of the occupation a more effective method was followed by compelling looters to give up their loads at the city gates. Even this measure did not prevent the loss of much gold and silver. Civilians from the concession made a general raid on the salt commissioners treasure and many succeeded in smuggling loads of silver bars through to the settlement.

To-day the walled city looks as though a tornado had stricken it. Enough valuable property has been destroyed to stock a big city and enough has been seized to give every soldier a considerable sum if the distribution is honestly administered.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 30 1900.

THE HOPELESS PROBLEM OF THE HOBO.

The conventional tramp is a person of insatiable appetite, no residence, ragged apparel and undaunted philosophy. He moves through the world with a sardonic smile at the folly of an industrious life and an exalted contempt for diligence, thrift, cleanliness, law-abiding, decency, regular habits and permanent habitations. He is the human waif, the breath of whose nostrils is adversity, the flotsam from a sea of misery, the jetsam of misfortune, the legitimate son of sorrow, and he likes to be all these things.

But he is a human being, entrusted according to our Christian faith with an immortal soul, and like all other men conceived in sin and born in iniquity, moving on to inherit his standing in eternity of woe. With this serious future before him he will of course be of equal importance at the final judgment with ourselves, but a wrong is being done him on this side of the last ferry in that he is not held to be so now. Nevertheless in his absolute passivity the tramp, with his paradoxical relations to society, is forcing himself to be a living factor of the age, and who counts him out misses something worth considering. Carlyle, in "Sartor Resartus," begs to view the people of earth denuded of clothing and gathered on a plain where the keenest scrutiny might not recognize the king from the beggar nor the gentle-born from the child whose birthplace was the covert of a hedge.

The tramp has saved us from such discriminating efforts, and equally in his dirt and his acts boldly carries the label which gives him present class. But his future and his genesis are alike clouded in mystery, and the controlling spirit of his life is masked in the careless scorn we cast over him. Has he joys, as obviously, from our viewpoint, he has sorrows? Do angels minister to him sweet dreams as he shivers in sleep beneath the cold stars? In his unending journeys to somewhere does he not have a goal where the reward [illegible] reach it awaits him with a welcome as sweet as the kiss of children on our own threshold? These are questions that sentiment may ask in vain, for the stern, harsh, practical verdict of the world declares the tramp to be an unqualified nuisance, crossing too [illegible] over the [illegible] land [illegible] determined lawbreaker, [illegible] to life and property, a disturber of peace, a foe to order, a marauder, a thief, a perpetrator of great and little crimes, the Ishmael of his race, the [illegible] of existence, the reproach of civilization, the abomination of the good and the offscouring of the evil, helpless, friendless, hopeless useless and altogether cursed—and yet a pauper whose proprietorship is undenied by his Maker.

What are we going to do with him? Just nothing. The compass of law as framed by finite minds has no remedy and it cannot aid us [illegible] him. It can only add to the miseries of [illegible] by depriving him of the only happiness his life affords, the gypsy joy of being a vagabond. [illegible] the tramps on till the judgment day, scoffing at pity and derisive alike of our sympathy, and his own sorrows and sins.

Col. Verry's Strategist.

Col. Horace B. Verry has a cat which is the terror of dogs passing the Verry domicile on Cedar street. There is a particular stone post at the gateway on which the cat likes to sit, waiting for a victim. If the dog approaches the post, as dogs sometimes will on business intent, the cat promptly drops on his back and gets a firm grip on hair or hide as the case may be. The dog lets out up the street or down the street, whichever way he was headed, or the shortest way home, as if the devil himself had got him, instead of a plain cat of feminine gender. She seems to enjoy the free ride, and finally drops off, the dog never stopping to say good day.

CHAT WITH A PAWNBROKER

The Oddest Thing Ever Offered to Him—The Business Not All Profit.

"The oddest thing I ever had offered to me," said a pawnbroker, "was a skeleton; and I didn't take it. I hadn't any doubt that it was all right, that the man that offered it owned it and had a right to sell it. I suppose he was a medical student who wanted money just then more than he wanted the skeleton. But I didn't know anything about the value of skeletons, and how much to advance on it, and so I didn't take it. But that will give you some sort of an idea of the variety of things that the pawnbroker has offered to him.

"Of course, you understand that not all pawnbrokers take everything: there are men who advance money on nothing but watches and jewelry and diamonds and pictures and that sort of thing and who wouldn't give anything on the handsomest satin-lined overcoat that ever was, because it isn't in their line. They have no place to put such things; no conveniences for taking care of them. And then there are pawnbrokers doing a general business who take all sorts of things, watches and banjos, boxing gloves and silver spoons, practically anything and every thing that offers. They might occasionally run across something that they wouldn't take, as I did with the skeleton, but not often; there's practically nothing but what they will take, and practically nothing but what is offered at one time and another.

"On some things the amount advanced is very small; but still I've got things in safe that I never should get my money back on if I had to sell them. You'd suppose it would be easy for the pawnbroker to give on a thing no more than he could get for it if he had to sell it, and so it would be; but as a matter of fact he may give more than he could get back. He would be governed by circumstances, and by his judgment of the person offering the goods.

"I might have a customer bring in a diamond ring that I would lend so much on, whatever it was, and that would be a safe loan; the ring would be good for it if it was never reclaimed. But may be the next week the same customer, hard up and needing money, would bring in a pair of trousers, spotted and worn; not worth much if you had to sell them. And very likely I would lend more on those trousers than I could ever get for them; lending that because he's a customer and I want to accommodate him, and want to keep him as a customer, and because the chances are that he'll take the trousers out again; but if he doesn't why then I'm out.

"The question of whether a man who wants a loan is likely to redeem what he offers is often taken into account. It is a common thing for the pawnbroker to look at the man, maybe a stranger, and lend on his judgment of the man as well as on his knowledge of the value of the thing the man puts down on the counter. Of course, he makes mistakes in this, but he takes the chances, and I suppose he oftener gets it right than not. There might come in here you, or anybody, needing money, with an old-fashioned key-winding watch that I could not get $1 for, and want to borrow $15, and very likely I'd lend it though I knew I never could get my money back if the watch wasn't redeemed. But I know, or I think I know, at a glance, whether he will redeem the watch or not, what sort of a man he is, and how much he values the watch for its associations; and I go according to my judgment.

"No doubt as a general proposition the pawnbroker sets out to lend on things no more than he could sell them for; there are times when instead of making money he loses it; what he tries to do is to get a profit as the net result."

FLABBY FELLOWS

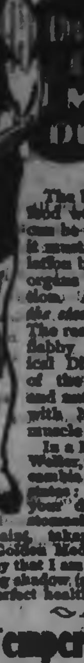
DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY



The body is built up from the food we eat. But before food can be assimilated by the body it must be prepared for assimilation by the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Food does not feed when the stomach is "out of order." The result is, weak muscles and flabby flesh. "Golden Medical Discovery" heals diseases of the stomach and digestive and nutritive system. It works with Nature to make manly muscle and form firm flesh.

In a letter received from A. D. Walker, Esq., of Pensacola, Escambia Co., Fla.
